MORE FUTILE BALLOTS TAKEN BY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION AT BALTIMORE---WILSON IS LEADING

INDIANA GIVES BULK OF ITS VOTES TO NEW JERSEYAN

Thirtieth Ballot Shows He Is Five Ahead of the Speaker.

Hall of Nebraska Predicts Sessions Will Last Another Week.

THIRTY-SECOND BALLOT

Convention Hall, Baltimore, Md., July 1.—During the taking of the thirty-first ballot the Wilson managers claimed they had been promised 30 more votes by the thirty-third and 102 by the thirty-fourth ballot. This would make Wilson's vote on the thirty-fourth 562. A majority is 545. Following was the result of the thirty-second ballot: Wilson, 477½; Clark, 446½; Underwood, 119½; Harmon, 14; Kern, 2; Foss, 28; absent, ½.

Convention Hall, Baltimore, Md., July 1.—Woodrow Wilson took the lead in the Democratic national convention today on the ballots to pick a presidential nominee. The first ballot taken today was the twenty-seventh of the convention, and resulted in no choice. With comparatively slight variations in the votes of the various states, the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth. The thirtieth, however, gave Clark 455 and Wilson 460.

The twenty-eighth ballot brought the first notable break, the thirty votes heretofore solid for Governor Marshall being lost, 29 for Wilson and one for Kern.

Wilson's total was thus swelled to 437½, making him a close second to Clark, who still clung to his lead with 463½.

Iowa gave Wilson fourteen on the thirtieth ballot, helping to put him in the lead for the first time. The thirty-first resulted in no choice.

The convention hall was again the center of animation from an early hour today. Crowds began to besiege the entrances by 9 o'clock, and by 10 o'clock the galleries were half filled and a sprinkling of delegates had taken their place.

The prevailing sentiment from the floor was that nothing definite thus far had been accomplished to bring the deadlock to a close, and that if anything, the lines were quite as tight, or tighter, than before, although all recognized that the convention had been replete with so many sensations that a break or a coup might come at any time.

Fragile Hope of Break.

Delegates held to a fragile hope this morning that the first three or four ballots taken at the day's session would result in sufficient splits among the instructed delegations to lead to a breaking of the deadlock and the nomination of a presidential ticket.

The opinion expressed by William J. Bryan that he could see no reason why the convention should not nominate today was not shared by the party leaders, who frankly admitted they could not see the way to untangle the knot that bound the convention.

Bryan received enthusiastic cheers as he came down the aisle to his seat.

Among the early arrivals there was a disposition to view Mr. Bryan's move against New York as the adroit adoption of the tactics of the Whitney-Don Dickinson element in aligning the Democratic national convention against Chief Croker and the New York support of David B. Hill. At that time Tammany had its orator in the person of Bourke Cockran, who held the convention throughout the night, until at daybreak the various elements from outside New York state gradually forced the nomination of Cleveland.

The contest then, as now, was against New York, although the issue of "the interests" had not been injected, and the combined outside elements had the advantage of Cleveland's prestige.

"Here for a Week."

Vice Chairman Hall, member of the national committee from Nebraska, said:

"I believe we will be here for a week. Certainly I do not look for a nomination for two or three days."

There were no overnight changes in the situation so far as could be learned. Leaders of the Clark, Wilson and Underwood movements most fear the coming of a moment when the delegates, weary with the struggle, might thrust leadership aside and choose a candidate whose name was opportunely sprung upon the convention.

As the situation presented itself, neither Clark or Wilson appeared to have enough votes to win, as one or another, with an alliance with the Underwood, Harmon and Marshall forces, could sustain expected losses and still control more than a third of the convention.

Friendships on Edge.

Bitter denunciation and acrimonious discussion frequently were heard today in the corridors of the hotels where the delegates gathered, and the statements of Speaker Clark and Mr. Bryan were read with avidity. Many political friendships approached the parting of the ways, and this, with the feeling that one candidate for the nomination has as good a chance as another, made it extremely difficult for more pacific leaders to hold the antagonistic elements together in simple friendly rivalry.

The convention was called to order by Chairman James at 11:03, and at 11:17 the twenty-seventh ballot was ordered.

BATTLE ANY TIME LIKELY IN MEXICO

Federal Troops Are Advancing on Rebels in Three Columns.

Federal Headquarters, Consuelo, Mex., July 1.—A battle between the federals and rebels is expected at any time. Gen. Huerta arrived here yesterday with his forces in excellent condition.

Federals Advancing.

At the Rebel Front, Bachima, Mex., July 1.—In three columns, the government troops advanced toward the rebel front today from Consuelo, eight miles south of here. During the day the two armies are expected to engage in the first big battle since the rebels were defeated at Rellano nearly four weeks ago. It is estimated that 10,000 men will be engaged on both sides.

THIRD FATALITY IN AERIAL RACE

Another German Aviator Is Killed and Three Are Injured.

Atlona, Prussia, July 1.—Benno Koenig, the German aviator, died today as the result of injuries suffered yesterday when he made a violent landing in a clump of bushes. He was participating in the northwest aviation circuit of 425 miles, which was resumed here yesterday after having been postponed on June 2, owing to the deaths of Albert Buchstaetter, one of the best known German aviators, and his passenger, Lieut. Stille of the German army, soon after the start.

Three other professional aviators taking part in the contest also were injured by falls yesterday. They are expected to recover.

NEGRO REGIMENT IN MORE TROUBLE

One Soldier in "Brownsville" Command Accused of Attacking Woman.

Seattle, Wash., July 1.—All the negro soldiers of the four companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry, "the Brownsville regiment," stationed at Fort Lawton, are confined to quarters in an effort to identify a soldier who is alleged to have attacked Mrs. F. Pratt, a white woman, in front of her home at Twenty-first avenue west and Thomas street, Saturday night.

Mrs. Pratt said she was followed by a negro soldier, and in front of her home, she says, the negro seized her. She struggled to get free and he fled.

STREET RAILWAY GRANTS INCREASE

Averages 10 Per Cent for All Men in Service Six Months.

General Manager Herbert Warren of the Duluth Street Railway company upon his return this morning from a conference with President C. G. Goodrich, announced a raise in the wages of all car men in Duluth and Superior, averaging substantially 10 per cent, and amounting to an increase of from $7 to $10 per month, depending upon the length of employment. It applies to all car men in the service over six months.

To men who have been in the service less than six months the increase will amount to from $3 to $4 per month. The new scale goes into effect today.

The company's decision to raise the wages was this morning announced to the committee of employes, which the management had the men select a number of weeks ago.

In granting this raise in wages the company gives view to its expressed policy of showing in some substantial way its appreciation of the loyal service rendered in the past by its car men, and hopes that the increased scale of wages will attract to the service intelligent and competent men seeking steady employment the year around without danger of periods of enforced idleness, which so often occur in other lines of employment.

LEA SAYS WILSON IS SURE TO WIN.

Baltimore, Md., July 1.—Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee predicted at 11 o'clock that Wilson would pass the 500 mark early in the day and be nominated before night.

NEW PARTY "WILL FAIL"

Chafin Says It Is Needed, But Started Two Years Too Late.

Declares No Such Organization Can Spring Up From Bolting.

Madison, Wis., July 1.—"A third party cannot be founded on a bolt. That is my reason for believing that the Roosevelt party will fail. But men like Bryan and La Follette must get together to start a party before this country gets any reform worth speaking of."

This view was expressed here today by Eugene W. Chafin, Prohibition presidential nominee four years ago. In his lecture tours in the last few years he said he has found an ever-increasing demand for a real reform third party.

"There must be a third party," he SAYS ITALY WILL SUFFER AGAIN

Boston, Mass., July 1.—Prof. Frank Alvord Perret of the department of geology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology predicts that Italy will soon be visited by another catastrophe. He foretold the eruption of Mount Aetna in 1910. After the eruption of 1906 the king of Italy decorated him. Since then he has remained within the zone of volcanic activity, coming to Boston at rare intervals.

John B. Stanchfield Excoriates Nebraskan in the Convention.

Convention Hall, Baltimore, Md., July 1.—Incidental to the taking of the twenty-seventh ballot in the Democratic convention today, John B. Stanchfield of New York delivered a bitter philippic against W. J. Bryan. Mr. Stanchfield spoke when the New York delegation was being polled.

Under the unit rule New York's 90 delegates were recorded for Clark. The scattering Wilson votes in the New York poll brought cheers, which were quickly checked.

John B. Stanchfield, New York delegate, spoke from the platform, explaining his vote and championing New York as a decisive factor in Democracy.

Stanchfield declared that the integrity of New York delegates had been Badly Hurt in Fight.

Fred Ecker, a deck hand on the steamer B. S. Berry, was terribly bruised in a fight on the boat Saturday afternoon. The young man, it is claimed, was kicked about the deck by the second mate, who has not yet been apprehended by the authorities, Ecker being too weak to swear out a warrant. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he was attended by Dr. L. B. Shehan.

RICH GIRL WHO WORKED IN A LAUNDRY.

In the American Magazine, Ida M. Tarbell tells the life story of Carola Woerishoffer, a girl of rich parentage in New York, who absolutely refused to live in luxury on the money which was hers by inheritance and chose to go through the real experiences of life which make for the upbuilding of genuine character. This girl, who was killed in an accident at the age of 26, achieved a great work for women's trade unions before her death, but earlier in her experience she worked for four months in a laundry under precisely the conditions that were imposed on the other workers. In fact, those who worked with her had no knowledge of her identity. Of this experience in the laundry Miss Tarbell writes in part:

"As she was determined to shirk nothing she was regularly at her tub or mangle or feeding machine at 7:30 a. m., and whenever the work demanded it she stayed on into the night. There were no provisions for seating in the long work period, frequently the rooms were practically unventilated, always more or less stifling from steam and damp. In some places she found neglect and uncleanliness adding to the disagreeable features inevitable in the industry. She worked days over unguarded machines where the girls told her cynically: 'You didn't get burned today or yesterday, but you sure will some time, everyone does.' That she must have often suffered disgust, pain and fatigue is certain, but she makes no record of it. It is only by accident, indeed, that one learns that she was conscious that it was a hot summer! She is telling in her scrupulous, restrained way of the ventilating provisions in the different places she worked: 'In one place where the investigator dipped shirts in hot starch at a breakneck pace, she says, 'she was first struck when she went out to lunch by the coolness of the day. That night she discovered that the thermometer had registered 96 degrees in the shade!'

"The entire naturalness of her attitude toward her fellow-workers, her apparent unconsciousness that there was any difference between her and them, made it possible for her to fall at once into friendly relations. She was one of them. Dozens of little comments like the following show this: 'Upon entering a new place the investigator found, as a rule, a spirit of friendly interest and of cordiality, expressed occasionally in the accepted formula: "Say, you got a feller?" "Sure; ain't you got one?" "Sure."'

"Or take this: 'One of the ironers was eager to tell her past pampered life as a cook "off Fifth Avenue." "Sure, and it was a fine time I had there but," she added with a sigh, "it was there I met me misfortune." "And what was that?" someone asked. "Me husband," she said, and then explained how it was through his illness that she had been brought upon her present arduous days. "Standing on your feet nine hours a day five days in the week when you are well on in life is no joke."'

"Her strict control of herself, the easy terms she felt into with the girls, gave her a reasonableness toward the work and an understanding of how and why they, as a rule, accept cheerfully and as a matter of course its hard conditions. That is understanding and not emotion ruled her investigation."

If you try to "over-advertise" your store for a while—you'll be thankful that such a "crazy idea" ever got into your head.

WHAT IS A "DINKEY?"

Judge Cant Must Decide Whether It Is a a Locomotive.

Boiler Inspector's Widow Sues to Recover $615 in Fees.

Is the dinkey engine a locomotive in the eyes of the law?

This is a point which Judge Cant of the district court has been asked to decide and upon which hinges a law suit which is on trial in his court in which Marie Lowe, administratrix of the estate of John D. Lowe, former state boiler inspector, is suing the Drake & Stratton company, stripping contractors, for inspection fees.

Under the state law, locomotives are exempt from state boiler inspection. In 1905 John D. Lowe in the capacity of state boiler inspector, made an inspection of the equipment of the Drake & Stratton company and among other boilers inspected those of the dinkey engines.

The Drake & Stratton company claims it never authorized or agreed to pay for the inspection of the dinkey engines, maintaining that they are in the class of locomotives and as such are exempt from inspection by the boiler inspector.

Under the law, the boiler inspector collects a fee of $3 for each boiler inspected. Lowe inspected 205 dinkey engines and included in his bill $615 as fees. The company refused payment. Lowe died on Jan. 13, 1911, and his wife, Marie, as administrator, started suit to recover collection.

The stripping contractors claim that the supreme court has held that a dinkey engine is a locomotive in so far as personal injury suits are concerned and maintain that the same rule should apply as to the inspection laws.

John H. Norton and Warren E. Greene are attorneys for Mrs. Lowe and Thomas J. Davis represents the Drake & Stratton company.

Endeavor Committees Meet.
Wednesday evening of this week the executive committee of the local Christian Endeavor union will meet at the First Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock. Business pertaining to the recent convention will come before the meeting, and it is also likely that new departments of Christian Endeavor activity will be added to the local work, such as junior and intermediate work, Christian citizenship, and appointment of a missionary superintendent to look after local home mission problems. It is desired that every member of this committee be present as well as chairmen of convention committees.

Land Big Contract.
The contract for all the Fienestra steel sash to be used in the various buildings of the Minnesota Steel company's mammoth plant has been let to the Paine & Nixon company. It is a reason for mutual congratulation on the part of Duluth business interests that this contract was secured by one of Duluth's own concerns in the face of nation-wide competition, and against companies dealing in many other kinds of sash.

Works Well In Sioux City.
Jonathan Brown, an ex-councilman and superintendent of public safety of Cioux City, Iowa, who spent Sunday in Duluth while on a tour of the Great Lakes, is an enthusiastic believer in the commission plan of city government. Sioux City has had the commission plan for two years he says and the citizens could not be induced to go back to the old system. Municipal affairs, he declares, are run more economically and efficiently under the commission form. Mr. Brown was suffering from the heat at his home city last week. He says that it is cool in Duluth and that has afforded him quite a relief.

"Ginger" Is Gingery.
Ginger, the monthly magazine published by Stone-Ordean-Wells company, comes out in an attractive July issue. The cover this month is the first of a series of four, which illustrate scenes in the life of Hiawatha, the great Ojibway, immortalized by Longfellow, showing the wigwam of Nokomis, daughter of the moon and mother of Wenonah, who brought Hiawatha into the world. The July issue has been carefully edited and is full of snappy interesting sketches. Harry A. Earnshaw is editor.

Husband Deserted.
On the grounds of desertion Nellie M. Perry today started suit for divorce in district court against John L. Perry, whom she married at Superior in May, 1909. She claims that in April, 1910, Perry left her and went to San Francisco, and that he never returned. She asks the court to restore to her her maiden name, Nellie M. Archibald. The time in which Perry may file an answer has been limited to July 30.

Pressnell in the case of the United States against Hum Wah Bing, a Chinaman, whom Commissioner Pressnell found to be unlawfully in the United States. Hum Wah Bing has been out on bail since the decision was made. Attorney A. E. McManus took the appeal in behalf of Wah Bing, who claims that he is a lawful citizen, having been born in San Francisco. He was arrested at Hibbing, Minn., several months ago.

Fourth of July Party.
The Duluth Social club (colored) will give its first annual Fourth of July entertainment on Tnursday, July 4, at Kalamazoo hall, from 8 to 12 p. m. Refreshments served. The entertainment will be free, but by invitation only.

Special School Election.
N. A. Young, superintendent of county schools, is today having notices posted for a special election in Districts No. 33 and 14 on the proposition of their consolidation. Two months ago it was turned down, but under the law there is no time limiting the period which must elapse before another election is held for the same purpose. The districts which it has been proposed to consolidate are near Alborn.

Bumper Berry Crop.
A bumper strawberry crop along the south shore is predicted for this year by H. G. Posey and Emil Sctnaland, two young business men of Washburn, Wis., who spent Saturday in the city as guests of Harry H. Burpee of 101 East Fourth street. Md. Posey is interested in the grocery business at Washburn and Mr. Scantland is proprietor of a pool hall. Mr. Posey declared that the south shore berry country looked upon Duluth as a good market.

SOAKING RAINS QUENCH FIRES

Bemidji, Minn., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Copious showers today are drenching the forests in this part of the state and at the same time soaking the fields which had begun to show the effects of the extreme heat.

Forest Ranger L. F. Johnson received reports yesterday of fires burning in the woods in different directions and today's soaking comes at an opportune moment to check a possible serious spread of the flames.

Enough water has already fallen to check the fires and the rains continue.

A CONVENT OF LADY BISCUIT-MAKERS.

World Wide Magazine: At Varese Ligure, a mountain village some twenty-five miles from Sestri Levante, in the north of Italy, there is a most remarkable convent. The ladies who live there spend their time in making biscuits, which they send to private customers all over the world. All who belong to this quaint religious community have taken a vow never to appear again to the public, and the only person the nuns are allowed to see is the doctor, and then only in case of serious illness. If one cannot see the fair inmates of the convent of Varese Ligure at work with flour and almond paste, one can at least taste their biscuits, which are most delicious. They are made in the form of fish, flowers and fruit, and in some cases are so beautifully colored that it seems a pity to put one's teeth into them. The nuns also devote their attention to drying mushrooms which are brought to them by the peasants of the district, and these fungli secchi are likewise sent all over the world. It is no easy matter for a novice to obtain admission to this convent of lady biscuit-makers. Novices desirous of renouncing the world and joining the community have to bring with them a fairly large capital and a certain amount of education—two conditions which are not always found together.

NO LONGER AN EXPERIMENT

Remedial Loan Societies Successful, Says Associated Charities Secretary.

Believes Minnesota Should Raise Her Legal Rate of Interest.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the Associated Charities, who returned yesterday from Cleveland, where he recently attended the annual convention of the National Federation of Remedial Loan associations, is quite enthusiastic over the progress which has been made in the remedial loan field throughout the country and is satisfied that there will be no difficulty in Duluth to secure a financial backing to such an enterprise.

"One of the things which impressed me at the Cleveland meeting," said Mr. Dinwiddie this morning, "was the report of W. N. Finley, chairman of the federation, which showed the remarkable progress made throughout the country in the organization of remedial loan societies. An intelligent interest seems to have been awakened all over the country and the proposition has surely passed the experimental stage.

Mr. Finley's report called attention to the fact that charity, neither in the old meaning of the word, nor in any other sense, does not enter into the organization of a remedial loan society and that such an association was engaged in a social service of a high order.

"The National Federation closes the year 1911-12 with a membership of twenty-five societies operating in twenty-one cities and fourteen states, an increase of nearly 100 per cent in three years. The coming year holds out promises of numerous accessions in the near future to the membership of the federation."

Raise Legal Rate.

Mr. Dinwiddie, while at the convention, observed that an effort is being made in several states to secure the passage of a law raising the legal rate of interest up to about 24 per cent so as to facilitate the operation of a remedial loan society.

In view of the fact that on small loans, the agents in Duluth, for instance, charge interest rates of 40 to 200 per cent, Mr. Dinwiddie believes that Minnesota's law should be so amended as to allow a higher interest charge. However, under the present law making 10 per cent the legal rate of interest, a company may operate, as under the statute an additional fee may be charged to cover the cost of making an appraisal. The law allows such a charge, but specifies that it must be reasonable.

Mr. Dinwiddie also favors making usury a crime on the Minnesota statute books. In several of the states the iniquitous practices of the loan sharks in extorting money from the poor by usurious interest charges is made punishable by fine and imprisonment. In Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit recently loan sharks have been convicted and sentenced to prison.

Mr. Dinwiddie says that he has secured considerable data relative to the cost of organizing and plans of operation of remedial loan societies in other cities of the country and that an effort will be made at once to interest local capital in the organization of such a society in Duluth.

Since local interest has been aroused in the remedial loan movement, Warren E. Greene, assistant county attorney, and the Associated Charities have received inquiries from would-be customers as to whether or not the society was yet ready for business.

Real Bargains Draw Big Crowds.

The Gidding clearance sales are drawing even greater crowds than usual, which is undoubtedly due to the exceedingly liberal reductions offered in all departments. It doesn't take long for the news to spread when women find genuine bargains like the Gidding firm is offering in these sales.

FEWER JUNE WEDDINGS.

There were eight fewer weddings in June in St. Louis county this year, than last.

At least, it would appear so from the marriage license record at the courthouse.

In June, 1911, the clerk of the court issued 124 matrimonial permits. This year 116 licenses to wed were taken out.

HATCHERY AT FOND DU LAC

State May Raise Fish in Picturesque River Suburb.

Members Will Be in City Tuesday to Lork Over Site.

The members of the state game and fish commission will be taken to Fond du Lac tomorrow to look over the ground with a view of considering the advisability of establishing a state hatchery at that suburb.

The commission is now in this part of the state. The members were in the city Saturday and left for an inspection tour of the ranges. They are expected to return tomorrow and following a lunch at the Commercial club they will proceed to Fond du Lac. The members of the party are: President George J. Bradley, E. L. Ogville, J. A. Wessell and H. A. Rider, executive agent.

Judge W. L. Windom, Deputy Game Wardens T. J. Storey, G. H. Huseby and John Mattson, and several local citizens will accompany them to the far western end of the city tomorrow. Those who are familiar with the ground at Fond du Lac declare that it would afford an excellent site for a hatchery.

Fishermen in this part of the state are anxious that a hatchery be established here. There is none in the far upper end of the state, where the majority of the best trout streams and many lakes containing fish are located. The government has a hatchery at Lakeside, but none of the fry find their way into the streams within the state.

Two new deputy wardens were added to the force today. They are John Mattson, who formerly held the same position, and Archie Boyd of West Duluth. The commisson has become convinced that the force was not large enough to properly protect game and fish in this part of the state and caused the addition to be made. Those who are familiar with the situation throughout the northern counties declare that several more deputies could still be added and all of them find more than enough work to keep them busy from one end of the year to the other.

SICK MAN PENNED IN THE GARRET

Chicagoan Nearly Starves During Six Days' Imprisonment.

Chicago, July 1.—Louis Haver, 34 years old, was found unconscious from starvation in the attic of his home here last night after his relatives and friends had been searching the city for him for six days.

Haver was recovering from a long illness at the time of his disappearance. Carpenters were shingling his house, and he went to the roof to watch them work. Growing tired of this he crawled through a hole into the attic and fell asleep. The carpenters, not knowing he was there, completed their work and went away.

When Haver awakened he had no means of escape. He tried to attract the attention of those in the house, and when this failed, even dug at the boards with his fingers. Then he became too weak to try further to make himself heard. Finally he began to rave from the pangs of hunger and his people called the police to make an investigation. The man's rescue followed.

FOREST FIRES ARE CONTINUAL MENACE

Town of Margie, North of Northome, Has Close Call From Flames.

Northome, Minn., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state fire fighters have had several strenuous days in this section. Only heroic action by the forest patrol a few days ago saved the town of Margie, north of here on the M. & I. from destruction.

The fire was fought all day and at times it looked as though it could not be held, but the fire fighters won.

Homesteaders' Cabins Burn.

An area of abouve five miles square was burned over before the fire was checked. Several homestead shacks were destroyed and a considerable quantity of ties and posts were burned, but the extent of the property loss cannot be estimated at this time.

At one time the people were for leaving the village to its fate, and a train of gravel cars was made ready to take them and a few portable effects to a big gravel pit, nine miles away, but there were a few who would not give up the fight, and they saved the village without the loss of a building.

A fire at Spur 157, on the M. & I. road, a few days ago, burned an area one mile long and half a mile wide, destroying much small timber that was on hand ready for shipment.

Homesteaders' Cabins Burn.

A fire in section nine, 159-30, east an area of about five miles square and caused much anxiety in the neighborhood. Half a mile east of Hines a forest fire made headway half a mile along either side of the railroad track, and forty rods back.

Fire has been burning fiercely in 151-25, but Ranger Winslow has a big force of men on the ground and it is thought they will be able to hold it.

The Comble & Bennet slashings east of Northome burned last week, taking the camps that were used during the winter.

Ranger Winslow reports that the forest conditions are just right for a big conflagration, and he is on the job night and day to prevent just such a thing.

DULUTHIANS IN BIG STORM

Arthur Ryan, Mrs. Smead and Judge Boyle in Cyclone District.

News of the cyclone which hit Regina, Sask., yesterday, destroying lives and property, found a responsive chord in the hearts of many Duluth people, for scores of friends of local residents are in or close to the stricken district. Efforts are being made by many here to reach friends and relatives in and around Regina to find out the best or the worst news, but with little avail, for only one wire is working and that is overloaded with official and newspaper dispatches. A full list of those in Regina and nearby points who went there from this part of the country or who have relatives here, is not yet available, but it is understood to be quite extensive.

Mrs. M. A. Ryan asked The Herald for information this morning, for her son, Arthur, in business in Saskatoon, which is not far from Regina. He was to leave for home this week and his mother is very anxious.

Thomas Cameron of 1115 East Fourth street is quite anxious about his daughter, Mrs. T. A. Smead, and her three children, who reside at Saskatchewan City, a short distance from Regina. He says that they were to have started for Duluth tomorrow.

Judge John H. Boyle, formerly assistant municipal judge of Duluth, and very well known here, is somewhere in Saskatchewan and it is believed is in Regina.

Mrs. A. F. Swanson of 423 Twenty-first avenue west, anxiously inquired about some cousins and friends who reside at Regina. Three cousins, A. W. Stewart, Ormie Stewart and Mrs. A. Burgess all reside in the center of the business district of the city, and Mrs. Swanson fears that they have met with disaster. Other friends, a family named Forsythe, she fears also are among those affected.

George Barrett of the West end has three brothers and a sister living northwest of Regina and is trying to find out whether or not they were among those killed or injured. They all formerly resided in Duluth and are well known here. They are Mrs. A. Mathers, John Barrett, Benjamin Barrett and A. Barrett.

CHILDREN IN DANGER

East Fourth Street Contract Also Before the City Council.

Chief Troyer will recommend to the council this evening that an ordinance be adopted which will prohibit the utilization of the streets as baseball, football and general playgrounds.

The practice has become so common in all parts of the city that the authorities feel the necessity of legislation which wil give them control of the situation. The complaints because of this use of the highways by the "kids" are becoming more numerous every day.

The boys, and not infrequently girls, not only interfere with the traffic, but run risks of serious or fatal injury. They dart recklessly before automobiles and teams and narrow escapes are becoming common. Where the streets are used by street cars the danger is increased many times.

The petition for the improvement of East Fourth street between Sixth and Fourteenth avenues east is expected to be presented to the council. It has been under way for a long time past but it is explained that no action has been taken upon it because it has not been in such shape that the city attorney would approve it. If the improvement is made as petitioned for there will be an 18-foot seeded parkway in the middle of the street, with 22-foot roadways and the street car tracks on either side and 12-foot sidewalks.

This morning the board of public works had not finished figuring up the bids offered for the paving of East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues. The specifications include an unusually large number of different combinations but it is expected that they will be ready for presentation to the council this evening.

The report of the water and light committee, which was laid over a week at the last meeting, will likely come up for definite action. The committee recommends the appointment of three appraisers to determine the value of the tangible property of the Duluth-Edison Electric company before negotiations for the purchase of the plant go further.

The electrical ordinance, consisting of fifty-nine typewritten pages, will receive its first reading and be referred to the committee on ordinances and resolutions.

NEW Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY ARRIVES AND LIKES DULUTH

B. C. Wade, the new general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., is delighted with his first impression of Duluth. Today he declared that he was greatly struck by the spirit of the people and the air of sincerity that seems to be one of the dominant characteristics of the city.

It is rather a peculiar coincidence, but just twenty-five years ago Mr. Wade, then at the St. Paul association, received a number of urgent telegrams requesting that he come here and accept the position of physical instructor. Instead he went to Montana, later going West.

In 1889 Mr. Wade came to Duluth as a delegate to a Y. M. C. A. convention that was being held here. He has also been at Winona for a number of years, and his parents have resided in this city for many years, so that he is not exactly a stranger to Duluth nor Minnesota.

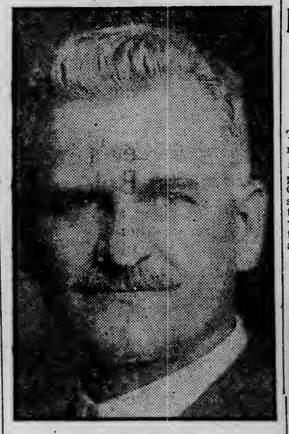

The only matter that is troubling the new secretary, is the fact that he is unable to secure a house. He stated that he has been looking since his arrival, but success has not as yet crowned his efforts. Mr. Wade is a thorough Roosevelt ian in one respect at least, for there are something like seven children who will be added to the population of the city.

"Don't think your city is quiet or is suffering from what we call a lull in business affairs," said Mr. Wade. "When I came away from Denver I was told that there were 3,900 vacant houses out there. Denver has the reputation of being a hustling, bustling city—but you see you are not nearly so badly off as some of the cities in other parts of the country.

"One of the things that impressed me about Duluth, was that last Tuesday I was told by a man at the postoffice that one of the government instruments registered 102 degrees, and here yesterday it took a slide more precipitous than any of your hills—at least any of the hills that I have seen as yet. You seem to have lots of atmosphere and it also seems varied.

"I know that I am going to like Duluth; fact is that I like it at the present time; I like the people that I have met, and as soon as I find a house, something tells me that I am going to have a good time here. Will you please help me find a house?"

Mrs. Wade is here at the present time and the children are due to arrive within a few days—when the new secretary can find the house.

TAFT WILL GET VOTES

Wisconsin Republican Presidential Electors Must Vote for President.

Law Will Not Permit Casting Ballots for La Follette.

Madison, Wis., July 1.—Men with pronounced La Follette views were selected over a month ago as presidential electors in this state, and unless they resign, should the Republicans win in Wisconsin next fall these men will have to vote for William H. Taft for president.

Within the last few days some of Senator La Follette's friends have been investigating methods whereby Wisconsin voters might vote for La Follette and have their electoral ballots counted for him. It has been found, however, that the law requires that the names of the Republican electors shall be printed beneath the name of the Republican candidates for president and vice president. Constitutional lawyers say that the only escape those electors have from voting for Taft, if they are elected, is to resign.

MARINE NEWS

QUIET WEEK IN HARBOR

Fourth of July and Bunching of Boats Affect Shipping.

June Records Will Probably Show Heavy Ore Shipments.

Vessel men predict that the present will be the slowest week of the present navigation season.

The Fourth of July cuts into it and this coupled with the fact that the boats are badly bunched at the other end of the lakes, makes it reasonable to believe that the movement out of the Duluth-Superior harbor will be much lighter than usual.

The bunching of boats at the other end of the lakes means that they will be bunched at Duluth about the last of the week. It will take two weeks to get them distributed again.

Coal shippers are unable to take care of all the contract tonnage that will need cargoes this week and it is quite probable that a large number of the boats will come to the Head of the Lakes light.

As the new equipment for the Great Northern has not been delivered as yet, the docks at Allouez can take care of only a limited number of boats. This will make a wild scramble to get to the docks by the captains of the boats as they become bunched here.

With what equipment it has the Allouez dock is making a great record for dispatch this year. There has been some slight delay at times, but this has been unavoidable.

The statements of last month's business will soon be out. There is considerable speculation as to what volume the coal movement has reached. The report of commerce through the Soo will show how far below the normal the business in coal this season really is.

Wild tonnage will have but little show during the next ten days, it is said. Even contract boats will have to wait for cargoes during the present week. The mid-week holiday will be responsible for this.

Package freight and lumber are both strong, the several companies having all they can care for. Most of the lines have more work ahead of them than they can do.

But few cargoes of grain are leaving the harbor, there having been but three last week. There is as yet no talk of chartering for winter storage, in spite of the fact that bids were made ten days ago.

MENOMINEE HARBOR IS BEING INSPECTED.

Menominee, Mich., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—An inspection of the local harbor has been made by Maj. Bromwell of the war department, and it is now expected that some action will be taken in regard to the dredging of the Menominee river above the bridge.

Virginia Man Had Curio Collection and $2,000 in Cash.

No Heirs Have Yet Been Found By County Authorities.

A collection of old coins of more or less value and other property valued at about $2,000 awaits unknown heirs of the estate of Joseph Hebert, aged 55, who died two months ago at Virginia.

Hebert came to Virginia from Canada about fifteen years ago. He worked in one of the iron mines until he was injured and incapacitated. He secured some money from the mining company as a balm for his injuries.

Two years ago, then failing in health, he went to his old home in a French Canadian settlement in Canada in search of his relatives, but was unable to locate them or learn their whereabouts. He was told that they had migrated to the United States several years before.

One of Hebert's hobbies was to collect coins. He died leaving a good sized bag of various kinds of money. While the collection contains no coins of rare value it is probable that it would be an interesting find for any curio collector.

In probate court this morning, Dr. John H. Crowe of Virginia was named as administrator of the Hebert estate. He is making an effort to locate the heirs.

A Busy Store.

The July clearance sale at Glidding's is proving immensely popular and the store was well crowded throughout the day. From all reports the values being offered are unusually liberal and the store is doing a splendid business.

AMUSEMENTS

MRS. McAULIFFE IN VAUDEVILLE

Lucia Judd McAuliffe, who as a singer needs no introduction to Duluthians, appears for the first time in vaudeville at the Empress theater this week.

She has a pleasing repertoire of delightful songs and her offering is the feature act of this week's bill. She sings Roma's beautiful waltz song, "The Return," and "Take Me Back to Babyland." Yesterday's audiences gave her a splendid ovation.

The other two vaudeville numbers on this week's bill are of the usual high character. The Three Rembler Girls, formerly in musical comedy, have a pleasing singing and dancing turn, and Whittier & Crossman also appear in a musical act styled as "A Bit of Musical Comedy." Miss Crossman is blessed with a fine soprano voice and Mr. Whittier is heard in a rich baritone.

Struggling Hard For Choice at Baltimore

But in Duluth there is no struggle to maintain the lead for French Dry Cleaning. Over two-thirds of the French Dry Cleaning is done by the Peerless Laundry and every article entrusted to their care is handled the same as if it were their own. They are the progressives and you will always find what they do is done the clean and right way.

The party will walk from West Duluth and sleep at Fond du Lac and make an early start for the dam in the morning, returning to the city Saturday.

WARD WILL FLY HERE

Famous Aviator Will Make Two Flights From Athletic Park.

Meet Will Be Under Auspices of Elks' Baseball Team.

Jimmy Ward, aviator, will make two flights in Duluth Aug. 3 and 4.

Ward is one of the few original bird men left in this country. He and Beachey are about the only pioneers of the air still making flights. The others have either been killed or have retired from the flying end of the business to engage in the manufacturing end.

Ward will be brought to Duluth under the auspices of the Elks' baseball team. The Elks will play a baseball game with either the St. Paul or St. Cloud Elks on both Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 3 and 4, and during the progress of the game Ward will make his flights from Athletic park.

Ward claims to hold the American record for altitude and speed.

Duluth has seen but one aeroplane flight, which took place last fall, Thomas McGoey being the aviator, and making a very successful flight from Athletic park.

RAILROADS

SHOPMEN WILL MAKE DEMANDS ON ROADS.

Chcago, July 1.—Representatives of the International unions of shop employes on all railroads west of Chicago have addressed a joint letter to W. A. Garrett, chairman of the General Managers' association, asking for a conference to present certain demands. In the event that the conference is denied, it is said that the officers have been authorized to order a general strike.

International officers at a meeting held in St. Louis June 24 and 25 canvassed the recent vote taken among the shopmen on the Western railroads and announced that the vote showed an overwhelming majority in favor of a strike until a settlement on the Illinois Central and Harriman lines, where the freight men have been on a strike for nine months, is reached

NEW LINE IN SERVICE.

Wheat Shipped Over Fargo-Minot Great Northern Route.

Esmond, N. D., July 1.—Track laying is completed on the Fargo-New Rockford-Minot line of the Great Northern, south of here, from Minot eastward as far as Page, where connection is made with the Casselton-Devils Lake line, a total distance of about 175 miles. Two carloads of wheat were shipped from Wellsburg, over the new line, the first freight shipments over the line that have come to our notice. Wellsburg is fourteen miles south of Esmond.

Each trip will be in charge of a Great Northern official, who will conduct it personally. The trips start from St. Paul on July 13, 20 and 27.

New Agent for Duluth.

N. D. Harding, late of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, arrived in Duluth this morning to become a traveling freight agent for the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Harding takes the place left vacant by a recent resignation. Mr. Harding has been in the railroad business for several years and is backed by a great deal of valuable experience in beginning his work in Duluth. He has frequently visited here while with other railroad companies.

Farm Life "Great Stuff."

W. J. Dougherty, contracting freight agent for the Great Northern Railway company, is home after a two week's vacation spent between Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit and a small town in Ontario, Can. Mr. Dougherty says that he enjoyed his week spent on an Ontario farm best of all. "This farming idea is the proper caper," he says. He exhibited a ruddy complexxion, a bunch of newly acquired muscle and an inclination to "suare off" in the office of the Great Northern this morning after his week on buttermilk.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, July 1.—Heavy specifications on contracts turned the tide in the steel trade last week and the conviction that an advance of $1 per ton on bars, plates and shapes was assured brought in a larger volume of new orders, which latter fact precipitated the advance before schedule time.

A revival in fabricated steel orders for buildings and bridges also resulted from the advance in prices of plain structural material, and contracts calling for nearly 50,000 tons were placed, bringing the June total to 120,000 tons and the half yearly sales to 750,000 tons, only 40,000 tons less than the record-breaking contracts booked during the first half of 1906.

In the railroad field, the feature of interest was the placing of orders for motive power, the leading locomotive works in the United States and Canada reporting contracts for 138 engines, making the total for the month of June 257.

Sales fo rolling billets were made at $22 Pittsburg basis and slightly higher prices were obtained on small lots for prompt shipment, while axle and forming billets were advanced to $26 and $27.

MINNESOTA AT BALTIMORE.

Solid as Gibraltar, with its ranks undaunted by heat, weariness, the taunts of the enemy or the length and stubbornness of the contest, Minnesota's delegation at Baltimore has stood fast for six days, voting always a compact twenty-four for the right man and the right things for Democracy and the nation.

And judging by its present condition, it is good for six more days—or sixty.

Minnesota may be proud that both at Chicago and at Baltimore its delegates have voted as one man for the right thing, the honest thing, and the thing that was best for free government.

Moving Toward World Peace?

The French navy has had another fatal disaster. France is about the only one of the recognized powers that is actually and systematically reducing her armed strength.

REGINA'S DISASTER.

Unmeasured sympathy will flow out to Regina, the young and flourishing center of Saskatchewan's wonderful development, in the disaster that came to it last night when a cyclone swept over the community, killing many, leaving many more homeless, and causing a large property loss not yet estimated.

That section is rich, prosperous and resilient, and the property loss will not count long. The lives that have been lost can never be replaced, however, and it is chiefly because of these fatalities that the pity of the American and Canadian Northwest will flow out.

And They Aren't Synonymous.

Queer what a difference there is in meanings of words. For instance, Taft secured the nomination at Chicago, and Roosevelt won a nomination in the same city.

BASKET INDUSTRY IN SWAMPS.

Raphael Zon, an investigator in the field for the United States forest service, makes an interesting suggestion, which was reported in The Herald Saturday evening.

Some of the swamp lands of Northern Minnesota, he figures, will prove to be too low for profitable reclamation. Most of these lands, when drained and soil preparation completed, are highly fertile, and in time practically all such acres will be under cultivation. But for those not suited to this use, Mr. Zon proposes a new use.

He would plant and grow basket willows, to be distributed when grown and to be woven into baskets for commercial uses.

He suggests that an arrangement should be made to secure from the forest service at Washington next spring cuttings of different species of commercial basket willows, and to start operations at once.

The experiment certainly is worth trying, if there is any department in the heterogeneous conglomeration of state bureaus which is not so tied down by legal and constitutional restrictions that it cannot do so. Perhaps the forestry bureau can take it up, or maybe the state university can conduct the experiment.

Minnesota wants every acre of her land put to use. Every acre that can be tilled should be tilled. Every acre that is too rocky to be tilled should be planted to forest trees. And if there remain acres too wet for either of these uses, the suggestion of a basket willow industry may round out the program.

Being Forbidden, She'll Want To.

A New York girl is slated to lose an inheritance of something over a million if she marries any one of three certain men. Now wouldn't it be a joke on the testator if the girl shouldn't want to marry any of the three?

THE WOMAN ARCHITECT.

"It is a curious thing," says the Chicago Tribune, "that so few women take up the high following of architecture. It is an occupation which calls for no such amount of labor as a normal woman could not perform, and one in which the experience and the peculiar taste of women would be valuable. All housekeeping women know the disadvantages of living in houses designed, constructed and provided with accessories according to the ideas of men. They know also the ill-concealed irritation of the architect whose preconceived ideas are opposed to those of his practical feminine client."

It may be that in training women for architecture you will eliminate from their experience that housewifely knowledge which should by all means be applied to that branch of architecture which concerns the planning of homes. But that can be risked. The Tribune is right. Architecture would be the better for the introduction of a feminine element which is now strangely lacking.

At the very least, a woman of practical knowledge of home-making should be a skilled adjunct to every architect's office. The man architect can build the office buildings, the public structures, and other edifices not to be used for homes, though a touch of delicate feminine artistry might prove agreeable even here.

But when it comes to home-building, a woman is needed.

The Tribune gives some specifications, and any housewife can think of others: "Take, for example, the mere question of gas jets or electric lights depending from the ceiling. In seventy-five cases out of a hundred the height has been decided by men and is too high for the woman of average height to reach. Or take the matter of kitchen sinks. Men have decided upon a certain height for them, and only hysteric importunities can induce them to raise them so that they will not give the woman working at them a pain in the side. Women are worn out making unnecessary steps about the house because rooms do not bear the right relationship to each other. The closets are not numerous nor commodious enough to enable the housekeeper to preserve order. The pantry shelves are too high, there is too much distance between them; and there is not the right provision made for food. Windows are unnecessarily high, floors are not prepared in such a manner as to retain their good appearance; proper room is not provided for beds; the small drawing rooms of bungalows and apartment houses are so broken up with needlessly wide doors, with consoles and windows, that there is no place for living in them, or, at least, of giving them the appearance of anything more than an antechamber. Wall space is necessary to comfort. It is the settle, the bookshelves, the piano, the pictures on the wall, the open fire and the reading table with its good lamp that make a comfortable living room. Yawning door space, gaping windows, rattling consoles and a pest of draperies never will do it. Women who understand home-making know that. What they wish for is not an architect's effect but a chance to make each member of the family comfortable. And they know how to do it, but they are forced to take up with man-made rooms."

Mostly true, and a strong indictment. Still, details must not be overlooked, like the fact that if the gas jet or electric fixtures are put low enough for a short woman to reach, they are going to be where a tall man will either break his head on them or bring them down when he crosses the room in the dark. Besides, the wise woman, when housebuilding, insists on having closets, sinks and pantry shelves where and as they should be, no matter how much the architect turns up his nose.

Still, a woman in the firm when it comes to building homes would be a very practical and desirable improvement in the profession of architecture.

All Same As Hats.

Bryan and Roosevelt—Roosevelt and Bryan—Wilson and Johnson—anything you wish. The styles are more or less haphazard this year, except for those who are satisfied to let the old ones do and stick to Taft and Sherman.

A STRAIN ON THE EXCHEQUER.

The immaculate napery and shiny silver of the convention hotels—at convention prices—were largely deserted for the hurried service of the dairy lunch rooms.—Associated Press report from Baltimore.

A solid week's high living when they had planned on only three or four days, for members of a party that has been fenced out from the fleshpots of political power for sixteen years, has manifestly proved too much, and it is not surprising that it is so.

However, if the convention acts wisely, four years hence will find the party workers in better shape to stand such a siege.

After the Double Dose.

THE LAST OF THE CONVENTIONS?

If, as some believe, the national conventions of this year are to be the last, the epoch of convention government is expiring in a blaze of glory, so far as spectacular effects are concerned.

There may possibly have been in the history of the country a presidential year when one convention as spectacular as either of the 1912 conventions was held, but certainly there has never been a presidential year with two so dramatic.

The Chicago convention, where old-fashioned methods of "get the delegates, no matter how, but get 'em" reached the zentith of their history and rent the Republican party in twain, where a fraudulent majority, fraudulently procured, sat as judge on its own right to sit in a convention to which it was never elected, where an ex-president of the United States and a leader of the Republican party led what promises to be the most impressive bolt in the history of the party, where for the first time the customary motion to "make it unanimous" was never made and would have been defeated if it had been made, where a third or more of the delegates sat mute while the triumphant majority completed its fraud—the Chicago convention certainly shines in political history without a peer.

The Baltimore convention has been scarcely less spectacular, though free from the charge that it has been personally conducted by the agents of Special Privilege. These agents were there, and they were busy, but they did not and could not hog tie and brand the convention. The long, tense battle of ballots, the mighty turmoil in which Mr. Bryan, thrice a candidate for president, jammed through a resolution hurling defiance into the teeth of Wall Street,—which was pretty, though hardly war,—the loyalty of the delegates to the candidates and principles of their choice, though loyalty meant actual suffering in that place of heat and weariness and physical discomfort, all combined to make the Baltimore convention one long to be remembered.

If there is a third party, there may be a third convention, but even with Roosevelt in it is scarcely can be hoped to rival the Chicago and Baltimore spectacles.

Will there be national conventions in 1916? The presidential primary under state auspices does not do away with the national convention. Perhaps congress, in order to give order to the situation, may pass a Federal law governing presidential nominations and applying the direct primary plan. Even that will not do away with national conventions unless congress specifically decides to do so. It does not follow, because these two conventions have made the presidential primary in practically all the states inevitable, that there will be no more national conventions.

But there will be few more state conventions. Minnesota will have no more. It has not adopted the presidential primary system as a law, but it will before 1916, or something will happen to the legislature that refuses. It has adopted the statewide primary, which abolishes the state nominating convention, and when it adopts the presidential primary it will abolish the state delegate convention.

There may be more national conventions, but if all or practically all of the states have delegations coming direct from the people, untrammeled by boss selection, many of the elements that have made this year's conventions startling will be eliminated, and the chance for spectacular effects will be enormously reduced.

If we should go ahead and limit the presidency to one term, it would be just our luck to go and get somebody in there that we'd like to have stick on the job longer than that.

After the showing the Yankees made in the rifle contests at the Olympic games maybe the other nations will feel shaky about kickin' our dawg around even if we shouldn't have those two extra battleships.

THE SHORT BALLOT MOVEMENT

By H. S. GILBERTSON.

1.—How Jackson Wrecked Democracy in America

The party machines outdid themselves with that fourteen-foot ballot which was unrolled by New York voters in the Democratic primaries last March. They startled up the voters with nearly five yards of "democracy!" It was a delightful burlesque on an American superstition which now happily is disappearing. We used to believe that democracy consisted in voting for as many offices as could be got on a sheet of paper, and so in ordinary elections the voter gets a ballot the size of a window.

The long ballot did not come over in the Mayflower. The original American governments in the colonies and states were so simple that every citizen was a politician as a matter of course. Except in village or town-meeting elections, long ballots were unheard of. The long ballot developed two centuries later amid the superficial doctrainaire theories of the time of Andrew Jackson.

When the Jacksonians undertook to improve the machinery of democracy, they made some odd mistakes. Said they to themselves, as did an old Democrat recently, "The people can do everything better than anyone else can do it for them." "Everything" is a big order, even for the remarkably alert American electorate, but it didn't stagger the hopefully theorizing Jacksonians. So they proceeded to complicate the citizen's task by heaping up offices on the ballot, serenely believing that the plain citizen would submit to being loaded up with endless, needless political duties and would obediently assume the burden of testing the hordo of candidates and never make a mistake. They believed in the yardstick theory of democracy. What is more, their theory was so plausible and so inviting that everybody was pleased. "The more officials the people elect, the more democratic we will be," they argued. That the idea could easily be carried so far as to become utterly undemocratic and create government by a volunteer ruling class of political experts never entered their heads.

Straight across the country swept this wave of this new impracticable long-ballot form of democracy. Not a single state escaped entirely. The people were now called upon for the first time to select not alone the strategic controlling officials like the governor and legislators, but the treasurers, clerks, secretaries of state, sheriffs, coroners—a long string of subordinate officers in city, county and state, which by every dictate of sound organization and plain common sense should have been kept united under a responsible appointing power.

The result was inevitable. The ordinary citizen no longer actually selected everybody, however much he might think he did. He continued to select the governors and the mayors and the few other conspicuous ones. But as to the minor officers like the dairy commissioner, state printer and inspector of hides, he took the party's word for them and blindly and hopefully voted that new and necessary device—the straight ticket. That was merely delegating to the party discretion to nominate whomsoever it chose, for the obscure, undebated, minor offices. The "party," however, really meant the "party machine" and the "party politicians." Even this might not have been fatal if the party machines were what their name implied—the obedient engine of the majority of the party members. But "party machines" too often and too easily became really private machines, and when the voters let the private machine feel sure of getting their proxies on election day they submitted to oligarchy and got duly plundered by their new rulers.

Thus was created in America that antithesis of democracy, the ruling class called professional politicians, and their nobility, the bosses—a condition of government for which a new word has been coined, namely, "Politocracy."

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. MINNESOTA AND HER COPPER DEPOSITS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Allow me to correct an item published in your paper a few days ago, headed "First Attempt to Mine Copper in Minnesota." I wish to do so in order to avoid any misunderstanding as to the status of affairs with Keweenaw Western Development association. It is true I am the new president of the company, although my name is Skemp (not Scamp.) The company is largely under new management now; and we do not wish to misrepresent matters. We have issued 50,000 shares of treasury stock, guaranteed by the Securities Granite Company of Los Angeles, and a well known broker firm of Montreal has a sixty-day option to sell the same, and when sold we hope to have the money in hand to drill the properties we own or control. Past developments, (although many mistakes have been made), and much money unnecessarily expended, have convinced us that we have a copper lode on the property. Indeed we have found free copper, and ore bearing rock. But we have yet to get the money to finance the drilling.

Yours truly, W. H. SKEMP,
President.

Cloquet, Minn., June 28.

POLICE ARE DOING THEIR FULL DUTY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Recently in a police raid two places of ill fame were pulled in the Bowery district and in each case the rooms were situated over a saloon. One of the landladies was bound over to the grand jury, and the other one found guilty of conducting an immoral resort, and two women of the underworld of residing in the same. There are other resorts of the same disreputable character scattered through the city and no doubt the police authorities suspect where some or most of them are, and probably will give them their attention at the proper time. Citizens and others ough to go slow in blaming the police authorities in not raiding some of these for the reason that it takes evidence to convict. Outsiders do not want to get mixed up in such cases and the male and female friends of these depraved women, will shield them all they possibly can and being lost to all sense of honor and respect, will in many cases when placed on the witness stand perjure themselves in order to clear these depraved women of the underworld. So be not hasty in criticising the police authorities as they probably understand the situation much better than those who criticise them. Yours truly, R. M.

Duluth, June 29.

HAVE WARM SPOT FOR ZENITH CITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the close of the convention, same to be published in your valuable paper:

"The 'Nordlandslaget af America' (The Northland Society of America), assembled to convention in your beautoful city, so richly endowed by the hand of nature with real Northland scenery—mountains, woods, fjord, river, sea and shores—so wonderfully like those of the Land of the Midnight Sun, wish to extend to your citizens in general, and especially to those of your citizens from the northern part of Norway, our heartiest thanks and our greatest appreciation for the warm welcome and abundant hospitality bestowed upon us.

"Especially do we wish to thank the local committee for their able arrangements making the convention such a great success.

"We also wish to thank the Duluth Boat club for its kindness in letting the delegates have the free use of their boats, to the greatest enjoyment of these sons of Neptune.

"Also our thanks to the Normanna male chorus, under the able leadership of Prof. Gustave Flaaten, for its grand singing.

"May your grand, beautiful and progressive city and its splendid people continue in welfare, prosperity and happiness.

JULIUS B. BAUMANN,
Duluth, June 29. National Secretary.

Minnesota Moves Into the Light.

Sioux City Tribune: We doubt if ever a legislative body did as much good work in so short a time as did the special session of the Minnesota legislature. Convened June 4 it adjourned June 18. In these two weeks it moved Minnesota from the rear of the progressive states, into which it had retired after a brief early spurt, well to the front. It obeyed the command of the voters of the dominant party as spoken plainly in the state convention. Legislators that were hostile to progress, those who were indifferent, heard that voice and got busy. They fairly fell over each other in their haste to exhibit obedience.

Called to enact a state-wide primary, a corrupt practices act and to make a reapportionment of the state it went farther and did better. It ratified the federal amendments of the constitution providing for an income tax and the direct election of senators. It did a sensible thing at the start. It adopted what might be called a legislative program for the session, a thing Senator Newlands vainly tried to get the federal senate to do. The senate's decision to limit the session to considering the primary and practices bills was changed by the insistence of the house upon adding the two federal amendments.

The state-wide primary now covers almost every elective office in the state, from governor down to constable. The Wisconsin feature of a second choice is incorporated in the new law, as it should be in every primary law. Where no candidate receives a majority his second choices are added to his firsts. The candidates getting the least number of votes are cancelled and their second choices added to the remaining candidates. Thus a candidate becomes the majority nominee of his party and the plurality rule, whereby a minority candidate is frequently put in nomination, is discarded.

The corrupt practices act is said to be the most drastic as yet adopted for any state. It limits the amount that may be spent by or for a candidate and makes violation of the limit cause for removal from office. The efficient work done by this two weeks session seems to be a good argument for shortening all legislative sessions and for the adoption, on assembling, of a legislative program covering the measures to consideration of which legislation will be limited.

For Anak and Hitt and Hillah.

Toledo Blade: In the old days when Babylon took tribute of the men of Anak and the folk of Hitt did battle or barter with Hillah with equal cheerfulness, the Euphrates in flood climbed over its banks and poured its waters out upon the plain of a depression fifty feet deep and five hundred miles square. After the floods, the native hitched up his skirts, plowed the wet ground and raised such harvests as kept Babylon fat and sleek and hungering only for loot and power.

But in time, the Euphrates cut its channel so low that the floods no longer overflowed into the depression. The men of Anak fled the tax-gatherers. The sands swirled over the doorsteps of Hitt and there was no one to sweep them away. The ardor of Hillah faded and the greatness of Babylon was no more.

There are men working now between Anak and Hitt, white men with surveying instruments, brown and black men with shovel and pick and concrete. They are opening up that old escape for the floods of the Euphrates and next year, if all is well, the waters will go sweeping over that valley out of which Babylon drew its food and its consequence. Men of Anak will pay tribute again. And it may be that folk of Hitt will arise of fair mornings to battle or barter with Hillah, as cheerfully as of old.

I've never seen the crowds that throng
The streets of Singapore;
But once I had to check my trunk

I've never sailed Magellan's strait
Nor crossed Sahara's sands;
I've never knocked at Delhi's gate
Nor fared to Arctic lands;
But once I paused an hour or two

But once I stayed till after dark

"Scotty's" Gold Was of Gilt.

Toledo Blade: We had grieved over "Scotty's" weakness for cheap pleasures and degenerate excitement. But we had, nevertheless, held him in admiration as a sort of hero. In imagination, we had followed him daring the cruel and thirsty Death Valley alone, tramping doggedly through the choking dust, sleeping under the coverlid of the stars, opening up his fabulously rich mine, taking away only so much of its treasure as met the demands of the hour, coming back again to discharge debts with lavish interest, careless, open-handed, open-hearted.

But by his own confession our golden hero was made of clay. He was but a decoy, a "come-on" for suckers. His journeys into Death Valley were only "fakes," the prologue to displays of hollow wealth, the flashing of stage currency. Those time-conquering railroad flights across the continent were promoted by get-rich-quick mining crooks who followed "Scotty's" trail with advertising campaigns, stock selling and bond placing raids on the savings accounts of eastern gulls.

Experience teaches one to try the metal of all heroes with the strongest acid. Yet few persons act upon the promptings of such experience.

Faithless Deceiver.

New York Press: The members of the American colony at Rome tell of the despair and indignation of a noble son of Italy, who, under the impression that the father of the young woman in question was possessed of great wealth, had placed his title at her disposal. One afternoon, however, the young marquis rushed in upon his fiancee, upbraiding her by crying:

"Cruel, heartless girl! You swore you loved me, and now I discover that your father is a bankrupt!"

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Will Help Gordon.

Austin Transcript: James A. Martin will manage Lieutenant Governor Gordon's campaign for governor. Mr. Martin is a most skilful political manager, and his management would add eager and his management would add eager to Mr. Gordon's chances of success. We should be glad to see Gordon win out.

"Who's Afraid?"

A Long Time Coming.

Northome Record: If Adolph, the Twister, expected to get any glory out of the special legislative session he still has it coming.

Gubernatorial Dignity.

Luverne Journal: Can anybody imagine the state senate giving Knute Nelson, Sam Van Sant or John Lind a cuss in the horse laugh or John A. Johnson the "horse laugh" when, as governor, they sent a message to that body? And can anybody help "laughing with" the senators as he contemplates the brave attempt of Fortunatus Eberhart to bulldoze them in his recent "big stick" message.

Confidence in Sam.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Judging from the number of prospective candidates for the Republican nomination of governor, it might be surmised that Ed. Smith and the machine are working a game to cut in on Sam Y. Gordon's votes and thus let the elusive Eberhart slide into the nomination. The nomination has another guess coming, though, for Mr. Gordon's friends will remain true to the last ditch, and it will make no difference if there are fifty candidates in the field. Sam Y. is due to win, and Ed. Smith and the whole Republican machine can't stop him.

So Have the People.

Holt Northern Light: The governor says he did not care to intimidate the legislature. Clearly the senate has another laugh coming.

Tribute to Martin.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: JJames A. Martin will manage Lieutenant Governor Gordon's campaign for governor. Mr. Martin is one of the most skillful political managers in the state and his management will add greatly to Mr. Gordon's chances of success.

Henring Came Late.

Sauk Centre Herald: The governor rebuked the senate for turning a deaf ear to reapportionment. Only recently have the governor's auricular organs been of sufficient alertness to detect any sound wave that spelled reapportionment. The Herald has little love for the state senate, but cannot help smiling to note the sudden change of heart in the executive. It is to laugh.

Minnesota Progressiveness Builds the State.

Spokane Spokesman-Review: "Revolution made to order while you wait" might almost be said of the result of the special session of the Minnesota legislature which adjourned this last week. It sat only thirteen working days, but it subjected the political system of the commonwealth to an evolution so speedy and thorough as to effect a revolution.

It established a state-wide primaries. It passed a drastic law against corrupt practices in politics. It made law of a measure increasing the taxation on the gross earnings of railroads. It approved amendments to the national constitution that provide for direct election of federal senators and for taxation of incomes by the nation.

These are sweeping reforms, but they are not all. The Minnesota legislature also enacted an amended law in regard to children's labor and several statutes of particular importance to the state, as the authorization to cities of the first class to hold non-partisan municipal elections. Judges also are to be nominated at non-partisan primaries.

All this is a splendid fortnight's work. It is constructive progressiveness of the only kind that is needed and can bear the test of time and scrutiny.

The primaries will perhaps do away with the system of nominating and platform-making conventions of political parties. The advocates of the primaries and of laws against corrupt practices claim that they will destroy the paid political worker, the perennial follower of the office-seeker and the hanger-on at elections.

THE FUGITIVE.

"The Saint and the Siwash," by William Stevens McNutt in Ainslee's: The Robertses lived happily in the Alaskan town with a Siwash Indian girl for a servant, and they felt secure from detection until one day a man named Nelson suddenly confronted them with the fact that he knew Roberts had fled from the East and was wanted for bank theft. Roberts was really innocent, but the circumstances were all against him and from the time of Nelson's discovery they were miserable with fear and their labors were in vain, because all that they had or made they were forced to give to him as the price of his silence.

Once he was gone for several weeks, but he came back again and a few days later appeared at the cabin while Mr. Roberts was absent at the mine, and demanded more money.

"I'm gonna leave camp, ma'am," he said respectfully, "an' I ain't got no money to go on. I got gamblin' with that I got from you, an'—it's the last time I'll bother ye, ma'am. Stake me this once and I'm gone for good."

"But we haven't got it," Mrs. Roberts said. "We gave yo ueverything we had—everything!"

The man wet his lips nervously.

"Oh, you got some cached somewhere's," he said, with a shaky laugh. "I gotta have it ma'am; I just got word from a fr'end o' mine that—Looky here!"

He took from the inside pocket of his mackinaw a paper many times folded into a square of about five inches, and held it up so that he could see it. On it was a half-tone of Mr. Roberts. Above the picture, in large type, were the words: "HAVE YOU SEEN THIS MAN?" Underneath, the like-typed word "DESCRIPTION" headed a column of finer print that Mrs. Roberts could not read as far away as he held it.

"That there's my proof," he said. "That's how I got wise to ye. I run acrost it in Dawson when I was down there. Come on, now, you stake me this once, an' I'll give it to ye. Then I got nothin' on ye. Jest as soon's the money's in my hands I'll give it to ye."

"But we haven't got it," Mrs. Roberts wept. "Give me time. Just a little time. We'll borrow it, or—"

The man shook his head. He was trembling.

"I can't wait," he said. "Either you cough up or I take this down to the chief right now."

He moved toward the door.

"Oh, don't! Please, please, don't!" Mrs. Roberts was on her knees to him, begging. "Wait! Just a little time! I haven't got it. I tell you! I'll get it! By tomorrow I'll—"

"Damn tomorrow!" the man ripped out savagely.

Then the Siwash girl, standing in the doorway of the rear room, shot him through the heart with Mr. Roberts' rifle.

He spun half way around, his hands clutching at his chest; stared at the girl in the doorway, with the whining, surprised look of a small boy, who says to a slightly larger one: "Aw! Why'n't you pick on somebody yer size!" and crumpled up on the floor.

His outhung hand, holding the folded square of paper on which was the picture, almost touched Mrs. Roberts when she knelt; and, as instinctively and suddenly as a drowning man grabs a floating ship, she snatched it up. With trembling fingers she unfolded it. It was a feature page from the Sunday edition of the Seattle Times. On one part of the page was her picture. On another the picture of their old home in Maine. The page was boldly headed:

DYING BANKER CONFESSES TO CRIME ANOTHER WANDERS IN EXILE FOR.

Friends Scour Country for Missing Man Who Fled With His Devoted Wife on Discovery of Circumstantial Evidence That Would Have Convicted Him in Any Court in the Land.

Misguided Dance Hall Legislation.

Belle Lindner Israels in Survey: I note in your issue of April 20 the commendatory statement regarding the dance hall ordinance recently passed in Duluth, referring especially to the age limit, barring those under 21 from frequenting the halls. I consider this a most illiberal provision and believe it will work all kinds of harm. This is similar to the provision of the Minnesota state law now being enforced in Minneapolis.

The people who like especially to dance and who will make every effort in the world to get dancing as recreation are those between the ages of 16 and 21 and if they are put out of legitimate dance halls—and there are such—they will go to far worse places.

The situation in Washington, D. C., has perhaps a little bearing on the subject, showing such a condition. In that city the absence of recreational opportunities has driven the young people to develop a series of dreary and sordid so-called "cottage dances." These consist of renting some woman's little room or parlor, badly lighted, close and ill ventilated, and a group of boys and girls come together there for dancing. They bring their own liquor, dance usually to the tune of a mouth harmonica or some other such simple musical device, and are subject to no supervision whatever.

Experience shows that a law which places the age of admission at 21 only creates evasions and eternal trouble for the management of good places, as well as having a decidedly bad effect upon sentiment for wholesome recreation throughout the country. Such a law is almost unenforceable.

The law in Cleveland places 18 as the age of admission, and even that is too high. In Elizabeth and in New York city the age is 16.

Taking No Chances.

Kansas City Journal: Here's one vouched for by Manager Derr of the Federal hotel: "A friend of mine," says the veracious chronicler, "went into the office of a dentist the other day to have several teeth extracted.

"'I suppose I ought to take something to deaden the pain, but I'm afraid of this gas you use,' said the prospective patient.

"The dentist reassured him and wound up with 'You'll only be unconscious for two or three minutes at most.' The patient took out his pocketbook.

"'Never mind that now,' said the dentist, 'you can pay me when I've finished.'

"'I wasn't going to pay you!' exclaimed the patient. 'I was going to count my money.'

If The Price of Coffee Would Double Again All The Better!

The price of coffee has doubled in three or four years.

And this, despite production has doubled in that time.

The reason for the present high price of coffee was sought and it has been found that the market supply has been artificially restricted.

The Brazilian government is in the operation and participates in the profits to the extent of an export duty of three cents a pound.

And American bankers are financing the scheme.

Diabolical plot?

Outrageous conspiracy?

Perhaps!

But we did not take our pen in hand to condemn anybody concerned except COFFEE DRINKERS—to condemn them and, also, to congratulate them, both upon the present increased price and the probability that it will go higher.

It isn't exactly inspiring to see American capital finding its way to a foreign country to be used there to the end of exploiting American family pocketbooks.

However, this is not the saddest fact involved, to our way of thinking.

It is most regrettable that the consumption of coffee in this country has increased to a point to warrant manipulation of the supply.

We don't like to look upon coffee as becoming a NECESSITY to the American people, and view with alarm the activities of capital suggesting that it IS becoming a necessity.

Coffee isn't good for you.

Too much of it is positively harmful.

If the present price, doubled in four years, would double again, it would be the best thing that ever happened to the excessive coffee drinker.

He wouldn't drink as much of it.

Better yet, maybe he wouldn't drink it at all.

Just possibly you have us put down as being a bit nervy in this—coming in and sitting down beside you before the coffee pot and telling you to keep hands off.

Nevertheless, we mean well.

We are talking for your good.

You like coffee, probably, and perhaps you think it is none of our business if you drink it or if you drink all you want of it.

Babies want those pink pills that look like candy and cry if we don't let them have them.

And many grown people know as little as babies about the care of their bodies.

There are intemperate coffee drinkers the same as there are intemperate drinkers of alcoholic beverages.

One cup of coffee isn't going to prove fatal, nor two cups of coffee.

Two cups may upset your entire system, make you uneasy, restless and peevish and unfit you for best results for a day, but it will wear off after awhile the same as a whisky drunk wears off.

But bring to us a person who drinks two and three cups of coffee regularly for breakfast, or a person who drinks coffee three times a day, and we will show you a person with a bad-acting heart, sluggish liver, a disordered stomach and a shattered nervous system.

If you don't believe us, ask your doctor.

He will tell you that coffee contains caffeine, which he gives in the smallest kind of doses for a heart stimulant.

He will tell you further that too much caffeine or too much coffee will give you a palpitating heart.

Then if you are satisfied to run the risk of having that kind of a heart, keep right on drinking all the coffee you want, and excuse us for interfering.

"GET THE CROWN FIRST," SAYS PASTOR, "AND THEN SING OF STARS"

"The people sing a song wondering if there will be any stars in their crowns after death, when instead of all this singing they should first find out whether they will have a crown at all," said Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, in the sermon last evening on "Satan's Final Boom," the last of the series of four sermons on the life of Satan.

Rev. Mr. McGaughey retraced the downward course of Satan from his exalted position in the presence of God to his final plunge in the lake of fire. He took his text from the tenth verse of the twentieth chapter of Revelations, in which he brought out the fact that some people in reading how Christ overcame Satan, wonder why he is now permitted to use his power.

"Satan was God's assistant in developing the Saints," went on the pastor, "but he had no power whatever over these Saints. He only tetsted them from time to time. Heroes are not developed during the time of peace, but during the time of war, and so it is that a Christian is developed like Job under the fiery trial and persecution of Satan. We should not try to be delivered from temptation, but should try to overcome it.

"The people constantly sing a song wondering if there will be any stars in their crowns after death. The Bible teaches us that the crown is awarded only to those who have overcome temptation, for the Bible says: 'He that overcometh shall receive the crown and he that endureth shall receive the crown.' So instead of singing about the stars in a crown, a person should first make sure he will receive a crown at all.

"During the thousand years of the millennium Satan is to be chained and then 'let loose for a little season,' as the Bible says. After that he will be cast in the lake of fire, where he will remain forever and forever. After this there will be new heavens and a new earth in which dwelleth righteousness."

CHILD'S CRYING SAVES BUILDING

Mrs. A. O. Nelson of 2405 West Third street was awakened early yesterday morning by the crying of one of her children and looking out of the window saw that the house across the street was on fire. She immediately telephoned the fire department and the No. 2 station answered the call, checking the flames after a few minutes.

The house that burned is at 2409 West Third street and is the property of R. P. Jentoft, who resides one door east of the residence. The building is vacant and the origin of the fire is unknown. Had not Mrs. Nelson been awakened in time to see the fire it is probable that more serious damage would have resulted. As it was the damage is slight and is totally covered by insurance.

GARFIELD MISSION HAS NEW PASTOR.

Rev. B. B. Hanscome of Minneapolis, a student at the Hamline university, is in charge of the Clemens Memorial Mission church, 530 Garfield avenue, during the summer. Rev. Mr. Hanscome has taken charge of the pulpit left vacant by the death of Rev. J. A. Roberts.

A. and stated this morning that the regular Sunday evening services at 7:45 o'clock and the Sunday school classes at 9 o'clock in the morning would continue according to the regular schedule during the summer months. Rev. Mr. Hanscome will leave here in October, when he will return to complete his studies at Hamline university. He is planning to move to the West end, where he will reside during his stay in the city.

Rev. Mr. Hanscome is the son of Rev. C. H. Hanscome of Minneapolis, pastor of one of the Methodist churches there. He is well known in the southern part of the state, having filled several pulpits there during his vacation months while attending school. He is now studying for a divinity doctor's degree.

PIEDMONT AVENUE WORK IS NEARING COMPLETION.

County Commissioner Joseph Cummings announced this morning that the new cut and fill at Piedmont avenue and Fourteenth street will be finished by July 20. A large crew of men is at work on the improvement.

When the cut and fill are completed it will be of great benefit to the farmers. A uniform grade of 7 per cent is being made in place of the oldgrade from 11 to 15 per cent. A large cut is being made at the intersection of Twenty-fourth avenue west and Piedmont avenue. This connection will join with the Hermantown road and the culvert will be used to link the two roads with the boulevard.

The present grade of the boulevard is being changed to conform with the new grade. The western end of the boulevard has been closed to traffic because of this work. A concrete retaining wall is also being built across the culvert leading to the boulevard, which will make the embankment safer. The entire work will cost about $2,500. Contractor Berglund is in charge of the work.

HALF HUNDRED ARE DEAD IN CYCLONE

people realized what had taken place, and some of the escapes from death were truly miraculous.

Path Sharply Defined.

Buildings one block from the path of the storm were but little injured. The first intimation that those outside of the cyclone zone had of the disaster was when three girls who had escaped from the wrecked telephone exchange belonging to the government telephone lines appeared at the office of a local morning paper and told their experience. The young women had slid from the top floor of the telephone building to the basement, carried down by a 15-ton switchboard.

Soon hundreds of willing hands began the work of rescue, which will not be finished before long into tonight. The electric light plant supplying the city was put out of commission when the storm struck, adding confusion and retarding the work.

Many Freaks of Wind.

Many freaks of the wind are shown. The roof of a factory building was carried three blocks and crashed through a handsome new residence. Four livery stables were demolished and every horse in each of them killed.

The escape of the seventy-five girls working in the telephone exchange was probably the most miraculous event of the wild night. The building was completely demolished. It was at first believed that a large number had been killed, Supt. J R. Sutherland wiring the general offices in Winnipeg early in the night that probably twenty girls had been killed and forty injured. This, however, proved to be untrue. Just how many were injured is not yet known, but none was killed and none fatally hurt.

Railway Yard Wrecked.

On Lorn street, one of the principal residence thoroughfares, scarcely a building is left standing.

The Canadian Pacific railway yard is a flat expanse of ruined shops and trains. Not a whole car remains in the yards. Some of them were picked up by the wind and carried for several blocks. One was carried clear through the freight sheds.

The whole north sice of the city practically is wiped out. No one knows how many are dead there.

A canoe was carried from Wascana lake to Victoria park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile, and dropped there. Sailing vessels were picked up from the water and strewn over the southern portion of the city.

Church Steeple in Street.

The steeple of the Baptist church was dropped in the middle of the street three blocks away.

Late in the evening clerks were working in the ruins of the local branch of the Royal bank setting things to rights, when some men, seeing the door was unlocked, walked in and demanded the money there to their credit.

There were many pathetic incidents during the night, when workers discovered some members of their own families among the dead.

Husbands were searching for wives, and mothers for their children. Men would stop in their work of rescue from time to time to inquire from a passing acquaintance for news of friends or relatives. Many families were separated at the time of the storm.

The day had been extremely hot and many had sought comfort in the parks. A large number of people were out on the waters of Wascana lake when the storm struck, and five are known to have been drowned, failing to reach the shore in time.

Homes Open to Destitute.

In the meantime the work of relief for those made so suddenly destitute has been started. Every home in the city that is standing has been thrown open to the homeless.

Early last evening Mayor McAra, the civic authorities and a number of prominent citizens organized for relief. Two temporary hospitals were opened, one in Immigration hall and one in one of the city blocks, each being supplied with doctors and nurses who have volunteered their services.

Premier Scott early conferred with Mayor McAra and stated that the provincial government would place $25,000 at the disposal of the city authorities this morning and that more would be forthcoming if necessary.

TWO MOTORCYCLE RIDERS KILLED

Were Going Faster Than a Mile a Minute When Accident Happened.

San Jose, Cal., July 1.—Two motor cycle racers were killed and two others seriously injured while riding faster than a mile a minute at yesterday's races at the San Jose driving park.

The dead: Reed Orr, Sacramento Motorcycle club; W. F. Baker, San Jose Motorcycle club.

E. A. House, San Jose Motorcycle club, bruised and lacerated about head and body.

Alzina of San Francisco was leading the eight riders in the 10-mile race, four others being bunched together an eighth of a mile behind. On the turn of the upper stretch the machine of one of the four swerved and in an instant the three others had piled over the falling machine and rider. All four were thrown and their machines smashed and broken.

When the crowd reached the place of the accident Orr and Baker were dead and Read and House were unconscious.

ERROR MAY COST WORK OF LAWYERS

Dickinson and Others Aiding in Anti-trust Cases Might Lose Places.

Washington, July 1.—A mere error in engrossing threatens to legislate Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, and other attorneys out of office as special government council in anti-trust and interstate commerce cases. Originally the bill would have barred employment of special council who have been in government service within two years preceding. The house modified the prohibition to apply on the future appointments, but Attorney General Wickersham discovered the modification had been overlooked in the engrossed copy already signed in the house. He will ask the senate to eliminate the prohibition altogether.

He was hurriedly removed before spectators knew what had happened. While the curtain was down the boy swallowed acid and ran to a door leading out into the audience. He was rushed to a hospital, where it is said, he is dying. No cause for his act is known to his friends.

Woman's Realm

San Francisco, Cal., July 1.—A busy session is in prospect today in the biennial session of the Federation of Clubwomen of the United States. Proposed revision of the by-laws, nomination of candidates, the election of officers and, possibly, the question of equal suffrage will be the main events. The first of these will come before the convention when the report of the council is made on Tuesday morning; the second on Wednesday morning, and the third in the afternoon of the same day.

The contest for the presidency, in succession to Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis, goes blithely on. The friends of Mrs. Philip Carpenter of New York and of Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Tex., who are the only two candidates who have so far appeared in the field, are busy day and night buttonholing the delegates and insistently pleading their cause.

The friends and supporters of Mrs. Pennybacker are working hard for her success, and the supporters of Mrs. Carpenter arranged an informal reception that was held at her hotel last night and amended by many delegates, who were importuned to give their votes to the New York candidate. What the outcome of the election will be is impossible to forecast.

The Massachusetts delegation is pressing the candidacy of Miss Georgia A. Bacon of Worcester, Mass., for first or second vice president. Miss Bacon for three years was president of the state federation.

Iowa will advance the claims of Mrs. B. B. Clark of Red Oak, Iowa, for treasurer, but it is doubtful if any candidate can succeed Mrs. John Threadgill of Oklahoma, the incumbent.

An exhibit of maps and photographs was one of the features marked for the session of the department of conservation today.

REHEARSALS BEGIN.

Work Commenced for "Terpsichore's Carnival."

A rehearsal for some of the choruses for terpsichore's carnival will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the hall of the Masonic temple and the learning of the dances will be commenced.

The chorus for "The Goo-Man Number" has been filled and the chorus for "The Girl Who Came Out of the West" is also about filled and a rehearsal of the geisha maids for the opera "A Night in Japan," which will be given two evenings of the four in the first week of August at the Orpheum theater for the benefit of the Playground association, had its first rehearsal this afternoon. More young singers will probably be added to this chorus, which is one of the most important in the entire opera, for it sustains many of the leading scenes.

Many of the principals have been chosen from among the more widely known soloists of the city.

Owing to a misunderstanding in the place of meeting at the preliminary meeting last week many interested in the performances went to the wrong hall.

An invitation is again extended to all who took part in Jappyland last year and their friends to attend a big rehearsal this evening at the hall of the new Masonic temple, corner of Lake avenue and Second street at 8 o'clock.

THE EVENING STORY

An Affair of "Honor"

By Helen F. Brennan.

The great cypress tree—the only gloomy feature in the peaceful landscape—made criss-cross shadows on the well-kept grass. It stood in the very centre of the churchyard, and the churchyard clung with green arms to the brown hillside and held the church in its ceaseless embrace. The dead—they were not very numerous—lay at ease on slopping banks and fresh flowers in humble gallipots, or the more pretentious tin crosses of affluence, proclaimed to the unfrequent visitor that they were loved and remembered still.

The gray man—even his face seemed to have caught the hue of his hair and general attire—was drawn up sentinel-wise before a marble cross, round the base of which audacious tendrils of ground ivy had begun to twine. He had read the inscription six times (for the first five it had conveyed no impression whatever to his brain), and was reading it for the seventh:

"To the loving memory of
who died on the 9th day of March, 1894.
Aged 27."

A moan broke from his lips, for he had crossed six thousand miles of ocean and many more of land to say to Honor Protheroe, "I have sinned against Heaven, and before thee—not worthy to be called thy wife or sister. I must run after him."

But she had not gone far when she saw the grey man coming up the churchyard gate with a sheaf of Madonna lilies in his arm. He had purchased them from a cottage woman hard by. She held out her hand. "I've found it," she cried joyfully. "Look, I've found it. The grey man stood still and stared.

"Found what?" he asked in evident amazement.

"Your jewel," she cried, hurrying up, and she held out the finger on which the ring shone and glistened. For a moment, whatever her opinion of his sanity had been, he evidently doubted hers. The next he had seen the ring, and a sudden shudder took him as he stretched out his hand and touched it fearfully. His face worked, and he was so profoundly moved that his companion was really frightened.

"But do you mean to say you—you have just found that? It's amazing, incredible!"

"I found it quite easy," she answered nervously. "When you said you had lost a jewel—" A deep sigh escaped the man. "I did not mean that kind of jewel," he said, and then abrupt desire to share his burden with some one assailed him. He laid a hand on her arm. "Come," he said, simply, and led the little lady to where the white marble cross glistened against the green background. "My lost jewel lies there," he said, simply.

"There?" The little lady was switched for the time being from all memory of the ring, and looked now frankly dumbfounded with the latest development in this queer game of cross question and crooked answer, which she was playing, with this most peculiar person. "But," she got out, and a startled expression crept into her still pretty eyes; "why on earth should poor little Honor have been your lost jewel?"

"Because I loved her," he cried out, wildly; "because I treated her like the suspicious scamp I was. Because she had promised to marry me!" And then the little lady, her pale face turning to a sudden ashen whiteness, strove to be calm, and she said very firmly, almost shouting her words, "There is some lamentable mistake somewhere; that Honor was a baby."

"A baby?" the gray men shouted in return, and he pointed with a walking stick which shook and trembled in his grasp, to the "Aged 27." Again he seemed to doubt the mental condition of his companion. "A baby?" he cried. "You are a—mistaken." But the little lady turned, and tore with her hand at the trail of ground ivy which clung round the inscription. A piece came off and disclosed a word hitherto hidden.

Honor Protheroe,
Aged 27 months.

"She was buried in a full sized family grave," she said; "her parents wished it so." And then the grey man let fall the Madonna lilies so that they sprinkled the turf as it might have been the path of a new made bride, and he cried out very loudly and plainly: "Then for God's sake where is the real Honor?" Without realizing his action, he had caught at the little lady's shoulder, and was holding it in an almost painful grip. And the little lady, with the color (a very becoming color still) rushing back into her face, said quite meekly: "I'm afraid I am the real Honor—and—but—I should never have known you with that beard. You must be—Charles?"

* * *

A little, oh a very little, later in that spot of hallowed associations two ploughmen and a small boy were scandalized to see "Old Miss Protheroe" crying on the shoulders of a tall, broad stranger, whose hair, whose beard, whose eyes, and even whose clothes were grey as the proverbial badger. Explanations took the remainder of the afternoon, and included the fact that little Honor, whose glimpse of life had endured but two years and three months, was niece and godchild to Honor the genuine.

"My brother is vicar now," "Old Miss Protheroe" explained, "and everything has changed. I've changed horribly. I had an illness after you disappeared, Charles; and I've never looked the same since."

"You've lost your bright color," the gray man said, fondly, "but the marvel is that I didn't recognize your eyes. They are identically the same—my Honor's eyes. There were never any like them in the world."

He raised her left hand to his lips, and then his eye caught the ring.

"Dearest," he said, "there has been more than chance at work today. I have found that which was mine by right, and you have found that which was yours."

"And it's on the proper finger, too," said Honor Protheroe, the maiden aunt, archly. They stayed to heap the Madonna lilies upon baby Honor's last resting place, and then, hand in hand, they went their way together.

A Talk With the Young

By FRANCES WILEY.

It is a common occurrence nowadays for a young girl to lose her heart as soon as a good-looking, jolly, good-natured young fellow comes along, only to find that she has been part of an experiment because of a young man's fancy has turned lightly—pirouetting, as it were—round thoughts of love.

The sadness and madness of it—the trivial tragedy that is enacted every year, in every suburb or provincial town! And there should really be no need of it.

The wheel of fortune brings some strange changes, and the girl of today is entirely different to the great grandmother who shivered in short sleeves and low necks under a dripping tree while she waited for her young man to offer himself to her.

The girl of today has learnt her lesson, and man has been her teacher. The youth whose thoughts turn but lightly to love, may walk on the other side of the street for her. She is face to face with the battle of life on her own account, and the man who desires her for a right good comrade through life cannot do better than let it be divined that in one of the innumerable pockets of his waistcoat there lurks an engagement ring.

KNAUF SISTERS

DULUTH WOMAN WILL BE OFFERED $15,000 TO SIGN PAPERS WHEN STEAMER DOCKS

Minneapolis Citizens Awaiting Her Decision With Breathless Interest.

MRS. JOHN COGAN.

MISS DOROTHY COGAN.

Which will win its way with Mrs. John Cogan of Minneapolis and Duluth—wifely devotion or $15,000 cash, backed by plausible argument?

That is the question which is stirring Mr. Cogan, who is now in Duluth at his room in the Sherwood block, and which has the whole of Minneapolis "by the ears."

On the solution of that question may depend the determination of Charles G. Gates, the young multi-millionaire, to make his home in Minneapolis and to build therein a residence and art gallery which will rival the Arabian Nights tales.

Mrs. Cogan, it is asserted, holds the key to the situation. Today her husband is racing to New York to meet her at the wharf on her return from Europe. Racing also is E. G. Walton of Minneapolis, real estate dealer, smooth of tongue, ready with cash and facile in argument. Thus fully armed, he, too, will meet Mrs. Cogan.

The story is prosaic so far as the opening chapter is concerned, but becomes romantic as it continues. The prologue, however, is one of romance.

Over a year ago Charles G. Gates, only son of John W. Gates, the then giant figure in speculation and high finance, was in Europe touring and trying to forget his differences with his former wife who had just secured a divorce. There he met Miss Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis, who was touring Europe with her mother, not to forget but to acquire experience.

Young Gates met Miss Hopwood who is undeniably a beauty, and fell heels over head in love. The attachment proved to be mutual, the courtship was cyclonic and soon afterwards the engagement of the young people was announced. Last summer, shortly after the death of the elder Gates, the young people were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents in Minneapolis. That is the prologue.

Home in Minneapolis.

Not long ago Mr. Gates, doubtless acceding to the wishes of his pretty bride, determined to make his home in Minneapolis, and with that in view, secured a site on the Lake of the Isles of E. G. Walton to purchase for him a site on the Lake of the Isles boulevard, on which to build a palace in keeping with his wealth and where he could establish a magnificent background for the beauty he had secured. He also decided to build a gallery for his splendid art treasures. The purchases were made secretly—that is, Mr. Walton did not say whom he was making them for.

John Cogan, an insurance man of Minneapolis and Duluth, and very well known here, owns a fine home right in the center of the property desired, and that property surrounding him was acquired by Mr. Walton, who then approached Mr. Cogan with a proposition. It was finally determined by the latter that he would sell for $18,000, and $3,000 of this was paid him as earnest money. Mrs. Cogan was in Europe with her daughter, Miss Dorothy May, but Mr. Cogan held the power of attorney and signed the contract for deed for her. Such is act one.

Almost simultaneously with the discovery that Mr. Gates was the real purchaser, Mr. Cogan found that under the state law a power of attorney from a wife to her husbnd to sign away her dower rights is not legal, so it became necessary to get Mrs. Cogan's signature to the documents. In the meantime Mr. Cogan determined that he did not want to sell to Mr. Gates at the figure mentioned and offered to return the earnest money, which was refused. The price he wants for the property now is $30,000, but no agreement could be reached. Curtain of act two.

Mrs. Cogan recently announced by letter that she would return home and instantly activities began. Mr Cogan cabled her not to sign anything, hotel registers included, when she reached New York.

Now on Atlantic.

Mrs. Cogan is now in mid-Atlantic, having embarked on the liner Olympic on June 26 from Cherbourg, France, for New York, and Mr. Cogan and Mr. Walton are burning up the rails to Gotham, each trying to see her first and each determined in his quest. Mr Cogan will try to keep his wife from signing, while Mr. Walton will use all of the arts and arguments at his command to induce her to consummate the deal. The denouncment is still to come.

Minneapolis is on tip-toe wondering who will win. Minneapolis business men especially—and society too—have been congratulating themselves on securing so important a resident as Mr. Gates, for it would mean—that the headquarters of the Gates millions would be in the Mill City. Now, it is feared, if the Cogan feature fails Mr. Gates may determine that he is not so eager to settle in Minneapolis and may go elsewhere to seek a residence. The threat has not been made, but Minneapolis feels it coming.

The Cogans hold a commanding position in the matter, for without their property Mr. Gates' plans cannot be carried through as the property in dispute is in the very center of the desired site, which is one of the most ideal in the Twin Cities for such extensive improvements as are contemplated. It commands an unobstructed view of the Lake of the Isles, one of the prettiest bodies of water in the state. Mr. Gates plans to build on this site a mansion and an art gallery to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, and to have his property laid out under the instructions of one of the greatest landscape architects of the world. To the art gallery he proposes to bring the art treasures collected by his late father and himself, which now occupy a floor of the Plaza hotel in New York, and the worth of which is estimated at over $2,000,000.

Fly in Ointment.

Mr. Cogan, who is enacting the role of the fly in Mr. Gates' ointment, was in the city yesterday and said that the deal will not go through for he is sure that his wife will not sign any document concerning the property which he does not want her to sign. He declares that since he made the deal with Mr. Walton he has been offered much more money by interests which desire to erect there a large family hotel, the material for which will soon be on the ground. He asserts also that he intends to take advantage of the flaw in the contract if his wife so desires.

"Mrs. Cogan has been in Europe with our daughter who has been studying music there," said Mr. Cogan. "The latter studied with Miss Alice Sjoselius of Duluth and is now with Fraulein Schoen-Rene in the Swiss Alps for the summer."

Concerning the deal mentioned he says further:

"While it is a fact that I have lived in Minneapolis for the past fourteen years, during most of that time I have resided in Duluth, and prior to that fourteen years was a citizen of this town and my daughter was born here. Now regarding the sale of my property at the Lake of the Isles of Minneapolis to Mr. Gates: Mr. Gates through his agents holds an option on my property for $18,000 and as far as I am personally concerned will deliver the goods. It is only by a miracle that Mr. Gates procured his option, as the property involved was under negotiation at that time for one of the largest contractors in the Northwest, with offices in the Lumber exchange. I called at his place of business to close up the sale. He was busy at the time and did not wait. Within an hour the property was under the option of Mr. Gates. Mrs. Cogan has a moral and legal right to use her own judgment in this matter and if she joins me in the deed that I have already signed, the title will go to Mr. Gates. There is now a waiting list to purchase my property and no later than an hour ago, I had a long distance telephone offer from Minneapolis that in the event that Mrs. Cogan refused to complete the Gates' deal to purchase at a higher price. Mr. Gates' purchase on the Lake of the Isles, is, in my judgment, the most picturesque and beautiful location in the world and there seems to be a great number of citizens of Minneapolis who wish to become his neighbors and enjoy that magnificent environment.

The Lonely Woman

By AMANDA MOORE.

The lonely woman has few friends. Relatives have passed away, or have their own families and interests. The few friends she has probably live in the country where it takes money to reach, and if she has to work for her money, every cent counts.

In the summer time she can stroll in a park in some part of the city, and probably hear a little music, and then she will not feel as though she was not meant for this world. But in the long winter evenings when the days get short and the winds are cold, and it is always raining or snowing, it is then that she gets dreary and blue.

If such women would join a church and get interested in the work going on, they would feel much more cheerful, but it is often hard for even ministers to draw these women out. The tragedy of dullness of these long evenings, so often borne without complaint, is part of the price ultimately exacted by a "life of independence."

THE DOCTOR

Avoid Blowing the Nose.

Redness of the nose is a sore burden to a woman of any age. This condition often arises from the dust-laden atmosphere, and is accompanied by constant or frequent moisture of the nostrils and a smarting sensation.

Blowing the nose in such circumstances only increases the discomfort. Wiping the nostrils gently with a very soft silk handkerchief is much better; a little boracic ointment should be applied to soothe away the tingling sensation.

It is a good plan also to wipe the nostrils inside with the corner of a handkerchief dipped in boracic water, just before going out into the wind. The comfort of this trifling attention speaks for itself.

INTERESTING THINGS IN HOLLAND

Rev. M. S. Rice Describes Scenes Among the Dutch —Foul Smelling Canals That Carry Surplus Water to the Sea—Picturesque Dress of Some of the People. -|- -|-

Amsterdam, June 15.—To the Editor of The Herald: My dear old father used to have a phrase which he used on choice occasions when he had struck something that confounded him, that ran something like this: "Well that beats the Dutch!" I used to think it must be so, for I had great confidence in his remarks. I am inclined now to think he has been speaking in haste. He lived in Kansas, and it is too dry down there to ever dream of comparison to the ingenuity of a people who have had first to push back the sea from their fields in order to get them dry enough to make a crop. We used to pray for rain. The Dutch pray for the dams to hold and the wind to blow. I don't know how anyone could beat the Dutch. I have been cut through their fields and into their little country places. We sailed along through canals that were high above their green farms. It seems strange indeed to see mile after mile of pasture land, with literally thousands of beautiful milch cattle, secure in their situation, which depends on the pumping of hundreds of windmills to raise the water from the drain ditches into the canal which will carry it off to the shut-out sea. Yet such is the fact of this land. And such water as seeps its way into these drain ditches and is found standing about every little country home, and all through every little country village.

Canals That Smell.

This thing would all be like a regular fairy tale, were it not for the smell. Fairy tales smell sweet. Holland does not. That is the hard thing among the Dutch. These people are proverbially clean. I know they are, for I have seen a big sign of a little Dutch maiden with a white apron on and a big stick in her hand, as she make a huge stride after dirt. But she has never cleaned up her canals. We have photographs for showing how things look, and phonographs for showing how things sound; I wish some fellow would invent an olfactograph for showing how things smell, and with it would make one trip through the country over here. He might compel some trade marks to be changed. Clean! Who said clean? I was in the little town of Broek today, and it is reputed to be the cleanest town in Holland. I wish you could smell the canals that run everywhere through it. The board of health in our city would get discharged at once if they allowed a pond anywhere in the city that was so foul. I saw ducks swimming about and every stroke of their feet stirred up the filth. And more, I saw these spick and span people washing their kitchen utensils in this sparkling water, and carrying them proudly into their spotless kitchens to stand in rows for the peering tourists to look upon. I saw a woman wash her teapot in water I wouldn't put my hands in. These water drains are main sewers of the little towns, and the people seem utterly unconscious of their filth. I am at a loss to know what becomes of our microbe theory in Holland. I don't know a better answer for the case than the answer I saw somewhere as given by one of these "spotless housewives," to an inquirer on this line. She said that the water was so foul that it was fatal to all animal life, and that no germs, not even bacteria, could endure it, and then besides said she, "if this water did contain all those little bugs you speak about, our ducks would eat them." And I confess I wonder at the ducks. They are everywhere. Poor skinny little ducks too. They look like they were largely left to microbe grub, and beside that I have a little book, let I picked up here today, that declares that the Dutch hotelkeepers carefully inform their customers that "no canal ducks are served on the table, nay, not even their eggs. The eggs are shipped to England, so they say, and are bought by bakers and pastry cooks." Oh, well, anyhow, they do wash things. I used to live near a fellow who owned a coon, and that fool coon would wash in whatever water he could get, everything he had to eat. Often he would plunge a choice morsel into a regular mud-puddle and wash it about. Somehow I thought of that coon today. Not that I saw anything similar, but just that my memory carried me back to my boyhood. We went into a model cheese factory in Broek-in-Waterland. It must surely be admitted that it was a clean factory. Of course it was on parade, but even then it was fine. The fresh, sweet cheese, Edam cheese, we saw in every part of its making.

Picturesque Dress.

And of course we went to Volendam and Marken. Who ever came to Holland and didn't go up there? I have often thought the post cards overdrew those people. But I now know they have not had justice done them. Such shirts and breeches, and skirts and waists and caps. It is hard to believe they have not been gotten up specially to make business. No one would go to their towns were they to leave off all those things and dress like other folks. But they surely do it well. Wooden shoes everywhere. The people on the walks sound like a drove of horses on a pavement. We got into one home aside from the regular route. It was the home of an old fisherman. The old lady was truly a picture, and she posed for her picture as sweetly as any 16-year-old girl you ever saw, while for looks, as women commonly count looks, she should have run away.

I believe I have enjoyed a little trip to the village of Zaandam as much as anything I have been privileged in Holland. This city, once a flourishing point, cherishes as a treasure the fact that Peter the Great of Russia stopped here during his famous study among the Dutch of the trade of shipbuilding. The little old house in which he stayed is now the property of the czar of Russia, and he has built over and around the old, badly crumbling shanty a fine brick enclosure. Here is sacredly preserved everything relating to the famous presence of the great Russian in Holland. A fine old Dutch woman keeps the place. She interested me about as much as anyone I have met here, and pointed in pride to an inscription placed on the wall by the czar, "Nothing is too small for the great man." Just in front of the beautiful memorial runs the nastiest canal I have seen anywhere. I am sure if it was here when Peter was, he either made a poor choice of location, or else all the other houses were full.

We drove out to the famous pool of the windmills. It is said that in a small territory north of the town there are 400 old windmills. We never counted them, but at a glance I am sure the number needs revising. But numbers matter little. I met an old miller who took us all through his mill. It was surely a surprise to me to find there with a simple old windmill for power a complete mill. He ground and bolted wheat, made buckwheat flour, corn meal, and ground oil meal for the cattle. It was a mill and elevator combined, and was roofed with thatched straw. The straw had been on over fifty years, and I pulled out a straw in fine preservation, I believe good for fifty years more.

But this letter will exceed my limit, I fear. I am sure I could write a book about Holland easily now. I believe I know why so many have been written, and am inclined to think from a number I have read they are, many of them, about as authoritative as mine would be after a four-day sojourn among these folk. Oh, yes, on the Zuyder Zee yesterday I passed a quite pretentious looking craft named President Roosevelt! Whether the name was historic or prophetic, I could not make out, and the captain couldn't talk English, and politics is hard to talk in motions entirely, though much of it I have heard talked I have thought to be motions. Yours, M. S. RICE.

ISSUES APPEAL FOR NEW PARTY

Prendergast Starts Work in New York—Will Try for All Offices.

New York, July 1. — The first step toward the organization in New York state of the new party launched in Chicago by supporters of Theodore Roosevelt was taken Sunday by City Comptroller William A. Prendergast, who was appointed to represent his state on the committee formed in Chicago to organize the new party. He laid the case before the people yesterday in an address to voters. In his statement, Mr. Prendergast says:

"I sumbit this appeal to men of all parties and men who had no previous political affiliations, in the name of the already great number who have expressed their approval of a new political work, and the advocacy of genuine principles of political, social and industrial reform.

New Party "Necessary."

"This new party will not be the result of any sudden judgment passed upon the high-handed acts of the Republican national committee and the discreditable work of the Republican national convention.

"The acts of that convention have rendered it necessary that a new party shall be formed, but the purpose of the new party is that toward which the hearts of millions of men have been directed in the past few years. A new party is a necessity because so many have come to realize the hopelessness of truly efficient and upright government through the agency of either of the old parties, unless they could be effectually divorced from the sinister control of those who believe that the power to take is a fitting rule of life.

Serious and Great Work.

"There must be no mistaking the gravity or immensity of this task, but it will appeal to those who believe in the moral glory of American democracy. Let the men who have this faith undertake the labor. That labor involves the contest of every place to be voted for by the people at the coming election, from president to the lowest office upon the list. The principle we represent are as necessary to the betterment of state and local affairs, as they are essential to the perpetuation of the national government.

"A provisional organization for the state of New York will be effected without delay, to be followed as quickly as possible by a permanent organization.

"Let every man who has in him the spirit of the minute men of Concord and Lexington follow the example of a distinguished citizen who has already signified his intention of fighting for this cause, and in doing so say: 'I want to enlist, not for the campaign, but for the war.'"

"WILLIAM A. PRENDERGAST."

ANOTHER COAL DOCK SITE SOLD

A 32-acre strip of land along the shore of the lake adjoining the site of the M. A. Hanna Coal company in West Duluth and extending easterly to the Canadian Northern Railroad company's slip has just changed hands by the formal transfer of the deeds, and will be the site of a large coal dock. The property was sold by the West Duluth Land company and the Northern Dredge & Dock company to certain Pittsburg coal mining interests for $100,000. This is the deal reported in The Herald some weeks ago as pending.

A new company is to be incorporated at once under a Minnesota charter to operate the new dock. Contracts will be let and the work of construction started without delay. The dock will be 3,000 feet long and 500 feet across its face. It will have a storage capacity of 1,000,000 tons and a coal-handling capacity of 2,000,000 tons for the season. It is estimated that the total cost of the new dock, including the price of the site, will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

The new dock, it is said, will be about the counterpart of the Island Creek Coal Dock company's plant, which is now in process of construction. It will afford ready shipping facilities over the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Canadian Pacific and St. Paul roads.

The deal for the transfer of the site was negotiated by John A. Stephenson & Co. It is the third transfer of bay front property put through by that company this year for the establishment of new coal docks at Duluth. The others were the sale of 88 acres to the Carnegie Coal company and 35 acres to the Island Creek Coal Dock company. These companies both have docks now under construction, and they will be ready for operation next autumn.

It is said that the Berwind Fuel & Dock company is making arrangements to begin work next August on the foundation for a new dock on Rice's Point. The site is a 48-acre tract which was purchased for the purpose last winter.

FINGER PRINTS TRACE ABANDONED INFANTS.

E. L. ("Moggy") Bernstein, probation officer of Omaha, who was in Duluth yesterday, states that he has recently started to take finger prints of all babies of charity patients born in public institutions. The finger prints of the mother and her description are placed upon the same card. The information is found very useful in abandonment cases, more frequent among this class of people than any other. Mr. Bernstein is on his vacation and left last evening for Sault Ste. Marie.

Garden Pests.

Potato bugs—If you expect a good crop of potatoes, go after the bugs as soon as they appear. There are already a few old beetles in sight. Take an old pail and a whisk broom; hold the pail close under the plant and strip the top briskly with your broom. The bugs will fall into the pail, and a dipper of scalding water will finish them. Wherever you find a leaf with a deposit of yellow eggs on the under side, pick and deposit in the pail containing the bugs.

Spray your vines with Paris green or arsenate of lead, using a tablespoonful of Paris green to a gallon of water or about two-thirds of this quantity of arsenate of lead. Apply with a potato sprayer, being careful to stir frequently. The arsenate of lead clings to the vines better than the Paris green and is less liable to burn them. In fact, one application of arsenate of lead will be sufficient for the season. Be careful to keep both of these preparations where children, chickens or pets cannot reach them—they are strong poisons.

Cabbage Worms.

Go over your cabbage and cauliflower plants and pick off the green worms and then spray well with a solution of arsenate of lead. Prepare as directed for potato bugs. This solution may be safely used until your cabbages begin to head. Catch and kill the white butterflies wherever you see them—they are the cabbage worm breeders.

Slugs and Cut Worms.

Last season both of these pests were very destructive in the gardens of Duluth and few people were successful in combating them. Here is the only remedy which has been found effective: Mix up some bran with thin molasses or sugar dissolved in water and stir into it a strong solution of Paris green or arsenate of lead. Distribute this mixture in little rolls or pellets along your rows or around the plants. Both pests are fond of sugar and will travel rods to get it. The poison will destroy them.

Ants.

Wherever your ground walks, or porches are infected by ants, the following remedy will be found very effective: To one gallon of water add one ounce of essence of peppermint, stir well and apply with a sprinkler.

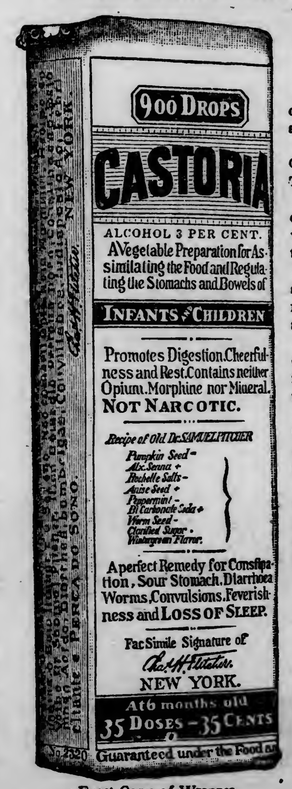

All people interested in garden work or in the homecroft cooking schools are cordially invited to be present at the homecroft rally at the Irving school tonight at 8 o'clock or Tuesday evening at the Salter school at the same hour. Enrollment to the cooking classes will be made at these two meetings. The class work will begin at the Irving school Monday, July 8, and at the Salter school Tuesday, July 9. This work will be absolutely free to all members of the Homecroft society. A membership costs but $1 per year and all Duluth housewives and daughters are urged to join this movement. It means better living, cheaper living, happier homes and a cleaner Duluth.

WARM THIS WEEK

Washington, July 1.—Warm weather in the great central valleys during the next several days, with temperatures much above the seasonable average in the lake region and eastern states later in the week, is promised in a bulletin issued by the weather bureau.

"In the northwestern states," the bulletin continues, "the prevailing warm weather will give way to moderate temperature conditions Tuesday and Wednesday. Normal temperature is probable during the week in the South Atlantic and gulf states and generally west of the Rocky mountains. The rainfall during the week will probably average below the normal, but will be fairly well distributed. No important storm area is charted to cross the country during the week."

CLARK DENIES HE HAS HAD ANY DEALS WITH MURPHY

Makes Flying Trip to Baltimore and Talks With His Leaders.

Baltimore, Md., July 1.—Speaker Champ Clark made a hasty visit to Baltimore Saturday night, but the net outcome thus far has been two statements, one by the speaker and one by his followers. The speaker, after an early morning conference with Mr. Hearst, Senator Stone, Mr. Francis, his manager, Mr. Dubois and others, when the statement attacking Mr. Bryan was composed, took a short nap and left early Sunday for Washington. His coming was said to be for the purpose of addressing the Democratic convention in reply to Bryan's attacks, but adjournment was taken before Mr. Clark arrived.

Speaker Clark's personal statement was issued late Saturday night, after a conference with Hearst, Senator Stone, David R. Francis and others. It said:

"Today in the national convention an outrageous aspersion was cast upon me and through me upon the Democratic party by one who, of all men, ought to be the last to besmudge or betray his friends or his party. So far as I am personally concerned, it is enough to say that the charge which reflects upon my personal or party integrity is utterly and absolutely false.

"Any man who would enter into an alliance with any selfish interest or privileged class of the country to gain the nomination for the presidency is unworthy of the presidency and of the speakership of the house. If I have not entered into such an alliance, then the Democrat, however distinguished, who wantonly charges me with this act, is a traitor to the Democratic party and to his professed friendship to me."

The "Champ Clark advisory committee" met Sunday and issued the following statement.

"The statement that the management of Speaker Clark's campaign worked like beavers for the nomination of Judge Parker for temporary chairman is absolutely untrue. Clark's support was divided between Parker and Bryan. It could not have been controlled either for Parker or Bryan, and no effort was made to do so. There was no attempt at manipulation in favor or antagonistic to the interests of Mr. Bryan. There was no 'deal' and no attempted combination of any sort."

"No Change," Says Clark.

Washington, July 1. — "There is no change in the situation that I can see," said Speaker Clark on his return from Baltimore. "It is exactly as it was when the convention adjourned Saturday night. I went over to Baltimore to see some of my friends because it was more convenient for me to go then for them to come here to see me. I have no intention of going over to Baltimore again."

"My friends tell me that this is the time for me to stay in the race," said Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama. "I am relying on their judgment. I can see no change in the situation at this time.

In this way two of the leading candidates in the Democratic convention deadlock expressed the situation. Neither would make any extended statement.

Underwood appeared more hopeful than he has been since the convention met. His candidacy has reached a point that he has wished for, and as a leading factor in the contest, he has no intention of abandoning his strategic position.

Underwood Holding On.

Mr. Underwood is being importuned by Democrats representing other candidacies to withdraw and support a possible winner. He is referring them all to Senator Bankhead and his friends in Baltimore, who are managing his campaign. He is following the theory that his friends in the South have put him in the race and have kept him there and that any move in his candidacy will have to be made by them.

Speaker Clark shows signs of the suspense he has been under. He got four hours sleep in Baltimore Saturday night, but the telephone kept him awake Sunday. While the speaker was resting, Mrs. Clark remained at the capitol, meeting Clark adherents and talking to others by telephone. Late in the afternoon the speaker went to the capitol and used the long distance telephone to Baltimore frequently.

BRYAN AGAIN HITS CLARK

Says the Speaker Has Failed to Take Sides With the Progressives.

Baltimore, Md., July 1.—William J. Bryan last night replied to a statement of Speaker Clark, demanding that the Nebraskan prove or retract the general charge made in the convention that the Clark forces had allied themselves with the great financial interests. In his statement Mr. Bryan said:

"I have received notice by publication only. The only criticism I have made against Mr. Clark is not that he acted wrongly, but that he has failed to act. I may over-estimate the importance of the presidential office, but I have felt that an aspirant for that office ought to manage his own campaign and not allow people to do things for him without his direct and specific authority.

"The papers announced that Mr. Clark was neutral between Mr. Parker and myself in the temporary chairmanship fight, and that he informed his supporters to vote as they pleased. If that contest were purely a question between Judge Parker and myself as individuals, his refusal to take part would not be material, although for sixteen years he never sent out a piece of literature or had a speech made in his behalf that did not represent him as my special champion. If he distributed any literature in which he associated his name with Mr. Parker's, I shall be glad to withdraw this statement upon inspection of the literature.

What the Contest Meant.

"But the contest between Judge Parker and myself was not a personal contest, and everybody but Mr. Clark knew this. It was a contest between progressive Democracy on the one side and reactionary Democracy on the other, and I contend that, in such a contest, it was Mr. Clark's duty to take one side or the other, if in his judgment there is any material difference between the two kinds of Democracy. If he insists that there is no difference, he has no right to complain of criticism at the hands of those who believe that there is a vital difference.

"But the activity of Mr. Clark's managers is as objectionable as his own inactivity. They have been in constant co-operation with the reactionaries. If Mr. Clark did not authorize them to act, he has, so far as I know, failed to rebuke them for acting. I take it for granted that he does not object to the action of his managers in soliciting, or, at least, in accepting without protest, the support of the ninety wax figures which Mr. Murphy, under the unit rule, uses to carry out the will of the predatory interests.

Puts Straight Question.

"The public is not much interested in Mr. Clark's opinion of me; he will have ample time in which to express his opinion after the convention, whether he is nominated or not; but if I am any judge of news, the people would like to know immediately whether he believes that the New York delegation —which is completely under the domination of Mr. Murphy, and which contains among its numbers representatives, attorneys or agents of nearly every predatory interest that is oppressing the people—whether he considers this delegation, thus controlled by one man, who is controlled by the interests, stands in the same position as delegates which represent the masses, and whether he has any objection to a nomination made possible only by the support of the New York delegation.

"I have tried to advise Mr. Clark in his own interests, as I believe, as well as in the interests of the party, and it is a source of great disappointment to me that he should have listened to personal enemies of mine more than he has to me.

"In using the word 'disappointment,' I use it in a personal sense, for I have no desire to impose my advice upon him; but I feel that it is not presumptuous for me to assume that I am better acquainted with the sentiment of the people than those who have had his ear, and I am sure that I speak for a larger number.

"I am sure, too, that I am as disinterested as those upon whose counsel he relies, for I have no interest in the subject except my interest in the principles and policies which can be advanced through the election of a Democratic president.

"I believe that Mr. Clark is right at heart, but during the last few days he has been misled and has failed to take advantage of the opportunities presented to throw his influence entirely into the balance when questions of great importance were at issue."

ALTERNATES GET THE SEATS

Baltimore, Md., July 1.—Six days of the convention has just about exhausted the holiday spirit of the occasion, and Sunday a general exodus of convention visitors, rooters, marching clubs and even delegates took place. The enthusiastic visitors who last Tuesday and Wednesday were having a "perfectly lovely" time, disturbing their spending money and talking politics, settled down apathetically to the routine of the deadlock or hurried homeward with depleted purses.

Telegraph offices were busy Sunday and today, and many of the messages were of the same general trend. They were addressed to wives and mothers and brothers and friends, and each concluded "Don't forget to remit."

Most of the rooters and delegates had come to Baltimore prepared financially to stay not later than Friday evening. The ready money which went so freely on Tuesday and Wednesday became a very desirable consideration on Saturday and Sunday, and the immaculate napery and shining silver of the convention hotels—at convention prices—were largely deserted for the hurried service of the dairy lunchrooms.

Tammany Back to Broadway.

The big crowd of Tammany rooters that accompanied the New York delegation were out and has taken its way back to old Broadway. The boosters around the various headquarters dwindled away.

The "gentle touch" was in evidence all along the line, and many an alternate who has been frugal in his resources moved up in the delegates' section today to take the place of a homespeeding principal.

NEW PARTY "WILL FAIL"

said. "It will come ultimately. It will put all of the bad men in one party and they will never be able to carry a single election. As slavery once held the balance of power in both parties, so today Wall Street holds the balance of power.

Two Years Late.

"Two years ago when Roosevelt came back from Africa and had his interview with Pinchot, he knew he couldn't support Taft longer. If he had started a third party then, bringing to his aid men like Bryan and La Follette, they would have carried the election this year. The situation has now become more complex. Bryan will not step aside for Roosevelt and Roosevelt will not for Bryan. It seems to me that both must step aside and unite on some other man.

"A third party may not come this year, for no party has ever been founded on a bolt. Both of these men must select some man on whom all can unite. Reforms will come quickly and be effective when we drive all of the bad men into one party."

impugned and insulted and New York had a right to be heard.

Cheers and Hisses.

Stanchfield's bitter characterization of Bryan was received with cheers mingled with some hisses. The speaker maintained that the New York delegation was the ablest ever sent to a national convention.

"No man branded with Bryanism can come within half a million of carrying New York," exclaimed Stanchfield, amid cheers.

"Any man who had been writing for pay from the Chicago Republican convention should be expelled from this convention," he declared. "Mr. Bryan is opposed to any candidate except Mr. Bryan."

Voted For Wilson.

The poll of the New York delegation resulted: Clark, 78; Wilson, 9; Underwood, 2; absent, 1. Under the unit rule the 90 votes were cast for Clark.

HOUSE EXPRESSES FAITH IN CLARK

Resolution Introduced By a Republican Passes Unanimously.

Washington, July 1.—In answer to attacks upon Speaker Clark in the Baltimore convention the house today adopted a resolution announcing its entire faith in its presiding officer. The resolution, offered by a Republican, Representative Austin of Tennessee, follows:

"The members of this house, regardless of politics, express their full confidence in the honor, integrity and patriotism of the presiding officer of this house, the Hon. Champ Clark."

It was passed unanimously, Republicans and Democrats applauding.

NO NEW PARTY IS NEEDED, HE SAYS

Washington, July 1.—Senator Works of California, Progressive Republican, presenting in the senate today a resolution to investigate recent campaign contributions and expenditures, declared the Taft renomination had been procured unjustly and illegally.

California needed no new party, he said, and the Republican party might better go down to defeat for the sins of its leaders and come up four years hence than to form a new party.

PRESIDENT OF STOVE COMPANY IS SUICIDE.

Chicago, July 1.—David R. Anderson president of a stove manufacturing concern, shot and killed himself in his home in Wilmette today. Worry over financial difficulties, which resulted in a physical breakdown, is believed to have caused the deed. He was 51 years old.

RAISING FUNDS FOR TITANIC MEMORIAL.

Chicago, July 1.—Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, wife of Mayor Harrison, will conduct the campaign among Illinois women for aid in erecting the Titanic memorial in Washington. Mrs. John Hays Hammond, who was in Chicago with her husband during the Republican national convention, interested Mrs. Harrison in the project during the former's stay here.

THE WAY TO MAKE HENS SIT.

Farm and Fireside: My experience in setting hens has been a very successful one, and I sincerely hope this little article will be of benefit to many readers. First, select a suitable place where wind and rain cannot enter and where there are no rats. Don't try to set hens in the house where you keep your other fowls. No matter if they are shut in the other fowls will bother them and cause them to become uneasy and break their eggs, with the result of a poor hatch.

For nests I use cheese boxes, which can be procured from the grocer's at 5 cents each, and in some instances for the asking. These boxes being round and low insure the eggs from being broken by the hen jumping down into the nest. In the bottom of the nests I place some slightly moistened earth. Then I fill it as full as I can of fine hay, packing it very firmly and sprinkling a good lice powder thoroughly through the hay. After every hatch destroy the hay by burning and replace it with a fresh supply to guard against lice and mites.

After filling the nest with hay, I place some nest eggs therein. After dark I set the setting hen, dust her thoroughly with lice powder, place her gently on the nest, cover her with a splint bushel basket and let her sit. Then I put a box of road dust for a dust bath in the room and have plenty of clean fresh water, corn and grit always accessible. On the following evening I uncover her. In the morning she will come off to eat and will return to her nest. I let her sit until she thoroughly makes up her mind to stay, then place from thirteen to seventeen eggs under her, according to the size of the hen.

I have had as many as eighteen hens sitting in the same room with no disturbances and no broken eggs.

ORIGIN OF THE ALPHABET.

London correspondence New York Sun: In a lecture at the Royal Institute, Prof. Flinders Petrie has attacked the long-accepted theory that the origin of the alphabet is to be found in Phoenicia, whence it came from Egyptian hieroglyphics.

According to Prof. Petrie, the researches of the last twenty years have shown that signs were earlier than pictures, and that it was the sign that survived to become the Alpha and beta of one civilization and the A B C of another.

Just as the philologist had discovered one entire system of languages, so the alphabetarian had discovered in the diversity of alphabets an original prototype of all. In Prof. Petrie's words, "The Phoenicians are people of yesterday compared with those who wrote the signs that are the origin of all alphabets."

It was to pottery, said the professor, that Egyptologists and others were indebted for these signs, and their development was worked out on these lines. Flatnose made a pot and put a mark on it to shew that it was his. In time, because it was his mark, the sign stood for Flatnose himself, and then the sign became attached to a sound irrespective of the thing itself. Gradually the wearing down went on until the sign stood, not for a sound, but a syllable, and then for a letter.

The signs, of course, were not an alphabet; that did not arrive until perhaps 1,000 B. C., whereas signs were found in early prehistoric Egypt, probably 7,000 B. C. Proofs of this common origin were plentiful, for the signs spread by trade far north and south, and appeared similarly in Runic, Iberian and Karian, and yet were unknown in Phoenician.

WANTED SUN YAT SEN'S HEAD.

Some of my friends were always anxious about my safety, writes Sun Yat Sen in the Strand, but as to myself—perhaps as a remnant of Chinese fatalism—these things give me little trouble. When my time comes it will come. At Nanking a man once walked into my cabin on board a junk in the early morning.

"Sun," he said, "I a ma poor man and I have a wife and many children."

I understand. You mean that someone has offered you a hundred dollars to betray me?"

"More than that," he said.

"A thousand, then?"

"Five thousand, Sun. You are only one man, Sun, and that can have the lives of many. She hates you and will have your head cut off, and then it will be no good to anybody. If you give it to me now it will make us all rich and happy."

"Very true," I said. "My head is worth nothing to me, but it is worth a great deal to you? For if you betrayed me the mandarins would not only take all the money away from you, but your children would go on being poor for thousands of years, and millions of other children. Listen, Jim. I belong to you, and therefore my head is your head. Would you take five thousand dollars for your own head? But go and tell your chief that I am aboard this junk. I shall not stir."

"He fell at my feet and begged my pardon. But I was sorry to hear next day that this man had drowned himself, because he said he could not endure the disgrace of having thought of giving me up to my enemies.

You can, of course, "afford" to miss a dollar-saving chance now and then, through failing to read the ads—but is it worth while?

JUST A FAIRY TALE.

Dim and dimmer grew the remembrance of the great disaster. It was indelibly fixed on the chronicle of dreadful happenings, but it seemed far away like a fading dream of terror.

"What is it now, Cleanthe?" she asked, as she laid aside her cloak and stick.

"Just foolish trouble, godmother."

"Foolish, eh? Most of it is. What brand is this?"

The girl hesitated.

"George's mother has made me unhappy."

Go on."

"She seems to want me to think that in choosing me George has condescended."

"Holty-toity! Go on, my dear."

"She talks so much about her family. There have been such a lot of noble people in it, so much blue blood, and fighting men, and even a little royalty. She tells me all this to impress me, godmother; to make me feel as if George was sacrificing his pride by stooping to a nobody like me. And so I sent for you, godmother."

"You sent for me. Well?"

"I want to ask you if there isn't somewhere in our family just a little strain of blue blood, or nobility or something I could tell to George's mother when she gets so aggravating."

The old fairy stared hard at her godchild.

"Yes," she answered, "here is something you can tell her. When the great ship was going down and the last lifeboat was being filled, your father stood by and they said, 'There is room for you. Hurry.' But he shook his head and smiled. 'No,' he called back, 'there are still women and children to be saved!' And he waved his hand and they saw him no more. My dear, in all those records that George's mother proudly quotes, among all those tinsel lordlings and tin-plated knights, there is no heroism, no nobility like that! Tell her so, my dear; tell her so."

She took her cloak and stick.

"'Twas your father, my dear. Tell her so. Good-by."

COLUMBUS TAKES TWO FROM THE INDIANS.

Columbus, Ohio, July 1.—Frequent hitting carried the Columbus club through two victories over Indianapolis yesterday afternoon, 10 to 4 and 5 to 2. Not a hit was wasted in the first game. KANSAS CITY DROPS TWO GAMES TO MILLERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 1.—Minneapolis won two games from Kansas City 13 to 3 and 13 to 4. The second game was stopped after one man had batted in the sixth, by a terrific thunder storm. Kansas City fielded miserably in the first game, but played errorless ball in the second. Scores:

DULUTH AFTER ENTIRE SERIES

Yesterday it was the rain—Saturday it was a rude and uncompromising thunder bolt, a severed electric cable and street car employes holding convention gossip around the idle cars. In other words, gentle readers, as you are well aware, there has been a break in the continuity of the playing season of the See-Eye league. Duluth and Superior are scheduled to resume hostilities on the home grounds today.

Superior will entertain the home people at Hislop park tomorrow and then on the third of the glorious month in which the eagle screams we will again go to the quiet of the village. On the Fourth two games are scheduled between the two teams. If the arrangements made by the officials of the local team are carried out, Duluth will play in Superior in the afternoon and the home contest will be played here in the evening.

Members of the Duluth team are extremely sorry because of the postponement of the two games of this series. The Sox are extremely anxious to increase their lead in the pennant race before they leave for the away-from-home games with Grand Forks and Winnipeg. It is the general belief that right at the present time the O'Brienites are very well able to gain at the expense of the Red Sox.

It is believed that the biggest attendance of the season will greet the Sox here on the Fourth, when the second game is played with Superior. The playing of the team has slowly made an impression on the fans, and with any kind of weather there should be a crowd out at Athletic park that will show those financially interested in the team that there are those in Duluth who appreciate good baseball and earnest effort toward better conditions surrounding the game.

After the contest with Superior here on the evening of the Fourth the Sox will leave for the invasion of the territory of Grand Forks and Winnipeg. Both of these teams are going strong at the present time. This is particularly true of the Peggers. Jim Brown, though he is not credited with knowing much of baseball, has his men going at a fast clip at the present time. The Peggers have one of the best aggregations that has ever been seen in this section of the country, and the real reason they have not won more games must be ascribed to the man at the head of the team.

From now on the pennant fight is going to tighten. That is one of the reasons for the keen disappointment of the Sox in not being able to play the games that were scheduled with Superior for Saturday and yesterday. Sommer is losing hair and his waist line over the showing of his team to date and is going to make an awful effort to win the remaining games with the Sox.

GOOD SUPPORTS WINS VICTORY FOR BRAINERD.

Brainerd, Minn., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Good support enabled Dreshko to pitch the Royalton nine to a victory over Brainerd Sunday, which nearly meant a shut out for the locals, the score being 6 to 1. Cook, of Brainerd, struck out twelve and Dreshko ten. Rogers, Brainerd's second baseman, did the star playing, fielding and also bringing in the locals' only run. Cook was touched up for eleven hits, which poor fielding contributed to make runs. The score: R. H. E.

THE FAMOUS CORNELL WINNING CREW

RENEWS HOLD ON TROPHY

Despite the most earnest efforts of their opponents to wrest laurels and the Martin Smith trophy cup from it, the sharp-shooting team of Company I, Third Wisconsin regiment, of Superior, came out victorious in the contest which took place yesterday afternoon at the Duluth battalion's rifle range at Fourteenth avenue west and Eighteenth street. Opposing the victors, who were possessors of the trophy, were teams of seven men each from Companies A and C, the field staff and the band from the Duluth battalion, Company M of Hibbing and Company E of Princeton. The victors made a score of 822. The field staff and the band of the Duluth battalion came second with markings of 808; Company C scored 791 points, Company A 764 points; Company E of Princeton recorded 732; and Company M of Hibbing scored 669 tallies.

Following are the high individual scores: Lieut. J. L. Lewis of Company M, 33 points at 200 yards; Corporal H. Splovold of the field staff and band, 32 points at 300 yards; Private L. A. Lessard of Company A, 34 points at 500 yards and Sergeant J. J. Harrison of Company E, 34 points at 600 yards. High aggregate scores were made by the following: Sergeant Charles Helmer of the field staff and band, 126 points; M. Ackerson of Company I, 123 points; and Sergeant Behring of Company C, 123 points.

Officials of the shoot were: Capt. Caley of Princeton, range officer; Lieut. R. J. Wever, assistant; and Lieut. F. E. Smith, statistical officer.

Anything like perfect scoring was rendered prohibitive by a high and veering wind which made good judgment of conditions impossible. Following is the score in detail:

Tennis Tournament.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 1.—The twenty-fifth annual tournament to decide the championship of the Pacific coast in men's tennis doubles will begin at the Los Angeles Country club July 4. Between twenty-five and thirty teams are entered. The winners will represent the farther west in the championship matches to be held at Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 1.

Boston Player Is Married.

Boston, July 1.—Hugh Brent, a pitcher for the Boston American team, announced to his friends last evening his marriage to Miss Imogene P. Palmer of Buffalo. Miss Palmer came here Saturday night and was carried to the baseball player at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church in Brookline in the afternoon.

CORNELL IS INVINCIBLE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 1.—Cornell university won all three boat races rowed over the Poughkeepsie course on Saturday afternoon. The Cornell crews did not always win easily, but in the three contests in which some of the best amateur oarsmen in the United States were pitted against them, Cornell showed that it had lost none of that skill which in recent years had made it the leader of the annual regattas on the Hudson.

The scene along the banks of the river was bright and picturesque. Fine weather brought a host of visitors. Every point of vantage was taken possession of by crowds displaying the colors of the various crews. Both Leland Stanford and Wisconsin came in for a good deal of attention.

The great event of the day, the university eight-oared race, was the cause of the keenest excitement.

At the starter's pistol the shells got away amid dead silence, with the river as smooth as glass.

For a few seconds the noses of the shells were even. Then Stanford began to drop behind. They were soon virtually out of the race, but kept pluckily on.

By the time the mile post was reached Cornell had gained a third of a length lead from Columbia, their nearest rival. At the 2-mile post, Wisconsin spurted, but Cornell had put open water between itself and Columbia. Syracuse then attempted to come up.

Wisconsin Spurts.

By the time the bridge was reached Wisconsin was rapidly overhauling Columbia and Cornell appeared to be drawing further away in the lead. Syracuse was fourth and Pennsylvania fifth. Wisconsin made another splendid spurt and passed Columbia.

Cornell flashed first across the finish line by a good three lengths in 19:12 2-5. Wisconsin was 3 3-5 seconds behind and led Columbia by 16 2-5 seconds. Syracuse was fourth and Pennsylvania fifth, while Leland-Stanford was another half minute behind.

The race was felt severely by some of the Wisconsin crew, the stroke falling over his thwart at the finish, and some of the other men showing signs of distress.

Not Record Time.

Time of the race was good, but did not approach Cornell's record of 18 minutes 53 1-5 seconds, made in 1901.

In the first event the four-oar university race, Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania were the competitors. Columbia got away rowing a remarkably fast stroke, which gave them a lead, but the terrific effort told and before the bridge was reached Cornell shoved in front and finished in 10:34 1-5, with Columbia 6 seconds behind, Syracuse third and Pennsylvania last.

Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin, Cornell and Syracuse were the contestants in the freshman eight. On the first start the crews were called back after the pistol was fired, owing to one of the Columbia crew breaking a thwart. At the second start, Pennsylvania went off with half a length lead, but soon lost it, Wisconsin overhauling them with Cornell close up. The other crews were also close behind.

The race was a gruelling one until a quarter mile from the finish, when Cornell went slightly to the front of Wisconsin, which had been leading. Cornell's final spurt could not be withstood and the Ithacans were returned the victors by something over a length in 9:31 2-5 Wisconsin's time was 9:35 2-5.

Official time in freshman eight-oared race: Cornell, 9:31 2-5; Wisconsin, 9:35 2-5; Syracuse, 9:34 3-5; Pennsylvania, 9:46 2-5; Columbia, 9:47. The record for the course is 9:11 3-5, made by the Cornell freshman eight in 1908.

Cornell won the varsity four-oared race this afternoon by two lengths over Columbia with Syracuse third and Pennsylvania fourth. Official time: Cornell, 10:34 1-5; Columbia, 10:41 1-5; Syracuse, 10:58 3-5; Pennsylvania, 11:23 2-5. Columbia finished eight lengths ahead of Pennsylvania.

GAMES POSTPONED.

But Two Contests Played in the Duluth-Superior League.

There were but two games played in the Duluth-Superior league yesterday, rain and the general misbehavior of the weather being responsible for the postponement of two of the contests. The Duluth Heights players were easily defeated by the Temcos, and the Stones administered a defeat to the Blue Bells, oddly enough the scores of both games being the same, 19 to 10.

The game between the Stones and the Blue Bells was a slugging affair in many particulars. The Blue Bells looked like winners until the sixth inning, the Stones piling up thirteen runs in this round and putting the game on the ice. The Blue Bells used several pitchers in an effort to stem the rising tide of runs, but the Stones had their batting apparel with them and the change of heavers had no appreciable effect.

The Temcos got sixteen hits in their contest with the Heights, pounding Graimes with effect. In addition to the number of hits collected by the Temcos, there were clusters of errors made by the Heights. In fact, both teams gave a ragged exhibition, though the weather was far from the kind adapted to baseball. Scores:

ST. CLOUD ELKS DEFEAT LOCALS

Yesterday, amid the cold and gloom and general discomfiture of the day and occasion, the St. Cloud Elks put the rude kibosh on local 133, the kibosh being pulled to the extent of a score of 7 to 3. Bingles coming at the right time and the right place were largely responsible for the victories of the visiting brothers.

Schmirler was on the mound for the Duluth lodge and was touched up in lively fashion at times when the faithful in the grand stand hoped that he would not be smited fiercely and with abandon.

Hollander was the peak performer for the visitors and he pitched one nifty game. He was steady in pinches and during the matinee showed that he knew something of making the ball behave at all times.

Both teams played good baseball, there being little to choose in all around play. Most of the errors were made on rather hard chances, and while some of the misplays counted in the run getting, most of the scores were due to clean hitting.

DURNAN AND HACKETT.

Famous Scullers Will Meet for Second Race in August.

Spooner, Minn., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be another sculling match between John Hackett and Edward Durnan, the contest to be held some time in August on the Rainy River course. The second meeting between the two oarsmen will be for a purse of $1,000 and a side bet of $200. According to the conditions of the contest, it will be over a course one mile in length, with a turn and return, making the race two miles. Great interest is being manifested in the result of the meeting.

Durnan defeated Hackett in the meeting a year ago, the men agreeing at that time to meet again in 1912. The race a year ago attracted a huge crowd and it is expected that the contest next month will attract many visitors from all points in Northern Minnesota and various points in Northwestern Canada.

MOTOR BOAT RACES ARE PLANNED FOR BOAT CLUB

The motor boat races to be held at the Spirit Lake branch of the Duluth Boat club on the occasion of the annual cruise July 4 should attract a big list of entries from the Head of the Lakes "bugs." For this year the club has decided to make these races open events, and any owner of a motor boat is invited to enter and run his boat in any of these events, whether he is a member of the Duluth Boat club or not.

PROCTOR CONCERT IS FINE SUCCESS

Entertainment for Benefit of Lutheran Church Is Very Pleasing Affair.

Proctor, Minn., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual concert given for the benefit of the Bethlehem Lutheran church by members at the Odd Fellows' auditorium yesterday afternoon was a splendid success. Every number was exquisitely rendered. Mr. Colbentson's beautiful selections on the violin commanded strong applause. His rendition of Bazzini's "Le Ronde des Lutins" was without question masterful. It was something that has not heretofore been heard in Proctor.

Mr. Applehagen's rich baritone voice was very much in favor and he responded to the generous applause with some beautiful encore numbers.

Miss Minnie Nelson and Joe Erickson's duet, Nevin's "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," was exceptionally well rendered. Miss Nelson's rich soprano voice and Mr. Erickson's well controlled tenor made this selection unusually clever and entertaining.

The local church plans to make these concerts an annual affair, and yesterday's attendance was very gratifying. The program follows: Violin solo, "Et Saterbesog," Ole Bull, Oliver Colbentson; vocal duet, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," Nevin, Miss Nelson, soprano, and Mr. Erickson, tenor; "Un Sanger's Bon," Tolssiger, double male quartet; soprano solo, "The King of Love," Gounod, Miss Minnie Nelson; baritone solo, "Bedouin Love Song, Pinsutti, Charles O. Applehagen; violin solo, "Le Ronde des Lutins," Bazzini, Oliver Colbentson.

BE COURTEOUS IN THE HOME

Rev. G. R. Gebauer Urges Cleansing of Mind and Heart of Superfluities.

Purification of the heart and mind, was the subject, in brief, on which Rev. George R. Gebauer of the First Unitarian church preached yesterday. He took as his suggestive topic the custom of cleaning house at certain periods of the year and the efforts of good housewives to keep the home free from dust and dirt accumulations during the rest of the cycle.

Mr. Gebauer declared that while there may not be secretions in the minds of men and women that are of a terrible or deplorable nature, yet there must be accumulations of undesirable material collected in contact with life in general and with people of every class. These accumulations, he said, should be cleaned out and each should endeavor by watchfulness to keep the mind and heart free from a renewal of them at all times.

He mentioned, as one indication of such accumulation, the tendency of many to show nothing but a polished and affable exterior to the world in general, but at home revealing another nature in sneers, snarling remarks and impolite attitudes and utterances. If the pleasant side should be shown anywhere, he said, it should be at home, for there love should rule and all tenderness should be shown. Mr Gebauer asserted that there are too many cases where a man is the soul of politeness to women in general but to his wife is a selfish lout and a discourteous churl. He could see no reason why a man should not be as polite to his wife—who lives for him—as he is to the spouse of his neighbor. Right of possession, he implied, does not give the right of neglect.

MELLINS FOOD

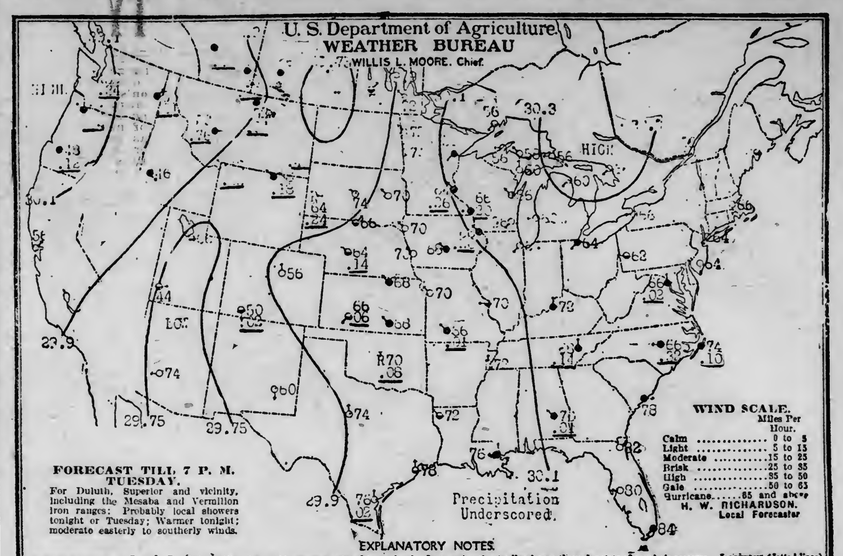

"After struggling through a very hard summer with our little girl, I at last found a food for her that is really good. At birth she weighed eight pounds and when eight months old she only weighed ten and one-quarter pounds. After trying everything, I gave up hopes of ever seeing her any bigger, until one day I sent for your free sample, received it and tried it. Seeing that it agreed, I secured a bottle at our druggists and continued with great results. In one week she gained two pounds and we can almost see her grow. I must certainly speak well of Mellin's Food and will with all my heart."

GORDON TRIES TO "SMOKE OUT" GOVERNOR EBERHART

Files for the Republican Nomination and Issues Warm Statement.

Mr. Gordon issued a statement in connection with his filing, which is calculated to "smoke out" the Eberhart forces and wring from them a statement on how the present governor stands in regard to the new party. The statement follows:

"I have filed as a Republican candidate for governor, as I have intended to do ever since I have been a candidate. In taking this step I do not wish to be understood as in any manner modifying my recent statement regarding the Chicago convention, and I reiterate that the arbitrary action of the national Republican committee in refusing seats to rightfully elected delegates was not only rank injustice, but a high-handed political crime against the party as a whole, and I hold that it is not only my privilege, but my duty as a Republican, to denounce in the strongest terms such outrageous procedure. In this controversy I most heartily indorse Minnesota's twenty-four representative delegates who were elected by the Progressive Republicans of this state in their district conventions, and in one of the most representative state conventions ever held, who participated in the Chicago convention, and who to a man denounced in strong terms the high-handed act of the national committee, and in assuming such attitude I know those twenty-four stalwart men reflected fully the sentiment of the great majority of the Republicans of Minnesota.

Party Label.

"The time has gone by in the political affairs of this country when wrong is made right because it bears the party label, and political tricksters should be made to understand this whether acting as members of the national committee in the Republican convention in Chicago or as delegates representing Wall Street interests in the national Democratic convention now in session in Baltimore. When nominated for lieutenant governor in 1910 I opposed and strongly criticised the appointment of a certain political boss, placed as head of the central committee. I have since criticised the action of that committee as other candidates have done, and as the recent Republican state convention did in its resolution demanding a preferential vote. I have criticised the Republican state administration as other candidates have done, and as thousands of Republican voters are doing. I now criticise the crooked work of the national committee in Chicago and have no apologies to offer on account of my attitude. However, some of my opponents would read me out of the Republican party. In this connection let me ask Governor Eberhart and other candidates who take a similar view to come out and make public their views on the merits of the case. Let me ask these candidates for governor, did that committee do right or did it do wrong.

"Was It Right?"

Was the action of the twenty-four Minnesota delegates in denouncing the committee right or was it wrong? Was the action of Minnesota's twenty-four delegates in refusing further participation in the convention until the roll was purged, right or was it wrong? Do you intend to read these men out of the party? If you consider the national committee was right, will you come out publicly and say so? If you consider the Minnesota delegates as having voted wrong and misrepresented the party in this state, will you come out and say so? On the other hand if your views are the opposite, do you condone the wrong and mislead voters by your silence? Is your standard of Republicanism such that you believe for a man to remain a Republican he must indorse acts of Republican committees whether right or wrong? Are the acts of the national committee any more sacred than those of the county and state committees? Have you always indorsed the acts of the state and county committees?

"What manner of right have you to take a guage and yard stick and go out and measure men as to their Republicanism, when you yourself hide your light under a bushel and withhold from the public your views on the merits of the question in controversy?

"For one I do not propose to admit that the standard of Republicanism is so low that a candidate for office must prostitute himself to the extent of indorsing by word of mouth or by silent acquiescence against his better knowledge and judgment, misdeeds of men in party machinery."

DULUTH SPENDS SUNDAY INDOORS

Duluth spent Sunday indoors yesterday.

Rainy weather spoiled the plans of many would-be picnickers, and as a result the park and amusement places were practically deserted.

A few picnic parties attempted to brave the inclement weather, but most of them returned after learning that J. Pluvius was in earnest.

Duluth fishermen had an opportunity yesterday to fish about their firesides. Disciples of Izaak Walton seem to have even more pleasure recounting their experiences with rod and line along favorite streams than they do while they are actually engaged in making casts between the times they are fighting flies and mosquitoes and wiping the beads of perspiration from their brows. So yesterday those who boast fireplaces could be happy dreaming in the coals as they dozed before their hearths, while the others found joy in similar rehearsals without any more material aid than a comfortable chair or the pleasure of having an audience. Some of the most enthusiastic refused to be deterred by cold winds or rain from making a try for speckled beauties, and part of them at least were rewarded with nice catches for their trouble.

TO SERENADE HANNA.

Fargoans Will Felicitate Fellow Townsman Over Nomination.

Fargo, N. D., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to give citizens of Fargo an opportunity to express confidence and esteem in L. B. Hanna, the successful candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, business men of Fargo, regardless of politics or factional views, have arranged to march to his residence tonight, headed by a band to congratulate the nominee.

SEEK LOST CHILD WITH BLOODHOUNDS

Woods Near Couderay Being Searched for Little Boy.

Couderay, Wis., July 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hundreds of men searched the woods near here all Sunday, late last night and again this morning for Ray, aged 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Argelsinger of this place, who is lost in the woods near here. Bloodhounds were brought here from Ashland today to join in the search, but a light rain of last night may make it hard for the dogs to take up the scent.

Mr. Argelsinger and the boy were visiting a settler near here Sunday and the boy started out alone along the road through the woods. His tracks could be found in the road for half a mile, but were lost near the Couderay Indian reservation line in the thick of the woods covering thousands of acres. It is doubtful if the child survived the night because of the storm, as he was dressed in a thin white sailor suit and also was exposed to the horseflies and mosquitoes which are very bad. The parents are prostrated with grief.

NORTH DAKOTA SUICIDE.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Report—Case of Mr. B. Grimes, Clear Lake, Wis.—a well developed case, albumen nearly twenty-five per cent.—loss in weight—incapacitated, could hardly get around. Treatment changed and put on Renal Comp. Feb. 12, 1909—between six and seven weeks before improvement was noted. Case began to respond about the seventh week — improvement thereafter steady. On Aug. 15, 1909, Dr. Goodwin reported the last trace of albumen had disappeared. September 15, '09, still no albumen and patient feeling so well that the above report was sent in voluntarily.

The agent employed in the above case was Fulton's Renal Compound. Where it is administered before the heart has broken down and there is still recuperative power, Chronic Bright's Disease, even in its most stubborn and supposed incurable forms, commonly yields, and physicians are more and more discarding futile Digitalis, Nitro Glycerine, Basham's Mixture, etc, under which the deaths have doubled, and are saving lives with this treatment.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Literature mailed free. Jno. J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

HONEST CIRCULATION!

The word "honest" is defined by Webster as "upright, just, trustworthy, truthful, sincere—free from fraud, guile or duplicity." The Duluth Herald's circulation is, has been and always will be HONEST. The Herald's circulation has nothing in common with the premium or guessing contest variety. Its subscribers are all actual readers. The advertiser in The Duluth Herald gets what he pays for and is entitled to—a distribution of PRODUCTIVE quality; an all evening, HOME, circulation that presents the merchants' arguments at the psychological time, and to the best buyers in Duluth and surrounding towns.

HONEST CIRCULATION is the foundation stone on which The Herald's great prestige was built and this honesty of circulation is largely responsible for the remark so often heard: "THE DULUTH HERALD IS THE BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN MINNESOTA."

Washington, July 1.—Both the house and senate today agreed to a resolution extending current appropriations through July, thus preventing the tie-up of the machinery of the government, which was threatened by midnight. The resolution now goes to the president. He undoubtedly will sign it. The situation is caused by the failure of congress to pass some of the big appropriation bills.

WHEN ART IS THE "SLAVEY."

New York Evening Post: About as bitter suffering as there is on life's list seems to be entailed on the devotee of art who has to become intimately acquainted with the commercial side of the work, and make a living out of it. Potboiling is a term that can hardly be named without the indescribable French shrug and little whiffs and snorts of self-derision.

Art, the mistress, beckoning and dazzling from peak to peak, gets adoring tribute, gladly paid, even though you have to go hungry to pay it. Art, the handmaid, trotting meekly in harness, delivering the milk and bringing around the bread, a slavey, to be cuffed and kicked entirely out of your imagination just as soon as she has fed you up so that you can get back to your mistress. Ask anybody who writes or paints or sings or acts.

"Still," it was suggested to one young painter person, "tell the slavey's story. It begins to look interesting."

"Well, she tags along behind your hopes when you quit the art schools. You know she is there because you can feel her in your hands, in your cleverness' with the pencil, in the dinky little conceits that pop into your head. 'Sell 'em,' she keeps reminding you. By and by, you find your board money is getting pretty low, so you pause and grit your teeth and listen to her.

"Then one day you put your hand in hers and she leads you to the studios for business service—commercial art studios they call themselves. There you sit in a row around the wall with a lot of other women who are waiting to see the manager. They all have portfolios under their arms and some of them are so old! That's the pity of it.

"Next, after you have done a little of that kind of work, it gets on your nerves to such an extent that your roommate can hardly stand you and you begin to wish that you were a man, so that you could have a wife that you could beat. Then you decide to let the ragged little salary go and try to weather free lancing, come what may. As a freelance your time is your own, and now and then you may get a chance to paint. Maybe you choose postal cards. If you do you take your prettiest to one of the houses that publish postal cards, and you ask to see the art editor.

"Let's say that your sketches don't please the art editor at all. Being a gifted sort of person, he hides his disappointment and praises your work to the skies. It doesn't meet his needs, but it certainly is scrumptious. You go home and roommate says, 'What luck?' 'Well, he said splendid things.' 'Did he buy anything?' interrupts roommate. 'No, but—' Then roommate clears the matter up for you: 'Whenever he is going to buy anything he won't praise it. He will think it's, oh, sort of so-so—hardly know whether he can use it or not, might make it do, but not exactly what he was hoping for.'

"But you don't care. He's treated you politely, and that's a memory not to be pooh-poohed away. Later, you will draw something that he simply can't resist and you won't put the price down so very low, either, no matter how much he belittles it. And if he is art editor in a publishing house that publishes books as well as postal cards you may be passed on to the book department to do some headpieces and tailpieces and some decorative initials for the chapter beginnings.

"I know girls who make good livings out of textbook publishing houses. They do illustrations for readers, physiologies, primary spellers and so on. It is not very well paid, but nearly all school books for children are so profusely illustrated nowadays that there is a quantity of it, and most of it is quick work.

"Then there are the fashion drawings for the magazines and the newspapers and some pickup commissions from the advertising managers of the stores, who want figures or decorative bits for their spreads in the dailies. And I know a girl who is getting on pretty well in an interior decorator's shop, doing handpainted bedroom sets. Hand-painted furniture never can be quite forgotten, you know, as long as the memory of Eighteenth century boudoirs survives.

"And I know girls who are designers in wallpaper houses, and others who design patterns for textile mills. But that is getting back to the salaried place again. The pay is pretty good and the work is steady, but where's the chance to paint, and how are you going to mind the poet and 'keep a green hope in your heart' without that?"

"Yes, how, after all, is this chance achieved if you load up with the hackwork? Where do you get the time for the 'sudden dream?' On Sundays?"

No, not on Sundays. On Sundays, if you are a woman, you have to sew up slits and darn stockings.

At night, then?

And rest at night, unless you are a man. A man can stand the stress of work all day and still have vitality enough to carry him around at night to some artist's studio, where he can foregather with men who are "really doing things," get ideas and have his impulses quickened. But a woman is too tired at night for that sort of thing. No, if you are a woman, what you do is save up "until you get $300."

PLAY NECESSARY TO WOMEN.

By Hildegarde Hawthorne: The world is full of nostrums, cosmetics, and formulas for maintaining the bloom of youth, and even the busiest woman usually makes time to take care of her skin and hair. It's a duty she owes others as well as herself, this looking her best, and a help to her in her business as well as her social life.

But we ought to remember that it is just as important to use the right balms and exercises for our spiritual and mental rejuvenation and development as for our physical.

Don't allow yourself to slump when you leave work, no matter how tired you feel. Slumping is fatal; it is the beginning of death, the finish of youth. Perhaps you are too weary to want to make the effort to go anywhere. But there is more true rest in using a part of one's self that has been left idle through the day's occupations than in just doing nothing. You want to take your mind into a fresh region, to get away from the worrying details of your job, to forget you are a worker and to remember you are a woman.

Work is great, wonderful and inspiring, and women are coming to value highly their share in the constructive and maintaining labor of the world. But work is not the whole of life and the business or professional woman ought to make those hours remaining outside her working day count immensely in the sum of her existence. All of her not touched by her business activities must be cultivated and expressed in the time left free. It is then that she must turn to whatever attracts her. Art, literature, social intercourse, must develop the other possibilities of her nature. After all, the great secret of life is to get out of it all that it holds for you, to be as much, and in as many different ways, yourself, as you can.

Fill the goblet of life to the brim and the old miracle transpires for each one of us—the water turns to wine. Live with joy. If you walk home from the office don't piffle away the time fretting over the work you've left undone or the annoyances of the post hours, or even in planning what you mean to do tomorrow. But follow up some big, jolly thought and clear the corners of your mind with something fresh and different as you clear your lungs with the fresh air. Look up at the sky and let yourself wonder at the immensities of space, at the beauty of clouds, at the changes of day and night. Look at the people hurrying along and marvel at the countless interests that impel them, at the intricate existence that binds us all together, and the conventions and accidents that keep us apart. Be awake, be interested—in fact, be alive—and find when you get home that instead of feeling done up and nervous you are ready to turn to something of actual worth and value that will add to the richness of life, broaden your outlook and keep you sane and happy.

Commercial Travelers Magazine: Hotel clerks are a suave, polite, hard pressed, very busy class; wearing fine raiment, diamond studs and occasionally the smile that won't come off. Likewise the air of a millionaire minus the cash.

They can answer more questions in five minutes than an occult lawyer can in two hours, and have to; can keep their temper like a graven image, and bang the office bell and yell 'front' with the tone and jar of a steam calliope. Hotel clerks were originally counts with nothing to count. The hotel's entire responsibility rests on their fashionably garbed shoulders, while the landlord sits in the back office, and they can say 'four-fifty, please' for two meals and a room as if it was a nickel.

They survey the arriving guest as a hawk would a left alone chicken. Gauge how high priced a room he will stand for with the accuracy of tested scales, and when it comes to the size of his wad there is only one case on record where a skilled clerk ever had to "guess again."

Their nerve is chilled steel, poise that of Gibralter, endurance like the Rock of Ages, and the only two people who ever jarred one of them were Carrie Nation and Dr. Mary Walker. They can give cards and spades to a drummer on the fine art of polite prevarication and beat him to a frazzle; can preach a sermon, lead in prayer, time a horse race, umpire a ball game, and mash a pretty actress with one glance and two smiles. Likewise charge her for the bottle of fizz sent up and forget their own order as easily as a wave washes away tracks on the sand. And yet to their credit this latter is a diversion they seldom indulge in.

It has been said that no human being can do two things at once, but this is a rank blunder for a skilled hotel clerk can do five, viz: Answer two questions, size up an arrival, hand out stationery, and yell "front" all in one breath. Also repeat the performance ten times a minute. Their two most valuable assets are fluency of smiles and ability to recall the name of every "once was" guest.

Hotel clerks catch all the latest jokes and stories on the fly. Their fund of good humor is exhaustless, their faces must reflect morning sunshine persistently and continuously to hold their jobs down, even in spite of kicks thicker and more exasperating than Jersey 'skeeters.' And how many and what fool ones most of these are, none but those doomed to yell "front" every five minutes and keep smiling will ever know.

There are a few public servants who in due time earn a halo. And of these the always patient hotel clerk is one.

It requires five big volumes to accommodate a new condensed dictionary for the blind printed at Vienna from raised type.

PARTIAL VICTORY FOR THE FLOUR CITY LINE

Decision in Important Rate Case By Interstate Commerce Commission.

Lake and Rail Lines Must Leave the Lakes Open.

In a decision handed down today by the intertsate commerce commission at Washington in the famous Flour City case, shippers have acquired a partial victory, not gaining all points asked but gaining what Duluth shippers consider the most important, which is that lake and rail lines must leave the lakes open.

That means that their docks and warehouses thereon must receive and handle through freight without extra charge over the shipping rate. Heretofore lake and rail lines have considered themselves able to refuse to receive such freight if they so desired and if they received it to charge for the handling from the gang plank to the cars or vice versa. Under the new ruling this cannot be done. Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the traffic commission; F. W. Sullivan, who is the attorney for the traffic commission, and G. Roy Hall, secretary of the traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club, declare that this ruling is of the utmost importance to Duluth and shippers in particular and to shippers of the Northwest in general.

The case was brought to the attention of the commerce commission in an effort by the Flour City line, which operated two boats between Duluth and Buffalo last year, to get free handling at Buffalo and a lower railroad rate than was being given from Buffalo to New York. The rate charged by the rail-lake-rail lines from Minneapolis to New York on flour was 25 cents per 100, divided as follows: Minneapolis to Duluth, 5 cents; Duluth to Buffalo, 8.8 cents, and Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents.

The Flour City line asked for a rate of 20.5 cents per 100, divided as follows: Minneapolis to Duluth, 5 cents; Duluth to Buffalo, 6.3 cents, and Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents. The Duluth-to-Buffalo rate was made by their own vessels. They were being charged 11 cents from Buffalo to New York and were charged 22 2-10 cents for handling and loading charges. The two latter items were the ones in controversy.

Commission's Ruling.

The commission authorized a charge between Buffalo and New York for all independent lines of not more than 11 cents, so there was no victory there; but the commission commanded that there be no handling and loading charge, which is the greater of the two items in importance, the local men say.

The special dispatch from Washington follows:

"In addition to the Flour City Steamship company case, the interstate commerce commission today dealt lake vessel monopoly a blow. The commission directs the railroads to accept traffic offered them by the Flour City line at their Buffalo docks on the same terms as those under which that from their own vessels is handled. It also decides that flour moving on a through bill of lading issued by the Flour City line from Minneapolis to New York should move from Buffalo to New York on a rate not exceeding 11 cents per hundred pounds without extra charge for handling at Buffalo. The Flour City line had demanded a 9.2-cent rate from Buffalo to New York, which had been refused by the railroads. The important points in the decision are as follows:

"'While there may not yet be any statutory inhibition against the common ownership of rail and lake instrumentalities of carriage, the uses which it has subserved cannot be said to be entirely consonant with the spirit of the law. Defendants will be required to honor the through bills of lading issued by the Western carriers in connection with the Flour City Steamship company and while the commission does not at this time undertake to establish a joint rate, it is of the opinion that on traffic moving via such steamship company the Eastern carriers should not receive a division in excess of 11 cents per 100 pounds. Such should cover the handling of the traffic from the end of the gang plank to New York. It is the duty of defendants to provide facilities for the receipt and handling of flour that reaches Buffalo via complainant company and if their present facilities are inadequate facilities must be provided elsewhere and at a charge not greater than would apply via their own docks.

"'When necessary the Pennsylvania railroad should perform the switching from union docks to the tracks of the Lehigh Valley and the Lackawanna and cannot now claim that so to do would necessitate the incorporation of substantially less than the entire length of its line between the terminal of the proposed route.'

"Under this decision flour can move from Minneapolis to New York on a rate of 22.3c per 100 pounds. This is divided as follows: Minneapolis to Duluth, 5 cents; Duluth to Buffalo, 6.3 cents; Buffalo to New York 11 cents. The present rail-lake-rail through rate by standard lake lines is 23 cents."

LONDON'S NOISES ARE MYRIAD.

Cincinnati Times-Star: The Society for the Suppression of Noises would certainly have a wide field for action in London. Americans who complain of the occasional screech of a trolley car as it whips around a poorly oiled curve, or who have nine fits whenever a milk wagon rumbles over the holes in the pavement, should try to sleep along some of the more frequented thoroughfares in London.

Take, for instance, any of the hundreds of short streets which connect the main arteries of travel. The overture to the day's industrial symphony is played by thousands of motor trucks, and the rumbling steam lorries on which the city's produce is transported.

The number of these steam traction engines, with their trailing wagons, is astonishing. While they are reliable and often swift, they are noisy, and their puffing and rumbling adds a resonant double bass to the symphony. They come under one's windows just about the time one is getting in his best licks on the pillow.

They often come by at that psychological moment during which one is deciding whether to get up good natured or cross. Probably just before that there has been a terrific clatter in the streets from a long procession of red, business-like wagons from his majesty's postoffice.

It seems to a person who wants to sleep that the postal authorities hold all wagons at the general postoffice until the maximum noise possibilities have been reached. Then at a signal turn loose twenty or fifty of these wagons down a street which will produce the loudest din. They come clattering and banging along, one hundred feet apart for half an hour. And if you peek out at the last one you will see a driver grinning in fiendish delight at the noises the procession has put out of joint. He just loves it.

After mail wagons have coursed their deafening way, and the steam lorries have reached destination, there is let loose upon the community the first of the motor busses. I am quite certain that, in the effort to reach a deafening finale, the bus companies select only those vehicles which have flat wheels and wheezy machinery, for by no other reckoning can one explain the house-jarring din which ensues. You feel that it is time someone invented an entirely new list of expletives, the old ones not being strong enough to express your opinions.

By this time the traffic of London is fully in motion—a traffic which is appalling in its volume and tonnage. One does not mind the noise in the daytime. That is normal. But as evening and night came on the problem again becomes vexatious. The first symptom of the nocturnal campaign comes from the everlasting street piano. A grinning idiot catches sight of one on the balcony and plants himself squarely beneath.

The next onslaught comes from a half dozen people that want taxicabs at the same time. They blow shrill whistles with sound British lungs. It is a very, very soothing sound.

THE STORY A TICKET AGENT TELLS.

Louisville Times: The railroad agent submits this:

"While acting in the capacity of ticket agent at Cincinnati a few years ago I was asked by an old negro who entered the office for two round trip tickets to Maysville, Ky. He explained that one of the tickets would be for a corpse, and inquired if the rate for a dead person was the same as that for a living one.

"'Well, boss,' said the old negro, 'it's lak this: All my wife's folks live in Maysville, and it's a mighty big family. Since our marriage my wife and me has lived heah in Cincinnati. She died yestiddy, and I telegraphed her folks to come, but they is very poah and it would take a powerful lot of money to bring them to Cincinnati, so I am taking the corpse down theah to let them see it. I want a round trip ticket for it, so's I can bring it back and bury it in Cincinnati!'

"I told the old man that we did not sell a round trip ticket for a corpse, but he was not to be denied, and bought a one-way ticket to Maysville, returning to Cincinnati with it one day later."

POISON THE DAFFODIL'S DEFENSE.

The poison of the daffodil is the plant's means of defense, says the London Chronicle. How effective it is may be judged by the fact that rabbits, rats and other small pests which devour hyacinths and crocuses with gusto leave the daffodil severely alone. Nurserymen, too, will tell you that the men employed in gathering Lent lilies suffer from poisoned hands. After working a little while their hands became sore, and painful gatherings form under finger nails and wherever the skin is broken. Despite all of this, however, West Country housewives brew from the flowers a decoction warranted to cure all human ills—possibly by killing the patient.

STEEPEST RAILROAD.

The rack road up Mount Pilatus, one of the loftiest peaks of the Bernese Alps, in Switzerland, is said to have the steepest grade of any road in the world not operated by cables. Rising from the western shore of Lake Lucerne the rails ascend the precipitous side of the mountain, 6,998 feet to its summit.

When the road was being constructed it was necessary to fasten spikes into the rock, says the Railroad Man's Magazine, against which the construction gang could brace their feet while laying the roadbed.

Starting from an elevation of 1,450 feet above the sea level, this line climbs 5,400 feet in a distance of 15,150 feet to the summit. A grade at the station of Alpnachstad is 36 per cent. At no place is it less than 19 per cent. In several it is 48 per cent.

In order to climb the grades, an entirely new system was devised by Col. E. Locher. The roadbed is built throughout of solid masonry, capped with granite flagstones. The ties are steel channel bars, anchored to the masonry with U shaped bolts at every three feet.

The gauge is 2.52 feet. The rails, as in other track railways, merely support the weight of the train. The rack bars are set on edge, so that the cogs are vertical. This arrangement is necessary because on the steepest grades cog wheels would have a tendency to climb out of any horizontal rack.

Engine and cars are built on a single frame. The horizontal boiler, six feet long, is placed crosswise of the track, so that the water level in it will not be disturbed on the grades. The speed is a little more than three feet a second, or about two miles an hour. Thirty-two passengers are carried.

Parts of this road, particularly on the Eselwand, an immense, rocky wall nearly vertical, are the most sensational bits of railroad building to be found anywhere. The railroad creeps along the face of this wall of rock on a shelf tilted up at an angle of 48 per cent. Men had to be suspended over the precipice with ropes to start the work. There are four short tunnels on this precipice. This remarkable line was built in 400 days.

A LACE CLEANER.

Good Housekeeping Magazine: When I asked the tailor for some gasoline, telling him I wanted just a little to clean a lace yoke, he said: "If it's for white lace, I'll put in just a bit of chloroform with it, for it is the best thing possible—the combination of a little chloroform with the gasoline." I used this mixture on suede gloves also, and the result on both articles was a perfect success, and most easily accomplished. Of course, the utmost caution must be observed in employing these materials. Use in fresh air away from fire.

IS THIS PERPETUAL MOTION?

A twenty-foot wheel spanning a narrow street in Los Angeles, Cal., is a source of great wonder to the passers-by, as it appears to be a solution of the ancient problem of "perpetual motion." The wheel stands upon a frame of structural iron, says a writer in the Strand, and is inclosed at the sides with a wooden support, within which it slowly revolves. The wheel itself is of light wooden construction, and has a thickness of about eight inches. It has nine large spheres of metal, which run in grooves that extend from the axle to the rim of the wheel. As they approach the outer edge, their weight has a tendency to draw down that side of the device. The ascending side has no such weight at the rim, as, by an ingenious curvature of the grooves, the balls run toward the center. Thus there will always be a greater weight on one side of the wheel than on the other, and it keeps revolving indefinitely. That this is not a purely scientific affair is indicated by the advertisements painted on the structure, for the inventor has an eye to business. Thousands of people examined the device minutely to discover some outside power which kept the wheel in motion; but, although the framework is built so that one can see every part of it, no machinery can be detected.

BIG FAMILIES IN KANSAS.

Hutchinson News: Sumner township, Reno county, probably holds the record of the state for having big families.

Sumner isn't a very big township, considering population. It is one of the few townships in this county without a railroad and in which there is no town. Although there are less than sixty families living in the whole township they average up close to ten members to the family, the total population being 513.

There are ten families with an aggregate of 110 members, or eleven to the family.

A ONE-MAN STRUCTURE.

Wide World Magazine: The biggest one-man structure in England is Stivichal church, near Coventry. James Green, a native of that city, not only worked the stones used in it, but, with the help of a single laborer, placed them all in position, and, in fact, constructed the whole of it, from foundation to turrets. How long it took him to accomplish the feat is not clear. He is said to have been engaged on the task for forty years, but the interval which elasped between the demolition of the old church and the opening of the present one was only seven years. At all events, Green's "record," like many others in connection with building, will, we may be sure, stand for generations.

JOHN C. MULLERY LICENSED TO WED

V. J. Mullery Denies That His Brother Has Become a Benedict.

A dispatch from Chicago to The Herald states that a license to marry has been granted to John C. Mullery of Duluth and Miss Marie Vogt of Saginaw, Mich.

V. J. Mullery, of the Mullery-McDonald Lumber company, when asked about the marriage, stated that his brother is at Baltimore attending the national Democratic convention. "Some one must be trying to play a joke," said Mr. Mullery, "for my brother is not at Chicago. It may be some other J. C. Mullery."

IN PROBATE COURT

Judge of Probate Gilpin this morning allowed the final accounting in the estate of Charles A. Smith, late principal of the Duluth Central high school, who died about two years ago. Mr. Smith's estate consisted almost entirely of St. Louis county land valued at about $5,000. His wife is the sole heir.

The will of George E. Storms, who died on May 19, was admitted to probate. Mr. Storms left $1,200 in cash and some real estate, the property going to his children. He was prominent in the local lodge of the Knights of Pythias and was associated with the W. M. Prindle real estate firm for a number of years. George Newton, a son-in-law, of Superior, is the executor of the estate.

Judge Gilpin appointed I. Grettum administrator of the estate of Sivert Larson, which consists of a few small parcels of land in Itasca county. The court also named Anna M. Gardner as administrator of the estate of her late husband, Vincent M. Gardner. The main asset of the estate is a claim for wrongful death.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Here's a chance for some one to win everlasting fame as well as the heartfelt gratitude of scores of local residents and of multitudes throughout the world.

The proposition is not easy, but how could anybody ask for such reward for an accomplishment not fraught with great difficulties or untold dangers?

If the solution were not hard, it would have been given to the world ages ago, for the problem is one which has beset mankind since the first dog learned to howl. The chance to win the aforesaid fame and gratitude lies in producing an invention which will put an end to the unearthly, sleep-destroying, nerve-racking articulations of canines that have acquired the habit of keeping bad hours.

Hollow-eyed, haggard and desperate, overcome by murderous anger, various estimable voters have been making their way into headquarters from time to time in recent weeks to register bitter kicks against somebody's dog, or nobody's cur. Nor has the masculine persuasion been alone, for not infrequently have otherwise gentle women, with fury in their every move, appeared on the same missicn.

From every part of the city they have come. And not only have they appeared in person, but they have almost melted the telephone wires by the heated characterizations of their sufferings and their burning comments upon the immediate causes of their troubles.

Some of them declare that for weeks, and sometimes months, they have been unable to get a night's rest because of the dog serenades beneath their bedroom windows. Their descriptions of these nightly entertainments are varied and assorted and not lacking in expressive adjectives. The miscellaneous oceans of yaps and yowls and howls and growls and snarls and yelps to which they are subjected would be enough to drive an Egyptian mummy crazy, judging from their frantic denunciations of them. Some of the desperate citizens declare that unless something is done immediately they will be fit candidates for Fergus Falls before the month is over.

Under the present dog ordinance nothing can be done to ameliorate their agonies. For the dog ordinance might about as well be at the bottom of Lake Superior for all the good it does. In short, it's considerable of a joke. Duluth probably has about 1,500 dogs of all sorts and kinds. The owners of maybe 300 or 400 of the most valuable call at the office of the city clerk and pay their dog licenses. They are furnished with tags which adorn their pets and exempt them from harm as far as the law is concerned. The owners of the hundreds of other dogs laugh at the ordinance, and they don't go to the trouble of hiding their faces in their sleeves when they do so, either. They know that the ordinance isn't worth much more than the paper upon which it is printed.

This evening it is expected that recommendations will be made to the council for an effective dog ordinance. An ordinance is desired which will give the police some power to deal effectively with the situation. They are probably correct that it is the hordes of stray dogs which cause most of the trouble, and believe that if the city is rid of them, most of the complaints will cease. They want a regularly employed dog catcher and provisions in the ordinance which will enable him to get rid of a steadily growing nuisance.

The station is not wholly without lodgers these days. Saturday night two weary wanderers without cash in their clothes were sheltered in the bull pen and last night one was present.

Elmer King, 24 years old, an electrician, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in police court this morning, paying a fine of $10 and costs. He was arrested Saturday night by Humane Officer Bob McKercher. The officer saw him accost a young woman Saturday night as she stepped from one of the Superior street stores, and then tried to talk to her a second time after she had gone some distance down the street. The young man was one of the most-frightened persons the police ever saw brought into headquarters when he realized that he was actually under arrest. Since the sidewalk ordinance was amended last year the police have had very little trouble with mashers. This is the first case of the kind with which they have had to deal in some months.

* * *

Pat Bowe was found to have a dislocated shoulder when he was brought into headquarters yesterday to answer a charge of drunkenness. The police allowed him to go to his home after he had sobered up and the case against him was dismissed in police court today.

* * *

Sherman H. Brownlee, a cripple with one arm and one leg, pleaded guilty to begging when brought into police court today. The police said that he was a professional and he got $20 and costs or fifteen days in the county jail. He was equipped with a card announcing the loss of his arm and leg in large letters, followed by one of those pathetic verses whose theme is "give what you can."

* * *

Fred Lungren said that he had no reason whatever for going to his brother's house in the West end yesterday morning and beating him with his fists. The brother's eyes bore mute testimony as to the treatment he had been accorded. Fred pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and got $40 and costs or thirty days in the county jail.

The indications are that the grand jury which will meet in September will have a mass of work before it. During June twelve persons were bound over from the local police court to await the action of the grand jury. This number will undoubtedly be increased during the next two months.

Lena Peterson, well known to the police for past performances in the blind-pigging business, doesn't believe in taking any chances of not getting her room rent. She is conducting a rooming house on First avenue east.

John Makela and his wife have been stopping there for some time past and this morning were two weeks overdue with their rent. Whereupon Lena took charge of all their clothes. As a result John had no clothes in which he could go to work this morning and the wife was shy everything but the few garments which she wore when she came to the station. She also said that their baby was without anything to wear.

In taking Mrs. Makela's clothes she tore off the coat, which Mrs. Makela had donned preparatory to going out. This constituted assault, but she escaped arrest by furnishing Makela with working clothes and turning over part of the wraps of his wife and baby.

The fire department answered two alarms yesterday. Last night the residence of Joe Kalpzuski, 521½ Garfield avenue, was razed. The family was not at home and the cause is unknown. The loss was about $1,000. The house was owned by M. Shapiro. Earlier in the day a bed was burned in a New Duluth boarding house, causing a loss of about $40.

Mildred Adams, the range girl who was taken in charge by the local police Friday evening, returned to her home Saturday afternoon. She was taken back by her step-father, who had caused her arrest. The girl had told her mother where she was going, but neglected to gain the consent of her step-father.

The tying up of the street cars for three hours Saturday afternoon proved a bonanza for the men who had vehicles of any kind for hire. Automobiles, taxi cabs and hacks had more than they could do for a while, after it became apparent that the cars might not resume for a considerable time.

Muscatine in the Central association has secured Pitcher Wagner from Lincoln of the Western league.

* * *

Brooklyn has asked an option on Cramer and Giddo, the crack battery of the Frankfort team of the Blue Grass.

* * *

* * *

The Henry Seigel Company of Boston has made Denton T. Young an offer to take charge of its baseball department.

* * *

* * *

The Charlotte Club of the Carolina association has purchased Fred Miller, pitcher, from the Montgomery Southern league club.

* * *

Pitcher George Hogan, who was with the Cincinnati team of the United States league, joined Lexington in the Blue Grass after the blowup.

* * *

Anthony Brief, turned back by the St. Louis Browns, is playing great ball for Traverse City in the Michigan league, and is the chief hitting power of his team.

* * *

Nicholasville having failed to give a team in the Blue Grass the support expected, another transfer is proposed, Mount Sterling taking the wandering franchise.

* * *

Sammy Strang Nicklin has returned from Paris, bringing his cultivated voice with him and recently showed up at the Polo grounds and took a workout with the Giants.

* * *

Manes, first baseman, released by Fort Worth, has signed with the Huntsville team of the Southeastern league. Jack Reidy is also a new player with the Huntsville team.

* * *

Manhattan, always a chronic tail-ender in the Central Kansas circuit, has been enjoying the delights of first place, thanks to the able management of Fred Moore, the old Topeka pilot.

* * *

Pitcher Weiser Dell, the big pitcher sent by the St. Louis Cardinals to Butte for development, seems to be coming on fast. He recently held Ogden to one hit. Unsteadiness marred his game, however.

* * *

Lynchburg has decided not to make a contest for its place in the Virginia league. It will expect the league, however, to pay claims of players, since its franchise was taken away from it for no fault of its own.

* * *

W. R. Patton, who has managed the Centralia team of the Washington State league since it was organized in 1911, has resigned and George Drysart, president of the club, will take active charge of the team.

* * *

Victor Kelly, infielder on the Muskogee team and formerly of the Texas league, and Miss Fern Collins, daughter of a well-known Muskogee banker, were married June 19. Kelly is part owner of the Muskogee club.

* * *

The third of the Mitchell brothers from Sardis, Miss., has broken into the game with Greenwood in the Cotton States league. J. J. Foley, who hails from the South Michigan circuit, is another new Berlin player. Catcher Welch and Infielder Martin have been released.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

VETERAN PITCHERS WERE BETTER THAN MARQUARD

He is called a king. New York fans revel in his triumph and men sufficiently baseball mad are ready to fawn at his feet. One would be led to believe that all the rest of present-day twirlers are but pygmies dancing harmlessly and neviously about the feet of their giant. Fame, indeed, is a peculiar blessing. Sometimes it blinds those upon whom it is endowed and sometimes it blinds those who applaud it.

This should not be difficult to understand, for Rube was once called a lemon. But now that Rube has become famous, the very fans who once insulted his capabilities look upon the lemon story as too aged for recollection. Can you imagine what a terrible task it would be today to find among Marquard's gay applauders the fans who only a short time ago roasted him, insulted his accomplishments and were ready to chase him out of town? It would be like searching for a needle in a haystack. They are all "I-told-you-so" fans now and the knockers have either died or gone back to the old country.

Entered Hall of Fame.

And Rube has entered the hall of fame. His name is engraved alongside of those of Edward Reulbach and Jack Chesbro. It has been engraved more pretentiously and with greater splendor, because Rube has outclassed the performances of each. He has pitched seventeen consecutive victories on a baseball diamond, while Reulbach and Chesbro have pitched only fourteen.

Apparently forgotten are the days of John Luby, James Clarkson, Jim ...cCormick, Charley Radbourne, "The" Breitenstein, Foutz, Cuppy and other oldtime pitching machines. Only Marquard—Richard Rube Marquard is supreme. For he is a "king."

Nobody will deny that the Giant southpaw is entitled to all the glory he is receiving. It would be a mean fan who would attempt to cheat him. But, honestly, Mr. Old-Time Fan, doesn't it make you smile when you look back to the days of Radbourne, Luby, Clarkson and McCormick—McCormick, who twirled twenty-four consecutive victories and received only a puny reward? And doesn't it add to the comedy to recall that Manager McGraw of the Giants paid $11,500 for his pitching marvel while McCormick was bought for—well, it's better not to mention the price?

One thing at least has been brought about by the performance of the New York hurler. It has set old-time fans a-talking. It has made them recall some of the feats of the old diamond stars and tends to inform one that the great who die are not so soon forgotten. Of course, there's a wide difference between baseball of those days and of today. McCormick pitched from a box only fifty feet from the plate, while Marquard's work, it must be remembered, is done at a distance of 60.5. But, notwithstanding, there are scores of admirers of the old-time twirlers who are ready to laud them and elevate them even a plane higher than that upon which Marquard today poses.

McCormick's Feat Record.

Many still hold McCormick's feat to be the record. And until Marquard surpasses that record it is doubtful if he ever will be given unanimous applause.

This seems to be a year for manufacturing baseball records. Following the performance of the Washington team comes Marquard's string of seventeen victories. The greater part of Marquard's work this year is that he has not lost a single game. In his first thirteen victories his opponents never collected hits that went into the double figure column.

In Marquard's seventeen games he allowed his opponents forty-three runs. Reulbach gave only fourteen runs in fourteen games and Chesbro twenty-five runs. This is a point in favor of both of Marquard's rivals in the hall of fame, and, besides, neither of the other twirlers had a team behind him so uniformly strong as the Giants.

Marquard will doubtless continue to receive applause. He will attain increased renown. But he will have to go a great deal faster to equal the performances of some of the old-timers, all things considered equal. If you don't believe it, just ask the old-time fan.

UNITED STATES STILL WINNING

Stockholm, Sweden, July 1.—The United States added today another to their list of victories at the Olympic games by winning the clay bird shooting competition. The American team took the first prize and gold medal with a score of 532 out of a possible 600. Great Britain won the second prize and silver medal with a score of 511, while Germany was third with 510.

The best individual scores of the members of the victorious team were: J. R. Graham, Chicago Athletic association, 94; Charles W. Billings, captain, 93; R. L. Spotts, Larchmont, Y. C., 90; J. H. Hendrickson, Bergen Beach G. C., 89; Frank Hall, New York A. C., 86.

The individual army rifle shooting competitions were started this morning. The competitors fire first at 300 meters and then at 600 meters. At the first range each competitor fires ten shots at a bull's eye target, four prone, four kneeling, and two standing. At the second range each man fires ten shots at a figure target, five prone and five kneeling. The time limit for each series is three minutes.

The Hungarian, Procop, led at the 300-meter range with a score of 97. Lieut. Carl T. Osburne of the United States navy tied for second place with Norwegian and Greek riflemen with a score of 95. Sergeant Fulton of the British army was third with a score of 87.

In the shoot off of the tie for second place Lieut. Osburne second prize with a score of 98. This score beats the total made by the winner, Procop.

Skogen, the Norwegian rifleman, was placed third with a score of 91 and the Greek representative was placed fourth.

JOE JEANNETTE AFTER JOHNSON

New York, July 1. — If Jack Johnson cares to take part in a real fight after he gets through with Jim Flynn, whom he once characterized as "just a chile," the time, place and opponent have all been found. Victor Breyer, the Paris boxing promoter, offers Johnson $30,000 to meet Joe Jeannette in a thirty-round bout in October.

Johnson has repeatedly said that he would meet any man selected, provided his price was forthcoming. He fixed this price at $30,000. The Paris promoter has agreed to give him the money, win, lose or draw. Jeannette is willing to make the match on any terms whatever. Therefore it is up to the champion to accept or give a good reason for declining.

Joe Jeannette is probably the least appreciated pugilist in the ring today, considering his merits. Although his real worth is well recognized by close followers of boxing, the majority of those only casually interested in the ring fail to appreciate his ability to the full extent. Of all the men who covet Johnson's title none looks to have a better chance of defeating the champion than the Hoboken negro. Johnson himself is well aware of this and studiously avoids mentioning Jeannette's name when discussing future matches. Another good point about Jeannette is that he always tries to win as decisively as possible instead of saving his opponents up for another match. And opponents are mighty scarce and hard to find.

Has Grand Physique.

Jeannette returned from a trip to Paris and England about a week or so ago. He was forced to go abroad because he could find no more heavyweights who would risk a meeting with him. On the other side he had no better success, for none of Europe's big men were feeling belligrent when Jeannette hove in sight. He did manage to get a match at Plymouth, England, and Glasgow, Scotland, but in each place his opponent was of no standing. He knocked them both out easily. Jeannette is a superbly built athlete. He does not tend to take on fat and is always as hard as a marble statue, even when out of training. When in perfect condition it is worth the price of admission merely to watch the play of his muscles as he moves about the ring. He can absorb punishment even more amazingly than he deals it out.

One of his favorite tricks when feeling in a humorous mood is to drop his hands and allow his opponent to swing both hands on his stomach. In attack he is lighting fast. His left jabs shoot to the mark with speed that would be envied by a featherweight. His right crosses and uppercuts are only surpassed by those of Sam Langford. Jeannette is particularly anxious to meet Langford in a twenty-round bout, but the Boston negro evidently prefers the easier game in Australia. Twice Sam has found a way out of matches with Jeannette in California, by making himself scarce when fight time came around.

Jeannette is, of course, delighted at the prospect of meeting Johnson in the fall, but he says he has his doubts whether Johnson will sign articles. In the meantime he would like to keep his hand in by taking on all comers.

TWO BIG MATCHES FOR NEW YORK FANS

One Championship and an International Mix Will Keep Bugs Busy.

New York, July 1.—Two noteworthy boxing matches, one a championship event and the other an international affair, are on the card for New York enthusiasts this week.

Johnny Coulon, holder of the bantamweight title, will meet Joe Wagner, a local boy, at the St. Nicholas Athletic club tomorrow night. The two boys are believed to be the heaviest hitters in their division.

Sid Burns, English welterweight, will face Mike Gibbons of St. Paul in Madison Square garden tonight. Gibbons will probably have an advantage of five pounds.

FIGHTERS HAVE LAST WORKOUT

Los Angeles, Cal., July 1.—Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers, who are to meet here next Thursday, had their last workout before entering the ring and both showed up well.

Wolgast boxed fourteen rounds with four different men and withstood many hard punches over his stomach. Betting has shifted from 2 to 1 to 10 to 6 in Wolgast's favor. Several hundred women turned out to witness the workouts yesterday.

FOURTH OF JULY WILL NOT PASS UNOBSERVED

Residents of the western end of the city will not let the Fourth of July pass unobserved. A moving picture show in the afternoon and evening will be given for the children and their parents at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 208 Central avenue. At Proctor a celebration and tournament will be featured during the day, while a fireworks display will be shown in the evening. At New Duluth, Smithville and Fond du Lac similar celebrations have been prepared.

The following motion-picture reels will be shown at the West Duluth club during the day by L. A. Simonson, under the auspices of the West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union: "The Story of Pocahontas," "Fairy Hallowe'en," "Jamestown," "Naval Review," "Italian Scenes," "Picturesque Switzerland," "The Family of Cats" and "Bobby's Balloon." Mesdames H. Bevier, T. B. Jones, C. R. Keyes and T. F. Olson are in charge of the program.

In the evening the West Duluth Fourth of July association will give a grand fireworks display at the Fifty-second avenue west playgrounds immediately after the evening moving picture show. A fireworks display worth $450 has been purchased by the association, the committee in charge being R. Baker, Otto Haller, T. F. Fitzgerald and Hugh Viou.

At Proctor the Fourth of July celebration will begin shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning. The Proctor volunteer fire department will give several exhibitions, including a firemen's tournament. LAW'S LORE NO AID IN ANGLING FOR WARY TROUT

Deputy Sheriffs George King and D. E. Stevens, who returned yesterday from their annual summer vacation and fishing trip, are responsible for a good fish story, which is going the rounds at the court house this morning.

The story may be slanderous as it reflects upon the abilities of a district court judge, a prosecuting attorney and another member of the legal fraternity, as anglers and fishermen.

However, King and Stevens claim that they ran across Judge Dancer, Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene and Attorney John A. Keyes on a fishing expedition at Grand Marais last week.

The trio had been out all day and were bringing back one lone specimen of the finny tribe. Although it was but seven inches long, nevertheless, it was genuine.

"They told us," said King, "that the fishing trip had cost them $6 apiece, invested in fishing paraphernalia, but that they considered that the excitement attendant to the landing of the trout easily worth the $18. They were fishing on Devvil's track river."

Mr. King and Capt. Stevens fished with much success in streams north of Saginaw, in Grand Marais country and on Isle Royal. They also visited Port Arthur and Fort William.

"The woods are full of wild game," said Mr. King. "On our trip we saw nine deer, one of which had recently been killed by the wolves. North of Saginaw we also ran across a fresh beaver works, showing where the beavers had cut down a tree eighteen inches in diameter."

GEORGE KING.

DRINKING TEA IN JAPAN.

Charles H. Bartlett in the Springfield Republican: Making our way by rikisha through many a quaint village nestling under deep thatched roofs behind the sand dunes we could imagine ourselves the discoverers of these brown fisherfolk of the Japan sea. The women of our party especially are objects of extreme curiosity. When we walk, scores of wooden sandals clatter along behind us. When we stop, then half the village surrounds us and gazes and if we stay a while the rest of the village, little by little, joins the throng, mild-eyed, frankly curious and friendly.

As we alight from our rikisha at a village, "Eu," the host and his household, kneeling just inside the threshold, bends bowed to the floor, receive us. Whether we stop to lunch or to spend the night, we are shown to chambers, for here parlor, dining room, bedroom, all are one. A room without furniture, except for a few cushions on the matting-covered floor, and a brazier or two, it will open on a porch or balcony, which at night will be inclosed by sliding windows or doors, securely fastened. On all other sides are only sliding paper screens, through which the maids who serve will come and go without warning or ceremony.

Tea is served at once and, kneeling, the maid receives the order regarding meals. There are no bolts or locks, and as one summons a servant by a clap of the hands, the response, "At once," comes distinctly, though perhaps from the opposite end of the house, and through perhaps a dozen partitions. A kimono is brought to each guest, in fact, two, an inner one of washable material, and an outer coat kimono. Shoes have been left at the outer door, and in kimono and soft sandals (all confining clothing removed), one could be luxuriously comfortable if he had no legs. Still, one learns quickly to adapt himself to living on the floor, and perhaps may come to like it.

Here dinner is served later by the same dainty little almond-eyed maids, a tiny tabouret, eight to ten inches high, being placed in front of each guest. The repast is served with all the formality of the "tea ceremonial," the kneeling maids bowing to the floor before and after each service offered and never taking or passing a dish directly from hand to hand or to table. A tiny tray is always extended either to offer or to receive the dish.

At this time the host appears and so silently has he pushed open a side of the room that, catching sight of him, you wonder how long he has been kneeling, forehead to the floor, awaiting recognition. He politely apologizes for his poor house, his unworthy self, the execrable service (which he is quite sure are perfect, one and all), and hopes that our "honorable augustness" may overlook the defects. There's no servility in all this. It is dignity personified, and deserving an equally serious and polite response.

THEIR BRIDES IMPORTED.

Baltimore American: "No more Orientals of the laboring class are coming to Hawaii, and a good many of our white citizens who cultivate sugar estates are sorry that the faithful Chinese are barred under the law," said W. P. Harcourt, a sugar planter of the island of Kauai, one of the Hawaiian group. "They are our best workers, and before the exclusion policy was applied, we could count on a certain regular influx of brawny Mongolians to toil in the cane fields.

"The Chinese now in Hawaii have been there for many years, and most of them are getting to be old men. Not many of the Chinese have wives, but in former days not a few of them became the husbands of the native Kanaka women. It was a good cross, was this half-breed progeny, and so likewise the offspring of the Japanese and native women. In recent times, however, the Japs have been in the habit of sending back to their own land for wives. In most cases I think the self-elected bridegrooms get their parents back in the Flowery Kingdom to pick out wives for them.

"The matter is finally arranged through the Japanese consul, the man in the case putting up money for the passage of his intended spouse. The hour that she lands must also be the wedding hour, for the authorities will not allow the fair ones to remain unless claimed and formally mated according to some civil or religious ceremony that both parties consider binding.

"Every now and then a wireless message comes to my plantation which tells one of my young Japanese hired men that he may expect on the arrival of the next ship at Honolulu the girl who has been picked out as his wife. I do not think that in many cases the principals have ever laid eyes on each other. On the receipt of the message, the man gets permission to go to claim his wife, and pretty soon the pair are domesticated on the estate, and my understanding is they get on as happily as if they had known each other from infancy and been wedded in the conventional way of the Caucasians.

"Not long ago a ship from Yokohama arrived with forty or fifty so-called picture brides. Every one of them had been chosen through photographs forwarded to Hawaii some time in advance of the arrival of the originals. Occasionally there is a pathetic case, as when not long ago a very pretty young Japanese maid was forced to take the next ship returning to her old home. Inspection showed that she had trachoma, and the rigid rule that ordered her deportation could not be waived."

WORDS COINED IN MAINE.

This is the jillpoke season in Maine. The jillpokes are forest products, and the nearest they get to the sea coast is Livermore Falls on the Androscoggin river, Augusta on the Kennebec and Bangor on the Penobscot.

Years ago, when men first began to cut down the big trees of Maine and float the logs down the rivers in the spring, some ancient pine poked itself into the jellylike mud along the bank and you were treated to a view of the annoyance of the river drivers. Some inspired pioneer from Plymouth Colony called it a jellypoke. Who he was cannot now be learned, but he gave the language a new word.

A log which thus misbehaved was henceforth a jellypoke, subject to such mutations as the language might undergo. The middle syllable was early dropped out, and there are living river drivers who say that the word ought to be jellypoke instead of jillpoke, and that it was jellpoke when they were boys. Today it is jillpoke, and with the change in pronunciation has come a broadening of the meaning.

Any log which strands on bank, rock or island is called a jillpoke. Where several logs are piled up together, the log which started the trouble is designated as the jillpoke log. The word is applied to the human race. Thus a man who is timid about making a business venture is a jillpoke.

Did you ever hear of cavascacious? Nobody knows where it came from, but in Maine it is applied as an adjective to designate something pleasant or one agreeable. A cavascacious day is a cavascacious day, and the Fourth of July is when people have a cavascacious time. It is accented on the first and third syllables.

Bange rhymes with flange, and it means to make one self a burden on somebody else. Sudden visitors, especially if unwelcome, are said to bange on the persons visited. A hen is banging when she settles down into the dirt and shakes it up among her feathers. This use of the word gives the clew to its derivation from the French "baigner" to bathe.

When some Maine men want to say a strong word without swearing, they burst forth with jehookibus!" with the accent on the hoo.

WHEN ASSEMBLY PAGES STRIKE.

New York American: The novelty of legislators carrying their own bills, resolutions and amendments to the clerk's desk was witnessed in the assembly chamber recently, as the result of a boycott instituted by the pages because a session had been called for the night on which their annual ball was held.

When the night session opened several of the boys in evening clothes, accompanied by fair companions, strolled into the capitol, but only remained long enough to show their indifference to boss rule.

RAINS FALL; WHEAT SAGS

Duluth Board of Trade, July 1.—The approach of showery conditions from the West caused quite a decline in the price of wheat on the markets of this country today. Duluth July wheat closed at a decline of 1⅞c. Duluth September closed 2c off. Cash wheat was a cent over July. Durum closed half a cent off and oats 1½c off. Rye and barley closed unchanged. Duluth July flaxseed closed 3c lower. September was unchanged and October half a cent up.

Reports of showers in the western part of Western Canada and south of that region through Montana, where they were greatly needed, with the expectation that the same weather conditions would move eastward, shedding rain upon the thirsty soils of the Dakotas and Manitoba, caused quite a downward movement on the American wheat markets during the morning. The Winnipeg market was closed on account of a holiday.

Duluth July wheat, which closed on Saturday at $1.11⅞ bid, opened today at $1.11 bid and at noon was selling at $1.10⅞. There was a downward movement likewise at Chicago and Minneapolis.

The cables were for the most part bearish. Liverpool wheat today closed ⅛d to ¼d lower.

Flaxseed Slumps.

Heavy arrivals of flaxseed and large offers caused a downward movement on the Duluth market this morning. There were 40 cars on the track for inspection. Minneapolis reported the receipt of 72 cars. The farmers of the Northwest evidently feel that they will not have another chance to get rid of their flaxseed this year at as high a price as it commands now, and are expecting that the coming harvest will pour a vast quantity of new seed upon the markets and cause a rapid fall in the price. Therefore they are rushing their flaxseed upon the markets as fast as they can handle it, and the effect is plainly seen in the increased receipts, though there is good reason to believe that there is not a great deal of flaxseed left in the country. The receipt of a great deal of flaxseed in bags, shows that many farmers have been scraping their bins in order to rush what flaxseed they have upon the market as speedily as possible.

Duluth July flaxseed at noon today was 3 cents lower at $2.20 bid. September was unchanged and October half a cent higher. Buenos Ayres July last Saturday closed unchanged at $1.77¾. London July closed ⅜c off today at $2.26⅜.

FLAXSEED.

Flaxseed on the Duluth market during the week ending today showed a general trend that was undoubtedly bearish, though there was quite a bulge last Saturday. Last Saturday's close, however, was 4½c lower for July than on Saturday of the week before; September was 4c lower and October 6½c off. At Winnipeg likewise there was a downward movement, July closing 6½c lower than a week before. Buenos Ayres for the week showed a decline in July of 1⅛c and London showed an advance of ⅜c.

The decline on the North American markets was due mainly to the generally fine prospects for a great yield of flaxseed in both the United States and Canada this year. It is expected that Canada with its vastly increased acreage of flaxseed will show a yield this year about 35 per cent in excess of that of last year. In this country the acreage of flaxseed is greater for two reasons. One is that the lateness of the spring prevented the usual sowing of the usual acreage of wheat and in many places flaxseed, which can be sowed later, was substituted. The other reason is the fact that many large farms have been broken in the West, especially in Montana, and put under the plow, and farmers have largely followed the custom of sowing the virgin soil with flaxseed, as that seed thrives best in virgin soil.

The prospect of a great yield of flax has been inducing farmers, both in the United States and in Canada to rush their seed upon the market, while the prices are still good. In order to do this the American farmers have been scraping their bins. They have not much of the seed left. Yet the market receipts have been increasing, both on this side of the Canadian boundary line as well as on the other side. The tables below show that the receipts at Duluth last week were far in excess of those of the week before.

Another reason for the downward tendency of flaxseed is that crushers have not been buying as briskly as they were. The prospects of a large yield in the fall have caused them to pursue the "hand-to-mouth" policy they followed at certain times last winter and spring, when the price of flaxseed was very high. They expect flaxseed to be cheaper and they are not at all anxious to buy any more at present prices than they are compelled to procure to satisfy their trade.

George A. Martin of Cleveland, representing the Sherwin-Williams company, who happened to be on the Duluth board today, on his return home from Winnipeg received the following telegram from that city: "There have been good rains in Southern Alberta and Middle and Southern Saskatchewan. It looks as if we would get it before the day was over."

"This is very good news," said Mr. Martin, "from the standpoint of every man who wants to see good crops in Western Canada. I think everything points to a fine harvest through Western Canada this year. The Saskatchewan news means that there will be a big yield of flaxseed in that province and our company is interested principally in that feature of the Canadian crop.

"I believe the Indian flaxseed crop will begin to affect the world's markets very materially in the near future. Thus far the United States has imported very little Indian flaxseed. The Indian crop has been tied up from shipment by the strike conditions, which have been affecting British commerce. During the great coal strike, vessels that would under ordinary circumstances be carrying Indian flaxseed to England and other European points were busied in carrying coal to ports that were ordinarily supplied from the British mines. There were other labor troubles that tied up the British shipping, and the result was that the movement of the Indian flaxseed crop was greatly delayed. I should not be at all surprised to see Indian flaxseed coming upon the American markets just as the American crops begin to move. Of course, these two movements together would produce a very bearish situation. Whether there will be much of an influx of Indian flax into the United States depends almost altogether on how eagerly the European crushers grab for it. It may be that the European demand will be so strong that not much of the Indian flax will get over to this country."

"The Southwestern flaxseed, principally that of Nebraska and Kansas, will probably be moving this month, but that is of too small moment to have any great effect on the general situation. Little of that flaxseed ever gets east of the Mississippi river, though some of it goes as far as Chicago. I do not think any amount of it worth speaking of gets to Cleveland."

Lecount reports serious damage to wheat around Faulkton, S. D.

Lecount wired from Faulkton, S. D., on June 29: "Wheat is in bad condition here, the effect of drouth. All fields show damage. Some fields are beyond repair. With rain at once, wheat cannot make over half crop. Pastures would burn. Weather is hot and unfavorable with a high south wind and no sign of rain."

C. E. Lewis wired from Minneapolis: "I came down through North Dakota Saturday and Sunday. The crops north of Grand Forks are in very bad shape clear up to Winnipeg. Spring-plowed wheat and wheat drilled-in on stubble will be hard to recover. The same is true of the Canadian West, where about one-fourth of a crop is spring-plowed and one-fourth in stubble or disced in."

The Winnipeg Free Press says: "A number of farmers in the vicinity of Winnipeg state that unless rain is forthcoming within the next twenty-four hours, the late sown wheat will be ruined. It is already turning quite yellow from the excessive drought. The ground is very dry and the plowing very difficult. Early sown wheat is not in quite so bad shape, as it is beginning to head out."

Grand Forks wired: "There was another hot sultry day yesterday with the temperature close to the 100 mark all day and with a strong south wind blowing. It was a hard day on the growing grain. All grains are showing the effects of the hot weather and are looking spotted. The poor-land late grain, where there is alkali, shows the most deterioration."

St. Louis wires: "Disappointing threshing reports are coming from the Southeast. Missouri from two to ten bu.

Hallett & Carey received the following from Mr. Carey at Mellette, S. D.: "I have seen the country from Havana via Britton, Andover and Aberdeen to this place, and wheat looks good all the way. The days are hot and the nights cool. This section can stand another week without rain, before the wheat starts to deteriorate."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Weather in Canada Has Depressing Effect on Wheat Prices.

Chicago, July 1.—Rain and lower temperatures in Western Canada had a depressing effect on wheat here. There was no support for prices until a sharp decline had taken place. Even then, the buying came chiefly from shorts. Opening figures were ⅛c to ⅝@¾c lower. September started at $1.05⅝ to $1.05¾, a loss of ¼@⅝c to ⅝@¾c, dropped to $1.04¾ and rallied to $1.04⅞@1.05.

Renewed weakness carried the market lower than before. The close was at $1.04⅛@1.04¼ for September, 1⅞c under yesterday's close.

General selling of corn resulted from the wheat weakness. Commission houses were moderate buyers on the ensuing dip. September opened a shade to ⅜@½c down at 72¾c to 73⅜c, and sagged to 72½c.

A further set back followed. The close was weak with September 1⅝c down at 71½@71⅝c.

Oats showed heaviness owing to fine weather in the principal producing states. September was ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½ off in the first trades at 39⅝c to 39⅞c and later descended to 39¼c.

Packers upheld prices in the provision pit. Initial sales varied from 2½c lower to 5@7½c advance, with September deliveries $18.95 to $18.97½ for pork, $11.07½ for lard and $10.65 for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Moves Uncertainly in First Hour But Develops Strength.

Steel Feature of the Active Group and the Close Is Firm.

New York, July 1.—Stocks opened with some show of strength today, the features including Canadian Pacific, Brooklyn transit, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred, Steel, Smelting and Illinois Central. Among the specialties Snuff gained over 3 points.

Standard shares showed some heaviness, but Snuff and American Tobacco advanced 4 points and there were material gains in Westinghouse and Sears-Roebuck.

The stock market moved uncertainly in the first hour, but later developed a firmer tone. Steel was the feature of the active group, with some strength in the preferred. Amalgamated seemed to be in demand, but other coppers were barely steady. Reading, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific and Erie were among the moderately strong issues. Tobacco stocks again assumed prominence and increased last week's gains. Bonds were irregular. Brooklyn Transit was the strongest of the active issues during the noon hour, with further gains in the Tobacco issues and general firmness elsewhere.

No changes worthy of note occurred in the second hour of the afternoon, the market mantaining an even balance.

The market closed firm. Local traction and electrical shares were active and strong in the last hour, with some slight shading in the more active issues.

WILSON NAMED FOR PRESIDENT

STARTED THE SECOND WEEK

Democrats Open Day's Sessions With Deadlock Unbroken.

Illinois' Decision to Switch to Wilson First Sign of the End.

Baltimore, Md., July 2.—When the Democratic national convention met today, exactly one week after it was first assembled, the identity of the presidential nominee was as much in doubt as it was at the initial session.

Woodrow Wilson, the leading candidate, lacked 231 1-3 votes on the forty-second ballot, the last taken before adjournment last night. Champ Clark, who had dropped from first to second during the day's voting, still appeared to control considerably more than enough delegates to block the nomination of Mr. Wilson without depending on the scattering votes.

To those closest in touch, the situation today appeared to be complicated as much as ever.

Dark Horse Looked For.

Friends of both Wilson and Clark began to entertain serious doubts as to whether either could be nominated in face of the stubborn opposition of the other, and today they were furtively casting their eyes about the field for a suitable "dark horse."

WILSON IN BATH WHEN NEWS COMES

Sea Girt, N. J., July 2.—Governor Wilson was in the bathtub when the reporters burst into the executive mansion and shouted:

"Governor, Illinois has gone to you!"

There were sounds of vigorous splashing within the bathroom, but no other response.

The governor's three daughters danced with delight when they heard the news. A moment later the governor sent word to the reporters that he was "perfectly delighted."

COUNT IS HURT BY NEW JERSEY AUTO

Buggy Is Run Into and Nobleman and Companion Injured.

Monmouth, N. J., July 2.—Count Alfred Seidenberg, a German nobleman connected with one of the trans-Atlantic steamship companies, and Howard Slade, a Wall street broker, were seriously injured in an automobile accident here today.

The two were riding home in a carriage which was struck at a street crossing by a heavy touring car owned by Bayard Dominick of the New York stock exchange. The machine was not going at a very fast rate, but the impact was sufficient to demolish the buggy and to throw its occupants into the street.

Bayfield Home Burned.

Bayfield, Ws., July 2.—The home of John Bovee burned to the ground Monday afternoon. The loss is about $1,500, with $500 insurance. A defective chimney was the cause.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE HIM ON THE FORTY-SIXTH BALLOT

Vote on Last Roll Call Wilson, 990; Clark, 84; Harmon, 12; Absent, 2---Choice Made Unanimous.

The nomination was made after Underwood had been withdrawn, Clark had released his supporters, and New York as a climax had moved to suspend the balloting and make the nomination of Wilson by acclamation.

There was objection to this plan by Senator Reed of Missouri. As the final roll call proceeded, state after state fell into line for the New Jersey executive, piling up an overwhelming majority.

The result was received with tumultuous demonstrations by delegates and spectators.

That Wilson would be the nominee was indicated shortly after the forty-third ballot—the first taken today—was completed. Governor Wilson gained 108 votes on this vote and the hoped-for break appeared at hand. Illinois' fifty-eight delegates propelled the movement and gains were made also from Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Hawaii.

Wilson's vote was 602, a majority of the convention. It was the highest vote he had received, and the vote of 329 cast for Mr. Clark was the lowest received by him during the prolonged balloting. When the result was announced the demonstration for Wilson was as enthusiastic and protracted as the weary delegates could make it. Wilson lacked only 124 of the necessary two-thirds to nominate.

Wilson lacked only 96½ votes on the forty-fourth ballot, indicating a strong possibility of nomination on the forty-fifth ballot. It was reported that there would be a slump of Underwood votes to Wilson, probably on the forty-fifth ballot, but certainly on the forty-sixth if that many ballots were cast.

Senator Bankhead, Underwood's manager, went to the platform and asked permission to address the convention.

Bankhead spoke amid breathless silence. He said Underwood had entered the convention hoping to be the nominee, but his chief

IS BIG VICTORY FOR MINNESOTA

Baltimore, Md., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The nomination of Woodrow Wilson for president is a great victory for the Minnesota delegation. Throughout the long days of balloting the delegates from the North Star state have stood solid for Wilson, and even when it looked dark for his nominatin they never wavered but encouraged the other Wilson men to stand firm for the New Jersey governor, confident that they would tire out the Clark forces and win in the end.

The Minnesota men are now receiving congratulations on all hands for their splendid fight and they are decidedly happy over the outcome. They now hope to land Governor John Burke of North Dakota for second place.

Speaker Takes His Son With Him to Convention City.

Washington, July 2.—Speaker Champ Clark, accompanied by his son, Bennett, slipped away from the capitol today and took the 11 o'clock train for Baltimore. As on the speaker's previous trip to the convention city his movements were veiled and his departure did not become generally known.

WHAT WILSON SAID:

Sea Girt, N. J., July 2.—Governor Woodrow Wilson was seated on the veranda of the "Little White House" with Mrs. Wilson and his daughters when he received news of his nomination from his managers.

"The honor is as great as can come to any man by the nomination of a party," he said, "especially under the circumstances. I hope I appreciate it at its true value; but just at this moment I feel the tremendous responsibility it involves even more than I feel the honor.

"I hope with all my heart that the party will never have reason to regret it."

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE HIM ON THE FORTY-SIXTH BALLOT

Vote on Last Roll Call Wilson, 990; Clark, 84; Harmon, 12; Absent, 2---Choice Made Unanimous.

The nomination was made after Underwood had been withdrawn, Clark had released his supporters, and New York as a climax had moved to suspend the balloting and make the nomination of Wilson by acclamation.

There was objection to this plan by Senator Reed of Missouri. As the final roll call proceeded, state after state fell into line for the New Jersey executive, piling up an overwhelming majority.

The result was received with tumultuous demonstrations by delegates and spectators.

That Wilson would be the nominee was indicated shortly after the forty-third ballot—the first taken today—was completed. Governor Wilson gained 108 votes on this vote and the hoped-for break appeared at hand. Illinois' fifty-eight delegates propelled the movement and gains were made also from Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Hawaii.

Wilson's vote was 602, a majority of the convention. It was the highest vote he had received, and the vote of 329 cast for Mr. Clark was the lowest received by him during the prolonged balloting. When the result was announced the demonstration for Wilson was as enthusiastic and protracted as the weary delegates could make it. Wilson lacked only 124 of the necessary two-thirds to nominate.

Wilson lacked only 96½ votes on the forty-fourth ballot, indicating a strong possibility of nomination on the forty-fifth ballot. It was reported that there would be a slump of Underwood votes to Wilson, probably on the forty-fifth ballot, but certainly on the forty-sixth if that many ballots were cast.

Senator Bankhead, Underwood's manager, went to the platform and asked permission to address the convention.

Bankhead spoke amid breathless silence. He said Underwood had entered the convention hoping to be the nominee, but his chief

New Orleans, La., July 2.—Inaugurating service between the Mississippi valley and South America, the British steamer Inkum of the recently formed Mississippi Valley, South American & Orient Steamship company, sailed today from this port for Brazil, carrying a cargo valued at more than $1,000,000.

The new service, representing the enterprise of many American merchants and manufacturers, is designed to provide for all-water shipments from Mississippi valley cities to South America and upon the opening of the Panama canal, to the Orient. The departure of the first vessel was made the occasion of an official demonstration which was attended by many business men from cities of the Middle West.

SUPERIOR

Monthly Police Report.

The monthly report by Police Secretary John McKenna shows that the patrol wagon traveled 287 miles during the month of June. This averages about ten miles a day, and during the month 211 arrests were made, 146 being on a charge of drunkenness. A total of fifty children were reported lost and returned by the police during the past thirty days.

Firemen Appointed.

Floyd E. Miller and A. H. Mason were yesterday appointed to the Superior fire department by Chief Johnson. The two men recently passed the examination, Miller standing first and Mason second. The two men will serve as pipemen.

Injured Woman Drunk.

Drunk and with an unbandaged broken arm, which had gone without attention for so long that an operation will have to be resorted to in order to give the bone a chance to knit together, Susie Burns, well known to the police, was picked up yesterday afternoon. She was immediately taken to the hospital, where medical and surgical attention will be given her.

Hammond Park Dedicated.

Following a parade yesterday afternoon, Hammond park was formally dedicated and a handsome memorial fountain, the gift of the heirs of the late Gen. John H. Hammond, was unveiled amid special exercises and addresses conducted at the park. In the evening sixty business men gave a dinner in honor of Gen. Hammond's heirs, who gave the drinking fountain to the city.

School Board Election.

W. H. Whipple, member of the school board from the First ward, and A. A. Campbell, the Ninth ward member, were yesterday afternoon elected president and vice president, respectively, of the organization for the coming year. W. E. Maddock was re-elected superintendent of schools at a salary of $3,000 a year.

Grant Liquor Licenses.

A total of 148 liquor licenses, or fourteen less than the number which may be granted under the laws of the state, met with the approval of the city commission at a special meeting held yesterday afternoon. Six licenses were refused, while nineteen were not acted upon at all.

HOUSEKEEPING AS A BUSINESS.

New York Evening Post. In their effort to make a business out of housekeeping, an effort emphasized and reemphasized by Mrs. Julian Heath of the Housewives' league, and fast becoming a part of the creed of every enlightened housekeeper of today, woman are continually defeated by the general sentiment that there really needn't be any rules for home, that half the satisfaction of home is in its being an easy-going place, a place for fatigue dress, and so on.

In some households this sentiment finds expression in protests from every member of the family, from father down, whenever it is proposed to draw hard-and-fast lines about meals, about holiday privileges for the help, about limitation of the quota of meat, about anything that promises to interfere with careless, individual satisfactions of the family. The men of the house frequently have a very definite idea that all the business is down town, and that the running of the house should be made elastic enough to conform to the exigencies that arise down town. These exigencies may be in the nature of a stay-on client or customer, or in the nature of over-lingering at the club, or the gymnastum, or the hotel lobby. It is all one in the effect on the dinner. "I am sorry to have kept you waiting, dear," says paterfamilias, and expects that to close the incident pleasantly. What difference does it make—it's only home.

This is the difference that it makes, to take one particular of the delayed meal. Food is not only rendered unpalatable; it is rendered less nutritious; and paterfamilias, sinner though he be, should have the benefit of nutritious food, if he is to make strokes that count down town next day. Then, the maid, whose long schedule of hours is already presenting one of the most puzzling knots in the industrial tangle, has another half-hour or so added to her working day. As likely as not, she had planned to go to what she calls a "racket" that night, and being late makes her feel defrauded and cross and the feeling continues into the next day and interferes with her efficiency in diminuendo for the best part of a week. Her inefficiency gets on the nerves of materfamilies, and she begins to go scolding and spanking around until the little familiases are all mixed up and rather begin to wish they belonged to the orphan asylum up the street.

Why follow up the labyrinthian trail? Nothing happens without causing something else to happen, say the philosophers, and effect keeps piling on cause disastrously in systemless housekeeping as in all other enterprises that lack system.

"But I want my home to be a rest place," insists some business person. It isn't always paterfamilias, either. The other day it was a woman superintendent of schools. She liked to come home to her dinner when she "got good and ready," and the cook put up with it. But the cook got even. She was her own boss all day, and she allowed a dazzling play of privilege for the benefit of some special interests in her family connection who knew how to make the best possible use of the pantry franchise.

That housekeeping will become the exponent of good business method, scientific management, skilled labor, and shortened hours is a foregone conclusion, no matter who objects, say the women who are trying to work the thing out. But it would help, they say too, if the whole family and the world generally would concede a few points to progress and get in line with the movement.

WINE MAKES HENS LAY.

Chicago Tribune: A French farmer claims that a small quantity of wine increases the egg-producing capacity of hens to a considerable degree. He divided a flock of twelve hens, sixteen months old into two groups of six. Each group was fed with exactly the same amount of grain, bread, etc., but the bread given one group was soaked with wine. In the four months of the test the wine fed hens laid 148 eggs more than the other six. In another test twelve hens of the same brood, but only eight months old were fed in the same way and the wine-fed hens won by eighty-seven eggs.

COTTON SEED.

Manufacturers' Record: Until forty years ago the greater quantity of cotton seed, excepting that used in planting, was regarded as a waste. Experiments in crushing the seed for oil and other products were made nearly eighty years ago in Mississippi, and later at Mobile, New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis and other points.

Had not the war intervened the great interest developed in this subject between 1850 and 1860 would have had practical results at this time. Interest revived in the seventies, and by 1880 the South was yielding from the cotton seed crushing industry crude products to the value of $7,690,921.

The annual output of such products —oil, cake and meal and hulls—is now valued at about $145,000,000, and a much larger sum is represented in the total of all the products entering into food, clothing, lubricants, illuminants and feed for cattle.

Some of the products appear in as widely separated objects as lamp wicks and automobile tires, as dyestuffs and confectionery, as absorbent cotton and explosives and as soap and salad oil. Some of the products enter into enrichment of the soil directly in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers and indirectly as feed for stock.

The close relation between cotton-seed production, stock raising, the packing-house industry, with its wonderful utilization of former wastes, such as blood, bones, horns, hoofs, hides, sinews, trimmings, etc., and the fertilizer industry explain in large measure the tendency of the packing-house industry to make its larger habitat in the South, while in turn is encouraging cattle raising there in mitigation of the waste in agricultural operations which often comes through lack of diversification.

A CRUEL THRUST.

Mamie—Do you care?

Mamie—Well, of course, I suppose you know. I was too young to take notice when they went out of style.

CROSBY TO CELEBRATE.

Cuyuna Range Town Will Make Things Hum on Fourth.

Crosby, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be nothing lacking here in a patriotic way next Thursday when a good, old fashioned Fourth celebration will be held. The baseball game between Crosby and Royalton teams will be one of the features of the day. There will also be a tennis tournament and various water sports, including water baseball.

Among the races will be foot races for men, women and children, a pie-eating contest, a fat man's race, in which all the runners will weigh at least 250 pounds, a tug-of-war between two crews of brawny miners, and a number of other burlesque stunts.

The Aitkin band has been engaged to play for the day, and there will be dancing all day and in the evening. The hotels are preparing for a large crowd of visitors.

KING A NATURAL COMEDIAN.

"The Charming Alfonso," Oscar Frichet, in Joe Chapple's News-Letter: I am persuaded, after a close study of Alfonso XIII, king of Spain, that had he had not been born amidst the glamour of the purple he would today be kicking up his heels on the boards of a variety hall or acting Pierrott down by the seashore. His high spirits and profound sense of humor would collect for him a fat audience even in a cyclone, and I dare say he would rake in sufficient shekels in one brief season as a sand comedian to enable him to retire from the business and open a saloon.

I don't think Alfonso finds his present situation unengenial for the moment, but if one dark night his subjects play the republican trick on him and he finds it imperative to do a bit of honest labor to prevent his wife and family from sharing the privileges of the workhouse, I have every confidence in recommending him to buy a cheap stage rig and to imitate the monkey and the goat for plump cash.

The total shipments for last year up to June 30 from these docks amounted to 2,916,711 tons. The total shipments up to June 30 this year amounted to 4,260,620 tons.

The total shipments on this road for this year are 2,845,478 tons, as against 2,050,134 tons during the corresponding period last season.

The figures show that both roads are ahead of the record of last season. As soon as the Great Northern receives its new equipment, which consists of 1,000 new cars, the receipts and shipments will be greatly increased. The road and the docks are working to capacity at the present time and as much ore is being sent down the lakes as can be hauled and loaded under present conditions. The new equipment was to have been delivered July 1, but it will probably be the middle of the month before it arrives.

Suit Against Erie & Western.

Michael F. Sullivan, attorney for Capt. Alexander Cunning, has started suit against the Erie & Western Transportation company of Buffalo at Chicago for $50,000. The transportation company owns the steamer Wissahickon, which was wrecked on Outer Duck island, in Lake Huron, in December, 1909.

Capt. Cunning, who is master of the wrecker Favorite of the Great Lakes Towing company, was placed under arrest in Amherstburg the night of Aug. 3, last year, while employed recovering the sunken wreck of the steamer E. L. Fisher. The arrest and subsequent proceedings delayed completion of the work. The following day he was arraigned in Windsor on a warrant issued by Magistrate Price at Gore Bay, on complaint of the Erie & Western Transportation company, which charged larceny of merchandise from the steamer Wissahickon while working to release that steamer.

After a partial examination in Gore Bay, his case was adjourned and he was permitted to return to his work on the Fisher, after the Great Lakes Towing company had made a deposit of $5,000 cash as a bond to secure his appearance. Capt. Cunning made seven or eight trips to Gore Bay, only to learn each time that his case would be adjourned. On May 22 the case was dismissed for lack of evidence. The transportation company paid the Great Lakes Towing company for the bill, which amounted to $27,500.

Ruling Is Vague.

Leading bulk freight vessel managers will meet in Cleveland to discuss the recent ruling of the department of commerce and labor which practically prohibits freight ships carrying passengers. There is considerable doubt as to how far reaching the ruling is meant to go and just what it means.

Although the meeting will not be a Lake Carriers' association gathering, President William Livingstone of that organization will preside. The feeling against carrying passengers is pronounced in some quarters while in others the tendency is toward the continuance of the practice. It is probable that the department will be asked to further explain its ruling.

Insured Against Fire.

The steamer Sidney C. McLouth, which burned to the water's edge and sank twenty miles off Green Bay, late Thursday night, was insured against fire. The crew escaped in two yawls and rowed to Pensaukee. The crew, many of whom reside in Marine City, Mich., had barely time to get away. The boat was owned by S. C. McLouth of Marine City, and is the second one he lost by fire, the steamer Maine having burned in the St. Clair river last season.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — The state railway commissioners in their special car were here a short time Monday on an official visit to the Roseau country. They have ordered the Soo and the Great Northern roads to connect their lines here with a "Y" which will be placed in position near the Soo crossing on Bridge street.

WHISTLE PATRIOTIC AIRS.

The Northern Pacific will decorate its observation and cafe cars with the "stars and stripes" on July 4.

The report does not say whether the brakemen have been instructed to do their humming and whistling on that date to the tune of patriotic airs, but if any passenger desires to have the "Star Spangled Banner" rendered, it will doubtless be done to his complete satisfaction, for Northern Pacific trainmen have a reputation of being very good whistlers.

TRAINLOAD OF SAVANTS

Duluth Will Be Host to American Geographical Society.

Duluth will be host on Aug. 30 and 31 to a trainload of the most famous geographical authorities now living on the face of the globe, which they study and dissect. Arrangements are now being made by the officers of the Commercial club to entertain these distinguished guests and every endeavor will be made to plant in their hearts a warm spot for this section of the world.

The occasion will be the transcontinental excursion of the American Geographical society of New York, the membership of which is composed of the most noted geographical experts living. The excursion will be in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the society, to be conducted by Professor William Morris Davis of Harvard university. It will start from New York on Aug. 22 and will end at that place on Oct. 15, and in the interim will cover the Northern part of the United States, touching at Duluth, going to Seattle, thence down the Pacific coast to San Francisco and then through the Central and Southern tier of states back to New York.

Many members of geographical societies of Europe will be among those taking the trip. Of those who have signified their intention of participating in the excursion are three from Vienna, one from Brussels, one from Antwerp, one from Copenhagen, four from Paris, three others from France, ten from Germany, three from England, three from Budapest, three from Italy, two from Holland, one from Norway, one from Portugal, two from Russia, one from Servia, one from Spain, one from Sweden and four from Switzerland.

The party will arrive in Duluth on Friday morning, Aug. 30 and will leave at 9 o'clock for the iron ranges, returning here at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Saturday will be spent in Duluth and late in the day the visitors will leave for the West.

Professor Van Cleaf of the Duluth high school notified Maj. Eva of the Commercial club that the society was arranging an international excursion and suggested that it be extended an invitation to visit Duluth. Maj. Eva acted upo the suggestion without delay, and the result is that Duluth has been included in the society's itinerary.

RAVINE IS MENACE TO NEW LIBRARY BUILDING

Following the announcement in a recent issue of The Herald that the new Carnegie library at Central avenue and Elinor street will open within a week or ten days, the residents of this end of the city are planning to appeal to the city requesting the council to fill the large ravine about the new structure.

The building is constructed directly in the center of a large ravine without any sewer connections or openings to carry off any heavy rains. It is expected by the citizens that the structure will be in constant danger of being ruined by heavy rainstorms. It is absolutely necessary, say the residents, to fill this large ravine about the building at once. The matter is to be brought up to the council within a week or two and action demanded by the residents for the sake of the structure and other dwellings in its vicinity.

The new library is on the corner of Central avenue and Elinor street, but is set back about seventy-five feet from the sidewalk. The ravine surrounds the building and in various places the ground is about twelve feet below the basement windows. These windows are all above the ground level and would give way should a heavy rain occur. There is a large hill directly behind and to the north of the structure, which extends to the Ely school. The school is nearly a block away, which means that all the surface water from a square block would drain into this ravine.

The library board at its meeting yesterday afternoon announced that the library would be officially opened within two weeks. The fixtures and shelves of the present library branch are to be moved this week and will be arranged and prepared for the opening.

PLANS FOR SUMMER.

Picnics and Outings Planned for West Duluth Club Members.

The executive committee of the West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union, which is in charge of the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 208 Central avenue, held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the Ely school and announced the plans for the summer.

The club rooms at 208 Central avenue will be open every Wednesday evening for games and reading and will give the directors a chance of getting the members of the clubs together. The various outings and picnics for this month will be fully outlined at the meeting tomorrow evening by Norman McLeod, who is in charge of the boys' department of the club.

It was announced yesterday that the members of the various clubs may meet at the aerial bridge every Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for a swimming party at Oatka beach. Mr. McLeod has secured a private bathing beach, which is to be used only by the members of the West Duluth Boys' club. The first swimming party will be held tomorrow afternoon.

On Friday evening an all-night party will be held at Fond du Lac. The boys will meet at the end of the Grand avenue car line at 3:15 o'clock and will walk to Fond du Lac. The boys have been requested to bring their own blankets, tooth brush, towels, cups and food. A complete list of the articles will be given out tomorrow evening.

During the summer the following outings and features are planned: Saturday, July 13, war canoe trip to Park Point; July 19, launch ride to Zenith Island and all night camp; July 27, excursion to Fond du Lac; Aug. 2, hike to French river; Aug. 10, camp at Park Point, and Aug. 7, 8 and 9, walk to Pike Lake and camp. METHODISTS ARE POOR BASEBALL FANS.

It was announced this morning that the Merritt Memorial M. E. church baseball team will drop out of the West Duluth Inter-Church baseball league because of a lack of interest among the male members of the church. The Presbyterians last evening defeated the Asbury nine in the regular weekly game by the score of 14 to 9. The former team is now at the head of the percentage column, which is as follows:

Team.	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Presbyterian	5	4	1	.800
Asbury	4	3	1	.750
Merrit	3	1	2	.333
Baptist	4	0	0	.000

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Being a cop is not all smooth sailing. Sometimes, at least, cops are blamed for things for which they are not responsible.

The incident in question, besides casting a bit of light upon the merits of the matter, illustrates the rashness of jumping at hasty conclusions.

Several nights ago a man from the West end, about 30 years of age, was brought into headquarters on a charge of drunkenness. When the police searched him at headquarters he did not have a cent in his clothes. As he had been seen to have the "half century roll" when he left the western suburb, somebody jumped to the opinion that some member of the force had the man's "wad."

Things looked rather bad for the time being. The man had had the bills when he left home, and he declared by all the pillows on which he ever slept or hoped to sleep that he had been taken in charge by the bluecoat as soon as he stepped, or staggered, from the street car which had carried him into the heart of the town. Yes, it appeared as though the officer might be at fault.

The loser of the money was brought into police court the next morning on a charge of drunkenness. It was his first offense, as far as the officials were concerned, anyhow, and he was given his liberty on a suspended sentence.

The next day the man who had lost the wad rushed into headquarters in a great flurry. He couldn't find the personage in charge quickly enough. He wanted a warrant for the arrest of his brother on a charge of stealing $50 from him.

The brother was brought into the station. Thereupon it developed that the man with the dough had been wandering from one saloon to another after he left the street car. In the course of his meanderings, his sober brother had seen him and taken away his money for safe keeping. The brother, having some convivial spirit, or whatever it is, flowing through his veins, promptly proceeded to make use of the cash to which he had helped himself. At headquarters he said that he had $40 left and was released upon turning the $40 over to his brother. To say that he was tickled to get the cartwheels is putting it mildly. If the brother had forgotten about saving any of the money he stood an excellent chance of never seeing it again. And that man would have kept on thinking that some policeman had made use of his wealth.

Ben Durant, colored, pleaded not guilty in police court yesterday afternoon when he was arraigned on a charge of having assaulted Alfonzo (that's the way it is in the books) Harris, also colored. He will be tried tomorrow morning.

Werner Wanhato doesn't mind getting up at 4 o'clock in the morning to peel spuds if he doesn't have to indulge in manual labor afterwards. But if he has a job he doesn't want to be disturbed until it is necessary. Mikko Hattunen, who runs the boarding house at which Werner stops, forgot the essential part of the proposition and called Werner at daylight to help get the dinner ready. Werner resented the treatment and showed his feelings in plain language. Whereupon Mikko allowed his dander to rise, it is claimed, and went after Werner with his fists, causing a few fractures in his skin. This morning Werner had Mikko arrested on a charge of assault. Mikko pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow morning.

George M. Peterson, president of the local Retail Grocers' association, is going to test out the law which prohibits the sale of groceries or other merchandise or wares upon the Sabbath. In order to do so he caused the arrest yesterday of Hilda Johnson, who conducts a grocery store in the West end. In his complaint he alleges that he bought several articles of food from her last Sunday in violation of the statute. She pleaded not guilty and the matter will be thrashed out tomorrow.

* * *

Richard T. Boynton appears to have a pronounced liking for deer (not the other kind) heads. His alleged proclivities in that direction resulted in his arrest yesterday afternoon on a charge of removing such an article from John Nelson's saloon on East Superior street. He denied the allegation and will have his hearing this afternoon.

* * *

James Donahue was picked up by a policeman yesterday afternoon and sent into headquarters on a charge of begging. He pleaded guilty and got $20 and costs or fifteen days. But he expressed a willingness to leave the city, and the court suspended sentence to give him the opportunity.

* * *

Howard Ross, Larry Olson, Anton Brams and Clarence Lunding pleaded guilty to violating the traffic ordinance when they were brought into police court yesterday afternoon. The police reported that they had been riding bicycles in Lincoln park in a reckless manner. They promised not to repeat the offense and were allowed to go.

* * *

Charles McDonald vigorously denied that he is without visible means of support when he was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy. His trial was set for this afternoon.

* * *

Stanley Novack was arrested this morning on a charge of stealing a bicycle valued at $30 from Leo Behnke. The offense constitutes grand larceny and when he asked for an examination his hearing was set for this afternoon.

* * *

The case against Fred Munzer, accused of having taken $5 from Joe Guberman at the point of a business-like butcher knife, was dismissed in police court this morning after a preliminary examination. The coin was alleged to have been extracted from Guberman by Munzer on board the steamer America. Joseph was the only witness and the court did not attach enough importance to his disconnected and rather astonishing story to hold Munzer to the grand jury.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

WAS ONLY THE CANDIDATE

C. Francis Colman Didn't Know He Was Running for School Board.

Thought Herald Reporter Was "Kidding" When Informed of It.

There are six Richmonds in the field for the school board election.

It was thought Saturday afternoon that the five whose petitions had then been filed, would complete the list, but at the last minute one more was added. His name is C. Francis Colman, the real estate dealer with offices in the Manhattan building. He resides in Colman's addition to Hunter's Park. Mr. Colman has resided in the city for almost four years, is a heavy property owner here, and is popular with those with whom he comes in daily contact.

As an evidence of his popularity, his petitions for nomination were circulated and filed without his knowledge. In fact when a reporter visited him this morning to find out what his platform would be in the election of July 20, Mr. Colman accuse dthe visitor of "kidding." It was the first that he had heard of the matter and would not believe that his name had been placed in nomination until he called up Secretary Bronson's office in the high school and found that it was sad but true.

Mr. Colman was so taken by surprise that he said that he could not give a definite statement. He said that he does not know yet whether or not he will make the run for he has not been consulted in the matter and could not form an opinion or determination offhand.

The Colman petition contained the names of Dr. S. H. Boyer and F. A. Brewer as well, so that this part of the ticket will be known as the Boyer-Brewer-Colman ticket.

The six candidates to be submitted to the voters on Saturday July 20, are Dr. S. H. Boyer, F. A. Brewer and Capt. D. E. Stevens, each of whom desires to succeed himself; and Anton Ringsred, L. A. Larsen and C. Francis Colman.

The school board will hold a meeting on Friday evening of this week to arrange the ticket, and will meet again the Monday evening following the election, to canvass the vote.

The conductor in charge is E. T. Carroll of Wadena. His assistants are Miss Mansur of Duluth, who teaches domestic science and sewing; R. E. Brown, of Sauk Rapids, Miss Lindberg of Faribault.

R. E. Denfeld of Duluth, the state inspector of summer schools, delivered an address yesterday. The school is being held at the high school. Much credit is due Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, the county superintendent of schools, for arousing the interest in the school.

Aitkin Summer School.

Aitkin, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state summer school for Aitkin county opened Monday for a four weeks' course and with an enrollment of fifty rural school teachers. The superintendent is of the opinion that there will be nearly 100 teachers in attendance by the end of the present week. The instructors for the course are Superintendent C. L. Newbury of Gilbert, Superintendent N. R. Ringdahl of Rush City; Miss Sara Brammer of Winona, and Miss Ada M. Flood of Virginia.

ACCUSED FORGER MAKES GETAWAY

Fred Pomeroy Successfully Breaks From Carrington, N. D., Jail.

Carrington, N. D., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — Fred Pomeroy, charged with forgery, made his escape from the Foster county jail. He sawed the lock from an outside grating window, adopting the same plan that had been used with success by Roy Floyd, the twice convicted horse thief, who escaped only a few weeks ago. Hauge, another prisoner, gave the alarm a few minutes after Pomeroy escaped, but no trace of the missing man was found.

MINOT DOCTOR LOSES.

North Dakota Supreme Court Rules Against Accused Physician.

Bismarck, N. D., July 2.—Dr. Theodore Moeller, of Minot, must take the punishment which will be meted out to him by the district court for manslaughter in connection with the case of Miss Gina Lien, of Union, N. D., for which one man has already paid the penalty with his life. The supreme court affirmed the verdict of guilty, returned by the district court jury. This was the second trial. The original trial resulted in a like verdict, but it was reversed in the supreme court.

JOHNSON TO QUIT POLITICS.

Chisago County Senator Will Not Seek Re-election.

St. Paul, Minn., July 2.—State Senator Victor L. Johnson of Chisago county, leader of the temperance forces in the upper branch of the state, and a Republican, will retire from the senate and from politics at the end of his present term next year. Senator Johnson made this announcement to some of his friends here. Business was given as the reason.

ACTION OF COUNCIL NOT APPROVED BY COMPANY

Will Not Submit to Appraisal of the Lighting Plant.

Company's Original Offer Refused—Will Submit New Proposition.

The city council may think that it has started the wheels working for the purchase of the electric plant of the Duluth-Edison Electric company, but it hasn't. A. W. Hartman, president of the company, told The Herald this morning that the company does not recognize the action of the council taken at the meeting last evening, for the council's action is in effect a rejection of the company's proposition.

Mr. Hartman further said this morning that at the next meeting of the council the Duluth-Edison company will submit another proposition, different entirely from the former one. It will be in the form of a plan to put the business of the company under semi-municipal control. What the details of the plan are is not yet announced, for the company officers are at work on it and have not as yet fully mapped out the plan. However, it will provide for city municipal representation on the board of directors of the company, but to what extent is not yet known.

Regarding the council's action of last night in which it provided that the light committee is to appoint an appraiser within ten days to represent the city in an effort to arrive at a decision as to the purchase price of the plant, Mr. Hartman says that the action is not in accordance with the company's proposition at all. Said he:

"We made this proposition: That the city would appoint one appraiser, we would appoint another, and these two would appoint a third, but we stipulated specifically that in accepting our proposition the city would bind itself to abide by the decision of this appraisal board. This the city refused to do and therefore rejected our proposition, so the action of the council last night is of no consequence in view of the fact that we will not recognize it. Further the council instructed last night that the appraisers, if such a board should be created, would estimate only the physical value of the plant, setting aside the value of our business and good will. We would not, of course, concur in any such action.

"However, I think that the next proposition we will make will appeal to the council members and to the citizens as a whole. We will be able to announce the details in a few days."

AMATEUR WILL VOID

Florida Woman's "Request" Not Sufficient for Probate Judge.

New York Church Loses $2,500 Bequest on a Technicality.

The folly of drawing up a will without invoking the aid of legal talent is made plain in a case which has just been decided by Probate Judge Gilpin, who has held against a certain provision in a Florida woman's will, which has been admitted to the local probate court. The implied wishes of the dead woman were not stated in the language of the law and consequently the court held against them.

Before Mrs. Juliet Whitcomb of Tarpon Springs, Fla., died on March 19, 1906, she wrote a will in which she dipsosed of her property to her friends and relatives. Among her holdings was some real property in St. Louis county consisting of city lots at West Duluth and at Ely, Minn. It was only with reference to this property that the local probate court exercised its jurisdiction.

The eighteenth provision of her will stated that it was her wish that George W. Buck of Duluth be given the power of attorney to manage and sell all of the real estate belonging to her in St. Louis county and after the payment of necessary bills incurred, to turn the residue over to the Church of the Redeemer, Universalist, of Nunda, N. Y., as a memorial to her late husband, Samuel P. Whitcomb.

Judge Gilpin holds that Mrs. Whitcomb failed to comply with the statutory provisions for the disposal of property by will under the Minnesota law. She herself, the court holds, did not vest in Mr. Buck the power to convert her Minnesota property into cash and turn it over to the church in a New York town; she simply requested that such power be granted to Mr. Buck.

Judge's Decision.

Judge Gilpin also holds that there is no provision in the Minnesota statutes which would authorize an executor of the estate to create Mr. Buck a trustee for the St. Louis county property and has decided that because she did not give the necessary power to Mr. Buck that the real estate reverts to the nearest kin, Mrs. Lizette W. Robinson of Warrensburg, Mo., a cousin.

When notified of the provisions of the will Mr. Buck on the advice of an attorney refused to act as trustee for the property until the court had ruled on his authority. In disposing of the case, Judge Gilpin found it necessary to pass upon this point. The church interested in the will retained L. C. Harris of this city as attorney and strenuously objected to the court setting aside this particular provision.

Attorney Harris argued that it was the implied wish of the decedent that the money derived from the sale of her Minnesota property should revert to the Universalist congregation at Nunda, N. Y., and that if under the terms of the will she had not properly couched her language and invested in Mr. Buck the power of attorney that there was nothing in the law to prevent the court from carrying out the intent of the will by issuing a license to the executor to sell the land.

Gurnee & Forbes, attorneys for Mrs. Lisetta W. Robinson, the sole heir-at-law, objected to the court doing this as assuming too much authority and asked that the Minnesota property descend under the statutes to the heirs. Harrison & Harrison, attorneys for Frederick P. Whitcomb, executor of the estate also appeared at the hearing.

In her will, Mrs. Whitcomb divided her property among about fifty people and made a provision for a gift to the church at Nunda, N. Y. With the exception of a cousin, Mrs. Robinson, none of the legatees were blood relations. This would make Mrs. Robinson the sole heir-at-law. Frederick P. Whitcomb, executor of the estate, is a brother-in-law.

The property located in St. Louis county has an aggregate value of perhaps $2,590.

MANY LOOK FOR MISSING CHILD

Couderay, Mis., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ray Argetsinger, aged 3, who strayed from the home of O. S. Gavin last Sunday noon while there with his father visiting, has not been found. A large crowd of men kept up a systematic search all day yesterday until dark, but with out result.

Under Sheriff Kleinsteiber of Ashland, with two trained bloodhounds, arrived last night at 11, coming across country from Hayward, and immediately set his dogs to work, giving them the scent from the child's clothes.

The dogs worked for several hours picking up the trail along the road, but soon lost it and were baffled, due, it is thought, to the morning's rainfall. Sheriff Kleinsteiber thinks he will be able to locate the child today sometime, having faith in the hounds on account of their previous good work.

The grief stricken parents still have hopes of finding the child alive. A large crowd of men, including about twenty-five Chippewa Indians, are keeping up the search through the woods.

HEAT OFTEN TENDS TO MAKE WOMEN PALE AND WEAK.

Hot weather has a very weakening effect on women. They become too languid to exercise and have appetite for light, tasty foods, like salads and other cold concoctions, which do not digest readily and tend to increase their natural tendency to constipation.

At this season women, especially, need all their strength to resist the enervating effect of the heat. Good digestion and regularity of the bowels are essential. Some fruits have laxative properties, but they are uncertain in their effect, and are not generally advised. A mild bowel stimulant and digestant, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is preferable because it is certain in its effect, natural in its action, and wholly safe. Take a dose of Syrup Pepsin at night and by morning the sick headache and indigestion will be gone.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores everywhere, and costs fifty cents a bottle; a larger size, intended for family use, costs one dollar. If you have never used Syrup Pepsin and would like a free trial bottle, postpaid, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

NORTH DAKOTA GETTING RAIN

Fargo, N. D., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Showers varying from traces at Bismarck to an inch and one-third in Fargo have fallen over North Dakota during the last few hours. Passengers on Northern Pacific train No. 6 reported more or less rain all the way from the Montana line to Fargo, Williston had half an inch, Minot and Devils Lake had some rainfall.

There has been sixteen hot broiling days in Fargo since rain fell here, but no damage has been done except possibly to late seeded flax. The heat, which had reached an official mark of 98, was beneficial to heavy wheat, corn and potatoes. The conditions are now regarded as most satisfactory.

SMALL DECREASE IN BUILDING ACTIVITY

The records of the building inspector's office show that structural activity in Duluth for the first six months of the present year was less than that of a year ago.

To July 1 the department issued 604 permits for buildings estimated to cost a total of $1,048,048. During the first six months of last year the department issued 742 permits for improvements estimated to cost $1,308,726, leaving a decrease of $260,678.

The figures were completed today by First Deputy Adolph Anderson. During June the department issued 163 permits for improvements estimated to cost $254,985.

CANNOT ASSESS RAILROAD

For East Grand Forks Paving Alongside Tracks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — The paving commission is at a loss to decide against whom to make an assessment for paving alongside of property used for railroad purposes which under the gross earnings tax of Minnesota exempts the railroad corporations from local assessments.

About 815 feet of pavement fronts such property, and the city council has ordered that the taxes be assessed against the property in the paving district, while the city assessment commission believes it should be assessed against the city as a whole.

Woman's Realm

A Minnesota woman, Mrs. George O. Welch of Fergus Falls, Minn., has been mentioned as a possible nominee for president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the election which will be one of the big events of the convention now in session in San Francisco. Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city, who is attending the convention, has also been spoken of as a possible nominee.

The presidenital race is principally between two candidates, Mrs. Carpenter of New York and Mrs. Pennybacker of Texas. Mrs. George O. Welch of Fergus Falls, Minn., and Mrs. Frederick Nathan of New York have been mentioned as possibilities, but no active campaign has yet been made for either. California women want another candidate for federation president because the geographical location of the present candidate is undesirable for California's chances for the office at the next biennial, so yesterday a delegation waited upon Mrs. Welch and urged her to accept it.

Mrs. Welch may reconsider her refusal to run. Most delegations are ready to support some other candidate. If Mrs. Welch accepts she will have a splendid chance.

Mrs. Potter's Views.

Frances Squire Potter of Minnesota, chairman of the department of literature and library extension of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who is attending the convention of the General Federation convention in San Francisco states that the delegates are stirred by the spirit of the Western city and impressed by the ideals of the future.

In an interesting statement written by her for the San Francisco Examiner she said:

"Four years ago the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs was held at Boston, on the Atlantic sea coast. The delegates who were present at that convention were stirred by the scenes and memories of a historic past.

"The delegates attending the eleventh biennial, now opening at San Francisco, are stirred and invigorated more profoundly than at Boston because their needs must be thinking, here, about the ideals of the future.

"No biennial was ever opened with greater serenity or power. Naturally the great body of inquiring womenhood—the greatest school for citizenship open to women in this nation—responds instantly and gratefully to the hospitality of its proudest state. San Francisco is the metropolis of the enfranchised women of America. The sense of a metropolis which is expressing all its citizenry is being felt by every guest at the Palace hotel."

Prof. Sanford Interviewed.

Prof. Maria Sanford of the University of Minnesota was also a speaker at one of the sessions and of her talk the San Francisco Examiner printed the following:

"The pathway to the national ideal was pointed out to the women at the morning session of the convention by a remarkable woman—Professor Maria L. Sanford of the University of Minnesota.

"A woman of power and fire despite her seventy-four years. Mrs. Sanford held the convention spellbound for half an hour while she told of 'Moral Power in the Schoolroom,' a subject which she expanded until it included the whole glory of moral power.

Speaks of Grave Dangers.

"She stood out in front of the vast audience, her slight, black-clad figure strangely in contrast to the larger, more brightly-dressed women on the platform. Her thin gray hair was plastered back on her head in old-fashioned 'Maria' style that our grandmothers knew. Around her fitted the pretty, fluffy-haired pages in their white dresses.

"Yet the starshine in their eyes was no more luminous than the fire in the eyes of this old lady as she held out her hand and said:

"'Side by side with the glorious possibilities and splendid records of our schools there are grave and threatening dangers. There are evil influences that must be met and counteracted by a strong and vital current of righteousness.

"'It is no namby-pamby teaching that we seek. Let it not for a moment be imagined that this effort would weaken strongholds of learning; that it is in any way an attempt to substitute sentiment for scholarship. On the contrary, it would strengthen and increase the demand for thorough training because it would heighten the comprehension of the value of life. We would not abate one iota of the present demand for wide learning and clear thinking.

Must Create Moral Demand.

"'We are asking everything else of our teachers; we are demanding college degrees and special training. If we want teachers of spiritual power we must create a demand for them; we must refuse responsibility positively to those who do not possess it. The money value of education we know well, but its priceless value to the soul, its power to build

"'Those angel stairways in the brain,
Which lead from these low-vaulted days
To spacious sunshines free from pain—'

these we are too apt to overlook. We plead for a moral power in the schoolroom which shall draw from all the sources of knowledge incentives to the full and perfect uses of life and which shall open wide the floodgates to stronger thoughts and more resolute endeavors.'

"She hesitated a moment. Then the will touched the current and the thought flowed as from a divine spark. At the close of her address she was thanked by the women, who rose and waved their handkerchiefs in delight."

Woman's Suffrage.

The woman suffrage question is looming large in the convention It seems certain that the advocates of the cause will force the issue from the floor of the convention probably on Friday, when the delegates come to the consideration of the report of the board on the resolutions that have been submitted for approval or rejection.

The conservative delegates believe that as an organization the federation cannot indorse any issue that does not properly belong to its work, which is along educational lines. The indorsement of suffrage would inject into the convention a political issue.

The question will have bearing on the election of the new president and the advocates of suffrage have been busily pursuing their propaganda and seeking to enlist as many of the hesitant delegates as possible in favor of the candidate who would give the most positive assurance of giving support to the movement. So important has this phase of the campaign become that the two leading candidates for president felt impelled to issue statements defining their position in the matter I am glad to state that I am a member of the New York Equal Suffrage league and a worker in the suffrage ranks. The general Federation of Women's clubs has been, in my opinion, a tremendous factor in educating the women of America to think and work along all civic lines and I believe they are ready for the ballot.

"MRS. FANNY W. CARPENTER."

"Despite the statement made to the press on the day of my arrival in San Francisco, there seems to be some misunderstanding as to my position on suffrage. Permit me to state that personally, I believe in woman's suffrage. To me it is the only just and logical position. Since, however, the general federation of women's clubs is comprised of women from all sections of the cuntry, of all religius creeds and of all political affiliations, I feel that it would not be wise to make suffrage an issue in this convention.

(Signed)

"MRS. PERCY PENNYBACKER."

Recommendations.

These recommendations of President Moore have been approved by the convention:

"Inauguration of a movement for the substitution of artistic and humorous pages in place of comic supplements in Sunday newspapers.

"One member of the legislative committee to be in Washington at all times, the chairman to live in the center of the country and the membership to be composed of chairman of departents in which legislation is ordered.

"Placing the drama under the department of literature."

The proceedings of the convention today were of routine order, the report of the credentials committee, report of the council, an amendment on the question of inter-federation by Mrs. Harry L. Keefe Walthill, Nebraska, and conferences in the department of public health and legislation being the principal business.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PLEDGE OF THE POOR

By Ida Alexander.

The little old father seemed very dear to Margaret, who was watching him as he wrote his records rapidly in his small, cramped hand. It was all, or nearly all, that he wrote. Long ago he had given up hope of the book which was to have been his life work, and buried it deep beneath a country physician's responsibilities. Margaret had always resented this. What right had these people to his life, who scarcely accorded him a living?

"Father," she said, suddenly, "what are you writing?" He held the page with his forefinger, as he met her gray eyes with a pair startingly like them. Then he smiled, and two wrinkles disappeared from his forehead, and two appeared about his mouth.

"Just visists, dear, to pay—and to be paid for," he answered.

"There are many more of the first than of the last, aren't there?"

"Why, surely."

He smiled as he said it, but Margaret did not smile. So it had always been, so it would always be—four to pay and one to be paid for. And they needed many things. No one knew that better than Margaret. Much responsibility developed on her. The little invalid mother must not know, the children could not, the father did not. But Margaret had a complete understanding, of the lease of life accorded girlish hosts, of the wants, wishes and needs of growing girls. She thought with his impatience of her father's coat—how green it had looked in yesterday's blaze of sunlight. How green it would look in the sunlight of how many tomorrows. It was not right; it was not fair. She had a fierce impulse to hide him away from others and himself, to make him take his rightful place in the world; to lighten his path with the success her love and ambition craved. He spent himself freely on those who gave not again. He threw his love, his learning, his very life into a battle which was not to the strong.

Margaret laid down the scarcely touched sewing. The offer of assistance trembled on her lips. But before she had time to speak, a knock sounded. Margaret knew that knock—hurried, anxious, impatient, that would be denied. The old door had echoed to many scores of just such knocks.

"O, dear," she said. Her father started as soon as she. Knocks like that—the call to arms of the physician, sounded through his deepest slumbers. He was transformed in the twinkling of an eye. The wearied old man was the alert, decisive, confident, eagereyed, the light of battle on his face. Margaret's heart thrilled as she looked at him. In a moment he was back. He turned to Margaret, half laughing.

"It's Mrs. Barr's baby—the healthiest little mite. Quite likely it is merely a pin sticking him, but I'll have to go and set her mind at rest.

"But you're so tired. Why don't you let her wait till morning."

"Why, Margaret. By morning I shall have two patients on my hands. You don't know these young mothers."

"I know they haven't much consideration."

"Now Margaret, that isn't like you. How can we expect her to think of anything but her sick little child?" As he talked the physician had been throwing things into a little black bag. He shut it now with a sharp click.

"It's quite probable there's nothing much the matter with the baby. If not, I'll be back tonight. If I should be detained, though, I may have to take the train instead of coming home."

"I thought the convention was next week."

"It is, but I'm leaving two days ahead of time. There's a case Parker wants to talk over with me." Margaret flushed with pride at the honor so simply stated. After all, there were some who appreciated him.

"But what about the bills you were going to make out, father? You see the girls' winter things have to come, and—"

"Jack's shoes, and Robert's, and—I know them all, my little troubled Martha, but I can't delay tonight."

"Why to be sure you could. It would be a help to me."

He picked up the book and rapidly turned the pages, marking here and there with a cross. He passed the book to Margaret. "Get out these I have marked like a good girl, Margaret, and you'll soon have in what you need."

Then, with a hasty good-bye, he was gone. In the morning he had not returned, and Margaret sat long with the little leather covered book in her hand, idly turning the pages. The places marked with a cross were not many. She had counted and recounted the ones which were reasonably sure to pay. The sum total was pitifully inadequate. Even if everyone he had marked paid in full and at once, there was an alarming deficit. There was nothing she could do.

Suddenly, as that thought came to her puzzled brain, another followed. There was something she could do—something that would set things straight for the present and leave a little margin for the encroaching future. In a moment the impotent leather covered book had assumed the proportions of the purse of Fortunatus. There were dozens and dozens of visits with no check after them. Her father had not intended to send them out, but if she did, and the reulctant bills were safely paid, who could be anything but glad about it? Once decided she wrote rapidly in her large, firm hand, so different from her father's. The table was soon littered with bills. On those of longest stand she wrote, "Please remit." When the rural postman arrived, she had a load for him. And then she waited.

The waiting was not long. That evening there came a timid, hesitating knock on the door where a peremptory summons so often sounded. Margaret threw it wide. For a moment she did not know the woman who stood before her, a shawl thrown over her head. But she knew the voice.

"It's Mrs. Halloran, Miss Margaret, my dear. I've brung the money. Tell me, is it sick the doctor is?"

"Why no. Father is quite well, but—"

"Is it yer mother worses, thin?"

"No," answered Margaret. "What made you think so?"

"Won't ye tell me what's wrong my dear?" persisted the woman. "Sure, I knowed there was a woathing whin it came, the till marked, 'Plase remit,' my Danne read it to me. 'Says I, 'He's in trouble, the little doctor.' Thin out I goes and sells the cow. And here's the money, Miss Margaret, $25. It leaves $5 owing, but Dannie 'll soon raise that, an' it'll run up wid it. If 'twar thirty-five hundred Id not begrudge it fur what he's done for me."

She undid the knots in an old bandanna handkerchief, and brought to light the pieces of shining gold. Her face, seamed and marked by care, her work-worn hands, appealed to Margaret. She spoke impulsively, putting the gold back in the old handkerchief.

"Mrs. Halloran, I want you to take this money and buy your cow again. The need is not so pressing—a way has come since that bill was sent that makes it unnecesary for us to take it."

The relief was plain on the woman's face. She protested, but feebly, while her old hand hovered over the coin. It is not lightly that one relinquishes the means of livelihood. She patted Margaret's hand. "Yere' yer father's own daughter, my dear. I couldn't speak a finer word about yea. He's a good man—the best I ever knowed; that merciful to the poor, ye wouldn't believe. He'd be doin' much better in a better neighborhood. But the blessin' of the poor—I think goes for somethin'."

Margaret razed her air castles of unclean foundations to the ground. In the morning, after she had made her mother comfortable and sent the children to school she took the old horse and started out on her round of visits. And just as the angel once spared the houses marked, so Margaret dealt mercifully with the ones which were not. She collected the disturbing slips of paper, reading a lesson in many a poverty stricken place In some the money was ready, in some it was not, but no one had blamed the doctor.

Margaret was glad of that. To each she gave the same excuse—the bills had been sent by mistake. She did not feel the words as untruth. She sighed as she drove homeward. So far things had turned out well, but the hardest part was to come. It would be difficult to explain to her father, to feel his disappointment in her. Yet, inconsistently, she longed for him.

She drove to the station to meet him. All the way home she pondered how to tell him, while they talked on trivial things. And yet it happened quite simply at last. Just a question, "Any of my patients been up, Margaret?"

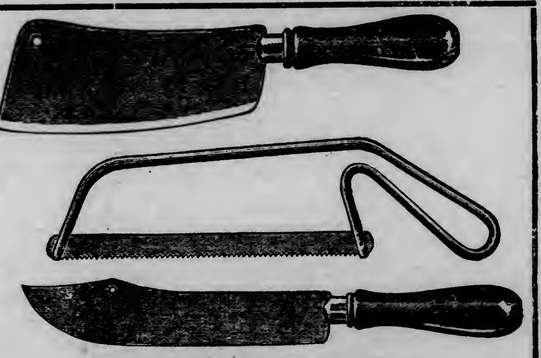

And then it was out. Blunderingly, stumblingly,-sparing not herself, asking no excuses, Margaret told her tale, hardly daring to meet her father's eyes.

He did not speak for a moment. When he did it was very tenderly, "My little girl."

New Trial Granted.

A new trial has been granted the Northern Pacific Railroad company by Judge Cant of the district court in the personal injury suit brought against it by John D. Brower, who was given $4,250 in a verdict returned by a jury at the March term of court.

Brower was a fireman in the employ of the company. One of his eyes, he claimed was permanently injured in the explosion of a glass steam guage in the locomotive. He sued for $20,000.

THE RECORD NOT BROKEN—YET.

The prolonged and stubborn contest of ballots at Baltimore has not yet broken the record.

The Democratic party holds the record, made in 1860, and there is little danger that it will soon be broken by either party. This is true both as to the number of ballots and the length of the convention.

The Democrats, shattered by the issues of impending war, met in convention at Charleston, S. C., April 23, 1860. After being in session for ten days, and taking fifty-seven ballots without making a nomination, the convention adjourned to meet at Baltimore June 18. There two more ballots were taken, and on the second —the fifty-ninth including the Charleston ballots— Stephen A. Douglas, who had led throughout the Charleston convention, was declared the nominee.

This was made possible, however, only by two successive bolts. After the adoption of a platform at Charleston many of the delegates withdrew from the convention, and after an organization was perfected at Baltimore most of the remaining Southern delegates also bolted. In the Charleston convention there were 303 votes, and 202 were necessary for a choice. Douglas went from 145 on the first ballot to 151 on the fifty-seventh. On the second Baltimore ballot, the fifty-ninth in all, he got 181 votes, enough to nominate in that convention but twenty-one votes less than would have been necessary had the convention held together.

The Democrats took forty-nine ballots at Baltimore June 1 to 6, 1852, nominating Franklin Pierce, who had not been voted for at all up to the fortieth ballot. In the same year the Whigs took fifty-three ballots, also at Baltimore, to nominate Winfield Scott. This convention, however, lasted only three days.

The Republicans haven't been bothered much with such stubborn contests. The single exception was the 1880 convention, held at Chicago, where the Grant third-term movement was so strong that it took thirty-six ballots to break it by the nomination of James A. Garfield. Grant started in with 304 votes, 383 being necessary to make a choice. He reached 313 votes on the thirty-fifth ballot, and fell off only seven votes on the final ballot which nominated Garfield. In the early balloting, in fact until near the close, James G. Blaine was his leading opponent, getting 284 votes on the first ballot and slowly dropping to 257 on the thirty-fifth. On the final ballot he got but forty-two votes. John Sherman held just below a hundred votes until near the finish, and there were scattering votes, stubbornly held together, for George F. Edmunds of Vermont; E. B. Washburne of Illinois, and William Windom of Minnesota.

Garfield did not appear in the voting list until the second ballot, when he got ten votes, which number dropped to one on the twentieth ballot, rose to seventeen on the thirty-fourth, to fifty on the thirty-fifth and to 309, sixteen more than he needed for nomination, on the thirty-sixth.

There have been no long contests since 1880. In 1884 it took two ballots to make Cleveland the Democratic candidate, and four to nominate Blaine. In 1888 Cleveland was renominated unanimously, and Harrison was nominated on the eighth ballot. In 1892 Cleveland was re-nominated on the first ballot, and Harrison's nomination was equally easy, though neither was unanimous. In 1896 Bryan's nomination came on the fifth ballot, and McKinley's on the first. In 1900 both Bryan and McKinley were nominated unanimously on the first ballot. In 1904 Parker won the nomination on the first ballot, and Roosevelt's nomination was unanimous on the first ballot. In 1908 Bryan and Taft were both nominated on the first ballot, neither nomination being unanimous.

True to First Principles.

The Taft party proposes to have a ticket that will cover "every office from president down to school superintendent in each district." That's getting pretty close to the scene of the original application of the big stick.

DULUTH'S SCHOOL ELECTION.

Saturday, July 20, Duluth's annual school election will be held, when three directors will be named to succeed the three whose terms are about to expire.

All three of these directors—Frank A. Brewer, Dr. S. H. Boyer and D. E. Stevens—are candidates for re-election. Nothing has been said against the record of any of these men, and there is very much that can be said to their credit.

Two other candidates, Anton Ringsred and L. A. Larson, have entered the field. Both are good citizens, and both have friends who will stoutly support them.

These two sets of candidates, Capt. Stevens being in both, have arrayed themselves on two oposing tickets.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will spare enough time from the more exciting national contest to consider these tickets and to vote at the school election.

As this election is open to every woman of voting age, it is to be hoped that the women of the city will take this chance of showing that they appreciate the ballot and would like more of it.

The issues dividing the two tickets are rather vague. On the whole the "in" ticket seems to base its campaign on a liberal use of the public school buildings for social, educational and other uses outside of school hours, and two of its candidates, Dr. Boyer and Mr. Brewer, believe that it is better to allow regulated dancing in the public schools than to drive the young people to seek their pleasure in other and far more questionable places. The "out" ticket is opposed to going this far, though it seems to favor a limited use of the public school plant for public purposes outside of school hours.

The details of the issues the candidates themselves are making known and they have already projected ginger enough into the campaign to make it not impossible that a really creditable vote will be cast at the election.

There ought to be something like 20,000 votes cast at this election, and seldom are more than a thousand votes recorded.

The best interests of the public schools and the community in general should determine all the issues raised, and the individual candidates themselves should be taken into account only as their personal and professional and business records show them fitted or unfitted to handle the vastly important business which will be entrusted to the care of those who are elected.

A school election seldom is exciting, and therefore it cannot be expected to draw so many votes as a city, county, state or national contest, even though the number of potential voters is doubled by the fact that the school election is open to women voters.

It is to be hoped that every citizen, man or woman, who wishes the public schools to serve their purposes best, and who realizes the importance of having a soundly governed school district, will participate in the election which will be held two weeks from Saturday.

Not Harmless Yet.

Mr. Bryan may have done a great thing when he clipped the tail off the Ryan cat, but who ever heard of a cat that had any particular use for her tail when she wanted to scratch?

DEATH IN THE AIR.

The sport of aviation took eight more lives tragically within the past twenty-four hours. Last night Harriet Quimby, the fourth woman aviator to be killed, was plunged to death with a man passenger when her monoplane pitched them out. This morning Melvin Vaniman and four associates met a terrible death when the balloon Akron, in which Vaniman planned to cross the Atlantic, exploded a thousand feet in the air and burned them all.

The sport continues to be one more fitted for dare-devils than for ordinary human beings. Less and less does it tempt those who value life more than excitement. This year it has produced forty-six fatalities, compared with seventy-three during all of 1911—and 1912 is still young.

Yet Wilbur Wright, the pioneer of them all, died quietly in his bed, of prosaic typhoid.

An Unsolved Problem.

Canada's last census shows that the Dominion contains 2,369,160 unmarried men and only 1,941,514 unmarried women, but it fails to explain whether the condition is due to the bashfulness of the men or the tempers of their potential mates.

A FIGHT FOR PRINCIPLE.

It is small wonder, on the seventh day of the Baltimore convention, that the delegates are in a raspish condition with nerves raw and tempers keen-edged. It's been a long, hard struggle, drawing heavily upon resources of strength, balance and good humor.

Only a fight tor principle could so prolong itself. The Wilson forces, backed by Bryan, are fighting to make the Democratic party the unmistakably progressive party, and the field is united behind Clark and Underwood to make it either conservative or only half-way progressive. The outcome of such a fight no man can predict.

When adjournment came at midnight, forty-two ballots had been taken—six more than the Republican record and only seventeen less than the Democratic record of 1860, which is the highest in the history of national conventions, dating back to 1832.

Chance to Get Famous.

Now that Judge Morris has defined an Indian, he might turn his attention to the more immediate question and give us a definition of "Republican."

BETTER PAY FOR STREET CAR MEN.

The car employes of the Duluth Street Railway company yesterday were conceded an increase in their wages ranging from five per cent to twelve per cent, according to the length of service.

The Herald is very glad indeed to hear of this. These men deserve the increase, and we are glad they didn't have to muss things up by fighting for it. It's much better all around when such things can be done peacefully, as they can be whenever employers give reasonable consideration to the human needs of their employes.

Though employed and paid by a private corporation, the street car men are public servants, and the public uses their services much more than it uses those of any other class of public or quasi-public servants. Much depends on their capacity and contentment, and this in turn depends largely on how their employers treat them.

The increase was deserved, and it is going to make the feeling better all around that it has been granted.

Something Overlooked.

DANCING AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Speaking of the issue of dancing in the public schools, which has been raised in the school election campaign, it is refreshing to find the following in R. Fulton Cutting's reverent and public-spirited book on "The Church and Society," just published:

"It is interesting to note that in Milwaukee St. James's church has determined to combat the dance hall evil, to which the city authorities attribute the ruin of thousands of Milwaukee girls each year, by the opening of a free dancing school for the children of the parish. The authorities of this church believe that children who learn to dance properly, and have a good environment for their amusement, will not later on frequent questionable halls. This has long been the experience of St. George's church, New York."

Why should there be any hesitation about the legality of taxing incomes when for years we've been paying taxes on out-goes every time we bought a tariff-protected article?

AN OLD SLANDER

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over in Baltimore the other day I saw a statesman around the headquarters of one of the candidates, who is regarded as a great campaigner. Intellectually, he is a little below the dead level of mediocrity, but he has the gift of gab, as they call it, and there be those who would set him down as a capital orator on the stump. He served a single term in congress some twenty years ago and there earned a rather cheap repute for parliamentary talents. He is in demand when a campaign is in progress; he speaks "loud and long," has lungs and fluency, yet he never conveyed an idea to your mind, never changed a vote. But these folk have their value. They split the ears of the groundlings and arouse and rally the rabble for the battle of the ballots.

This chap has imagination, but it is without adequate ballast, and he fancies vain things, for I want to be polite enough to avoid the "short and ugly." Like many a far greater man our friend has told the following story until he actually believes it, though it is nothing but envy distorting the shaft of detraction at a shining mark. How prone the vulgar are to feast on imaginings of the weaknesses of the great! It tends to associate the garbage receptacle with the celestial bed.

Here is the story as this man loves to relate it to the simple and the credulous: John G. Carlisle entered Cleveland's cabinet in 1893 as secretary of the treasury a strong silver man, an advocate of 16 to 1. Cleveland would not hear to it when the panic came and directed the secretary to redeem the paper obligations of the government in gold. That is chapter one.

Carlisle revolted and resolved to resign and head the silver movement. Had he done so Bryan would never have been heard of. A meeting of the Kentucky delegation in congress was held and it was agreed that Asher G. Caruth of the Louisville district should resign his seat in congress, to which Carlisle was to be elected, in order to lead the opposition to the Democratic administration in congress. That is chapter two.

Report was made to Carlisle and it was all right. The bomb was ready for explosion, but Carlisle slept on it, and the next morning let the delegation know that a seat in the body of which he had been speaker was beneath his deserts and his dignity and that Joe Blackburn must resign from the senate and give him a seat in that body to wage war against Cleveland. Joe refused and the whole thing fell through. That is chapter three.

And such is the rot that one hears in hotel lobbies, senate and house cloakrooms and congressional committee rooms in this town.

In the first place Carlisle was opposed to 16 to 1, and never said a word in public or private in behalf of that policy. He had made one speech on the subject and that was ruthlessly and knavishly garbled, a rascality that has caused the voter of average intelligence and sincerity to believe that Carlisle was a renegade on that subject.

• • •

In the second place Carlisle was in perfect and exact accord with Mr. Cleveland on the coinage question and never thought of resigning his place in the cabinet. In the third place there was no meeting of the Kentucky delegation for the purpose suggested and Asher G. Caruth would not have resigned his seat for Carlisle or for Henry Clay himself. In the fourth place Joe Blackburn would not willingly have surrendered his seat to the Apostle Paul or the Angle Gabriel, and Carlisle knew it.

The last time I saw Asher Caruth he said it was a lie out of the whole cloth, and I am satisfied that had there been any foundation for it I was in a position to have heard of it at the time.

At one time, when the silver question was first agitated, Mr. Carlisle favored the coinage at the market ratio, which was then about 20 to 1, but when his luminous mind was turned to a study of the subject he soon saw that it was impossible to sustain the free coinage at any fixed ratio. Soon after he made that discovery he became speaker, and during the six years he held that office he never allowed a silver bill to come before the house. That fact of itself is enough to show where he stood on the subject.

• • •

It is a great pity that Carlisle was not endowed with the aggressive character of Samuel J. Randall, or Thomas B. Reed. It would have made him the militant as well as the intellectual leader of his party, and he would have been president; but he hated turmoil; he hated contention; he hated babbling. In the realm of pure intellect he was the greatest American since Calhoun and he was blessed with mental as well as moral integrity. He would no more have gained a point in law or politics on false pretense than he would have picked a pocket or forged a note.

Just as the congressional caucus gave way to the national convention for the nomination of party tickets for president and vice president the convention must give way to the nation-wide primary for that purpose. And that too, will be defective and prove unsatisfactory unless every state shall enact a law making it a misdemeanor for the citizen to fail to vote without such an excuse as would exonerate him for failure to obey a summons to testify as a witness in a cause in a court of justice.

The day of the vulgar boss is passing, and this year affords him his last opportunity to manipulate a convention called to represent a great party. And the "dark horse" will vanish with the convention. We will have no more Pierces or Hayeses in the White House. The pick of each and every party will be named, if all the people vote. But it must not be a "soap box" primary. It must be regular and legal and should be held in every state the same day. Besides, no candidate for state office should be selected that day, and no state election held that day.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 200 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

NAMING STREETS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A short time ago I noticed in your news columns an item to the effect that the board of public works has been planning for ten years to put up signs at the corners of streets indicating their names or numbers, but that procrastination has been truly the thief of time in this case. To the rest of you who are well acquainted with Duluth and its various streets such signs may not be necessary, so I must speak for myself and will also presume to speak for others, who, like myself, are comparative strangers here. I am a new-comer, have settled here and expect to remain, for I like the city and believe in its future.

But I don't like to have to go it blind when I want to find some place or other outside of the central part of the city. Only a few days ago I wasted the better part of an hour and a half looking for a street in the upper east end of the city and found that I had been within two squares of it several times in my search. But none of the householders whom I asked, even in that proximity to it, knew its location. The street car conductor did not know, for he directed me wrongly.

I think that the board of public works owes it as a part of its duty to the citizens to indicate these streets, and it would not be amiss for the Commercial club or the city council to issue small books such as are issued in other cities, telling how to reach these streets. Such books would be an accommodation to residents and visitors alike.

In Superior, our neighbor across the bay, the names of streets and avenues are stamped in the cement walks at all corners and it is a comparatively easy matter to find one's way even though Duluth has the advantage of having its streets numbered instead of named for the most part.

I write this not only as a "kick," but as a suggestion and believe that the city council should see to it that the board of public works does not forget it any longer.

Cocaine Fiends.

Dr. W. A. Evans in Chicago Tribune: There is no excuse for the cocaine habit. Cocaine has no place in medicine and a limited place in surgery. Any discomfort relieved by cocaine will be worse in three hours than it was before cocaine was used. When a team is laboriously dragging a wagon uphill, from time to time the driver will "scotch the wheel" to give his team a chance to catch their wind. Some medicines "scotch the wheel" to give nature a little resting spell. Not so cocaine. Any man who uses cocaine to relieve any discomfort or allows it in any proprietary or patent remedy used by him or allows any doctor to use it on him is just an every-day fool. A surgeon may use it to remove a cinder, or to operate on an eye or nose, but that is no reason why a patient should use it or allow it to be medically used. The only excuse for the cocaine habit that has any standing is that the subject is a neurotic and if he does not do one half crazy thing he will do another. Developed "coke" fiends are willing enough to admit this as the reason for their habit, but no potential "coke" fiend would care to offer it as a reason for taking the drug.

There is more deliberation, even what we might call malicious intent, or weak, wabbly, neurasthenic decision about cocaine addiction than there is about opium or alcohol use.

Many take opium because they have not the grit to stand pain, and they fail to recognize where they are going. Most cocaine fiends know well enough where they are headed for, or think they do, but their miserable, poor working minds tell them it is better to fly the ills they have and take what comes.

The cocaine fiend, when in his drug, is able to forget, and that is about all that can be said in its favor. There is none of the grandeur of alcoholism or the dreams of morphinism or the fantasies of hasheeshism. No literature or anything else has ever been produced by the "coke" in his drug. He is negative, that's all. Deprived of his drug he is as free from conception of rights of property and morality as is the opium fiend and nearly as free from conception of right of life as is the man suffering from acute alcoholism.

Therefore, whether you look on the one side or the other, the "coke" addict does not present an attractive picture.

We quoted Dr. Crothers yesterday as saying that one-third of the opium is used for legitimate purposes. Not one-thirtieth of one-third of the cocaine is so used.

What can be gained by warning against the careless use of cocaine is small, as compared with the use of morphine. Nevertheless, some people get the habit through that same carelessness. Asthmatics and hay-fever sufferers are in some danger. Snuffs, sprays, and cures sometimes contain cocaine. Occasionally a physician will prescribe it.

Again—no circumstances warrant the medical use of cocaine. Its surgical use is never warranted, except for a definite operative procedure.

The Lesson of the Water Mill.

Listen to the water mill
Through the livelong day,
How the clicking of the wheel
Wears the hours away!
Languidly the autumn wind
Stirs the forest leaves;
From the field the reapers sing,
Binding up the sheaves,
And a proverb haunts my mind,
As a dream is cast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Autumn winds revive no more
Leaves that once are shed,
And the sickle cannot reap
Corn once gathered.
Flows the ruffled streamlet on,
Tranquil, deep and still,
Never gliding back again,
To the water mill;
Truly speaks that proverb old,
With a meaning vast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Take the lesson to thyself,
True and loving heart;
Golden youth is fleeting by,
Summer hours depart.
Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day,
Time will never bring thee back
Chances swept away!
Leave no tender word unsaid
Love while love shall last—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Work while yet the daylight shines,
Man of strength and will!
Never does the streamlet glide
Useless by the mill;
Wait not until tomorrow's sun
Beams upon thy way,
All that thou canst call thine own
Lies in thy "today."
Power, and intellect, and health
May not always last—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

O the wasted hours of life
That have drifted by!
O the good that might have been
Lost without a sigh!
Love that we might once have saved
By a single word,
Thoughts conceived, but never penned,
Perishing unheard;
Take the proverb to thine heart,
Take and hold it fast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Well, What of It.

Kansas City Star: In Chicago last week, and in Baltimore later, an interesting feature of the conventions has been the directness of speech toward the organization politicians. At Chicago the delegates did not hesitate to apply some rather pointed remarks to Murray Crane, William Barnes, Senator Penrose and other bosses.

At Baltimore the Murphys and the Ryans and the Taggarts are hearing some unpleasant things. But all these leaders appear not to resent the terms applied to their political methods. Which recalls a Kansas story.

Out in that state a few years ago a citizen met a candidate for office.

"Judge," he said, "I understand that you are running for office again?"

"Well, what of it?" asked the candidate.

"Only this. You told me two years ago that if I would not be a candidate against you for the nomination you would not run this year, but would throw all your support to me."

"Well, what if I did?" asked the candidate again.

"Why, you are a liar, that's what," exclaimed the indignant citizen.

"Well, what if I am?" asked the candidate, surprised that his friend should show so much feeling over a small matter of that kind.

A Great Help.

Atchison Globe: Hard work probably will help you more than the recall or pink pills.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

•••The city council at West Superior last night accepted the invitation of Duluth to participate in the Fourth of July celebration in this city and a committee of seven Superior aldermen will ride in the procession here, along with the Duluth aldermen.

•••The Trades and Labor assembly has elected the following officers: President, James McDowell of the Typographical union; vice president, M. Stein; recording secretary, J. Reichart; corresponding secretary, Harry Mason; financial secretary, L. K. McChesney; sergeant-at-arms, T. Weber; trustees, R. Rechter, M. Griffin and A. C. Bevers.

•••A Port Arthur dispatch says that some Minnesota capitalists have signed a contract with the Port Arthur, Duluth & Western Railway company, which has been ratified by the board as directors, to mine 100,000 tons of ore a year for ten years, a total of 1,000,000 tons. The mines from which this ore are to be taken are situated in Minnesota, about four miles south of Gunflint lake, the terminus of the Port Arthur & Duluth railway. The arrangement provides for the building of the four miles of road before Oct. 1.

•••The Superior city council has unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the building of a bridge between Conner's and Rice's points. It was claimed that a bridge would materially injure the shipping interests of Superior and that there is no necessity for such a bridge.

•••David Burbank, who is attending the state university, returned yesterday to spend the summer vacation at home.

•••Peter A. Vold and Anna M. Jensen have taken out a marriage license.

•••Some of the alderment and other citizens are agitating the question of building a new city hall on the site procured for an armory and market hall at First street and Second avenue east, but the idea which meets most favor is to wait a few years and combine with the county and erect a city hall and courthouse.

EXTRA SESSION BOUQUETS.

Even "Granny" Is Pleased.

Anoka Union: The extra session legislature was better than the regular inasmuch as it passed needed bills.

One Serious Omission.

Brainerd Dispatch: It is suggested that short sessions of the legislature be held in the future. Members could be elected now and be called together as necessity demanded by the governor. The recent session has been the cause of many suggestions along that line, and the good record along the line of legislation, as far as they went, has indicated that a special session is productive of more good in a very much shorter time than the long-drawn-out regular affair. Reapportionment at their hands would have cinched the matter.

Session Justified.

Preston Times: The passage of a railroad gross earnings bill increasing the rate of taxation from 4 to 5 per cent will alone justify the calling of the recent extra session of the legislature. And that gross earnings increase is a tangible benefit, especially if some means can be discovered by which the railroads can be prevented from recouping themselves from the pockets of the shippers. 5 per cent tax on railroads looks good and is more in keeping with what the rest of us must pay.

Perhaps He Forgot.

Cambridge North Star: The governor included neither in his message convening the legislature nor in his comment at the close of the special session anything concerning the investigation of the brewery in Minnesota business and politics, yet nothing accomplished, even the raising of the railroad tax (also overlooked by the governor), will be of more benefit to the people than the work which this committee will do.

Good Work.

Stillwater Gazette: The special session of the legislature of Minnesota has adjourned and the members have returned home. This is the same body of men who were roasted because they didn't do certain things that some people thought they should. The special session is entitled to credit for its acts. They passed a primary law, a corrupt practices law, ratified the income tax and direct vote on senators amendment to the Federal Constitution, and a law providing for an increase of the railway gross earnings tax rate from 4 to 5 per cent. They refused to pass the reapportionment bill, but this will come at the next regular session of the legislature. Taken as a whole, the members are entitled to much credit for their actions and the short time in session.

Legislative Revolution.

St. Peter Free Press: It is greatly to the credit of the extra session of the legislature just adjourned that it did its work with precision and at the same time passed practically every bill of immediate importance presented for consideration. The session only lasted thirteen days, but the work accomplished almost revolutionizes our present systems.

Needed Investigation.

Holt Northern Light: One of the important items of business done at the special session of the legislature was the appointing of a senate committee to investigate conditions as to brewery interests in saloons and blind pigs. A careful investigation by that committee will undoubtedly bring good results at the next regular session.

Literal Bill.

Imagination is a trait
Of which we see perhaps too much
In statesmen who prognosticate
On pre-convention votes and such—
And yet man needs at least a trace
As something of a saving grace.

Bill was a literal minded cuss,
A puncher on Ranch Double K:
A handy fellow in a muss,
But literal as—as—why, say,
He had no more imagination
Than long horns have of education.

They gave a ball—the Frazers did:
Bill and the other boys were there:
No one in Lone Tree passed his bid,
And each was decked to kill with care.
Old Frazer had a buxom daughter
And her black eyes marked Bill for slaughter.

They had a dance, the "bronco dip."
Miss Frazer said as up she slid
"The light fantastic shall we trip?"
And very promptly William did—
Tripped over skirts and feet and chairs.
They had to stop things for repairs.

. girl, a twinkle in her eyes,
Said: "Mr. William, you look hot:
But come, shoot folly as it flies."
And Bill of course he up and shot.
They had to start a cemetery!
Imagination's necessary.

Tricks of the Ku Klux Klan.

From "The Ku Klux Klan, Its Origin, Growth and Disbandment," by J. C. Lester and D. L. Wilson: The Klan had a large membership; it exerted a vast, terrifying and wholesome power; but its influence was never at any time dependent upon or proportioned to its membership. It was in the mystery in which the comparative few shrouded themselves.

One or two illustrations may here be given of the methods resorted to to play upon the superstitious fears of the negroes and others. At the parade in Pulaski, while the procession was passing a corner on which a negro man was standing, a tall horseman in hideous garb turned aside from the line, dismounted and stretched out his bridle rein toward the negro. Not darting to refuse, the frightened African extended his hand to grasp the rein. As he did so the Ku Klux took his own head from his shoulders and offered to place that also in the outstretched hand. The negro stood not upon the order of his going, but departed with a yell of terror. To this day he will tell you: "He done it, suah, boss. I seed him do it." The gown was fastened by a drawstring over the top of the wearer's head. Over this was worn an artificial skull made of a large gourd or of pasteboard. This, with the hat, could be readily removed, and the man would then appear to be headless. Such tricks gave rise to the belief—still prevalent among the negroes—that the Ku Klux could take themselves all to pieces whenever they wanted to.

A trick of frequent perpetration in the country was for a horseman, spectral and ghastly looking, to stop before the cabin of some negro needing a wholesome impression and call for a bucket of water. If a dipper or gourd was brought it was declined, and the bucket full of water demanded. As it consumed by a raging thirst, the horseman grasped it and pressed it to his lips. He held it there until every drop of water was poured into a gum or oiled sack concealed beneath the Ku Klux robe. Then the empty bucket was returned to the amazed negro with the remark: "That's good. It's the first drink of water I've had since I was killed at Shiloh."

Morality and the Shop Girl.

Herbert Kaufman, in Woman's World: As a body, self-supporting women are wholesome and decent. In every walk of life, a certain proportion of humans are weak and wayward. Sin finds willing listeners throughout the entire social range, and while shops and factories and offices contribute their pro rata share of wantons, when one considers the privations, the hungers, the denials which they suffer—the hardships they endure—the drab, monotonous lives they live—it is a splendid tribute to the integrity of the sex that so few working girls go wrong.

The well-intentioned persons who continually babble about the pitfalls that lie in their paths, overlook the very important fact that idleness is the root of most trouble, and that busy people find least time for temptation.

Women who drag their aching bodies out of bed in the chill gray dawn, keep busy until dusk, and reach home after ten hours of constant activity, are so fagged that the Gay White Way can offer few attractions equal to the Cool White Sheet.

Making a Mockery of Their Principles.

Cleveland Leader: Certain La Follette delegates refused in the first test of strength between the Progressives and the Taft forces to join the vast majority of the advanced Republicans in the convention in supporting Governor McGovern of Wisconsin for temporary chairman. They would not vote for one of their own men.

This is "independence" run mad. It is the middle-of-the-road policy which Senator La Follette has boasted would be his attitude in respect to the Roosevelt-Taft struggle, carried to absurd lengths. It is worse than absurd because it is calculated to defeat the objects of the whole Progressive element in the convention.

The kind of isolated, stiff-backed independence which will make no compromises, arrange no combinations for the good of the cause, yield nothing and gain nothing from any source which does not imply complete surrender to the men who insist upon getting all and conceding nothing, implies the good sense or the good intentions of those who think they display courage and devotion to principles. Sometimes it is taken as evidence that they cannot deal with practical affairs in a practical way. And sometimes it leads to natural doubts of the motives which cause their folly.

Why Time Tables Change.

Bloomington Pantagraph: Why do railroads change their time cards twice a year? The solution is easy. Here it is: During the summer season the heat expands the rails, making the mileage greater and thereby necessitating the lengthening of the train schedule so that the proper connections may be made and the trains arrive on time. During the winter season the cold acts vice versa, shortening the mileage so that the operating department must shorten the schedule. It might be added that these changes are made for the benefit of all concerned.

The Childless Apartment.

St. Louis Republic: Bliffkins and his wife live in one of these fashionable, childless houses. The visiting friend speaks:

"Say, what became of that pretty bull terrier you used to have around to keep Mrs. Bliffkins company during the day?"

"The management wouldn't stand for it, so we gave him away. We ventured a canary, but they kicked on that. I suggested some gold fish, but Mrs. Bliffkins said they reminded her of swimming snakes."

"How'd you finally agree?"

"Excellently. I bought her one of these Mexican jumping beans. It's cute as it can be. Say, Clara, get our little Pedro and make him do some of his stunts."

Nothing Like Home Cooking.

Oliver Wendell Holmes: Don't talk to me about taverns! There is just one genuine, clean, decent, palatable thing occasionally to be had in them—namely, a boiled egg. The soups taste pretty good sometimes, but their sources are involved in a darker mystery than that of the Nile. Omelettes taste as if they had been carried in the waiter's hat, or fried in an old boot. I ordered scrambled eggs one day. It must be that they had been scrambled for by somebody, but who—who in the possession of sound reason could have scrambled for what I had set before me under that name? Butter! I am wondering why the taverns always keep it until it is old. Fool that I am! As if the taverns did not know that if it was good it would be eaten, which is not what they want. Then the waiters, with their napkins—what don't they do with those napkins! Mention any one thing of which you think you can say with truth, "That they do not do."

Every six months a tavern should burn to the ground, with all its traps, its "properties," its beds and pots and kettles and start afresh from its ashes like John John Phoenix-Squibob.

No; give me home, or a home like mine, where all is clean and sweet, where coffee has pre-existed in the berry and tea has still faint recollections of the pigtails that dangled about the plant from which it was picked, where butter has not the prevailing character which Pope assigned to Denham, where soup could look you in the face if it had "eyes" (which it has not), and where the comely Anne or the gracious Margaret takes the place of these napkin bearing animals.

THE RECORD NOT BROKEN---YET.

The prolonged and stubborn contest of ballots at Baltimore has not yet broken the record.

The Democratic party holds the record, made in 1860, and there is little danger that it will soon be broken by either party. This is true both as to the number of ballots and the length of the convention.

The Democrats, shattered by the issues of impending war, met in convention at Charleston, S. C., April 23, 1860. After being in session for ten days, and taking fifty-seven ballots without making a nomination, the convention adjourned to meet at Baltimore June 18. There two more ballots were taken, and on the second —the fifty-ninth including the Charleston ballots—Stephen A. Douglas, who had led throughout the Charleston convention, was declared the nominee.

This was made possible, however, only by two successive splits. After the adoption of a platform at Charleston many of the delegates withdrew from the convention, and after an organization was perfected at Baltimore most of the remaining Southern delegates also bolted. In the Charleston convention there were 303 votes, and 202 were necessary for a choice. Douglas went from 145 on the first ballot to 151 on the fifty-seventh. On the second Baltimore ballot, the fifty-ninth in all, he got 181 votes, enough to nominate in that convention but twenty-one votes less than would have been necessary had the convention held together.

The Democrats took forty-nine ballots at Baltimore June 1 to 6, 1852, nominating Franklin Pierce, who had not been voted for at all up to the fortieth ballot. In the same year the Whigs took fifty-three ballots, also at Baltimore, to nominate Winfield Scott. This convention, however, lasted only three days.

This constant association of Baltimore conventions with long contests isn't particularly encouraging as to the outlook at Baltimore.

The Republicans haven't been bothered much with such stubborn contests. The single exception was the 1880 convention, held at Chicago, where the Grant third-term movement was so strong that it took thirty-six ballots to break it by the nomination of James A. Garfield. Grant started in with 304 votes, 383 being necessary to make a choice. He reached 313 votes on the thirty-fifth ballot, and fell off only seven votes on the final ballot which nominated Garfield. In the early balloting, in fact until near the close, James G. Blaine was his leading opponent, getting 284 votes on the first ballot and slowly dropping to 257 on the thirty-fifth. On the final ballot he got but forty-two votes. John Sherman held just below a hundred votes until near the finish, and there were scattering votes, stubbornly held together, for George F. Edmunds of Vermont; E. B. Washburne of Illinois, and William Windom of Minnesota.

Garfield did not appear in the voting list until the second ballot, when he got ten votes, which number dropped to one on the twentieth ballot, rose to seventeen on the thirty-fourth, to fifty on the thirty-fifth and to 399, sixteen more than he needed for nomination, on the thirty-sixth.

There have been no long contests since 1880. In 1884 it took two ballots to make Cleveland the Democratic candidate, and four to nominate Blaine. In 1888 Cleveland was renominated unanimously, and Harrison was nominated on the eighth ballot. In 1892 Cleveland was renominated on the first ballot, and Harrison's nomination was equally easy, though neither was unanimous. In 1896 Bryan's nomination came on the fifth ballot, and McKinley's on the first. In 1900 both Bryan and McKinley were renominated unanimously on the first ballot. In 1904 Parker won the nomination on the first ballot, and Roosevelt's nomination was unanimous on the first ballot. In 1908 Bryan and Taft were both nominated on the first ballot, neither nomination being unanimous.

True to First Principles.

The Taft party proposes to have a ticket that will cover "every office from president down to school superintendent in each district." That's getting pretty close to the scene of the original application of the big stick.

DULUTH'S SCHOOL ELECTION.

Saturday, July 20, Duluth's annual school election will be held, when three directors will be named to succeed the three whose terms are about to expire.

All three of these directors—Frank A. Brewer, Dr. S. H. Boyer and D. E. Stevens—are candidates for re-election. Nothing has been said against the record of any of these men, and there is very much that can be said to their credit.

Two other candidates, Anton Ringsred and L. A. Larson, have entered the field. Both are good citizens, and both have friends who will stoutly support them.

These two sets of candidates, Capt. Stevens being in both, have arrayed themselves on two oposing tickets.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will spare enough time from the more exciting national contest to consider these tickets and to vote at the school election.

As this election is open to every woman of voting age, it is to be hoped that the women of the city will take this chance of showing that they appreciate the ballot and would like more of it.

The issues dividing the two tickets are rather vague. On the whole the "in" ticket seems to base its campaign on a liberal use of the public school buildings for social, educational and other uses outside of school hours, and two of its candidates, Dr. Boyer and Mr. Brewer, believe that it is better to allow regulated dancing in the public schools than to drive the young people to seek their pleasure in other and far more questionable places. The "out" ticket is opposed to going this far, though it seems to favor a limited use of the public school plant for public purposes outside of school hours.

The details of the issues the candidates themselves are making known and they have already projected ginger enough into the campaign to make it not impossible that a really creditable vote will be cast at the election.

There ought to be something like 20,000 votes cast at this election, and seldom are more than a thousand votes recorded.

The best interests of the public schools and the community in general should determine all the issues raised, and the individual candidates themselves should be taken into account only as their personal and professional and business records show them fitted or unfitted to handle the vastly important business which will be entrusted to the care of those who are elected.

A school election seldom is exciting, and therefore it cannot be expected to draw so many votes as a city, county, state or national contest, even though the number of potential voters is doubled by the fact that the school election is open to women voters.

It is to be hoped that every citizen, man or woman, who wishes the public schools to serve their purposes best, and who realizes the importance of having a soundly governed school district, will participate in the election which will be held two weeks from Saturday.

Not Harmless Yet.

Mr. Bryan may have done a great thing when he clipped the tail off the Ryan cat, but who ever heard of a cat that had any particular use for her tail when she wanted to scratch?

DEATH IN THE AIR.

The sport of aviation took eight more lives tragically within the past twenty-four hours. Last night Harriet Quimby, the fourth woman aviator to be killed, was plunged to death with a man passenger when her monoplane pitched them out. This morning Melvin Vaniman and four associates met a terrible death when the balloon Akron, in which Vaniman planned to cross the Atlantic, exploded a thousand feet in the air and burned them all.

The sport continues to be one more fitted for daredevils than for ordinary human beings. Less and less does it tempt those who value life more than excitement. This year it has produced forty-six fatalities, compared with seventy-three during all of 1911—and 1912 is still young.

Yet Wilbur Wright, the pioneer of them all, died quietly in his bed, of prosaic typhoid.

An Unsolved Problem.

Canada's last census shows that the Dominion contains 2,369,160 unmarried men and only 1,941,511 unmarried women, but it falls to explain whether the condition is due to the bashfulness of the men or the tempers of their potential mates.

A FIGHT FOR PRINCIPLE.

It is small wonder, on the seventh day of the Baltimore convention, that the delegates are in a raspish condition with nerves raw and tempers keen-edged. It's been a long, hard struggle, drawing heavily upon resources of strength, balance and good humor.

Only a fight for principle could so prolong itself. The Wilson forces, backed by Bryan, are fighting to make the Democratic party the unmistakably progressive party, and the field is united behind Clark and Underwood to make it either conservative or only half-way progressive. The outcome of such a fight no man can predict.

When a journment came at midnight, forty-two ballots had been taken—six more than the Republican record and only seventeen less than the Democratic record of 1860, which is the highest in the history of national conventions, dating back to 1832.

Chance to Get Famous.

Now that Judge Morris has declined an Indian, he might turn his attention to the more immediate question and give us a definition of "Republican."

BETTER PAY FOR STREET CAR MEN.

The car employes of the Duluth Street Railway company yesterday were conceded an increase in their wages ranging from five per cent to twelve per cent, according to the length of service.

The Herald is very glad indeed to hear of this. These men deserve the increase, and we are glad they didn't have to muss things up by fighting for it. It's much better all around when such things can be done peaceably, as they can be whenever employers give reasonable consideration to the human needs of their employes.

Though employed and paid by a private corporation, the street car men are public servants, and the public uses their services much more than it uses those of any other class of public or quasi-public servants. Much depends on their capacity and contentment, and this in turn depends largely on how their employers treat them.

The increase was deserved, and it is going to make the feeling better all around that it has been granted.

Something Overlooked.

DANCING AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Speaking of the issue of dancing in the public schools, which has been raised in the school election campaign, it is refreshing to find the following in R. Fulton Cutting's reverent and public-spirited book on "The Church and Society," just published:

"It is interesting to note that in Milwaukee St. James's church has determined to combat the dance hall evil, to which the city authorities attribute the ruin of thousands of Milwaukee girls each year, by the opening of a free dancing school for the children of the parish. The authorities of this church believe that children who learn to dance properly, and have a good environment for their amusement, will not later on frequent questionable halls. This has long been the experience of St. George's church, New York."

Why should there be any hesitation about the legality of taxing tycoines when for years we've been paying taxes on cut-goes every time we bought a tariff-protected article?

AN OLD SLANDER

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over in Baltimore the other day I saw a statesman around the headquarters of one of the candidates, who is regarded as a great campaigner. Intellectually, he is a little below the dead level of mediocrity, but he has the gift of gab, as they call it, and there be those who would set him down as a capital orator on the stump. He served a single term in congress some twenty years ago and there earned a rather cheap repute for parliamentary talents. He is in demand when a campaign is in progress, he speaks "loud and long," has lungs and fluency, yet he never conveyed an idea to your mind, never changed a vote. But those folk have their value. They split the ears of the groundlings and arouse and rally the rabble for the battle of the ballots.

This chap has imagination, but it is without adequate ballast, and he fancies vain things, for I want to be polite enough to avoid the "short and ugly." Like many a far greater man our friend has told the following story until he actually believes it, though it is nothing but envy discharging the shaft of detraction at a shining mark. How prone the vulgar are to bust on imaginings of the weaknesses of the great! It tends to associate the garbage receptacle with the celestial bed.

Here is the story as this man loves to relate it to the simple and the credulous: John G. Carlisle entered Cleveland's cabinet in 1893 as secretary of the treasury a strong silver man, an advocate of 16 to 1. Cleveland would not hear to it when the panic came and directed the secretary to redeem the paper obligations of the government in gold. That is chapter one.

Carlisle revolted and resolved to resign and head the silver movement. Had he done so Bryan would never have been heard of. A meeting of the Kentucky delegation in congress was held and it was agreed that Asher G. Caruth of the Louisville district should resign his seat in congress, to which Carlisle was to be elected, in order to lead the opposition to the Democratic administration in congress. That is chapter two.

Report was made to Carlisle and it was all right. The bomb was ready for explosion, but Carlisle slept on it, and the next morning let the delegation know that a seat in the body of which he had been speaker was beneath his deserts and his dignity and that Joe Blackburn must resign from the senate and give him a seat in that body to wage war against Cleveland. Joe refused and the whole thing fell through. That is chapter three.

And such is the rot that one hears in hotel lobbies, senate and house cloakrooms and congressional committee rooms in this town.

In the first place Carlisle was opposed to 16 to 1, and never said a word in public or private in behalf of that policy. He had made one speech on the subject and that was ruthlessly and knavishly garbled, a rascality that has caused the voter of average intelligence and sincerity to believe that Carlisle was a renegade on that subject.

* * *

In the second place Carlisle was in perfect and exact accord with Mr. Cleveland on the coinage question and never thought of resigning his place in the cabinet. In the third place there was no meeting of the Kentucky delegation for the purpose suggested and Asher G. Caruth would not have resigned his seat for Carlisle or for Henry Clay himself. In the fourth place Joe Blackburn would not willingly have surrendered his seat to the Apostle Paul or the Angle Gabriel, and Carlisle knew it.

The last time I saw Asher Caruth he said it was a lie out of the whole cloth, and I am satisfied that had there been any foundation for it I was in a position to have heard of it at the time.

At one time, when the silver question was first agitated, Mr. Carlisle favored the coinage at the market ratio, which was then about 20 to 1, but when his luminous mind was turned to a study of the subject he soon saw that it was impossible to sustain the free coinage at any fixed ratio. Soon after he made that discovery he became speaker, and during the six years he held that office he never allowed a silver bill to come before the house. That fact of itself is enough to show where he stood on the subject.

* * *

It is a great pity that Carlisle was not endowed with the aggressive character of Samuel J. Randall, or Thomas B. Reed. It would have made him the militant as well as the intellectual leader of his party, and he would have been president, but he hated turmoil; he hated contention; he hated babbling. In the realm of pure intellect he was the greatest American since Calhoun and he was blessed with mental as well as moral integrity. He would no more have gained a point in law or politics on false pretense than he would have picked a pocket or forged a note.

Just as the congressional caucus gave way to the national convention for the nomination of party tickets for president and vice president the convention must give way to the nation-wide primary for that purpose. And that too, will be defective and prove unsatisfactory unless every state shall enact a law making it a misdemeanor for the citizen to fail to vote without such an excuse as would exonerate him for failure to obey a summons to testify as a witness in a cause in a court of justice.

The day of the vulgar boss is passing, and this year affords him his last opportunity to manipulate a convention called to represent a great party. And the "dark horse" will vanish with the convention. We will have no more Pierces or Hayes in the White House. The pick of each and every party will be named, if all the people vote. But it must not be a "soap box" primary. It must be regular and legal and should be held in every state the same day. Besides, no candidate for state office should be selected that day, and no state election held that day.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 200 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

NAMING STREETS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A short time ago I noticed in your news columns an item to the effect that the board of public works has been planning for ten years to put up signs at the corners of streets indicating their names or numbers, but that procrastination has been truly the thief of time in this case. To the rest of you who have well acquainted with Duluth and its various streets such signs may not be necessary, so I must speak for myself and will also presume to speak for others, who, like myself, are comparative strangers here. I am a new-comer, have settled here and expect to remain, for I like the city and believe in its future.

But I don't like to have to go it blind when I want to find some place or other outside of the central part of the city. Only a few days ago I wasted the better part of an hour and a half looking for a street in the upper east end of the city and found that I had been within two squares of it several times in my search. But none of the householders whom I asked, even in that proximity to it, knew its location. The street car conductor did not know, for he directed me wrongly.

I think that the board of public works owes it as a part of its duty to the citizens to indicate these streets, and it would not be amiss for the Commercial club or the city council to issue small books such as are issued in other cities, telling how to reach these streets. Such books would be an accommodation to residents and visitors alike.

In Superior, our neighbor across the bay, the names of streets and avenues are stamped in the cement walks at all corners and it is a comparatively easy matter to find one's way even though Duluth has the advantage of having its streets numbered instead of named for the most part.

I write this not only as a "kick," but as a suggestion and believe that the city council should see to it that the board of public works does not forget it any longer.

Cocaine Fiends.

Dr. W. A. Evans in Chicago Tribune: There is no excuse for the cocaine habit. Cocaine has no place in medicine and a limited place in surgery. Any discomfort relieved by cocaine will be worse in three hours than it was before cocaine was used. When a team is laboriously dragging a wagon uphill, from time to time the driver will "scotch the wheel" to give his team a chance to catch their wind. Some medicines "scatch the wheel" to give nature a little resting spell. Not so cocaine.

Any man who uses cocaine to relieve any discomfort or allows it in any proprietary or patent remedy used by him or allows any doctor to use it on him is just an every-day fool. A surgeon may use it to remove a cinder or to operate on an eye or nose, but that is no reason why a patient should use it or allow it to be medically used. The only excuse for the cocaine habit that has any standing is that the subject is a neurotic and if he does not do one half crazy thing he will do another. Developed "coke" fiends are willing enough to admit this as the reason for their habit, but no potential "coke" fiend would care to offer it as a reason for taking the drug.

There is more deliberation, even what we might call malicious intent, or weak, wabbly, neurasthenic decision about cocaine addiction than there is about opium or alcohol use.

Many take opium because they have not the grit to stand pain, and they fail to recognize where they are going. Most cocaine fiends know well enough where they are headed for, or think they do, but their miserable, poor working minds tell them it is better to fly the ills they have and take what comes.

The cocaine fiend, when in his drug, is able to forget, and that is about all that can be said in its favor. There is none of the grandeur of alcoholism or the dreams of morphinism or the fantasies of hasheeshism. No literature or anything else has ever been produced by the "coke" in his drug. He is negative, that's all. Deprived of his drug he is as free from conception of rights of property and morality as is the opium fiend and nearly as free from conception of right of life as is the man suffering from acute alcoholism.

We quoted Dr. Crothers yesterday as saying that one-third of the opium is used for legitimate purposes. Not one-thirtieth of one-third of the cocaine is so used.

What can be gained by warning against the careless use of cocaine is small, as compared with the use of morphine. Nevertheless, some people get the habit through carelessness. Asthmatics and hay fever sufferers are in some danger. Snuffs, sprays, and cures sometimes contain coadine. Occasionally a physician will prescribe it. Again—no circumstances warrant the medical use of cocaine. Its surgical use is never warranted, except for a definite operative procedure.

The Lesson of the Water Mill.

Listen to the water mill
Through the livelong day,
How the clicking of the wheel
Wears the hours away!
Languidly the autumn wind
Stirs the forest leaves;
From the field the reapers sing,
Binding up the sheaves,
And a proverb haunts my mind,
As a dream is cast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Autumn winds revive no more
Leaves that once are shed,
And the sickle cannot reap
Corn once gathered.
Flows the rustled streamlet on,
Tranquil, deep and still,
Never gilding back again,
To the water mill;
Truly speaks that proverb old,
With a meaning vast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Take the lesson to thyself,
True and loving heart;
Golden youth is fleeting by,
Summer hours depart.
Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day,
Time will never bring thee back
Chances swept away!
Leave no tender word unsaid
Love while love shall last—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

Work while yet the daylight shines,
Man of strength and will!
Never does the streamlet glide
Useless by the mill;
Wait not until tomorrow's sun
Beams upon thy way,
All that thou canst call thine own
Lies in thy "today."
Power, and intellect, and health
May not always last—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."

O the wasted hours of life
That have drifted by!
O the good that might have been
Lost without a sigh!
Love that we might once have saved
By a single word,
Thoughts conceived, but never penned,
Perishing unheard:
Take the proverb to thine heart,
Take and hold it fast—
"The mill cannot grind
With water that is passed."
—Miss Sarah Doudney.

Well, What of It.

Kansas City Star: In Chicago last week, and in Baltimore later, an interesting feature of the conventions has been the directness of speech toward the organization politicians. At Chicago the delegates did not hesitate to apply some rather pointed remarks to Murray Crane, William Barnes, Senator Penrose and other bosses.

At Baltimore the Murphys and the Ryans and the Taggarts are hearing some unpleasant things. But all these leaders appear not to resent the terms applied to their political methods. Which recalls a Kansas story.

Out in that state a few years ago a citizen met a candidate for office.

"Judge," he said, "I understand that you are running for office again?"

"Well, what of it?" asked the candidate.

"Only this. You told me two years ago that if I would not be a candidate against you for the nomination you would not run this year, but would throw all your support to me."

"Well, what if I did?" asked the candidate again.

"Why, you are a liar, that's what," exclaimed the indignant citizen.

"Well, what if I am?" asked the candidate, surprised that his friend should show so much feeling over a small matter of that kind.

A Great Help.

Atchison Globe: Hard work probably will help you more than the recall or pink pills.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The city council at West Superior last night accepted the invitation of Duluth to participate in the Fourth of July celebration in this city and a committee of seven Superior aldermen will ride in the procession here, along with the Duluth aldermen.

The Trades and Labor assembly has elected the following officers: President, James McDowell of the Typographical union; vice president, M. Stein; recording secretary, J. Reichart; corresponding secretary, Harry Mason; financial secretary, L. K. McChesney; sergeant-at-arms, T. Weber; trustee, R. Rechter, M. Griffin and A. C. Bevers.

A Port Arthur dispatch says that some Minnesota capitalists have signed a contract with the Port Arther, Duluth & Western Railway company, which has been ratified by the board as directors, to mine 100,000 tons of ore a year for ten years, a total of 1,000,000 tons. The mines from which this ore are to be taken are situated in Minnesota, about four miles south of Gunflint lake, the terminus of the Port Arthur & Duluth railway. The arrangement provides for the building of the four miles of road before Oct. 1.

The Superior city council has unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the building of a bridge between Conner's and Rice's points. It was claimed that a bridge would materially injure the shipping interests of Superior and that there is no necessity for such a bridge.

The Prohibition national convention has nominated Gen. John Bidwell of California for president and J. B. Cranfill of Texas for vice president.

Clarence Strohlman of the city engineer's office will spend July 4 in Jamestown, N. D.

David Burbank, who is attending the state university, returned yesterday to spend the summer vacation at home.

Peter A. Vold and Anna M. Jensen have taken out a marriage license.

Some of the aldermen and other citizens are agitating the question of building a new city hall on the site procured for an armory and market hall at First street and Second avenue east, but the idea which meets most favor is to wait a few years and combine with the county and erect a city hall and courthouse.

EXTRA SESSION BOUQUETS.

Even "Granny" Is Pleased.

Anoka Union: The extra session legislature was better than the regular inasmuch as it passed needed bills.

One Serious Omission.

Brainerd Dispatch: It is suggested that short sessions of the legislature be held in the future. Members could be elected now and be called together as necessity demanded by the governor. The recent session has been the cause of many suggestions along that line, and the good record along the line of legislation, as far as they went, has indicated that a special session is productive of more good in a very much shorter time than the long-drawn-out regular affair. Reapportionment at their hands would have cinched the matter.

Session Justified.

Preston Times: The passage of a railroad gross earnings bill increasing the rate of taxation from 4 to 5 per cent will alone justify the calling of the recent extra session of the legislature. And that gross earnings increase is a tangible benefit, especially if some means can be discovered by which the railroads can be prevented from recouping themselves from the pockets of the shippers. A 5 per cent tax on railroads looks good and is more in keeping with what the rest of us must pay.

Perhaps He Forgot.

Cambridge North Star: The governor included neither in his message convening the legislature nor in his comment at the close of the special session anything concerning the investigation of the brewery in Minnesota business and politics, yet nothing accomplished, even the raising of the railroad tax (also overlooked by the governor), will be of more benefit to the people than the work which this committee will do.

Good Work.

Stillwater Gazette: The special session of the legislature of Minnesota has adjourned and the members have returned home. This is the same body of men who were roasted because they didn't do certain things that some people thought they should. The special session is entitled to credit for its acts. They passed a primary law, a corrupt practices law, ratified the income tax and direct vote on senators amendment to the Federal Constitution, and a law providing for an increase of the railway gross earnings tax rate from 4 to 5 per cent. They refused to pass the reapportionment bill, but this will come at the next regular session of the legislature. Taken as a whole, the members are entitled to much credit for their actions and the short time in session.

Legislative Revolution.

St. Peter Free Press: It is greatly to the credit of the extra session of the legislature just adjourned that it did its work with precision and at the same time passed practically every bill of immediate importance presented for consideration. The session only lasted thirteen days, but the work accomplished will almost revolutionizes our present systems.

Needed Investigation.

Holt Northern Light: One of the important items of business done at the special session of the legislature was the appointing of a senate committee to investigate conditions as to brewery interests in saloons and blind pigs. A careful investigation by that committee will undoubtedly bring good results at the next regular session.

Literal Bill.

Imagination is a trait
Of which we see perhaps too much
In statesmen who prognosticate
On pre-convention votes and such—
And yet man needs at least a trace
As something of a saving grace.

Bill was a literal minded cuss,
A puncher on Ranch Double K:
A handy fellow in a muss,
But literal as—as—why, say,
He had no more imagination
Than long horns have of education.

They gave a ball—the Frazers did:
Bill and the other boys were there:
No one in Lone Tree passed his bid,
And each was decked to kill with care.
Old Frazer had a buxom daughter
And her black eyes marked Bill for slaughter.

They had a dance, the "bronco dip."
Miss Frazer said as up she slid
"The light fantastic shall we trip?"
And very promptly William did—
Tripped over skirts and feet and chairs.
They had to stop things for repairs.

A girl, a twinkle in her eyes,
Said: "Mr. William, you look hot:
But come, shoot folly as it flies."
And Bill of course he up and shot.
They had to start a cemetery:
Imagination's necessary.
—Maurice Morris in New York Sun.

Tricks of the Ku Klux Klan.

From "The Ku Klux Klan, Its Origin, Growth and Disbandment," by J. C. Lester and D. L. Wilson: The Klan had a large membership; it exerted a vast, terrifying and wholesome power; but its influence was never at any time dependent upon or proportioned to its membership. It was in the mystery in which the comparative few shrouded themselves.

One or two illustrations may here be given of the methods resorted to to play upon the superstitious fears of the negroes and others. At the parade in Pulaski, while the procession was passing a corner on which a negro man was standing, a tall horseman in hideous garb turned aside from the line, dismounted and stretched out his bridle rein toward the negro. Not daring to refuse, the frightened African extended his hand to grasp the rein. As he did so the Ku Klux took his own head from his shoulders and offered to place that also in the outstretched hand. The negro stood not upon the order of his going, but departed with a yell of terror. To this day he will tell you: "He done it, suah, boss. I seed him do it." The gown was fastened by a drawstring over the top of the wearer's head. Over this was worn an artificial skull made of a large gourd or of pasteboard. This, with the head that could be readily removed, and the man would then appear to be headless. Such tricks gave rise to the belief—still prevalent among the negroes—that the Ku Klux could take themselves all to pieces whenever they wanted to.

A trick of frequent perpetration in the country was for a horseman, spectral and ghastly looking, to stop before the cabin of some negro needing a wholesome impression and call for a bucket of water. If a dipper or gourd was brought it was declined, and the bucket full of water demanded. As if consumed by a raging thirst, the horseman grasped it and pressed it to his lips. He held it there until every drop of water was poured into a cunningly oiled sack concealed beneath the Ku Klux robe. Then the empty bucket was returned to the amazed negro with the remark: "That's good. It's the first drink of water I've had since I was killed at Shiloh."

Morality and the Shop Girl.

Herbert Kaufman, in Woman's World: As a body, self-supporting women are wholesome and decent. In every walk of life, a certain proportion of humans are weak and wayward. Sin finds willing listeners throughout the entire social range, and while shops and factories and offices contribute their pro rata share of wantons, when one considers the privations, the hungers, the denials which they suffer—the hardships they endure—the drab, monotonous lives they live—it is a splendid tribute to the integrity of the sex that so few working girls go wrong.

The well-intentioned persons who continually babble about the pitfalls that lie in their paths, overlook the very important fact that idleness is the root of most trouble, and that busy people find least time for temptation.

Women who drag their aching bodies out of bed in the chill gray dawn, keep busy until dusk, and reach home after ten hours of constant activity, are so fagged that the Gay White Way can offer few attractions equal to the Cool White Sheet.

Making a Mockery of Their Principles.

Cleveland Leader. Certain La Follette delegates refused in the first test of strength between the Progressives and the Taft forces to join the vast majority of the advanced Republicans in the convention in supporting Governor McGovern of Wisconsin for temporary chairman. They would not vote for one of their own men.

This is "independence" run mad. It is the middle-of-the-road policy which Senator La Follette has boasted would be his attitude in respect to the Roosevelt-Taft struggle, carried to absurd lengths. It is worse than absurd because it is calculated to defeat the objects of the whole Progressive element in the convention.

The kind of isolated, stiff-backed independence which will make no compromises, arrange no combinations for the good of the cause, yield nothing and gain nothing from any force which does not imply complete surrender to the men who insist upon getting all and conceding nothing, imperatives the good sense of the good intentions of those who think they display courage and devotion to principles. Sometimes it is taken as evidence that they cannot deal with practical affairs in a practical way. And sometimes it leads to natural doubts of the motives which cause their folly.

Why Time Tables Change.

Bloomington Bantagraph: Why do railroads change their time cards twice a year? The solution is easy. Here it is. During the summer season the heat expands the rails, making the mileage greater and thereby necessitating the lengthening of the train schedule so that the proper connections may be made and the trains arrive on time. During the winter season the cold acts vice versa, shortening the mileage so that the operating department must shorten the schedule. It might be added that these changes are made for the benefit of all concerned.

The Childless Apartment.

St. Louis Republic: Bliffkins and his wife live in one of these fashionable, childless houses. The visiting friend speaks:

"Say, what became of that pretty bull terrier you used to have around to keep Mrs. Bliffkins company during the day?"

"The management wouldn't stand for it, so we gave him away. We ventured a canary, but they kicked on that. I suggested some gold fish, but Mrs. Bliffkins said they reminded her of swimming snakes."

"How'd you finally agree?"

"Excellently. I bought her one of these Mexican jumping beans. It's cute as it can be. Say, Clara, get our little Pedro and make him do some of his stunts."

Nothing Like Home Cooking.

Oliver Wendell Holmes: Don't talk to me about taverns! There is just one genuine, clean, decent, palatable thing occasionally to be had in them—namely, a boiled egg. The soups taste pretty good sometimes, but their sources are involved in a darker mystery than that of the Nile. Omelettes taste as if they had been carried in the waiter's hat, or fried in an old boot. I ordered scrambled eggs one day. It must be that they had been scrambled for by somebody, but who—who in the possession of sound reason could have scrambled for what I had set before me under that name? Butter! I am wondering why the taverns always keep it until it is old. Fool that I am! As if the taverns did not know that if it was good it would be eaten, which is not what they want. Then the waiters, with their napkins—what don't they do with those napkins! Mention any one thing of which you think you can say with truth, "That they do not do." Every six months a tavern should burn to the ground, with all its traps, its "properties," its beds and pots and kettles and start afresh from its ashes like John John Phoenix-Squibob.

No; give me home, or a home like mine, where all is clean and sweet, where coffee has pre-existed in the berry and tea has still faint recollections of the pigtails that dangled about the plant from which it was picked, where butter has not the prevailing character which Pope assigned to Denham, where soup could look you in the face if it had "eyes" (which it has not), and where the comely Anne or the gracious Margaret takes the place of these napkin bearing animals.

UNCLE SAM BLAMED FOR LIVING COST

The ever-increasing list of reasons for the growing cost of living has been added to by James C. Fleming of Valentine, Neb., who is a visitor to the city. Mr. Fleming has the cattlemen's viewpoint of the situation and says that the lack of free pasturage of the "good old days" is the cause. When the cattle could roam untrammeled save for the raids of rustlers over the Western plains, Mr. Fleming points out, steaks—for they were all just steaks then, porterhouse, sirloin, round, T-bone, and the rest never being mentioned—were to be had for a mere pittance, and at that the cattlemen, packers, butchers and meat dealers were all getting rich.

But the government stepped in and offered the land to settlers who fenced it and tried to raise crops, and the day of free pasturage was gone. Hence, says Mr. Fleming, the rise in the price of beef and consequently other edibles.

NO DIRT CAN RESIST IT

The blame is on the government, he says, for passing the Kinkaid law for settlers, which gave them access to land that was good for pasturage only and on which they soon found they could not raise crops. The breaking up of the ground, Mr. Fleming avers, has ruined the land for pasturage, even though it is vacant now.

PRESIDENT HEARS THE GERMAN SINGERS.

Philadelphia, July 2.—A grand festival concert participated in by the thousands of members of societies constituting the Northeastern Saengerbund, with President and Mrs. Taft as the guests of honor, was the crowning event last night on the program of the twenty-third Saengerfest.

When the president and Mrs. Taft reached Broad Street station at 6 o'clock they were greeted by a German song of welcome, sung by a large chorus. Disregarding his usual custom, the president walked through the crowd of singers and spectators to his automobile.

As the president and his wife entered the Auditorium, the chorus of 6,000 trained male voices sang "The Star Spangled Banner," while the immense audience remained standing.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bldridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Zion Norwegian Lutheran Church Will Have New Organ.

After a campaign of but six months, the Young People's Society of the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, headed by Rev. J. M. Nervig, pastor of the church, has raised the $2,500 for the church organ and the instrument is expected to be installed on Sept. 1. The record time made by the society in securing the necessary subscriptions for the organ is especially pleasing to the many members of the church.

The campaign for the $2,500 was begun last winter at a meeting of the Young People's society of the church. At that time the members voted to give $400 as an opening for the campaign. A special committee headed by Rev. Mr. Nervig worked among the various members of the congregation soliciting subscriptions. District subcommittees were also appointed to canvass every member of the church.

REV. J. M. NERVIG.

Although the members did not expect to secure the desired amount until this fall, the organ has already been ordered and will be installed the first of September.

The members of the committee, which had charge of the subscription campaign, are: Rev. J. M. Nervig, president; P. Orsmund, vice president; Miss Agnes Midthune, secretary, and C. O. Grotting, treasurer. Several entertainments were given during the past six months by the members of the society to help the organ fund.

The Zion Norwegian Lutheran church was built in 1889 and is one of the oldest churches in the city. It was remodeled last fall. There are 400 members in the congregation under Rev. J. M. Nervig, pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Nervig has been in charge of the local pastorate for the past two years, having come here from Portland, Or. He is very popular among the local people and residents of the West End. During his service here he has brought the church out of debt.

PHYSICIANS TRIUMPH.

Recovery of 4-Year-Old Child Is Looked Upon as Remarkable.

Most extraordinary is the recovery of little 4-year-old Agnes Mehrman from her recent fall of thirty feet from the porch of her home at 1723 New street. The little girl is now walking about at St. Mary's hospital where she was taken after the accident exactly four weeks ago today. One of the attendants at the hospital announced yesterday that Agnes will leave the hospital in a few days.

Agnes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mehrman and while playing with several children on the porch at her home she fell to the ground. The children were watching a painter carrying several boards through a window. What is remarkable about the accident is that the little girl fell on her head, fractured her skull in two places, lay unconscious for ten days after the fall and is now perfectly well and will be out in a day or two.

"It was extraordinary," said a hospital attendant in speaking of the case yesterday afternoon.

The child was picked up unconscious after the accident and was taken to the hospital, where Dr. J. W. Ekblad was given the case. The mother also became ill at the time, because of the strain on her nerves. The child remained unconscious for ten days, when she showed the first signs of life. She then lapsed off into a semi-conscious state, until finally after two weeks she was conscious at all times.

It was then that a complete examination of the child was made. There were no internal injuries, but her skull had been fractured in two places. Her age is given as the reason for her recovery from the accident.

PASTOR EXPECTED.

Rev. P. W. Mermine Will Probably Occupy Pulpit Sunday.

Rev. P. W. Mermine, a missionary in Northern Michigan and formerly a pastor in Buffalo, N. Y., who has been given charge of the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, since the departure of Rev. Edwin Stromberg to Lowell, Mass., last week, is expected to arrive in the city this week. He will probably preach his first sermon next Sunday morning.

Rev. Mr Mermine was announced as the succeeding pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church immediately after Rev. Mr. Stromberg announced his resignation. The announcement was made through the local district officials at Marinette, Wis., who reported at the same time that the new pastor would be here by the first of July. This is the only report received and it is believed that the pulpit will be occupied next Sunday morning.

Rev. Mr. Mermine has been doing missionary work in Michigan for the past two years and has made an enviable record among the parishes of that state. Previously to that he was in charge of a Swedish methodist church at Buffalo for several years. He has never been heard here and is practically new to the people in this part of the country. His family will come with him and they will make their home at the parsonage, 310 North Twentieth avenue west.

Rev. Mr. Stromberg, who left here last Tuesday to take charge of a pastorate at Lowell, Mass., will preach his first sermon there next Sunday morning. Accompanied by Mrs. Stromberg and their family they have been visiting with relatives at Lindstrom, Minn., Minneapolis and Chicago for the past week.

CELEBRATION ON HEIGHTS.

Beginning at sunrise and ending at midnight the Fourth of July celebration at Duluth Heights promises to be a notable affair.

Special committees have been appointed by the residents to complete the plans for the day. At sunrise a salute will be fired from the top of the hill, following which a parade will be held through the suburb. All the organizations and lodges in the city will take part in the parade which will end with an address by William E. McEwen at the Heights park.

Following the parade a picnic will be held at the park where a program of athletic and field events will be featured, including a balloon ascension. An orchestra will furnish music for dancing in the evening at the town hall.

Ball Team Organized.

The Twentieth Century club of the Neighborhood House has organized its baseball team for the summer and the members are now looking for games with any 18-year-old team in the city. John Wagner is manager of the team and requests other teams to call Lincoln 257Y to arrange for games.

The line-up of the Twentieth Century team is as follows: Ever Anderson and Kenneth McRae, catchers; Edward Wick and John Wagner, pitchers; Oscar Benson, first base; Fred Richardson, second base; Albin Johnson, third base; Ernest Johnson, short stop; Floyd Owen, left field; George Anderson, center field, and Warner Peterson, right field.

West End Briefs.

Miss Millie Olson, who has been working at Dr. A. Olson's dental office, 1932 West Superior street, for the past eight years, is now employed in the medical offices of Dr. W. A. Coventry.

Misses Theresa and Ellen Otterson of 2130 Piedmont avenue have returned home after spending the past two years with relatives on the coast.

The Children's Sewing Circle of the Swedish Mission church will meet at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Mork, 210 North Twenty-fourth avenue west.

Mrs. C. Ritchie of Port Arthur, Ont., has left for her home after spending the past week at the home of Mrs. John Ledingham, 1927 West Third street.

Mrs. Christine Mitchell of Washburn, Wis., left yesterday for her home after spending the past week at the home of Mrs. L. A. Simonson, 2102 West Superior street.

J. F. Morton of Eau Claire, Wis., was a business visitor in the West end yesterday afternoon.

Maiden Rock, Wis., Fire.

Maiden Rock, Wis., July 2.—Fire here Sunday afternoon destroyed the Richards livery barn, J. D. Babcock's fitour and feed store, A. F. Herold's jewelry store, Beverly White's warehouse, A. G. Jullan's warehouse, Friberg's harness shop, G. N. Benham's house and tinshop, the H. A. Benson building occupied by J. Mealey, C. Taylor's building, occupied by Safford's restaurant, Martin's barbershop and Mealey's blacksmith shop. The total loss is about $20,000.

RAINS PROVE BIG BENEFIT

Red River Valley Crop Situation Is Reported Much Improved.

Showers and Cooler Weather Come at Very Opportune Time.

Crookston, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several showers yesterday and a cool wave last night relieved much of the crop worry in this section, and while a general rain is needed, the showers have relieved the necessity for worry over immediate damage from hot weather. Fosston, Lengby, Bagley, portions of Pennington and Kittson counties, Northern Polk and sections of Marshall county reported showers Monday afternoon and evening and the general condition is much more satisfactory. The thermometer reached a maximum of 90 degrees yesterday afternoon, but a breeze prevailed at all times and prevented serious wilting.

Haying has started. The wild hay is rather light. Tame hay, which is being cut now, is also light, but the wild hay will have a chance to thicken before it is cut if rain comes.

Corn and Potatoes Fine.

Corn and potatoes are growing splendidly; the warm weather bringing them on so rapidly that they have caught up with their fine condition at this time last year, corning having been later because of the cool spring.

If rain comes within a few days, a good soaking rain, the damage done will be confined to very few localities, and the percentage even in the worst places will be very light. If it remains cool the crops can do without rain for a longer period, but if it turns hot again rain must come within a week or there will be material damage in a good portion of Northwestern Minnesota.

FOREST DAMAGE NOT EXTENSIVE

Worst Feature of Northern Minnesota Fires Is the Killing of Game.

St. Paul, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Minnesota has suffered no great damage from forest fires so far, according to W. T. Cox, state forester, but it has required a hard, prolonged and untiring fight on the part of rangers and patrolmen to prevent wild conflagrations. Outside of some burned cordwood, some cedar yards along the M. & I. railroad and the cabin of one settler, the only loss has been to young timber and peat soil. Rains Sunday and Monday have removed imminent danger.

"At the present time, there are fifteen rangers and 115 patrolmen in the north woods," Mr. Cox said. "Each of these is empowered to employ help to all, when needed, and even to force men to fight fires. So far, only one man has refused to aid. He was arrested and sent to jail.

"The principal fires have been in Koochiching and Beltrami counties, although fires have burned at different places in all the district extending from Lake Superior to the Red river. There is danger and grave danger, too, in the woods and there will be danger until heavy, soaking rains come, but we are relying on the rangers and patrolmen and the settlers to keep down the chances of great forest fires."

Wild Game Perishing.

Numerous reports are reaching Mr. Cox from the fire fighters, of young deer and moose perishing in the woods. Refusal of the mother deer and mother moose to forsake their young, is responsible for their being burned to death. Ranger H. H. Winslow, writing from Northome, June 27, said:

"We have not lost a life nor a house, but we found a number of deer that were burned at the fire near Margie."

In a report written two days later, Ranger Wilson said:

"The deer and mooses are commencing to come down. One ran into the lake at Northome and was so near exhausted, it drowned. It was about 2 years old. McHugo says he has found a number of deer that were burned. The does will not leave their fawns, but perish beside them."

CHILD FALLS INTO SPRING, DROWNING

Couderay, Wis., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifteen-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Senesac, living nine miles from here, drowned by falling head-first into a spring near their house. The water in the spring was about eighteen inches deep and the child was dead when the mother discovered it.

SELL 41,000 ACRES OF MINNESOTA LAND

Staples, Minn., July 2.—Special to The Herald.)—The largest land sale that is on record in this section of the state has just been closed by Clem Thompson of Motley.

Mr. Thompson met JP. E. Doran f Denver, Colo., John Longleaf of Huron, S. D., and S. C. Doran of Brandon, Man., in Minneapolis and closed the deal for the transfer of 41,000 acres of land located in the north central part of Minnesota. The land is valued at over $500,000. It is expected that the buyers will organize a development company and offer the land for settlement.

PROGRESSIVES MAY NOT ATTACK HANNA

Reported in Grand Forks They Will Not Try to Divide Vote.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman L. B. Hanna, as the Republican nominee for governor, will not, it is believed, meet with the same strenuous opposition with which C. A. Johnson of Minot, the twice defeated candidate of the party, had to contend with. While it is yet too early to state what will be the attitude of the Progressives towards Hanna, still it appears to be the concensus of opinion among Grand Forks members of that faction that there is little liklihood of there being open warfare, within the Republican party, against him this fall.

It has been impossible to determine who is the Democratic nominee. Interest in Republican primaries always serve to completely overshadow the Democratic result, and it will not be possible to get the result of the contest within the Democratic party until the official canvass of vote next Friday.

STAPLES EXPECTS BIG CROP YIELDS

Staples, Minn., June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—All prospects indicate a big crop for this section. Though the spring was rather cold and backward this gave the smaller grain a good foothold and the warm weather which has followed has made the grain gain whatever it lost during the cold spring.

Every farmer has a large acreage of potatoes and as the tubers are in excellent condition all predict a big yield Two large warehouses are being erected at Staples to care for this fall crop. One is being erected by Mr. Pettet of Verndale and the farmers of this vicinity have co-operated in the erection of the other. Both houses are to be used as the shipping points of all farm produce and for storage during the colder months.

Corn Is Going Ahead.

Corn nas been backward, but the warm weather of the past two weeks has made the crop gain almost as much as it lost during the cold spring. Clover and timothy are shoulder high and very heavy. This section of the state is noted for its clover growth and the demand for seed cannot be supplied. The farmers realize that this is an important industry with good returns and are planting a great deal of clover for the purpose of selling the seed.

ASHLAND WATER CASE.

Hearing as to Rates and Rules Proves Rather Tame.

Ashland, Wis., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state railroad commission yesterday heard the case against the local water company, but little developed as the hearing proved something of a fizzle, as those who previously complained did not make much of a showing. Little was offered in the way of testimony beyond the evidence of Sam Wheeler, the superintendent, but much of this had been heard by the commission at former hearings. The question of rates was practically eliminated by agreement, being deferred until after the company has compited the proposed filter improvements. This left only the question of the rules of the company, the cost and service of meters and not one particle of evidence was introduced on these subjects except the statement by Mr. Wheeler giving the water company's version. Superintendent Wheeler declared that if the commission should order meters furnished free to all consumers in the city that the company would have to demand an increase in the rates.

The Ashland Water company made no formal appearance, but was represented by Superintendent Wheeler. President Wheeler of Bostor, and Attorney Shea of this city. The city of Ashland was represented by City Attorney Cate and M. E. Dillon represented Miss Anita Fisher, J. J. Zetterholm and one or two others.

FOR HALF HOLIDAY.

Former Duluth Pastor Wants Rochester Merchants to Close Stores.

Rochester, Minn., July 2.—Rev. Arthur Wurtele is the father of a movement in this city to have all business houses and other institutions close one afternoon of each week during the months of July and August. He fostered a similar movement in Duluth, but there seems to be no sentiment for the half holiday here. Eighty cards have been sent out asking the business concerns addressed if agreeable to the half day closing, thirty of which were returned bearing the signature of but twenty-eight who were willing to close for the half day.

The prevailing sentiment here is against such a movement for two reasons, first, Rochester being an agricultural community the farmers coming to the city on the afternoon that the stores were closed would fail to receive accomodations.

The second reason is that the stores all close at 6 p. m.; that the majority of the clerks have a comparatively easy time; also, it is easy for a clerk to secure a half holiday whenever desired, all of which makes the labor question in Rochester easily adjusted with little demand for the half holiday.

Many of the clerks are not strongly in favor of the half holiday, and a meeting is to be called at which they will discuss the question. If it is found that the majority are not interested the matter will be dropped.

SANBORN BOYS FINED.

Young Wisconsin Toughs Punished for "Egging" Minister.

Ashland, Wis., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge McDonald yesterday imposed nominal fines upon Fred Forsythe, Frank Provost, Jr., John Olson and Richard Schill, all young men living at Sanborn, near here, who pleaded guilty to assault and battery on the complaint of Rev. Winfield Scott, who alleged the boys had interferred with his religious meetings at Sanborn. The minister claimed he protested against the boys playing ball near the church during services, and when he and another minister left the edifice the accused threw eggs at them. The boys were first tried for throwing the eggs, but the court sustained the plea of the defense the evidence did not show they had broken up the religious meeting with the eggs since the services were over. The court sustained this point. Then the boys pleaded guilty to assault and battery and escaped with nominal fines.

AVIATRIX IN FATAL FALL

Double Tragedy Not Allowed to Halt the Aviation Meeting.

Boston, Mass., July 2. — Miss Harriet Quimby of New York, the first woman to win an aviator's license in America, and the first woman to cross the English channel in an aeroplane, was instantly killed with her passenger, W. A. P. Willard, manager of the Boston aviation meet, at Atlantic last night when her Bleriot monoplane fell into Rochester bay from a height of 1,000 feet.

The accident happened when Miss Quimby and Willard were returning from a trip over Boston harbor to Boston light, a distance of twenty miles in all. The flight was made in twenty minutes. The Bleriot, one of the latest models of military monoplanes, circled the aviation field, and soared out over the Savin Hill Yacht club, just outside the aviation grounds.

Started to Volplane.

Heading back into the eight-mile gusty wind, Miss Quimby started to volplane. The angle was too sharp, and one of the gusts caught the tail of the monoplane, throwing the machine up perpendicular. For an instant it poised there. Then, sharply outlined against the setting sun, Willard was thrown clear of the chassis, followed almost immediately by Miss Quimby.

Hurtling over and over, the two figures shot downward, striking the water twenty feet from shore. They splashed out of sight a second before the monoplane plunged down fifteen feet away.

It was low tide and the water was only five feet deep. Men from the yacht club in motor boats were on the spot quickly, and leaping overboard, dragged the bodies of the two out.

Bodies Badly Crushed.

Both bodies were badly crushed. Several of Miss Quimby's bones were broken, and there were many large bruises. Willard, who weighed 190 pounds, hit the water face first, and over one eye there was a gash from which the blood was flowing. He, too, sustained several fractures and bruises. The clothing of both fliers was torn and the bodies were so covered with mud that it was several minutes before the doctors and nurses could determine the full extent of the injuries.

When the victims were brought ashore in motor boats, the bodies were laid on the ground on the edge of the aviation field. The crowd which had been witnessing the flights rushed over, but a troop of state cavalry held the people back while Dr. George Sheahan, the field surgeon, with his staff and a nurse made hasty examinations. In a few moments ambulances arrived and the victims were taken to the Quincy hospital.

Seen by Girl Overhead.

Flying high overhead at the time of the fall was Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, another aviatrix taking part in the meet, which had entered upon its second day. From her high altitude Miss Scott had watched Miss Quimby's splendid flight and was nearby when the gust upset the monoplane. In the excitement no one noticed the lone avatrix, but when Miss Quimby's body was brought ashore, all eyes were directed at her and Miss Scott was seen making circles over the field at a height of 500 feet.

Twice she started to descend, but each time she was seen to falter. In another moment, summoning all her nerve, she turned the nose of her machine downward and landed safely, collapsing in her seat before anyone could reach her.

Leo Stevens of New York, manager for Miss Quimby, and Miss Quimby's friend, Mrs. Helen Vanderbilt, who were both witnesses to the accident, were prostrated.

Before going up on their last flight Miss Quimby and Mr. Willard were talking and laughing with their friends, Willard making jokes about his weight and Miss Quimby talking confidently about her plans to make an altitude record in the future that would stand as a woman's high mark.

Crossed English Channel.

In crossing the English channel on April 16, Miss Quimby flew at an altitude of 6,000 feet, which was believed to be the record for women. Miss Quimby yesterday said she felt sure that she could beat this mark, although she did not believe she could exceed the record of 13,943 feet made by Gassos.

Discussing the matter of coming down in the water, if the engine should fall during the flight over the harbor, Miss Quimby said to a friend just before she left the ground:

"A water landing is all right in a Bleriot unless you come down head first. In that case the heavy motor at the extreme forward end would drag the monoplane deep into the water and sink it. But if we come down 'pancake,' the broad wings would float us for two hours or more."

Then, with a bright smile, she added: "But I am a cat and I don't like cold water."

These were among the last words Miss Quimby said before leaving the starting line on what proved to be her last flight.

Reached 100 Miles an Hour.

The monoplane, painted a pure white, darted at great speed over the harbor. The motors developed a great speed at times of from 75 to 100 miels an hour.

An examination of the barometer, after the fall, showed that at times the daring pilot had reached a height of 5,000 feet. On the return, the great machine was seen to wobble in the gusty breeze.

The setting of the last disaster could not have been more dramatic. It was sunset. The great white wings swept directly into the west and dipped toward the earth. There was an upward flash of the tail, and outlined before the spectators, in the red light of the west, the figures were seen to shoot from their seats into the bay 1,000 feet below.

The officials decided to run the meeting for the rest of the week, as scheduled.

First Woman Aviator.

New York, July 2.—News of Harriet Quimby's death shocked friends in New York, where she made her home. She will probably pass into history as the first woman aviator. She won the first aviation license ever granted a woman in America, made an American endurance record for women, and last spring she flew across the English channel.

Miss Quimby, outside her aviation activities, was a well known magazine writer connected with Leslie's Weekly. She made her home at the Hotel Victoria in this city and is survived by an aged mother.

When Miss Quimby took up aviation at Nassau boulevard as one of the Moissant school, there was much rivalry between her and Matilda Moissant for the honors of the first aviation license granted to a woman by the Aero Club of America. There was also much opposition among Aero club officials to setting a precedent by granting licenses to women, but Miss Quimby became so successful in her flights that she finally won. Miss Moissant later won a license, but frightened by a narrow escape from a fatal accident, she has since given up aviation.

Fourth Woman Victim.

Miss Quimby is the fourth woman to lose her life in an aeroplane accident. The first woman killed was Madame Denise Moore, who fell while flying in France in July, 1911. Suzanne Bernard, another Frenchwoman, was killed last March, while making tests for an aviator's license. Miss Julia Clark, a Chicago girl, was killed when she flew into a tree at Springfield, Ill., on June 17 last.

W. A. P. Willard, the manager of the Boston, meet, who was killed while with Miss Quimby, was the father of Charles F. Willard, a Well known aviator.

The death of Miss Quimby and Willard bring the total aviation fatalities for the present year up to forty-one, compared with seventy-three during all of 1911.

Lucey Sours Has Bad Day and Accumulates Four Errors.

Chief Chase had lots of things yesterday. Like the little girl with the tonsorial decorations cutting her alabaster brow in twain, when he is good the Aborigineе is very, very good indeed. Some times a large and noisy demonstration can rile, rattle and rout the Indian. Yesterday the crowd was too small to get his browsing Angora, so Superior won by the score of 4 to 1. With noise, vocal fireworks and pandemonium spread over the park, we might have won the contest of yesterday.

Several little incidents skidded the way to sweet victory of our opponents. That generally very excellent player, Lucey Sours, had a bad afternoon. Maybe it was love, or mayhap it was anxiety over the outcome of the thirtieth ballot—anyway, Lucey was not normal. He had four glittering errors, and to complete the day he fell down on third base and was tagged out, just when we were rallying and trying to break through the firm front of the enemy.

Saturnine Stark was the mound dweller of the afternoon, speaking of local conditions, and it was not the fault of the flinger that the bird of victory cooed and billed on the banner of the Schoon-Sommer-Taylor-de Cheveral combination. He done noble and deserved better things.

Now that the introduction is out of the way, direct reference may be made to the defeat and its direct cause. It is always best to be gentle with the home boys. There must always be a loser, even as Col. Roosevelt has gloomily admitted.

Faint hope gleamed in the offing when Sours messed, mussed and otherwise pawed the offering of Persh in the initial round. Taylor singled, surprising himself as well as the assembled guests of the management. Donovan reached first through courtesy of Sours and there wasn't room for another man on the sacks. Ford shaved one at Sours, who bungled. Someone had to come home and it was Persh.

That's how they got their first. In the second they got their second thusly—Black walked and then Anderson and Chase were made to sit on the bench. Some of us breathed easier. Persh walked and then a passed ball permitted Black to score and Persh was caught trying to get to third on the play.

In the fifth Persh reached first on Sours' bad heave, stole, was moved along on a sacrifice and came scampering home when Ford hit one a thousand miles an hour by little Leber. The biography of another run.

Black doubled in the ninth, to make sure that extra innings would not delay supper and the talk at the gate with she, and was scored when Persh singled out in the vicinity of the Menece flag station. That for Superior.

Our little slam came in the eighth. The one credit mark was brought about by singles by Meniece, Miller and Bluhm, Sours falling down after rounding third and somewhat interfering with the rally. But then base must eat and a pitcher must perforce win to eat—and it's an ill wind that doesn't dry somebody's washing.

Today the interesity battle will be continued in the land of the enemy. We hope to win. Arrangements are being made for the evening game here on the glorious Fourth of July. Those who have not learned of the outcome of the two fistic soirees, will do so at the baseball park, the management having made arrangements for the announcement of the two big battles.

WILL BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Lightweights Wolgast and Rivers in the Best of Condition.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers announced they were ready to enter the ring Thursday for the lightweight championship battle in the best condition they ever were in.

Only light work was indulged in yesterday. Wolgast boxed four rounds and Rivers boxed four rounds. At the finish, it was announced that Wolgast weighed 130, at which weight he expected to enter the ring.

Rivers' weight was announced at 132, but it was said that the Mexican would go into the ring at 132.

Betting has somewhat changed, and Rivers money was more in evidence.

Many bets have been placed at 2 to 1 on Wolgast, but now 10 to 7 seems to be the prevailing odds.

CHALMERS TROPHY AWARD RULES REMAIN UNCHANGED.

The rules of award for the Chalmers trophy for 1912 will remain unchanged. This much is certain from the votes of the trophy commissioners which have been received by Chairman Ren Mulford of the commission. With three of the commissioners yet to be heard from, the vote now stands six for no change in the rules, with two favoring the elimination of previous winners from future trophy competition.

Those who have voted to keep the rules as they are at present are Commissioners Parker of St. Louis, Edwards of Cleveland, Saisinger of Detroit, Sanborn of Chicago, Yager of Brooklyn, and Foster of New York. Tim Murname, commissioner from Boston, and James C. Isaminger, the Philadelphia commissioner, both voted to eliminate previous winners.

With these eight votes already in, there is evidence of an overwhelming majority in favor of retaining the rules of the trophy award as they now stand.

Cubs Get College Player.

GIBBONS STILL ON THE UPWARD PATH

New York, July 2.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul knocked out Sid Burns, the welterweight champion of England, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. The knockout came eight seconds before the bell ended the round and Burns was unable to face his opponent for the next round. Gibbons weighed in at 150 and Burns at 148¾.

Gibbons knocked Burns down for a count of two in the third with a right hook to the jaw and in the next round repeated for a count of nine and when he arose sent in a left hook to the jaw sending Burns down, completely out. At the count of eight the bell rang. Burns' seconds worked over him desperately, but he was unable to recover in the minute intermission.

FIGHTERS DOING ONLY LIGHT WORK

Las Vegas, N. M., July 2. — The principals in the Johnson-Flynn battle for the heavyweight championship here July 4, indulged only in road work and light exercises at their camps, tossing a 16-pound medicine ball.

Later Johnson and Flynn were called into conference with Referee E. W. Smith, who explained his interpretation of the rules under which the men will battle.

PLANS MADE FOR BIG DELEGATION

It looks at the present time as if there is going to be a very large delegation to accompany the crew to Winnipeg. The extremely low rate to the metropolis of Western Canada, a city that holds particular interest and attraction for Duluthians, will result in a large crowd making the trip there for the boat races.

In addition to the regatta of the Northwestern International Rowing association, there is also the Winnipeg Industrial exhibition, one of the biggest fairs held on the North American continent.

Jack E. MacGregor, captain of the rowing department of the boat club, is at the present time making arrangements for hotel reservations for the crew and those who decide to make the trip to Winnipeg. Just as soon as definite arrangements are made an announcement will be made.

Those who intend to make the trip with the crew will confer a favor on the boat club officials by sending their names in to J. E. MacGregor or to Albert Ames, secretary of the club.

The indications are that a delegation large enough to warrant the chartering of a special sleeper will make the trip. The round trip fare is but a trifle over the regular fare one way, and as special arrangements will be made to take care of the Duluth crowd, the trip promises to be an especially attractive one.

The crew will leave here on the evening of July 16, and arrangements will be made to take care of those who wish to leave then or a day or two later.

It was announced yesterday that special arrangements had been made to give the crew regular training table meals on the diner. The crew will take its own drinking water from Duluth and every detail of the training regime will be kept up until the last race is rowed on Saturday afternoon of the big regatta.

COMMISSION IN SHORT MEETING

Cincinnati, July 2.—The National baseball commission met here yesterday and after a short session, went to the ball park as the guests of Chairman August Herrman.

The commission reinstated Player Belcher, of the St. Louis Nationals, who had gone into business and had failed to report, but who requested reinstatement. It decided that Pitcher McIntyre still belonged to Chicago, the Milwaukee club having refused him, claiming he was not in condition. Chicago asked for the purchase price, which was not allowed.

The commission did not take up the new national agreement. This will be considered at a later meeting.

DURNAN AND ARNST.

Efforts Being Made to Match Scullers for Rainy River.

There is a possibility that Richard Arnst, champion sculler of the world, may be seen in action on the Rainy river. It is said that negotiations are under way at the present time to arrange a race between Arnst and Eddie Durnan and that the rowing enthusiasts of Rainy river want the contest to be held up there.

Arnst is to race Jim Wray, the successful Harvard coach, according to the dope that creeps out of the East, and he also wants to arrange a meeting with Durnan, generally acknowledged the best professional sculler in this country, while in the United States. Hence the anxiety of the Rainy river people to have the race pulled off in the Northwest.

Should the contest be held at a point so near Duluth it is safe to say that there would be many followers of the sculling sport who would go from here to view the race.

Wisconsin-Illinois.

At Racine, 5; Green Bay, 0.
At Rockford, 6; Appleton, 5. (ten innings.)
At Madison, 2; Wausau, 4.
At Rurora, 4; Oshkosh, 5. (ten innings.)

Final Arrangements.

East Las Vegas, N. Mex., July 2.—The final details of the Flynn-Johnson battle will be discussed and decided upon today. Both Johnson and Flynn have requested Referee Smith to give a decision should there be a "police finish," as they wish the winner designated should the fight be stopped. They say they want an official decision and not a newspaper decision.

BASEBALL NOTES

Tris Speaker still leads the American deadliest batters—ackson, Cobb and dealiest batters—Jackson, Cobb and Lajoie—following him.

* * *

The Lancaster club of the Tristate league transferred its franchise to Atlantic City. Lack of patronage at Lancaster caused the change.

* * *

Ed Killian, the veteran Detroit Tiger, has signed up with the Guelph team of the Canadian league.

* * *

Fred Merkle and Arthur Devlin have jointly bought an automobile. Now you'll hear the buzz.

* * *

Jack Dunn's Baltimore team of the International league is coming along fast these days. The fans have Baltimore already selected as the pennant winner. But wait.

* * *

Leo Groom, who managed the Reading team of the United States league, has been taken on by the St. Louis Browns as a scout.

* * *

Krause, Connie Mack's discard, is doing fine work for Toledo. He is taking his turn in the box regularly and winning his games.

* * *

Pitcher Camnitz of the Pittsburg Pirates has won four straight games and has landed seven out of his last eight.

* * *

The American league race is developing into a free-for-all. Boston is leading, but four other clubs are not so far in the rear.

* * *

The Cardinals are far from the team of 1911. Last year Bresnahan had his men fighting every day. This year they appear is if they don't care what happens.

* * *

The Highlanders are a trifle shy on southpaws just now, but the fact isn't likely to make any bigger dent in their percentage than has been made.

* * *

No $22,000 halo attended Catcher Kelly when he sneaked into the fashionable set with O'Toole, but without any fuss or feathers he is becoming one of the best catchers in the parent league.

* * *

Napoleon Rucker has whitewashed three teams this month—Pittsburg, Philadelphia and Boston. If he pitches against Marquard in the coming series interest will be high.

* * *

The question is asked whether the American league has the better pitchers or the National league the better batters. Last year the question was reversed.

* * *

The Boston Braves have purchased Maranville, the clever shortstop of the New Bedford club in the New England league. The player will not report, however, until fall.

* * *

Some day, perhaps, the Yankees will win a game from the Red Sox—some day, we say, when Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis, Joe Wood and numerous others of the Boston team are tottering with old age.

* * *

Elmira has signed McVaugh of Williamsport, a young southpaw.

* * *

Henderson of the Kitty league has filed a claim for the services of Irish Cahill, who has been playing with Jacksonville in the South Atlantic, and he has been barred from playing with the latter club until his case can be decided.

* * *

The latest from Harry Steinfeldt is that he will take the management of the Cincinnati team of the United States league, if there is such a team, or that he will accept an offer to manage the Meridian team of the Cotton States league.

* * *

Clark Griffith is quoted on both sides of the Sunday ball question as it concerns Washington, but there is no doubt Washington fans just now at least want Sunday ball. In fact, they would like to watch the team play double-headers seven days a week.

Tommy McMillan, having finished his school term at the University of South Carolina, has rejoined Charlotte in the Carolina association. He graduated this year. In the Carolinas he is regarded as one of the greatest college players turned out in the South.

Lyman Burch, oldest player in point of service in the Central association, released by Muscatine, at once caught on with Ottumwa. Manager Ned Egan of the latter club thinks Burch still good enough to win with. He was with Keokuk six years before going to Muscatine.

Pratt and Smith, the two Southern league stars who tied for batting honors in their circuit last year, are running fairly well together this year. Pratt with St. Louis in the American, and Smith with Brooklyn in the National. Though Pratt leads Smith with the stick, the latter has his rival bested in fielding.

CLEVELAND'S PENAL FARM

The board of public welfare at its regular weekly session yesterday afternoon at the courthouse received the report of Secretary Courtenay Dinwiddie of the Associated Charities on his impressions of the national convention of the Societies of Charities and Corrections at Cleveland and of the correctional work farm of that city.

The Cleveland farm instituted four years ago handles about 200 prisoners and covers about 2,000 acres of land. On the grounds there is a tuberculosis sanitarium, a home for incurables and work shops. Much of the land is under cultivation. A portion of the land says Mr. Dinwiddie, was purchased at $200 and is being cleared by the prisoners for cemetery purposes. When the work of clearing is done it will be sold for $8,000 an acre. The farm is one mile and a half from the street car line.

G. G. Hartley, who recently returned from a tour of Europe, gave an interesting talk on how the work farm proposition is successfully handled in Germany.

Lightweights Wolgast and Rivers in the Best of Condition.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers announced they were ready to enter the ring Thursday for the lightweight championship battle in the best condition they ever were in.

Only light work was indulged in yesterday. Wolgast boxed four rounds and Rivers boxed four rounds. At the finish, it was announced that Wolgast weighed 130, at which weight he expected to enter the ring.

Rivers' weight was announced at 132, but it was said that the Mexican would go into the ring at 132.

Betting has somewhat changed, and Rivers money was more in evidence.

Many bets have been placed at 2 to 1 on Wolgast, but now 10 to 7 seems to be the prevailing odds.

CHALMERS TROPHY AWARD RULES REMAIN UNCHANGED.

The rules of award for the Chalmers trophy for 1912 will remain unchanged. This much is certain from the votes of the trophy commissioners which have been received by Chairman Ren Mulford of the commission. With three of the commissioners yet to be heard from, the vote now stands six for no changes in the rules, with two favoring the elimination of previous winners from future trophy competition.

Those who have voted to keep the rules as they are at present are Commissioners Parker of St. Louis, Edwards of Cleveland, Salsinger of Detroit, Sanborn of Chicago, Yaeger of Brooklyn, and Foster of New York. Tim Murnane, commissioner from Boston, and James C. Isaminger, the Philadelphia commissioner, both voted to eliminate previous winners.

With these eight votes already in, there is evidence of an overwhelming majority in favor of retaining the rules of the trophy award as they now stand.

GIBBONS STILL ON THE UPWARD PATH

New York, July 2.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul knocked out Sid Burns, the welterweight champion of England, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. The knockout came eight seconds before the bell ended the round and Burns was unable to face his opponent for the next round. Gibbons weighed in at 150 and Burns at 148¾.

Gibbons knocked Burns down for a count of two in the third with a right hook to the jaw and in the next round repeated for a count of nine and when he arose sent in a left hook to the jaw sending Burns down, completely out. At the count of eight the bell rang. Burns' seconds worked over him desperately, but he was unable to recover in the minute intermission.

FIGHTERS DOING ONLY LIGHT WORK

Las Vegas, N. M., July 2. — The principals in the Johnson-Flynn battle for the heavyweight championship here July 4, indulged only in road work and light exercises at their camps, tossing a 16-pound medicine ball.

Later Johnson and Flynn were called into conference with Referee E. W. Smith, who explained his interpretation of the rules under which the men will battle.

PLANS MADE FOR BIG DELEGATION

It looks at the present time as if there is going to be a very large delegation to accompany the crew to Winnipeg. The extremely low rate to the metropolis of Western Canada, a city that holds particular interest and attraction for Duluthians, will result in a large crowd making the trip there for the boat races.

In addition to the regatta of the Northwestern International Rowing association, there is also the Winnipeg Industrial exhibition, one of the biggest fairs held on the North American continent.

Jack E. MacGregor, captain of the rowing department of the boat club, is at the present time making arrangements for hotel reservations for the crew and those who decide to make the trip to Winnipeg. Just as soon as definite arrangements are made an announcement will be made.

Those who intend to make the trip with the crew will confer a favor on the boat club officials by sending their names in to J. E. MacGregor or to Albert Ames, secretary of the club.

The indications are that a delegation large enough to warrant the chartering of a special sleeper will make the trip. The round trip fare is but a trifle over the regular fare one way, and as special arrangements will be made to take care of the Duluth crowd, the trip promises to be an especially attractive one.

The crew will leave here on the evening of July 16, and arrangements will be made to take care of those who wish to leave then or a day or two later.

It was announced yesterday that special arrangements had been made to give the crew regular training table meals on the diner. The crew will take its own drinking water from Duluth and every detail of the training regime will be kept up until the last race is rowed on Saturday afternoon of the big regatta.

COMMISSION IN SHORT MEETING

Cincinnati, July 2.—The National baseball commission met here yesterday and after a short session, went to the ball park as the guests of Chairman August Herrman.

The commission reinstated Player Belcher, of the St. Louis Nationals, who had gone into business and had failed to report, but who requested reinstatement. It decided that Pitcher McIntyre still belonged to Chicago, the Milwaukee club having refused him, claiming he was not in condition. Chicago asked for the purchase price, which was not allowed.

The commission did not take up the new national agreement. This will be considered at a later meeting.

DURNAN AND ARNST.

Efforts Being Made to Match Scullers for Rainy River.

There is a possibility that Richard Arnst, champion sculler of the world, may be seen in action on the Rainy river. It is said that negotiations are under way at the present time to arrange a race between Arnst and Eddie Durnan and that the rowing enthusiasts of Rainy river want the contest to be held up there.

Arnst is to race Jim Wray, the seacoast Harvard coach, according to the dope that creeps out of the East, and he also wants to arrange a meeting with Durnan, generally acknowledged the best professional sculler in this country, while in the United States. Hence the anxiety of the Rainy river people to have the race pulled off in the Northwest.

Should the contest be held at a point so near Duluth it is safe to say that there would be many followers of the sculling sport who would go from here to view the race.

Wisconsin-Illinois.

At Racine, 5; Green Bay, 0.
At Rockford, 6; Appleton, 5. (ten innings.)
At Madison, 2; Wausau, 4.
At Aurora, 4; Oshkosh, 5. (ten innings.)

Final Arrangements.

East Las Vegas, N. Mex., July 2.—The final details of the Flynn-Johnson battle will be discussed and decided upon today. Both Johnson and Flynn have requested Referee Smith to give a decision should there be a "police finish," as they wish the winner designated should the fight be stopped. They say they want an official decision and not a newspaper decision.

BASEBALL NOTES

Tris Speaker still leads the American deadliest batters—ackson, Cobb and deadliest batters—Jackson, Cobb and Lajoie—following him.

The Lancaster club of the Tristate league transferred its franchise to Atlantic City. Lack of patronage at Lancaster caused the change.

Ed Killian, the veteran Detroit Tiger, has signed up with the Guelph team of the Canadian league.

Fred Merkle and Arthur Devlin have jointly bought an automobile. Now you'll hear the buzz.

Jack Dunn's Baltimore team of the International league is coming along fast these days. The fans have Baltimore already selected as the pennant winner. But wait.

Leo Groom, who managed the Reading team of the United States league, has been taken on by the St. Louis Browns as a scout.

Krause, Connie Mack's discard, is doing fine work for Toledo. He is taking his turn in the box regularly and winning his games.

Pitcher Camnitz of the Pittsburg Pirates has won four straight games and has landed seven out of his last eight.

The American league race is developing into a free-for-all. Boston is leading, but four other clubs are not so far in the rear.

The Cardinals are far from the team of 1911. Last year Bresnahan had his men fighting every day. This year they appear as if they don't care what happens.

The Highlanders are a trifle shy on southpaws just now, but the fact isn't likely to make any bigger dent in their percentage than has been made.

No $22,000 halo attended Catcher Kelly when he sneaked into the fashionable set with O'Toole, but without any fuss or feathers he is becoming one of the best catchers in the parent league.

Napoleon Rucker has whitewashed three teams this month—Pittsburg, Philadelphia and Boston. If he pitches against Marquard in the coming series interest will be high.

The question is asked whether the American league has the better pitchers or the National league the better batters. Last year the question was reversed.

The Boston Braves have purchased Maranville, the clever shortstop of the New Bedford club in the New England league. The player will not report, however, until fall.

Some day, perhaps, the Yankees will win a game from the Red Sox—some day, we say, when Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis, Joe Wood and numerous others of the Boston team are tottering with old age.

Elmira has signed McVaugh of Williamsport, a young southpaw.

Henderson of the Kitty league has filed a claim for the services of Irish Cahill, who has been playing with Jacksonville in the South Atlantic, and he has been barred from playing with the latter club until his case can be decided.

The latest from Harry Stuinfelt is that he will take the management of the Cincinnati team of the United States league, if there is such a team, or that he will accept an offer to manage the Meridian team of the Cotton States league.

Clark Griffith is quoted on both sides of the Sunday ball question as it concerns Washington, but there is no doubt Washington runs just now at least want Sunday ball. In fact, they would like to watch the team play double-headers seven days a week.

Tommy McMillan, having finished his school term at the University of South Carolina, has joined Charlotte in the Carolina association. He graduated this year. In the Carolinas he is regarded as one of the greatest college players turned out in the South.

Lyman Burch, oldest player in point of service in the Central association, released by Muscatine, at once caught on with Ottumwa. Manager Ned Hann of the latter club thinks Burch still good enough to win with. He was with Keokuk six years before going to Muscatine.

Pratt and Smith, the two Southern league stars who led for batting honors in their circuit last year, are running fairly well together this year. Pratt with St. Louis in the Americans and Smith with Brooklyn in the National. Though Pratt leads Smith with the stick, the latter has his rival bested in fielding.

CLEVELAND'S PENAL FARM

The board of public welfare at its regular weekly session yesterday afternoon at the courthouse received the report of Secretary Courtenay Dinwiddie of the Associated Charities on his impressions of the national convention of the Societies of Charities and Corrections at Cleveland and of the correctional work farm of that city.

The Cleveland farm instituted four years ago handles about 200 prisoners and covers about 2,000 acres of land. On the grounds there is a tuberculosis sanitarium, a home for incurables and work shops. Much of the land is under cultivation. A portion of the land, says Mr. Dinwiddie, was purchased at $200 and is being cleared by the prisoners for cemetery purposes. When the work of clearing is done it will be sold for $8,000 an acre. The farm is one mile and a half from the street car line.

G. G. Hartley, who recently returned from a tour of Europe, gave an interesting talk on how the work farm proposition is successfully handled in Germany.

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Washington, July 2.—The thanks of congress are conveyed to Capt. Arthur H. Rostron and the officers and crew of the liner Carpathia for their rescue of 704 survivors of the Titanic, in a senate bill passed by the house yesterday. The measure now goes to President Taft for signature. The bill provides for a $1,000 gold medal for Capt. Rostron.

Money for Militia.

The house adopted a resolution appropriating $1,350,000 to provide for the participating of the regular army in the encampment and maneuvers of the organized militia of the several states.

Socialists' Expenses.

The campaign expenditures of the Socialist party in either 1904 or 1908 did not exceed $1,000, according to an affidavit Paul Augustine, secretary of that party, submitted to the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures in those years. No individual contribution larger than $25 was received, he declared. George B. Cortelyou of the Republican national committee, and George F. Potboy of the Democratic national committee were at the capitol to testify, but their hearing was postponed.

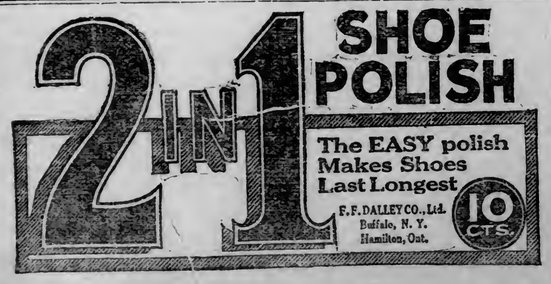

To Buy Jefferson's Home.

The hearing of Senator Martine's resolution on the proposal to buy Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello, has been postponed to a date some time after the adjournment of the Democratic convention. Mrs. Martin W. Littleton is scheduled to make the principal argument in favor of the purchase.

TRACE DISEASE OF CATTLE TO IRELAND.

London, July 2.—The present outbreak of foot and mouth disease has been definitely traced to Ireland, and all importations of cattle from that country to Great Britain have been prohibited. A dozen localities in England are infected.

It is many years since the British isles have suffered from such a widespread visitation of the scourge. Several cattle shows which were to have opened this week have been prohibited by the board of of agriculture. The Liverpool, Newcastle and other big cattle markets have been closed.

BUSINESS FOR FIRST HALF OF 1912 SHOWS INCREASE

Bank Clearings for Six Months 11.2 Per Cent Greater.

Jobbers Report More Activity—Heavy Ore and Grain Movement.

That there has been a decided increase in Duluth business during the first six months of the year 1912 over the first six months of 1911, although the present year has the handicap of all the disturbing influences of the national political battles and uncertainties, which inevitably depress trade to a greater or less extent, is demonstrated to a certainty by the totals of the bank clearings. The banks clearing for the first six months of these two years at Duluth were as follows:

January	$11,413,720.46	$13,156,072.27
February	10,194,558.77	10,110,306.86
March	10,081,516.96	11,387,396.00
April	9,627,105.97	12,646,973.49
May	11,278,351.27	13,149,897.05

The increase is more than 11.2 per cent It is due to many causes, but the principal reason was the handling of the bonded Canadian grain. Western Canada would never have been able to market her crop of 1911 had it not been for the help of Duluth. Duluth's timely assistance saved millions of bushels of grain, that would have spoiled on the hands of its Canadian owners had not the elevators at the American Head of the Lakes been ready to receive, dry and store it. During the first six months of the year 1912 the elevators cared for nearly 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain. During the first six months of the year 1911 the Canadian bonded grain handled at the Duluth and Superior elevators amounted approximately to 300,000 bushels.

Another line of Duluth business that has been far more active than it was last year is the shipment of iron ore. The Eastern mills have been far better customers this year, for they have found readier markets for their own products and therefore have needed more of the raw material. The shipments of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway alone show an increase of nearly 800,000 tons for the first six months of the present year over the first half of last year. The iron ore shipments of this railroad from the Duluth docks during the first half of 1912 amounted to 2,845,478 tons, against 2,050,134 tons during the first half of the year 1911.

Duluth jobbers declare that there is no doubt at all that the volume of their business during the first half of the present year is much greater than during the first half of the year 1911. The country people, not being so hard up, their last year's crops having been comparatively good, have been much more active customers of the country stores which get their goods from the jobbing houses. If the prospects for bumper crops this fall, together with high prices for their produce, are realized, there will undoubtedly be a brisk trade for the Duluth wholesale merchants, and it would not be surprising to see the volume of business break all previous records.

Another factor that has helped to swell the bank clearings has been the increased interest of the general public in th stock exchanges, espcially th copper stock trading.

COUNCIL HAS DULL SESSION

Approves Plan to Value Tangible Property of Edison Company.

The meeting of the city council at the city hall last evening was devoid of any excitement or unusual developments.

The recommendation of the water and light committee that three appraisers be appointed to determine the value of the tangible property of the Duluth-Edison Electric company was carried without opposition. The city will appoint one appraiser, the company one and the two will agree upon a third. If they cannot make their selection in ten days a third man will be chosen by the judges of the district court.

The request of the Pittsburgh Coal company for an abatement of its bill of $838.10 for water used to put out a bad blaze on its docks last winter was referred to a committee for investigation. The water and light board stated that it had ordered the installation of a plant at New Duluth as the requisite guarantee, approximately $1,500, had been secured. The New Duluth system will be independent of the Duluth system.

* * *

The Duluth-Edison company reported that it cannot maintain lights in Fourth alley between Lake and First avenues because they are destroyed by boys in the neighborhood. The company claimed that the same condition is true at Fifth alley between Lake and First avenues east, Twenty-fifth avenue east and Second street, Fifteenth avenue east and Sixth street and Twenty-first avenue east and Second street.

* * *

A dance hall license was granted to the New Duluth Investment company after it had been explained that the corporation was but a part of a local fraternal society.

* * *

Chief Troyer recommended the passage of an ordinance giving the police power to stop football, baseball and other games on the public streets. He also asked for a better ordinance regulating dogs and believed that the hiring of a dog catcher would do much to solve a nuisance which is continually becoming greater.

* * *

City Attorney H. A. Carmichael reported to the council that he had appointed M. M. Forbes as first assistant of the legal department.

* * *

The city engineer reported on the contracts for street improvements which are under way in accordance with a resolution recently passed by the city council.

* * *

The committee on drains, sewers and sanitation will consider the report of the city engineer that $1,000 be spent on the sanitary sewer in Twenty-first avenue east from the railroad to the dock line.

* * *

The award of the contract to G. R. King for the improvement of the Upham road from Mesaba avenue to the sand pit for $4,125, was approved.

* * *

The request that the sidewalk on Fifth avenue west between Superior and Michigan streets be widened from ten to fourteen feet, was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

* * *

The board of public works reported that the petition for the paving of East Fourth street between Sixth and Fourteenth avenues east had been received, but recommended that the order for further procedure be laid over until the width of the street had been determined.

* * *

The council voted to pay teams hired by the city at the rate of 65 cents an hour.

* * *

The drinking fountain for horses which was last week moved from Fifth avenue east and Fourth street to Fourth avenue east and Fourth street was last evening changed to Piedmont avenue and Thirteenth street.

* * *

The engineer was directed to establish the grade of Fifth street from Thirty-seventh to Fifty-fifth avenues west.

* * *

The use of the council chamber was granted to the state board of auto examiners for examinations to be held here July 16. This will be the last examination of the kind to be held in this part of the state this year. Those who do not take the examinations at that time will be required to go to St. Paul to take them.

* * *

The engineer was directed to furnish an estimate of the cost of a concrete bridge on West Third street between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues.

An amendment to the dance hall ordinance, reducing the age of those who may attend public dances from 21 to 17 years of age, had its first reading.

DEFICIENCY IN JUNE RAINFALL

Month Just Ended Was Normal as to Weather.

H. W. Richardson, weather forecaster, has just issued his report on the weather in June. If Mr. Richardson is not fooling with his report blank June was an average month—just about so-so. It was not abnormal in the slightest degree, and all the kicks heard about the pile of rain that fell are not well taken. It was much less than last year, and other previous years can beat it to a frazzel. Last month only 1.32 inches fell, the greatest amount in any twenty-four hours being 34-100ths of an inch, on June 14. Last year the total precipitation for the month was 2.76 inches, and the normal rainfall for June is figured at 4.53 inches so that June of 1912 is deficient to the extent of 3.21 inches. The heaviest June precipitations recorded in Duluth are in 1874, when 10.89 inches fell and in 1880, when 10.40 inches. The accumulated deficiency since Jan. 1 from the normal fall for the period amounts to 2.73 inches.

The average temperature during June was 58 degrees, the normal for the month being 57.7. The highest temperature recorded during the past month was June 25, when the thermometer registered 92 degrees, and the lowest was on June 16, when it showed 39 degrees. The greatest daily range was on June 25, being 30 degrees, and the lowest was 5 degrees on June 14. The highest temperature recorded in Duluth in forty-two years in June was 97 degrees, and the lowest was 33 degrees.

The prevailing wind was northeast and its average hourly velocity was 12.8 miles, it's highest reachinm 43 miles per hour. There were fifteen clear days, nine were partly cloudy and six were cloudy. Fog is recorded for four days and on four days there were thunderstorms.

Aside from these little things, the month was very well behaved.

PROHIBS PROSPERING.

District Representative Finds Encouraging Indications on Ranges.

William C. Dean, representing the Prohibition party in this district of the state, feels much encouragement on the outlook for this fall's vote. He has just returned from the ranges, where he has been at work organizing for the party. He addressed the Scandinavian Grand Lodge of Good Templars at Virginia on Thursday night, spoke before the congregation of the Swedish Lutheran church at Hibbing on Sunday morning and before the Tapio Finnish Temperance society of Hibbing in the evening.

He says that the Finish temperance societies are growing and are prosperous and that they are openly indorsing the Prohibition ticket. He expects the Scandinavian societies to follow suit in a short time.

RATES FROM MISSOURI WEST UNREASONABLE.

Washington, July 2.—Class freight rates from the Missouri river and points of origin east to destinations in the Willamette valley, through Portland, Or., are held by the interstate commerce commission to be unreasonable. Reductions averaging approximately 12 per cent were ordered.

EAGLE HAS BEEN TAMED

Its Shrieks Must Be Muffled on the Fourth of July.

Tetanus Taboo and Picnics Will Prevail in Zenith City.

Fredom from her mountain height may have torn the azure robe of night and so forth but Duluth will not tear loose on the Glorious Fourth this year. Under the ordinance made and provided by the city council anybody carrying even a concealed desire to burst into patriotic exuberance is likely to be pinched. Should anybody go so far as to dare to fracture the peace and harmony of Duluth's ozone by means of firecrackers or other explosives and not show a license from the city council permitting such demonstration the city will burn enough gasoline in the tank of the official buzz wagon to transport such enthusiast to the city's remorse chamber where nothing less than an optimistc jag can find anything of a hilarious nature.

The ordinance prescribes in effect that the spirit of '76 shall be curbed to the extent of leaving dangerous explosives alone. No longer has the free and untrammelled young American the right to risk life or limb in the pursuit of happines. Tetanus is taboo.

West Duluth made application for a license to limber up, and a few weeks ago the city council granted permission. Later that permission was withdrawn because the Commercial club of that end of the city frowned on the projected scheme to bring a carnival to West Duluth and to have an old fashioned celebration. So West Duluth patriots will confine themselves to the display of flags and a fireworks display at the playgrounds at Fifty-second avenue in the evening. This will permit the residents of West Duluth to give vent to their pent-up enthusiasm by saying "ah-h-h-h" each time a rocket goes up or a thingamajig or whatjaccallit goes off.

The Northland Country club obtained permission from the council to hold a private celebration and its officials are laying in a stock of fireworks of all descriptions for the display at night. Of course the closer contact with this will be confined to members of the club and their friends but the proletariat may view it from a distance.

Aside from this there will be very little doing—nothing in a public way. The G. A. R. posts will have no program; neither will the Spanish American War Veterans. If the day is fine the usual number of picnic parties are expected to issue bravely forth and get sand and grasshoppers mixed with their lunches. Busy business men will have an opportunity to get acquainted with their families and lounge on the front porch—if they do not go fishing. Which brings to mind the fact that for the past week fishing parties for the Fourth have been forming and it is expected that every stream in the neighborhood of the city and some that are far away will be whipped to a standstill and the trout will have but little opportunity to pass the nation's natal day in seclusion.

Some of the G. A. R. men may go to Sauk Rapids to attend the gathering of the Park division encampment of the G. A. R., but owing to the many changes of cars en route a large attendance recently planned has fallen through and only a few will attend. The G. A. R. drum corps will attend the celebration at Hibbing, where it is promised, there will be a glorious time.

It is expected that the Fourth in Duluth will be "safe and sane" all right.

N. B.—There is nothing in the ordinance to prevent one waving a flag all he wants to.

AMERICANS WILL BUY NICARAGUA RAILWAY.

Washington, July 2.—The American bankers interested in the loan to Nicaragua probably will relieve the financial straits of that country by buying the government railway. The payment of the first installment, it is declared, will relieve the financial pressure which Nicaragua is now undergoing because the United States senate has not ratified the proposed loan convention.

COWBOY MAYOR VISITS DULUTH

"Jim" Dahlman, mayor of Omaha, was in Duluth for a few hours yesterday on his way to Port Arthur, Ont., where he has business interests. Nothing more significant than that marked his visit here. Mayor "Jim" is one of the most picturesque characters in the West and is known throughout the length and breadth of the land as "the cowboy mayor." He has served his time as a cowpuncher and the characteristics of the trade still stick to him.

Once a close friend of William Jennings Bryan, he is now his enemy. For, he it remembered, Mayor Dahlman wanted to run for governor of Nebraska at the last election, but Mr. Bryan could not see it and withheld his support. Also Mr. Bryan worked for county option, which was without the pale so far as Mayor Dahlman is concerned.

BUBONIC PLAGUE IN PORTO RICO CONFIRMED.

San Juan, Porto Rico, July 2.—The American medical officers who arrived here June 27 to assist the Porto Rican authorities in stamping out the plague, in a report to Acting Governor Carrol, confirm the findings of the insular physicians that true bubonic exists. The opinion is expressed that the disease can be controlled and finally eradicated if the methods which are now being applied to stamp it out are carried into effect rigorously. The total number of cases so far recorded is thirty-one, with seventeen deaths.

Summer Warmth on Winter Days

THIS is a big point of superiority with the Campbell System—the heat is moistened. It leaves the skin in its natural condition, not wrinkled and dried out—it preserves the woodwork and furniture. The whole house is warm and comfortable, the air is pleasant to breathe, it is a delightful place to live.

CAMPBELL'S WINTER CHASER

is just what the name implies—it "chases" the winter, and brings you all the comforts of summer. Gives heat when it is most needed.

It burns its fuel by a slow and thorough combustion. The large fire-pot and water reservoir—the big air-chamber and entrance door in jacket—all are vital reasons why the Winter Chaser is best—why it insures plenty of warm, clean, moist air without waste of fuel. Will you let us explain more fully this adaptable, simple, economical heater which we guarantee?

And the maker and the man who installs it, both stand back of the job; if everything is not absolutely as agreed, the outfit will be immediately removed, and all money refunded.

WILSON MAKING "RIOT OF SILENCE"

New Jersey Governor Apparently Little Worried Over Convention.

Seagirt, N. J., July 2.—"They are coming as slowly as cold molasses," was Governor Wilson's comment upon his gain in strength at Baltimore yesterday. "But at that, we are doing better than we did last week. The Wilson lines are holding solid, the gain is very satisfactory."

Governor Wilson has become so accustomed to the suspense that he does not mind the sensation. He was in good humor all day—in too good humor to accept an invitation to act as umpire of a baseball game which the newspaper men played on his lawn. He sat on the porch and watched the game with interest, however, and when it ended after the forty-seventh run, he said that one of the plays reminded him of "Roosevelt's attempt to steal third."

To the reporters who besought an expression of his opinion on the situation, the governor declared that the only thing he could say was that he was "making a riot of silence."

During the afternoon he sent a telegram of encouragement to his New Jersey followers at the convention. Once during the day he conferred by telephone with William F. McCombe, his campaign manager at Baltimore. Several times friends called, and there were many congratulatory or advisory telegrams received. But for all this, the governor was out of touch with and apparantly little concerned in the details of the fight in which he was playing so prominent a part.

WILL PAY EXPENSES OF WILSON DELEGATES.

Seagirt, N. J., July 2.—A pledge of $5,000 to pay the bills of Wilson delegates to the Baltimore convention was made last night by Samuel Ludlow, Jr., a banker of Jersey City, and Joseph F. Bernstein, a merchant of the same place.

Governor Wilson, when asked about the "Wilson fund," said that the plan of Messrs. Ludlow and Bernstein had not been referred to him at all, and that it must be understood if they went to Baltimore, they did so without his official knowledge of their mission.

The governor said that he would not go to Trenton today to observe the "weekly governors' day, but would remain at his summer home here, following the Baltimore bulletins.

desertions from their wavering ranks. They saw their strength wane from 469 votes on the twenty-seventh ballot to 422 on the thirty-ninth, while Wilson was crawling up from 406¾ to 501½. Then, when all seemed lost, the tide turned and the speaker made slight gains, while the New Jersey governor was slipping back on the last three ballots. On the final poll Wilson had 494 against 430 for Clark.

Illinois Wavering.

Several times yesterday, Clark was on the verge of losing the fifty-eight votes which the Illinois delegation had given him from the outset. The Wilson adherents were confident that the expected switch would come on the first ballot taken today. With Illinois taken away, they felt that the Clark rout would be complete and that only a few more ballots would be necessary to win over the remaining votes necessary to their success.

On the other hand, Clark followers appeared confident that the Wilson assault had spent itself and that the deserters would return soon to the fold, bringing many others with them. They so assured the speaker himself, who was in Baltimore last night for a conference in regard to the situation. This assurance is said to have served to dissuade Mr. Clark from his purpose of appearing personally before the convention to answer the statements of Bryan.

Underwood Men Holding.

Oscar W. Underwood has continued to rank third in the voting, and neither of the two leading candidates has been able to make serious inroads on his strength. Friends of the Alabaman insist that he is the only man whose nomination would bring all factions together.

Indiana has dropped Governor Marshall and has gone over to Wilson, but Massachusetts clings to its "favorite son," Governor Foss, and is urging him as the best vote getter among the dark horses. Ohio has not yet given up hope for Governor Harmon, although his supporters admit that there is slim chance that he will be nominated.

Gaynor or Kern.

The names of Senator John W. Kern of Indiana and Mayor W. J. Gaynor of New York were discussed more frequently than ever today. The more radical anti-Bryan delegates expressed themselves as strongly opposed to Kern because they regard him as Bryan's candidate, but others, supporters of both Wilson and Clark, appeared to regard him with more favor. As to Mayor Gaynor, a New Yorker, it is significant that Mr. Bryan yesterday added him to his list of "available candidates."

Not since 1860 has a Democratic convention balloted as many as forty-three times without nominating its candidate for president. In that year, in Charleston, S. C., on the fifty-seventh ballot there was no choice, and the convention adjourned to meet in Baltimore, where Douglas was nominated on the second ballot, with John C. Breckenridge second.

Some Getting Discouraged.

Unless the convention made a nomination for president today, it was asserted this morning by leaders that a majority of the delegates would regard the situation as practically hopeless. Some of them went so far as to admit privately that they feared the convention would have to adopt some other means of selecting a candidate, either through a fortnight's recess of the present convention or through a mass meeting to be held later. Little consideration has been given to William Jennings Bryan's proposal that a general presidential preference primary be held.

Many leaders, however, held that a nomination would be made today. They pointed to the fact that Illinois' 58 votes would be swung to Wilson, the delegation early this morning having voted 40 to 18 to switch from Clark. The Clark forces declared that the switch was with their consent and would be made to demonstrate the impossibility of Wilson's gaining the nomination. This view was not shared generally, however, and many professed to believe the Illinois vote would start a rush to the New Jersey man because of the temper of the delegates and their desire to get away.

Puzzled Over New York.

Wilson leaders were puzzled by the attitude of the New York delegation, but the ninety votes of the state were generally believed to be held in reserve for Underwood and appeals from Wilson men to swing with Illinois encountered deaf ears.

At the same time it was thought that should the time come when New York's ninety would determine the nomination, they would be cast for that candidate.

Some of the Wilson men would not credit the authenticity of the report that Illinois had switched.

"We've heard that before," said one, "but the next ballot always went 58 for Clark."

Two caucuses were held by the Illinois delegation. At the first, which was called at 10 o'clock last night, it was decided to continue for a few more ballots with Clark, but after the midnight adjournment of the convention the delegates again took up the discussion.

A long discussion resulted in a decision that the time had arrived when a change should be made. Roger Sullivan, chairman of the delegation, declared that it was absolutely certain Clark could not regain his lost strength and that the delegation should go to Wilson in time to make the change effective.

Douglass Patterson, a staunch supporter of Mr. Clark, vigorously opposed the proposition, and even after the vote had been taken said that another caucus would be held and the break to Mr. Wilson prevented.

Taggart Predicts Decision.

Former National Chairman Taggart of Indiana said that a nomination would probably be made during the day.

"There comes a time in every deadlocked convention," said he, "when delegates set aside personal preference and join with the majority rather than hold out any longer. I think that time is here. It may be that a two-thirds of this convention will keep it deadlocked, but I doubt it."

"We must conclude today," he said, "for the delegates will not stay any longer."

Former Governor McCorkle of West Virginia was one of the few prominent members of the Clark camp who appeared sanguine that the speaker would pick up the votes he had lost and enough more to secure the nomination.

The Wilson forces asserted that the momentum of their constant attacks and the steady increase in their ranks had made their campaign one of offense and not defense, and that if the Illinois delegation carried out an intension to transfer from the Clark forces and joining those of the New Jersey governor, it will point the way for other delegations to do likewise.

Wilson Today If Not At All.

Leaders of the Wilson campaign admitted today that the time had arrived when one of two things would have to be shown within a dozen or so calls of the roll—either that Wilson was to be carried to final victory or that he had about reached the high tide of his strength. If victory was to come, the Wilson men conceded, it would be during the day.

If the day's roll calls showed that Wilson's vote was not increasing and his forces were only marking time before a retrograde movement, then the leaders at the national committee headquarters thought a dark horse might loom up suddenly and be carried to victory.

Both Wilson and Clark forces were making every effort today to induce Underwood to withdraw, on the ground that only a progressive candidate could be named, and that the 100 for the floor leader of the house represented no likely nomination and only blocked the way of breaking the deadlock. This the Underwood leaders derided.

Meanwhile the leaders directing the campaign for Mr. Clark were trying to strengthen their lines and prevent any other nomination.

Not Boasting Any.

The Wilson men smiled as they gathered for today's session, but they were not boastful. They were not able to figure out the 726 votes necessary to nominate, but most of them believed the accession of Illinois would produce the enthusiasm necessary to carry their man over.

They counted upon the return of the Michigan delegation. The vote of that state is under their strength would give almost 600 votes.

"They cannot resist us when we get 600 votes," said Senator Lea of Tennessee.

BESSIE McCOY IS TO BE MRS. DAVIS

Divorced Novelist Says They Are to Be Married July 8.

Mount Kisco, N. Y., July 2.—Richard Harding Davis, the novelist, and Bessie McCoy, the actress, are to be married on July 8, according to a statement made by Mr. Davis at his home here. Mr. Davis' first wife obtained a divorce from him in Chicago last month.

TELEGRAM THAT EXPLAINED.

New York Sun: "When you come to talk about absent-minded men," said Trixler of the Tollers club, "you should have known Smifjig. There was a man with a truant thiker in his head if there over was one—Smifjig.

"And it certainly did play hob with him by and bp. That and Hobbs. In fact if Smifjig hadn't encumbered himself with Hobbs he wouldn't have—but pshaw!

"Although Hobbs had money, plenty of it, he was an ill-bred chap and a bore, as a matter of fact Smifjig was the only one of the fellows who tolerated Hobbs. Smifjig, indeed, seemed to approve of him.

"'Why is it?' I said to Bagley one day.

"'Why is it?' said Bagley. 'It is a good sight easier for Smif to do that than it would be for him to recover from circulation a certain $500 and take up the I. O. U. that Hobbs holds against it, as Hobbs might insist on his doing. That's why is it,' said Bagley.

"That was it, eh? Huh, huh! I was sorry for Smifjig. I liked the old chap. Everybody liked Smifjig.

"Yes. The absent-mindedness of Smifjig had passed into a proverb at the club. In his distraught way he was eternally putting on other people's overcoats, hats or overshoes, or all three, and was constantly being set right by Billy, the hallboy. He became out particularly strong in the matter of correspondence. The letters that came back to him at the club from addresses that were wrong or from this person who had received a letter intended for that person were without number, and many times intending to enclose in a letter an envelope addressed to himself for a reply, he reversed the order and put the one carrying the address of his correspondent into the envelope addressed to himself and never knew it until Billy, intercepting it in the mailing, brought it back to Smif for correction. Fact was Billy came to be the guardian of Smifjig at the club.

"Hobbs had what he called a shooting box fifty miles out of town somewhere. He lived there half the year, and once by glowing accounts of the shooting and fishing he inveigled a couple of the fellows who loved such sport into going to the place as his guests. They expected to be gone a week, but they came back next day. The almost utter absence of game, the boorishness of Hobbs and the circumstances of there being nothing but a miury duck pond to fish in sent them scurrying to the first train away from there that they could get.

"Smifjig knew nothing of all this. It occurred to the days before he had taken upon himself the incumbrance of Hobbs. Then one day, after his unfortunate investment in Hobbs, Smifjig somehow fell to talking about quail shooting and how he loved it. Hobbs blurted out:

"Then come down, you, for the week end with me at my place, and shoot over it.'

"On the spur of the moment poor Smif said he would be delighted; but when he heard Hobbs ask one after another of half a dozen others of the club to come along, too, and every one of them refused point blank, he thought it odd. True, none of them owed Hobbs money, but their negatives seemed to Smif a little more positive than common civility required. So, when Hobbs was gone he asked the fellows why they had refused so curtly to accept the Hobbs bid.

"'There's worse than Hobbs,' said he. 'Why not go down and have some sport at his expense?'

"They told him why. And it saddened him.

"The more he thought of the matter the more he resolved he wouldn't go to Hobbs' for the week end. But how find an excuse for backing out? The blunt refusals of the others had very plainly made Hobbs more testy than ever, so much so that when next day Smifjig brought up the subject and hinted to him that, after all, he could not be quite sure of getting down to Hobb's place for the shooting Hobbs became suspicious at once, and emphatically alluded to the little matter of business between them, and in such a significant way that poor old Smif couldn't construe it to mean anything else but come down to the shooting box or come down with the $500, and he faltered. Hobbs very evidently did not intend to be ignored with impunity.

"Smifjig went to bed that night very much disturbed, but dropped contentedly to sleep after awhile, for he had thought out a plan by which he was sure he could be saved without leaving Hobbs any cause for reasonable complaint. Not only that but a plan that would be apt to get the sympathy of even Hobbs. In furtherance of it Smifjig at the club the day before the one he was due at Hobbs' shooting box wrote a telegram which read something like this:

—Theophilus Smifjig, Toilers Club, City —Evidences of apparent shortage or defalcation in B. B. & B. B. discovered. Special meeting board of directors tomorrow 10 a. m. to investigate. Attend without fail.

G. B. DE SOUZER, Sec. and Treas.

"It was Billy the hallboy's afternoon off. He was going out as Smifjig finished the telegram, and Smif handed him the message with instructions to leave it at the telegraph office for transmission. Billy took it and went his way.

"Now, Smifjig was managing director of the B. B. & B. B., which was the Bread, Bun and Biscuit Baking concern, a recently organized corporation, which, up to date, hadn't got any further along in business than a rather lively dealing in promoting its stock. But nobody at the club believed for a minute that Smifjig had the least idea in the world that folks thought that the B. B. & B. promoters were paying him that little $30 a week he was getting for being managing director because his name was Theophilus Smifjig, same name as his uncle, that well and favorably known Theophilus Smifjig, who was never heard of as being in anything that wasn't on the square. Not for a minute.

"Well, after Smifjig gave Billy the hallboy that telegram he wrote a letter to Hobbs, saying that the enclosed telegram would sufficiently explain why it would be impossible for him to have the pleasure of spending the following day with Hobbs among the quail, much to his regret at the aggravating circumstance that compelled his absence, etc. Having then settled himself to await the coming of the telegram he was to enclose in the letter for posting off to Hobbs. He waited until evening. The telegram had not come.

"Wondering at the delay and having an engagement that something happened to remind him of and which was important Smifjig gave his letter to the clerk at the office, instructing him to enclose in it the telegram when it came and post it. Then he went out to keep his engagement. An hour later he returned to the club.

"'That telegram come, Pilky?' he asked the clerk.

"'Just after you went out, Mr. Smifjig,' replied the clerk. 'I mailed it at once with the letter.'

"Smifjig chuckled and went in to dinner, there was a letter from Hobbs waiting for him. With a satisfied smile he opened the letter, but as he read the smile departed. He looked aghast.

"'Got your letter and telegram,' Hobbs wrote. 'So your secretary has cut sticks and gone with the whole shooting match, eh? And the B. B. & B. is busted higher than Gilderoy's kite! Well, if you think it is going to wipe out that little five hundred you owe me you are toddling along under a huge mistake. Unless you pay it by 3 o'clock today you can settle with my lawyer.'

"Smifjig sat dumb. Secretary cut sticks and gone? The B. B. & B. busted? What in the world could Hobbs mean? At last Smifjig came to himself sufficiently to wonder what act of absentmindedness had got him into this difficulty with Hobbs and to make some sort of move towards solving the mystery. As he was passing through the hall he met Billy.

"'D'do, Mr. Smifjig?' said Billy, smiling cheerfully. 'Lucky you sent me with that telegram, sir!'

"'Lucky?' responded Smifjig in an abstracted way.

"'Yes, sir!' replied Billy. 'I changed it for you all right. You had wrote it absentminded, you know. You was sendin' it to yourself 'stead o' to the secketary, so you was. So I changed it from you to him and sent it all right, all right. It was lucky I knowed your ways, Mr. Smifjig, wasn't it?'

"Poor old Smifjig stared at Billy a moment in an idiotic way and then with some little inkling of the situation and jamming his hat down on his head rushed for the door, exclaiming:

"'Yes, yes! Oh, yes! Mighty lucky!'

"Jumping into a cab Smifjig drove to the office of his company. The concern was busted sure enough. It turned out that the secretary had been defaulting in a small way all unsuspected and when he received through Billy the hallboy's care for Smifjig the telegram Smifjig had planned to receive himself for mailing to Hobbs he supposed that all had been uncovered. So simply gathering up all the funds in the treasury he had decamped. The president of the concern happing to discover the flight of the secretary and finding Smifjig's telegram to the secretary had telegraphed Smifjig:

Secretary cut sticks and run away with everything. B. B. & B. busted higher than Gilderoy's kite.

"That was the telegram Pilky, clerk at the club, had received for Smif and enclosed to Hobbs in Smif's letter. And—well, that is how the reputation for absentmindedness he had established stepped in and played hob with poor old Smifjig."

desire was to eradicate every vestige of sectional feeling, which had been demonstrated by the liberal support given the Alabama candidate.

"But I think the time has come to recognize that he cannot be nominated in this convention, nor can he be used to defeat any other candidate," Bankhead proceeded.

"No!" shouted Bankhead. "He will not turn from the important duties he is performing to take such an office as vice president."

Underwood would remain where he was, doing his great constructive work, Bankhead continued, and he expressed the hope that no one would further urge the Alabama candidate for vice president.

"Mr. Underwood directs me to withdraw his name from this convention," said Bankhead, amid impressive silence, adding a tribute of thanks from Underwood for the sincere and loyal support given him. He added that all his friends were now at liberty to vote for whom they pleased.

Senator Stone, in Champ Clark's interest, also mounted the platform for a statement.

Stone said delegations were perfectly free to vote for whom they chose, but the Missouri delegation would vote for Clark on all ballots regardless of what others might do.

Congressman Fitzgerald of New York spoke from the platform, presenting the view of the New York delegation under the fast changing conditions. Fitzgerald moved that the roll call be dispensed with and nomination be made by acclamation.

The convention rose en masse as New York's spokesman moved Wilson's nomination by acclamation. A frenzy of cheers swept the floor and galleries. Delegates stood on their chairs, waving hats and flags.

An interruption came when Senator Reed of Missouri protested against the vote by acclamation, and urged the claims of Speaker Clark to that honor. The objection necessitated a roll call and the forty-sixth ballot was ordered by Chairman James.

Great confusion interrupted the roll call. Bell of California attempted to explain California's vote and was howled down. The convention was eager to hear the announcement of Wilson's nomination. which had now become apparent.

Bryan was a center of interest as Wilson's nomination became certain. He said he had wanted most of all the nomination of a progressive.

When Missouri voted for Clark the delegation gave a cheer which was echoed in the galleries.

California stood by Clark to the last, but announced it would move after the ballot to make the nomination unanimous.

Senator Stone of Missouri, however, moved to make the nomination of Woodrow Wilson by acclamation, which was done, the New Jersey man being unanimously nominated.

The convention then adjourned until 9 p. m., when nominations for vice president will be made, and a platform will be adopted.

Chairman James formally declared Woodrow Wilson the nominee of the convention for president of the United States at 3:35 p. m. There was a tremendous demonstration. Cheer after cheer swept the hall and was taken up by the crowds outside.

Next order of business will be nominations for vice president. Prominently mentioned were Governor Marshall of Indiana, Governor Burke of North Dakota, Representative Henry of Texas and Senator Kern of Indiana.

At noon the main body of delegates were in place, but Chairman James had not appeared. The galleries were well filled, eager and expectant.

The forty-third ballot was ordered at 12:16 p. m. Preceding the ballot the New York delegation decided in caucus to continue to cast its ninety votes for Clark. The vote in the caucus showed for Clark 78, for Wilson 10, and for Underwood 2.

As the forty-third ballot proceeded, Wilson gained two Clark votes from Connecticut.

Illinois' individual standing was announced as Clark 18, Wilson 40, but under the unit rule the solid vote was cast for Wilson. A demonstration followed.

Wilson gained 8 more Clark votes from Michigan.

Both Virginias for Wilson.

Virginia cast its solid 24 votes for Wilson, amid a storm of cheering. Chairman Swanson of Virginia said Virginia acted in view of the emergency which had arisen, and while the delegation had been divided, it had now determined to apply the unit rule, giving Wilson a solid vote.

Colorado Shifted.

On the forty-fourth ballot Colorado shifted to Wilson, giving him 10, to 2 for Clark.

Wilson gained steadily as the forty-fourth ballot progressed. Mississippi, thus far solid for Underwood, announced a caucus and was passed.

Wisconsin also went solid for the first time for Wilson with 26 votes.

Utah was solid for Wilson for the first time with 8 votes.

The forty-fourth ballot, official, was: Total, 1,088; Clark, 306; Wilson, 629; Underwood, 99; Harmon, 27; Foss, 27.

Washington Stood Pat.

Washington's vote on the forty-fourth ballot was questioned and a poll ordered which led to much discussion and delay. The poll of Washington's vote resulted: Clark, 8½; Wilson, 3½; two absent. Under the unit rule the 14 votes were cast for Clark.

GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE.

New York Evening World: Mrs. Florence R. Jackiteh has been granted a divorce in Denver because her husband tore down and trampled under his feet a small American flag she had hung at half mast at their home on Decoration day.

Her former husband was a soldier in the Spanish-American war, and for that reason his succesor objected to her patriotism.

THE VITAL QUESTION.

Boston Transcript: Elmer E. Brown, the new chancellor of New York university, tells the following anecdote: "Near the approach of the final examinations a professor was cautioning his class against neglecting a thorough review of the semester's work and was pointing out in a general way what the examination would cover. 'I'll pause now to answer any questions,' the professor added, 'and then I must go and prepare the examination papers and hurry them to the printer.'

"There was a moment of silence. 'I'm ready to answer any questions,' the professor repeated, smiling around encouragingly. Then in the back of the room a thoughtful looking student with solemn face arose. Said he: 'If I may ask, who is the printer?'"

A ROMANCE OF ROYAL WINE.

London Daily Chronicle: The auction sale room has furnished many little romances, and now one has fallen to the lot of the wine trade. A few days ago the attention of a "taster" attached to a West end firm was called in a London saleroom to a sample bottle of a consignment. It could not be described in other terms than a bottle of mud, for it was a dense brown mass of semi-liquid character with a strange musty fungold smell.

The catalogue afforded no clew as to its character, for it was described as "fifteen dozen of Moselle" (which it most certainly was not) "fifteen years in bottle and then lying in a private cellar at Bath. No further enlightenment could be obtained from the auctioneer nor could a better sample be obtained.

The mysterious lot was knocked down to the taster, whose curiosity was aroused, at 10 shillings per dozen, and after consulting with his principals the opinion was formed that it might be some of the royal imperial dry tokay which is the exclusive property of the emperor of Austria, reserved for royal consumption, and regarded as one of the most valuable presents that the empress sends to other royal houses.

It was estimated that the original quantity which the vendor possessed was an aum or cask of thirty gallons. It would when bottled make the specified dozen, and allow for about a dozen bottles containing the lees or sediment, one of which was no doubt the sample submitted at the sale.

The consignment was brought up from Bath, and a special sitting of the directors of the firm, the manager, and the expert taster was held. In solemn silence a bottle was uncorked, and the wine—pale and brilliantly clear—was unanimously pronounced to be the royal tokay, the trade value of which is not less than a guinea and a half a bottle.

No doubt the original owner was some diplomatist to whom the wine had been given as a mark of imperial favor.

ANTICS OF THE HOUN' DAWG.

New York American: "Yes," said the returned pilgrim the other day, "Arkansaw certainly lives up to its reputation for lean and lanky creatures.

"Last week I was riding along a dusty road, when I came to a cabin set in a clearing. A lean, bony man sat out in front, smoking a corncob and gazing at invisible things. Two or three long-legged, skinny fowls pecked listlessly about the yard and occasionally a pig built like a pumpkin seed slid between the pickets and went under the house to lie down in the shade.

"Out in the dusty road a lean, rickety dog walked around and around, bristles up, apparently growling at his shadow.

"I went in and got a drink of water. Looking back I saw the dog still going through his peculiar maneuvers.

"'Say,' I said to the native, 'what's the matter with your dog—going mad?'

"The old man looked over that way. "'Don't see nothing wrong with him,' he said.

"'But,' says I, 'look at him! He walks around and around, growling at his shadow!'

"The native looked indifferently at a crawling grasshopper and lost interest again.

"'Stranger,' he said, 'that ain't no shadder—that's another dog.'"

GERMANY AS A SEA POWER.

Commodore W. H. Beehler, U. S. N. (retired), in the Century Magazine: The policy of providing for Germany's future on the sea is the natural result of the enormous strides made by the population of Germany. Except a few South Sea islands and tropical parts of Africa, there remain no territories for the Germans to colonize; so their future is necessarily linked with the sea. In the last twenty years the German seafaring population has increased much more than that of any other nation. Only fifty years ago there were comparatively few German ships, the German flag was seldom seen at sea, and there was no German navy. Only a few ships of the free cities and of Prussia were afloat.

The emperor desires a navy as thoroughly efficient and formidable as the German armies. All the military service laws apply to the navy; but his real object is to promote commercial interests. He is much more a "trade lord" than a "war lord." He does not wish war; but by being well prepared, Germany has had no war since she became an empire.

Develop the Merchant Marine.

The development of the German merchant marine and shipbuilding industries has been the goal of her naval policy, and their intimate co-operation has justified the expense of the navy and enabled Germany to reach the second rank in naval power. Commercial competition will cause jealousies, but as war will injure commerce more than anything else, it is Germany's paramount policy to avoid war.

Germany's marvelous commercial development has caused jealous rivals to impute all kinds of motives to Germany's naval policy, which has for its object the keeping of Germans attached to Germany. The foolish fear has been expressed that Brazil, Mexico and other American states would by settlement become German colonies; but this is impossible, since German immigrants become the best kind of citizens of any country of their adoption.

They are a freedom loving people, and while they reverence the ancient aristocratic traditions of the fatherland, and believe that system the best for Germany, with its environment, they do not wish to apply those feudal conditions to an adopted country. Such immigrants do not come from the nobility, but from the sturdy middle classes, actuated by the purpose to prosper according to merit, without the aid of inheritance or family advantage.

The German-Imperial Navy in 1912.

The German naval program provides that the navy shall consist of thirty-eight battleships, twenty large armored cruisers and thirty-eight cruisers, to be in active service by 1917. All of these ships are to be modern in every respect, as no vessal more than 20 years old is considered efficient, and such must be replaced by a new ship.

As the eight battleships still building will be complete within a year, the prescribed strength of thirty-eight will have been attained five years ahead of the program, but there is agitation in the Reichstag for an enlarged program, consisting of fifty-eight battleships and other ships in proportion, which seems likely to be adopted.

The German navy has 138 destroyers, ranging from 300 to 680 tons, and the law provides for building twelve torpedo boat destroyers annually.

There are twelve submarines and the reichstag appropriated $6,750,000 last year for additional submarines.

The Mine-Laying Vessels.

The mine-laying vessels that have in recent years been developed are assuming great importance. The available vessels of the Hamburg-American line and the North German Lloyd place a formidable fleet for this service. The submarine mine development has reached a high state of efficiency, but details of this service are kept secret. The fact that such mines can be laid out in a consecutive stream at the rate of one a minute and form a barrier with electro-contact mines anchored in one hundred fathoms of water and made to float ten feet below the surface of the sea, would make the approach of any fleet to the coast a very precarious proceeding unless the region were thoroughly reconnoitered by a flotilla of submarines ahead of the attacking fleet.

The personnel of the German navy is trained constantly for immediate war service, and ships not actually cruising are kept in reserve, so that trained men in business may at any time be summoned by telegraph and immediately repair to their designated stations in forming the crews of such reserve ships. The seafaring population is in categories of reserve, exactly as in the army and thus forms a counterpart to the resources of the army, so that Germany is virtually a nation in arms both on land and at sea.

Night fishing is prohibited on the Thames.

The amounts paid in fines by those convicted amounted to over $1,100. Each of three men went to the county jail for ninety days each and one for thirty days.

The warden on Sunday made seizures of over 400 pounds of undersized fish belonging to fishermen at Long lake, chiefly rock and black bass and croppies, and other arrests are likely to follow.

SPOONER ON RANGES.

Candidate for Governor to Make Campaign There.

Hibbing, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. J. Pilkey of Minneapolis, one of the old timers on the Mesaba range, spent yesterday here in the interests of L. C. Spooner, gubernatorial candidate. Mr. Pilkey announces that Mr. Spooner is to make a personal campaign of all the range towns and will hold meetings here later in the campaign. This was Mr. Pilkey's first visit to the range in twelve years. He was formerly in business here and traversed all this section long before the railroads reached here in the early days of the exploration of the iron mining properties.

CHISHOLM GIRL WEDS.

Duluth Rabbi Officiates at Notable Ceremony on Range.

Chisholm, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—With Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits of Duluth officiating in the presence of a large assemblage from local and other points, the wedding of Miss Mariesha Sapero of this place, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Sapero, old residents, to Josiah E. Brill was celebrated Sunday evening at the bride's home. The couple left after the ceremony for Chicago and other points and will return later to Minneapolis. The home was beautifully decorated. A beautiful canopy consisting of an immense Japanese parasol, covered with ferns, white roses and white carnations was suspended from the ceiling, together with French baskets filled with white peonies and ferns forming the bower under which the ceremony took place.

The party marched from the stairway through a bower of flowers and ferns, the newel post being banked with ground pine, studded with white flowers.

A violin, accompanied by the piano, played Mendelssohn's wedding march and the march was taken up by the bridal party. The party was preceded by the flower girl, Hazel Sapero, the bride's sister, who strewed the pathway with white roses. Miss Esther Sapero, another sister, was maid of honor and Mrs. Mose Sapero, the matron of honor. Abe Sapero and Mose Sapero were the best men. The bridesmaids being Miss Esther Brill and Miss Pauline Rabinovitz. The men of the bridal party were Louis Kanter, Mose Sapero and Harry Rabinovitz. Little Harlan Sapero, the bride's brother, dressed all in white, carried the ring in the heart of a rose. The bride was given away by her father and after the pronouncement of the vows by Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits, the party proceeded to the dining room, where the wedding supper was served.

VIRGINIA IS TO HEAR MUCH MUSIC

There Will Be Plenty of Harmony During Celebration of Fourth.

Virginia, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The music committee for the Fourth of July celebration has engaged the Pennsylvania Bucktall drum corps, Grand Rapids, to play the entire day. Four men of the organization, probably the only four alive live at Grand Rapids. William Weitzel is the leader and fifer. One of the drums used was made in 1774 at Germantown, Pa.

There will be plenty of music at the celebration as the drum corps, the Mohami club band, the Virginia city band and the Boys' Military band have all been hired. Chairman C. M. Dorway of the music committee states that he will also hire the Little German band which has been in the city for several days if the members will stay over until the Fourth.

All Bands in Parade.

It is intended to have all the bands in the parade which commences at 9:30 a. m.

The parade which will be the big feature of the celebration will be headed by W. H. Eaton as marshall, mounted, assisted by Otto A. Poirier and Hugh Hartford. The judges who will pass on the displays in the parade are: S. J. Cusson, A. C. Osborrn, J. W. Murphy, B. F. Smith, Capt. A. H. Stevens, C. H. Rogers and Douglas Greeley.

TOWER PREPARING FOR CLUB MEETING

Tower, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club last night discussed plans for entertaining the St. Louis County club. It was decided to raise $250 to give the visitors a ride on Lake Vermilion and provide a banquet. Several new members joined as follows: A. R. McGuire, Jacob Schmid, K. J. Duncan, John Naslund, Arthur Nostund, Grennard Roland and Albin Fogelberg. All are prominent business men of the younger set and are identified with mining, railroad and mercantile interests.

A vote of thanks was extended Messrs. Lofgren and Olson for their activity in interesting new material in the Commercial club. The matter of dynamiting fish in Stuntz bay was called to the club's attention and the secretary was instructed to communicate the fact to Game Warden Beatty.

GRAND RAPIDS WINS.

Hill City, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Rapids and Hill City played ball here Sunday, Grand Rapids winning, 5 to 2. The game was well played by both teams, Grand Rapids showing the results of their many games played. Their fielding was much better than the locals, but the individual playing was about equal. Only one earned run is credited to Grand Rapids, the other four being on errors.

This is the fourth game for Hill City this season and the first defeat. The game showed that with the proper practice and steady playing Hill City would have a team that would rank high among the amateur teams of this part of the state. The game was 2 to 2 until the sixth inning.

GRAND RAPIDS' FOURTH.

Parade, Races, Baseball Game and Other Events.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—This village will have a sane Fourth, but there will be something doing all the time, beginning with an industrial parade in the morning, followed by baseball games between the locals and the Canistoe nine and a firemen's dance in the evening. Coleraine, Bovey, Taconite and other Western Mesaba towns are expected to send large delegations here, as will other sections of Itasca county. Substantial prizes for the finest floats in the parade are planned. The parade will be followed by races of different kinds, and the big feature of the day will be the double-header game of ball to be played between the Canisteo and Grand Rapids teams at 2 o'clock.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES.

Hibbing, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Margaret Tinkey, one of the pioneers of Itasca county, and a former resident of Grand Rapids, died Saturday at her home near Bear River after a lingering illness. Death was due to a tumor. The body was shipped from Hibbing this morning to Grand Rapids, where the funeral services will be held today.

Sturgeon Lake Fire.

Chisholm, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable mining and logging timber estimated to be worth $30,000 was destroyed by fire Saturday night, Mose Helmer, a local contractor, being the heaviest loser.

The timber was already loaded on the skids waiting for train shipment when the fire destroyed it.

Ely Hotel Closed.

Ely, Minn., July 2.—The Montroy hotel was closed here Sunday. Financial trouble is the cause assigned.

HIBBING'S FOURTH NOT NOISY AFFAIR

Hibbing, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—So far as it is possible to make it so Hibbing's Fourth of July celebration will be safe and sane to a commendable degree. Chief of Police Wring has called the attention of the public to the village ordinance regarding the discharge and sale of firecrackers. Firecrackers longer than three inches are strictly tabooed and there is only one day in the year when firecrackers of any sort may legally be set off in Hibbing. That is on the Fourth of July.

Hibbing Started Movement.

Hibbing was one of the first towns in the country to respond to the demand for a sane Fourth and for some years has had an ordinance regulating the sale of firecrackers and fireworks. As a result there is only a few pieces for pyrotechnical displays and a limited quantity of the smaller-sized firecrackers for sale in the city.

The general committee of the celebration will have a meeting this evening at which all the details of the celebration will be arranged. Father J. P. Riordan of St. Paul has been invited to deliver the address of the day. The industrial parade will be one of the big features.

BUFFALO MINE WILL SOON BE SHIPPING

Hibbing, Minn., June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three steam shovels have been cleaning ore for the past several weeks at the Buffalo mine of the Rogers-Brown Iron company, adjoining the village Hibbing east and south of Cedar street and shipping from the open pit will begin by about the 15th of the present month. The Buffalo will probably ship about 300,000 tons this season from the pit.

The opening of the new mine gives Hibbing another of the largest and richest open pit iron mines on the Mesaba range. The ore body is one of the finest in this district, the depth of the overburden removed in spots is greater than 100 feet. The open pit property has been in course of development for about two years. The Buffalo mine has passed through several hands and at one time was considered of little value. In addition to the open pit there is an underground property which is also rich in ore and has bee successfully mined for some years.

HARNESS RACES ON NEXT SUNDAY

There will probably be three events a free-for-all, 2:40 and 2:20 pace or trot. There are at present about twenty-five harness horses being fitted at the Hibbing course for the summer campaigns and the matinee Sunday is to test the mettle of the animals who have been in the hands of the fitters and trainers for the past several months and also to give local talent an opportunity to do some speed work.

PRESIDENT ESSE PLEADS MISTAKE

Two Harbors, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sewer pipe that President Esse of the city council ordered without inviting bids, as the city charter requires, amounted to more than he expected, according to the statement he made to the council last night in reply to the resolution introduced at the last session by Alderman Christianson criticizing Mr. Esse for acting as purchasing agent for the city. He calimed there was an error which made the cost of the pipe more than he anticipated and as soon as he learned of the mistake he took steps to rectify it. Mr. Esse claimed that the criticism aimed at himself and the mayor were largely because they were Socialists.

Alderman Christianson denied Esse had taken steps to correct the error in regard to the pipe, but that, on the contrary, the pipe was not delivered because the railroad company desired the freight money first. He added to what he had previously said in criticism of Esse acting as purchasing agent. The council took no action on the matter, devoting the balance of the session to routine matters.

Gilbert Woman at Soo.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. M. L. Starchern, formerly Miss Ellis, who visited relatives and friends in Ishpeming for three weeks, has gone to Sault Ste. Marie, where she will visit Charles Farm's family for a week before returning to her home at Gilbert, Minn.

O'Malley Given Parole.

Hibbing, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A parole has been granted Edward O'Malley of Virginia, who was tried here once, the jury disagreeing, on the charge of breaking into a Virginia store. The parole is for two months. The last of the criminal cases having been tried, Judge Hughes has taken up the civil calendar and is trying a damage suit aganst the Oliver Iron Mining company for an injury alleged to have been sustained in the Chisholm district.

LIGNITE STILL BURNING.

North Dakota Coal Field Fire Not Extinguished.

Medora, N. D., July 2. — (Special to The Herald.) — Another burning coal mine has been discovered near Medora by J. M. Brady. Twenty-five years ago efforts at mining lignite in the district in question were instructed by fire, and since the tunnels of that time were closed, no sign of the fire has been seen. When workmen reached the same depth again last week, they found that the fire was still there, and there appears to be no chance to quench it.

W. C. T. U. IS AGAINST NORTH DAKOTA RACES.

Mohall, N. D., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — Women of the Mohall district W. C. T. U. have turned their attention to the racing game, and at the convention held here adopted resolutions strongly urging the strict enforcement of all racing laws of the state. They also urged the continuance of the strict regulations against the sale of liquor and the strengthening of the prohibition laws of the state wherever possible. The union also placed itself on record as being opposed to the initiative and referendum, when made applicable to the constitution.

BIG AIRSHIP AKRON BLOWS UP IN AIR

Three Thousand People See Disaster to Ocean-Going Flyer.

Tragedy Is Seen From the Boardwalk at Atlantic City.

Wife of Aeronaut Faints at Sight—Tells of Husband's Work.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 2.—In view of 3,000 spectators, the big dirigible balloon Akron was shattered by an explosion of the gastag at 6:38 this morning, half a mile off shore, over Absecon Inlet. The dead:

MELVIN VANIMAN, who had built the airship with the idea of flying across the Atlantic ocean.

CALVIN VANIMAN, Melvin's younger brother.

FRED ALMOS.

WALTER GUEST.

GEORGE BRILLIANT.

The last three constituted the crew of the Akron.

The dirigible was sailing at a height of 1,000 feet and had been in the air twenty-three minutes when the accident occurred. She was a quarter of a mile south of Brigantine beach, which is across the inlet from this city. The huge envelope, containing thousands of cubic feet of gas, was rent by the terrific force of the explosion, probably caused by expansion from the sun's rays.

Hidden in Mass of Fire.

It burst near the middle. A mass of flames hid the ship from view. For probably ten seconds the half million dollar dirigible was invisible while the air about the spot where she had been hovering seemed to be all flames. Then the fire dissipated, and the ship, outlined against the sunrise, was seen to fall like a plummet.

First the under structure, or car, in which the men were penned by a meshwork put on after the second trip of the balloon three weeks ago, broke away from the envelope. It up-ended, the bow turning first in a slow arc. Then it reversed suddenly and plunged downward. Directly above, twisting in a long spiral, was the big, smoking mass of rubber and silk, with flames shooting out from a dozen sections as it collapsed. It fluttered a moment and then streaked down after the car.

Saw Headless Body Fall.

In the descent something which appeared to be the body of a man shot out to the left of the wreckage and hit the water before the rest of the descending mass. It was reported that this was the headless body of Calvin Vaniman. At 8:20 a. m. a message was relayed ashore from rescuers that this body had been recovered. With it came the statement from Capt. Lambert Parker of the Absecon federal life saving crew, that this was true, and that the other four members of the crew were entangled in the wreckage, beyond reach for the present, in eighteen feet of water.

Seen by Thousands.

Thousands of persons from every part of the resort gathered along the inlet, boardwalk and about the Vaniman cottage, just across from the hangar, at the inlet where Mrs. Vaniman collapsed from the shock.

The greatest excitement prevailed for a time. Boats were darting out from the inlet and all along the shores of the thoroughfare and beach. Police reserves, who helped to launch the craft, which sailed along gracefully until the accident occurred, kept the crowds from about the Vaniman villa.

The flight was the second that the airship had taken this year. After tinkering all winter on the ship, Vaniman took the Akron out for a short flight on Saturday morning, June 1. At that time the balloon was nearly wrecked by some of the mechanism going wrong, but it was landed without serious mishap.

Had Been Improved.

The longest flight the balloon made was last fall, when it spent the greater part of the day in the air in the vicinity of this city. At that time the gas in the bag was not sufficient to keep the big ship constantly in the air, and it had to make several landings. During the winter Vaniman improved the ship through lessons learned in that flight.

In general appearance the Akron was not unlike the America, in which Walter Wellman and Vaniman attempted to cross the Atlantic ocean in October, 1910, but there were many differences in the construction. The gas bag was thirty feet longer than that of the America, but was smaller in diameter. The dimensions were: Length of bag, 258 feet; diameter, 47 feet. The bag was made of a composition of rubber and was constructed in Ohio.

Gasoline Tank in Car.

Beneath was the so-called car, similar in shape to the America's, but perhaps fifteen feet longer. The bottom of the car was composed of a steel tank, two feet in diameter and about 100 feet long. In this was stored the gasoline. The car was connected to the gasbag by steel tubing of light construction. On top of the tank was built a platform of two-inch boards, and on this rested one 100-horse power motor, two of 80-horse power, one 17-horse power motor and a small dynamo.

The 100-horse power motor was used for the two forward vertical propellers and the other two large motors for the two pairs of horizontal propellers. These propellers could be turned from the horizontal to the vertical and were to be used to raise or lower the ship. The small motor and dynamo were used for electric lighting and to furnish power to the wireless outfit. Some of the supplies of the ship were also stored on this platform. In the forward end of the platform were the steering wheels and gears for controlling the rudder and the stabilizing planes fore and aft.

Ready for Long Flight.

The disaster came as a shock to the people of Atlantic City, who had come to know Vaniman well. For a week the intrepid airman had been planning to make another flight, and only awaited favorable winds.

Last night conditions appeared satisfactory and he notified the city authorities that he probably would make a flight at sunrise today. At daybreak the conditions still were favorable and the word was given. A hundred policemen and firemen were summoned and sent up to the inlet to assist in getting the balloon out of the immense hangar.

Hundreds of persons who expected the flight saw the Akron come out of the hangar for the last time. The operation was a simple one and the big bag was brought out without difficulty. Once clear of the shed, Vaniman jumped into the car where the other four men had already gone, and gave the word to "let go."

Instantly the ship rose, slowly at first, and swaying from end to end. Then she rose rapidly. Vaniman appeared to have complete control, and after circling about over the inlet and the mainland the ship's nose was pointed out to sea.

Story of Witness.

"When about 1,000 feet in the air I saw a sudden puff of smoke from the forward end of the gas bag. In a minute it exploded.

"To those who have witnessed the earlier flights of Vaniman this one seemed at the start more successful than any yet attempted. The crew seemed to have better control than ever before. Starting out from the hangar, the ship rose slowly from the ground and passed easily out over the water of the inlet, grazing the masts of the fleet of yachts anchored there.

"Vaniman and his crew were cheered by a number of fishing parties at the inlet about to start out for a day's sport. The whistles of a fleet of motorboats sounded a 'godspeed' to the airship and its crew.

Made Complete Circle.

"After getting up about 200 feet the ship made a complete circle of the waters of Grassy bay. Apparently Vaniman was making a test of the air currents The airship passed over the Royal Palace hotel and then flew over the southern section of the city.

"Soon after the puff of smoke was seen the men on the airship were seen gathered together on one side of the craft. The spectators, however, did not realize that anything had happened until suddenly the huge bag was seen to buckle from the two ends, forming a perfect 'U.' There was no report, but immediately the collapsed bag fell toward the ocean with frightful velocity.

"The forms of the five men could be plainly seen plunging down through the air from the great height, their bodies turning over and over again before they sank into the sea just off the outer bar and not far from a can buoy. From the boardwalk, abreast of the life saving station, it looked as if the now limp gas bag and its metal framework covered their bodies.

Turned From the Sight.

"Men on the boardwalk turned their eyes from the sight and women screamed. One man who appeared to grasp the situation made a dash for a hotel to telephone for help. A large launch on the way to the fishing ground started to blow her whistle to attract the attention of the other boats, and in a short time the inlet waters were black with boats rushing to the aid of the men."

Vaniman, because of his genial disposition, had endeared himself to the citizens of Atlantic City, and his untimely end caused universal sorrow here. To a reporter who recently interviewed him he expressed the greatest confidence in the Akron to "make good." He was keenly aware of the dangerous nature of the gas used for inflating the bag, but he felt that it was safe from explosion, as no flame could reach it.

One theory of the cause of the explosion was that gasoline used for operating the engines exploded, and in turn communicated to the gas in the balloon.

Vaniman had recently been testing an entirely new material for the gasbag. It is reinforced with wire, and Vaniman claimed that with it he could construct a balloon that would neither expand nor contract, thus producing a dirigible that would be absolutely under the control of engines and steering apparatus.

Dispensed With Wireless.

On his last two trips Vaniman dispensed with the services of his wireless telegraph operator and had removed the apparatus, thus giving his crew additional room in the working quarters.

That somebody had let too much free gas into the engines and backed up the exhaust, was the theory of Chief Black of the fire department, who was on hand with his men to help in launching the balloon.

"I had no idea there was anything wrong until I suddenly saw the smoke change to flame and saw the entire rear end of the big gas bag go up as though by an explosion," he said. "We heard the screams of the men. The sight was awful. The big balloon dipped down by the stern and started toward the earth at a terrific rate. I turned my head away but the screams of the crowd forced me to turn back, and I saw the balloon collapse and dive down toward the water."

Theory of Disaster.

Another theory of the cause of the disaster is that a dangling rope of the rigging dragged into the big propeller, whipped up against the stern end of the balloon and snapped off enough of the cone to free the gas, allowing the vapor to sweep into the engines and explode.

Three of the widows of men killed in the air are Mrs. Vaniman, Mrs. Bourtillon and Mrs. Elmer. They had gathered at the Vaniman cottage, across from the hangar, within an hour after the accident. Outside the little cottage was a crowd of probably 10,000 persons, women, children a d men.

Mrs. Vaniman, although she fainted on the porch of her little dwelling when she saw her husband dropping to his death, stood the strain better than the others after she finally became conscious and was upon her feet. Mrs. Bourtillon and Mrs. Elmer cried on Mrs. Vaniman's shoulder.

Wife Saw Vaniman Fall.

"He was so very brave," she said, "that I believe he never knew what fear was. I never presumed to urge him not to go up, for I knew it would not influence him. It will be more exact to say that he would not even hear what I said. He was devoted to his work, and flight in the air, however dangerous, was to him merely an incident. It was a step in the science of air navigation, which he studied when he was awake and dreamed of when he slept.

"When he left me at 2 o'clock this morning I had a forewarning of trouble.

"Yes, I saw them fall. I saw one man jump. Something tells me that it was my husband. I saw him spread out in the air, flat, as he fell and then —oh! I can scarcely speak of it—all grew dark before me. They were so high in the air—it must have been a thousand feet.

"I now remember that the car turned with one end downward and it shot to the sea like a cloth, all in a string.

Has Encouraged Him.

"All these years of my husband's struggles I planned with him; I shared his troubles and did what I could to encourage him.

"At times, in Europe, things were depressing. Mr. Selberling of Akron, however, has been a splendid friend. We have never heard from him one word except in praise.

"This Akron he was using for experiment only in a field that he believed already past in the science of aeronautics. His particular reason for going up today was to try out a contrivance he had for estimating speed, an invention of his own, based on measurements of the image on the ground glass of an inverted camera showing the earth or sea moving down below."

Tide Covers Bodies.

The first rescue boat to reach the scene was in charge of Capt. Parker of the Atlantic City lifesaving station. Two other lifesavers were with him. Nothing but the remnants of the big gas bag was above the water, the machinery and heavy car having sunk. Then men poked around with a boat-hook, trying to find one or more of the bodies, but failed and decided to postpone their efforts until the tide falls this afternoon.

Selberling Is Astounded.

Akron, Ohio, July 2. — Frank A. Selberling, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, who was financing Vaniman in his attempt to fly across the Atlantic ocean, had not heard of the explosion of the Akron until informed by the Associated Press this morning.

Mr. Selberling was astounded at the news. He then hurried to a telephone in an attempt to get into communication with Atlanic City. Mr. Selberling probably will leave for Atlantic City at once.

Official Map of the Weather

RAIN

The weather continues cool. Duluth's summer climate is certainly living up to advertisements this year, and a light overcoat is still comfortable in the evenings. The weather man looks for little change during the next twenty-four hours.

A year ago today it was fair and cool.

The sun rose this morning at 4:16 and will set at 7:06, making fifteen hours and forty minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Temperatures of 90 deg. or above prevailed Monday over Manitoba and portions of the Dakotas and Western Minnesota. The disturbances centered over Saskatchewan, Utah and Arizona caused light to heavy showers throughout the Northwest, the Rocky mountains, Missouri and Mississippi valleys and southeastern states during the last twenty-four hours; heavy rains occurring at Rapid City, S. D., Moorhead, Minn., Oklahoma City, Okla., Findlay, Ohio, Paris, Ky., and Billings, Mont. Conditions favor local showers in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

NO NEED OF NEW PANAMA BONDS

Uncle Sam Has $100,000,000 on Hand and Has Saved Money.

Washington, July 2.—With nearly $100,000,000 in the cash drawer of the treasury, officials today expressed the belief that it will not be necessary to issue additional bonds for the construction of the Panama canal for nearly a year.

The purchase and building of the waterway to date has cost the United States $276,487,000. Of this amount $137,886,000 has been paid out of the general fund of the treasury and the remainder from bond issues.

Balancing its books for the fiscal year just closed, the treasury department issued a statement showing that the army cost $150,182,000 against $160,136,000 the previous year; the navy $135,556,000 against $119,938,000, and pensions $153,597,000 against $157,981,000.

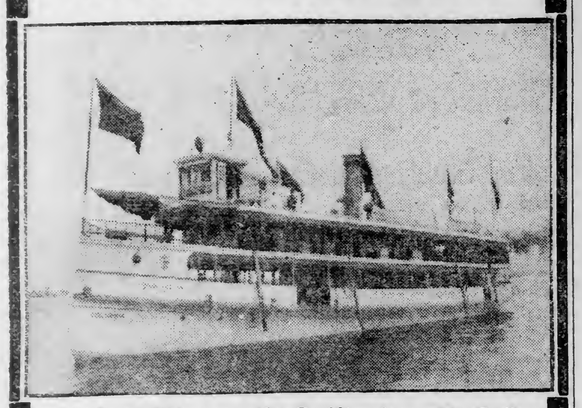

The postal deficiency for the year, according to unrevised figures, was $1,568,000, while $22,616,000 was paid out in interest on the public debt.

DULUTH PLANNING NOVEL RECEPTION FOR HOTEL MEN

COL. FRED VAN ORMAN

The Duluth Commercial club is taking an active interest in the preparations to entertain the national hotel men here on July 9. Yesterday President W. A. McGonagle of the public affairs committee appointed a hotel committee consisting of E. H. Lee, A. T. Banning, Jr., Henry Ribenack, J. D. Williams and B. Silberstein.

This committee will act with the hotel men in making the arrangements for the entertainment of the distinguished guests of the city.

Realizing that the coming of the big delegation of national hotel men is a big advertisement for Duluth, one of the best that the city could possibly receive, the Commercial club is working with the hotel men to make the occasion one that will be long remembered by the members of the visiting delegation. It is safe to saw that the hotel men and their wives will leave Duluth saying that it is one of the most hospitable cities on the North American continent.

Today J. A. Hickey, manager of the St. Louis hotel, announced that the hotel men would be the guests of the St. Louis at luncheon. The luncheon will be served in the new Woodland cafe, and Mr. Hickey is even now making elaborate preparations to make the entertainment of the visitors unique and sufficiently novel to impress upon their minds the spirit of the city at the Head of Lake Superior.

After Automobiles.

Edwin H. Lee of the Spalding has asked various business men of the city for sixty automobiles. His request has been met with a ready response upon the part of those who have cars. The automobile trip will cover the city thoroughly and will show to the hotel men every advantage of Duluth and the firm foundation it has built for its future greatness.

As the plan is at the present time, many of the prominent business men of Duluth will meet and assist in the entertainment of the hotel men. The dinner next Tuesday evening in the big ballroom of the Spalding is to be made the occasion of a meeting between some of the distinguished citizens of the city and the visitors, representing the biggest hotels in every city in the country.

All of the plans of the hotel men and the Commercial club have not been completed as yet. The hotel men have several distinct surprises in store for the visitors. It is planned to make the form of entertainment thoroughly typical of Duluth, and the dinner at the Spalding will be of the famous whitefish kind, the kind that only Lake Superior gives to the markets of the country.

In their trip across the continent the members of the big delegation of national hotel men, or the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit association, to be exact, are being made the recipients of all the honors the various cities can bestow. Various cities along the route of travel are vying with one another to outdo themselves to give the delegates a good time. According to the plans being matured Duluth will be one of the leaders in the good time shown to the hotel men.

FIGHTERS TO TALK OVER THE RULES

Johnson and Flynn Meet to Make Final Preparations for Championship.

East Las Vegas, N. M., July 2.—With a conference scheduled for tonight between Champion Jack Johnson, his opponent, Jim Flynn, and Referee Ed Smith, over the rules that will govern the coming fight, final preparations for the battle will be arranged.

Since they finished boxing a couple of days ago, both Johnson and Flynn have taken it easy. A little road work and light gymnasium exercise makes up a day's work in each camp.

It is not expected that the conference between Referee Smith and the fighters will develop much excitement, the men having already declared for considerable freedom from interference by the referee. The fighters, it is said, will stipulate that there shall be no holding and hitting, and that they must take care of themselves in the breakaway. Referee Smith will break them in event of an infraction of the hold-and-hit rule.

If you are "easily satisfied" with your boarding place, it will not be long before nothing else will matter much, either.

REDUCING LIVING COST

Speaker at Homecroft Meeting Urges Greater Efficiency in the Home.

Says Wives Should Eschew Matinee Habit and Study Home Making.

Preliminary to the summer cooking season to be held at the Irving school beginning next Monday morning, a special meeting was held for all those interested in the work, at the school assembly hall last evening. Addresses were made by Mrs. R P. Boyington, who will be in charge of the cooking classes; C. E. Roe, secretary of the American Homecroft society of Duluth, and S. A. Foster, principal of the Irving school.

A large audience heard the addresses last evening, many of those in attendance being women. Mrs. Boyington spoke on "The Birthright of a Child," in which she dwelt upon the fact that what the people have to eat matters less than how it is cooked. "The right of any child is that it should have a good sound body, a beautiful spirit, pure air, plenty of sunshine, clean food and a clean home, no matter what the size," she said. "Every mother should know how to properly care for her own children.

"It is more important for a girl to learn the care of a home and children than it is for her to spend all her time studying music and higher education. The women are too frivolous as a rule and would rather spend their afternoons at a matinee than staying at home and baking enough bread for the family. Instead they will buy ready made bread at a large cost, while their husbands slave for $60 a month. It is things like this that are entirely wrong and should be adjusted by the women themselves

Women Must Help.

"It is up to the women to help in the reduction of the high cost of living and in reality they are the only ones who are able to successfully do this. The women must get over this matinee disease, which is just as bad as the drink disease among some men. It is just as ruinous and as far reaching as the latter."

C. E. Roe spoke on "The Autocrat of the Garden," laying special stress on the point that the independence a home garden gives to every man is alone well worth the work and trouble of conducting it.

"A man and his family will enjoy the pleasures and benefits of a home garden in such a way that they will never be dependent upon anyone, and it will make them reap the real joy of living," said Mr. Roe at the opening of his address. He urged every father to start a garden and then teach his children to also become producers and independent citizens.

S. A. Foster, principal of the Irving school, made the announcement that the reason why so many boys loaf about the corners and streets is because they have nothing to do nor is there anything that can occupy their time.

"I used to think," said Mr. Foster, "that boys were slightly light in their heads when I would see them loafing about a corner. I found out later, however, that the real reason for this was that there was nothing for these boys to do. Just think what a home garden would do for the boys, who are now compelled to loaf about. A garden would interest them to such an extent that they would find pride in their work. It is the children who must be taught the 'back to the farm' movement, for the older people will never go back."

The cooking school at the Irving will start at 9 o'clock next Monday morning and classes will be held thereafter on every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. These days will alternate each week with the Salter school classes. The course will last eight weeks and will cost $1 to those who are not now members of the Homecroft society. These classes are open to all the women of the city.

This evening a preliminary meeting will be held at the Salter school at 8:30 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Mrs. Boyington, Mr. Roe and P. C. Craig, who will talk on "The Economical Value of the Homecroft Movement to the Family Unit." Mrs. Boyington will speak on "The Real Thing" and Mr. Roe's subject will be "The Man With the Hoe."

WANT OLD SCHEDULE.

Leeds, N. D., Desires Northern Pacific to Restore Schedule.

Fargo, N. D., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A matter briefly fought before the state railroad commission here today was presented by the people of Leeds and surrounding towns to try to make the Northern Pacific restore its old schedule on that branch. Some months ago the Great Northern was ordered to stop its coast trains at Leeds to make Northern Pacific branch connections. More recently the Northern Pacific made a change to get its train into Fargo early in the evening. This broke up the connections.

Traveling men who worked for years to get the earl ytrain into Fargo are helping to oppose the change back to the old time card. The board took the matter under advisement.

The Famous Group of Pianola Pianos

Six of these are Pianola Pianos and are the only player-pianos legally entitled to be called Pianola Pianos, for they are the only instruments which contain the real Pianola action and patented features, such as the

METROSTYLE
—the only device known which furnishes a positive guide to correct musical expression, which either enables you to interpret every selection, either as the composer or some great artist has interpreted it, or, as your own musical ideas suggest; the

SUSTAINING PEDAL DEVICE
—which enables even the musical novice to make artistic use of the piano's sustaining pedal; and the

THEMODIST

GRADUATED ACCOMPANIMENT

The seventh instrument in the group is the Technola Piano, a player-piano of slightly lower cost than the Pianola Piano, but of exceptional quality.

The Complete List of These Instruments Comprises:

Steinway Pianola Piano.....$1,250
Weber Pianola Piano.....$1,000-$1,100
Steck Pianola Piano.....$850
Wheelock Pianola Piano.....$775
Stuyvesant Pianola Piano.....$675
Stroud Player Piano.....$450

Sold in Duluth Only By SMITH & ALLEN,

ALLEGED FORGER QUICKLY CAUGHT

International Falls, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. C. Barr, who is alleged to have passed forged papers here and in Ranier, had a hearing here yesterday and was bound over to the district court in $500 bail.

He was arrested Sunday in Fort Frances by Chief White and brought across the river. It is alleged he forged the name of Rev. Father Killeen to a draft for $50 drawn on the Parochial Publishing company of Albert Lea, which he claimed to represent, and passed it.

The Bank of Ranier when handling the paper became suspicious and telephoned here. As soon as the forgery was discovered an officer went after Barr, located him in Fort Frances and rushed across the river. Proprietor Harrison of the International Buffet here, also claims Herr passed a worthless $35 draft on him. Barr waived examination when arraigned and is in jail in default of bonds. He claimed to be getting up a directory of the Catholic parishes of the state and through such representations made the acquaintance of Father Killeen whose name he tried to use.

Two centuries before Christ, fires had been lighted on a tower near Alexandria, Egypt, as a warning to mariners.

DECISION ON GRAIN ELEVATING

A dispatch from Washington gives the news that the interstate commerce commission today made a decision extending territory in which allowances may be paid by the railroads to shippers for elevation of grain so as to include not only the Missouri river cities but grain markets on the Great Lakes, on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and at Chicago.

While this has no immediate application in Duluth for the reason that the allowances have been made here only in a few scattering cases, shippers to this market and grain men here feel interested in the outcome of the matter, which has been fought through the interstate commerce commission, the commerce court and the supreme court. Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago have been interested chiefly in the case. Last year there were more cases than during any other one period at the Head of the Lakes because of the large amount of bonded grain received here.

These allowances to shippers perhaps need explanation to the general public and C. F. Macdonald secretary of the board of trade, furnishes such an explanation by stating a hypothetical case:

If a country shipper sent grain to Kansas City and did not wish to lose the use of the cars by letting them go further with the grain, it would be transferred there. The shippers have claimed that this is an accommodation to the railroads and claimed allowances. The matter has been tested in the courts and the plan has been sanctioned.

The interstate commerce commission in its decision today holds that one-fourth of a cent a bushel would be a fair compensation for transportation elevation at those markets and that for both transportation elevation and commercial elevation the compensation should be three-fourths of a cent a bushel.

The following charges for various commercial processes through which grain is put in transit were recommended by the commission:

Storage—For each ten days or part thereof, and after the first ten days, ¼c a bushel.
Clipping, ¼c a bushel.
Cleaning, ¼c a bushel.
Mixing, ½c a bushel.
Sulphuring, ½c a bushel.
Drying, from 1 to 1½c a bushel.
Sacking, ½c a bushel. Sacks and strings to be furnished by owners of grain.

The order in the proceeding will be withheld until reasonable opportunity has been afforded railroads and shippers to adjust their affairs on the basis recommended by the commission.

Congressional Investigators Shown Flashlight of the Judge.

New Evidence of Intoxication Promised at Seattle Hearing.

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—The committee of the house of representatives investigating charges against United States Judge Cornelius Hanford, continued to hear testimony today regarding occasions when the judge was said to have been intoxicated.

The committee was inclined to go deeply into testimony regarding the judge's supposed visits to a woman living in a fashionable residence district. A flashlight, said to be a picture of Judge Hanford, taken by a detective as he was entering the woman's house at night, was submitted as evidence. Hanford's attorneys cross examined the detective until members of the committee objected, declaring there was no intention of making the detective's report of the record and that the committee did not wish to probe the matter.

Judge Hanford's accusers declare they will bring further evidence of his having been intoxicated in public places.

A. J. Nordskog until two weeks ago an employe of a detective agency, was on the stand most of yesterday afternoon and told of occasions when he claimed he had seen the judge intoxicated.

Three Drown in Mississippi.

La Crosse, Wis., July 2.—Joseph Haler, Soldier's Grove; W. A. Hill, St. Louis, and Charles, Hollander, Finlang, Germany, members of a party of seven, all government employes, were drowned in the Mississippi river between here and Prarie du Chien Sunday by the capsizing of a launch during a severe wind and electric storm.

EDUCATOR GOES ALONE TO DIE

Sees Doctor and Then Engages Room Without Wife's Knowledge.

Philadelphia, July 2.—Rev. Rees Willmer Perkins, president of Leland university, New Orleans, and a noted Baptist preacher, writer and educator, was found dead here during the night, but was not identified until today. Death was due to heart disease.

Leland university is closed for the summer, and Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were on a visit to this city, intending to remain some time. Yesterday he told his wife he was going to a meeting of clergymen and that was the last she saw of him. Friends today learned that he had visited a physician's office and had complained of feeling ill. The doctor told him that his heart was bad.

During the night the body of an unidentified man was found dead in a rooming house, death having occurred some time before the discovery was made. The body was taken to the morgue, and identified there today as that of Mr. Perkins.

Mr. Perkins was 65 years old. He was educated at Bucknell university and taught in the schools of Leckhaven, Pa., before becoming president of Leland university.

FRAUD LAID TO CITY OF OMAHA

Buyer of Bonds Has Instituted Suit for $14,000.

New York, July 2.—A suit against the city of Omaha, Neb., has been started in the state supreme court here by Clarence H. Venner of C. H. Venner & Co., a Wall street banking concern, whose complaint charges that the city owes him $14,000 because he bought its bonds to the extent of $600,000 on alleged misrepresentations sent broadcast in a circular said to be issued by Omaha and distributed by Fred H. Cosgrove, comptroller of the city.

Venner states in his complaint that the representations in the circular as to the value of the assessed property in the city of Omaha and the tax rate are fraudulent. Had the representations made been true, he said, he would have been able to sell the bonds within thirty days at a profit of $9,000. He sues for the $9,000 anticipated profit and the $5,000 advanced in part payment for the bonds.

YEAR IN JAIL AND FINE OF SIX CENTS

Minimum Sentence Given to Preacher Convicted of Causing Girl's Death.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 2.—Rev. Dr. W. D. McFarland, a prominent educator, who was found guilty of causing the death of his secretary, Elsie Dodds Coe, by an operation, was sentenced today to serve one year in jail, and fined 6¾ cents, with costs.

In submitting its verdict the jury recommended McFarland to the extreme mercy of the court, which passed the minimum penalty in the old common law of the state requiring that a fine must be more than 5 cents.

Lamb's Body Not Found.

Brainerd, Minn., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of William Henry Lamb, nephew of Mrs. W. H. Gemmell, who was drowned in the Mississippi river Sunday morning, has not yet been recovered. It is believed the remains have caught in the buried logs on the bottom or else are whirling in some eddy of the river.

VENTED SPITE WITH DYNAMITE.

Los Angeles Times: Because, he says, he refused to sell a couple of hunters a part of his limited supply of provisions, H. L. Willard, a lonely rancher of the Elizabeth Lake Canyon district, was blown up by a stick of dynamite placed in a hollow tree stump which he attempted to burn. He was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon with his left hand torn to tatters.

Three times while walking from his ranch to that of T. W. Taylor, eight miles distant, Willard says he fainted. Half a dozen times he forded the Elizabeth Lake creek, which flows into the Santa Clara river.

From the Taylor ranch Willard was brought to the city. Taylor made the forty-four miles in three hours and a half, reaching the hospital at 3:45 o'clock. Willard lay on an improvised bed in the bottom of the motor car, too weak from loss of blood, lack of food and pain to assume a sitting posture.

"Two men came to my place yesterday afternoon," said Willard. "They accepted my hospitality. They said they were hunters and had run out of provisions. They asked me to sell them some of mine. I was forced to decline because my stock was running low.

"During our conversation I told them that this morning I intended burning a stump of a hollow tree. The men left quite angry with me.

"About 4 o'clock this morning I started the fire to burn the stump. While poking at it, it blew up, tearing my hand to pieces. Afterward I found the stick of dynamite which I had previously prepared for blasting purposes was missing.

"I wrapped my injured hand in a cloth," continued Willard, "and started down the rough trail to the Taylor ranch. It is the roughtest eight miles in the state. Twice I fainted. How long I lay on the trail I do not know. By the time I reached the Taylor ranch I was so weak I fainted the third time."

Assisted by Mrs. Taylor, the man's torn hand was redressed, and the 44-mile dash to the city was begun.

The matter was placed in the hands of the detectives, who will make an effort to establish the identity of the hunters.

EARLY RISING IS A BAD HABIT.

Boston Evening Transcript: No topic is so sure to infuriate everyone as early rising. Partly because an uneasy notion lurks in all of us that it is a duty, or, if not, then at least, a virtue, and one which few of us cultivate.

In winter we tell one another that early rising in cold weather, besides being an incredible hardship, is positively dangerous, and cite grisly cases of men who have crippled themselves with rheumatism by getting up in the frosty darkness of 5 o'clock.

To salve conscience it is added that we enjoy, on the other hand, leaping out of bed at daybreak in summer.

No other trifling act of living excites such reluctance, such groans, as prying oneself out of bed. It is a symbol of our whole repugnance toward change. Sleep and waking; life and death. We are indignant at being born, and fight against dying. As Lear says:

We came crying hither:
Thou know'st, the first time that we smell the air
We waul and cry.

And that wail is faintly echoed in the sigh of waking and realizing that the stern duty of getting up awaits us. When positively obliged to rise early we take the most elaborate precautions to trick our sleeping mentalities and, once the hour is struck, Nature, in her serene indifference, is at her pranks with us, tricking us to sound slumber once more, or forbidding us another wink of sleep, if we so desire.

Purely as a habit, none is more tyrannous than early rising. We may have been kept up for days running and need the rest most sadly, yet the firm habit of being awake at 5 o'clock or 6 o'clock persists in spite of weary limbs and frazzled nerves. It is, furthermore, the habitual early riser who brags of it out of season (such a brag is always out of season) who has brought the whole custom into disrepute.

The apostle who uttered those comforting assertions that there is a time for all things, should be the patron saint of the act of getting up. There is, of course, a season for early rising. It is some other morning.

SPICED PEACHES.

Kansas City Star: Four pounds of peaches, one cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of cloves, three pounds of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of red pepper. Boil the sugar and the vinegar. Scald the peaches, remove the skins and cook in the syrup. Tie spices in a bag and cook with the peaches. When the peaches are tender, pour into stone jars, reheat the syrup every day for a week, pouring when boiling over the peaches. All kinds of small fruits may be spiced in this manner.

WHEAT DOWN FLAX HIGHER

Rains Relieve the Drouth-Threatened Spring Wheat Regions.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 2.—Wheat closed generally lower on the markets of North America today, especially in the September option, by reason of the Eastward movement of rainy conditions into the drouth-threatened spring wheat regions of both the United States and Canada. The July option was not so readily affected by the harvest prospects and that derived a great deal of strength from the fact that the primary receipts were small. Duluth July closed at an advance of ¼c, but Duluth September was ⅝c down at the close. Cash wheat closed 1c over the July price. Durum and rye closed unchanged. Barley closed 5c higher to unchanged. Duluth July flax closed 3¢ up, September 1½c up and October 2c up.

The continued movement of rainy weather conditions into the drouth-threatened regions of the American Northwest and the Canadian West caused a general sagging in the price of wheat on the markets of North America during the morning. This was especially noticeable in the September option. The July option was not so readily affected. The smallness of the primary wheat receipts helped to keep that up.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.10⅜ asked, opened today at $1.09⅞ asked, but at noon the option had switched back to $1.10⅜ bid. Duluth September, however, was not nearly so strong. That option closed yesterday at $1.06⅛, opened today at $1.05⅜ asked, and at noon was quoted at $1.05½ bid. At Chicago and Winnipeg both these options were off at noon. At Minneapolis July was up a little and September was somewhat off.

European wheat cables were for the most part lower, being influenced by the improved weather conditions on this side. Liverpool wheat today closed unchanged to ⅝d lower. The market was steadied by the unexpectedly large decrease during the past week in the European visible supply and by news of poor crop prospects in the Volga district of Russia.

Flaxseed Higher.

Although receipts have been increasing of late, the market of Duluth in flaxseed is still narrow, and an unexpected demand this morning sent all three options higher. July at noon was 1c higher, September 1½c higher and October 2c higher. There were fifteen cars on the track for inspection. Winnipeg July at noon today was 1c up at $2.01. Buenos Ayres July closed last night 1c up at $1.78¾. London July and August flaxseed today closed 1⅝c lower at $2.24¾.

MARKET GOSSIP

R. J. Hinderson, a grain dealer of Fort William, who happened to be visiting on the Duluth board today, said that in his opinion the prospects for any enormous and record-breaking Canadian crop of all the staple grains of that country were as bright as ever. "In Manitoba we have been threatened with drouth," said he. "In the spring there was a great deal of rain and the hot weather that followed this caked over the surface of the ground. This is very bad for the growing grain, for it breaks the roots. From what I have heard, however, I am satisfied that rains have been affording substantial relief and there is no longer any reason for alarm.

"Although there is likely to be an enormous yield of Canadian grain this year, I do not think any such quantity of it will go through the Duluth elevators as did from the crop of 1911. In the first place, we were two weeks behind time last year in getting our grain harvested. At Fort William and Port Arthur, under normal conditions, about 2,000,000 bu a day can be handled. This would make a difference of two weeks' time of something in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 bu. Moreover the closing of navigation has been officially placed two weeks later, so that the elevators can now ship as late as Dec. 15. This will make a difference of about 25,000,000 bu more. Then there are more elevators at Winnipeg, Port Arthur and Fort William and the storage capacity of these places has been increased by at least 10,000,000 bu. Furthermore, the Canadian Pacific, which handles the grain going east from Port William and Port Arthur, has been greatly increasing its handling facilities. Large amounts of money are being spent for new and better locomotives and the single track line is being rapidly converted into a double-track line. I believe that the Canadian facilities for handling the Canadian grain, easthound, will be improved to the extent of handling at least 60,000,000 bu more from the 1912 harvest than from the 1911 harvest."

A. C. Petri wired from St. Louis: "A party says thrashing begins in Southern Kansas about July 5. I consider that late."

Dornbusch of London, speaking of the Indian flaxseed crops, says: "The restricted trading for April-June will leave much more seed to be dispatched later, but opinion is still commercially expressed that the government estimate (which is 20 per cent under the acreage of last season) will be confirmed. Nevertheless, comparatively large supplies may be expected within the next few months to come from India, due to which and the ruling high prices consumers of seed and oil are acting very cautiously in buying."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Sold Freely on Account of Northwestern Rains.

Chicago, July 2.—Because of rains in the Northwest beneficial for the spring crop, the wheat market today was full of sellers. Forecasts of a big decrease in the European visible supply helped to bring about a rally. Opening prices were ⅛@¼c lower. September started at $1.03⅛@1.03⅜ to $1.03⅜, a fall of ¼@⅜c to ⅝c, declined to $1.03⅜ and recovered to $1.03⅝.

After a further rise due to talk of a wet harvest in the Southwest the market again sagged. Closing figures were easy with September at $1.03¾, a net loss of ⅝@⅞c.

Corn weakened with wheat. Speculators were active on the bear side. September started ⅛@⅜c to ½@⅝c off at 71c to 71¼c and seemed disposed to keep within that range.

Subsequently prices hardened a little, but the market worked lower than before, cash demand being poor. The close was steady at 71¼c for September. ⅛@⅜c under last night.

Prices for oats followed the course of other grain. Trade was of a general sort. September opened ⅜c to ½c down, at 38½c to 38⅝c, and reacted to 38⅞c.

An easy tone developed in the provision pit. The fact that the world stock of lard was the heaviest at this season since 1895 appeared to be the reason. Initial transactions varied from last night's level to 2½c below, with September delivery $18.77½ for pork, $10.97½ to $11.00 for lard and $10.67½ for ribs.

Reactionary Tendency in Last Hour and Most Advances Cancelled.

New York, July 2. — Further improvement in stocks were shown at the opening of today's stock market. The features included Steel, the electrical issues and Missouri Pacific.

The market lost none of its firmness in the first hour. Brooklyn Transit was again the most prominent of the active issues with a broadening tendency in the industrials.

In point of strength, breadth and activity today's early stock market offered a refreshing change from recent conditions. Industrial stocks and tractions were the foremost features at the outset, but later the movement took in most of the standard railways. Steel resumed its leadership while Brooklyn Transit added substantially to yesterday's rise and sold at the highest price in some years. Of the less active industrials, General Electric climbed higher and Westinghouse moved sympathetically. Other minor stocks gained materially, except the Tobaccos, which were inclined to react. Bonds were firm.

Profit taking helped to arrest the advance at midday and some slight shading of prices ensued but the undertone was strong with some disposition towards dullness.

The list developed a more irregular trend in the late afternoon, except in the less active specialties, including Harvester and Federal Mining preferred, the latter gaining 7 points.

The market closed irregular. A more reactionary tendency was shown in the final hour and practically all early gains were lost.

ANDREW RESIGNS FROM TREASURY DEPARTMENT AND SCORES MACVEAGH

Says All Officials Are Hampered By the Secretary's Indecision.

MacVeagh Refuses to Even Speak to Some Subordinate Chiefs.

Washington, July 3.—A. Piatt Andrew today tendered his resignation to President Taft as assistant secretary of the treasury.

In the spirited letter to the president, Mr. Andrew writes of conditions in the treasury department, which are alleged to be due to the attitude of Secretary MacVeagh toward many of his subordinates.

Assistant Secretary Andrew's letter of resignation charges that subordinates in the treasury department "have been hampered and discouraged at every turn by Secretary MacVeagh's idiosyncrasies, and his incapacity for decision." It contains a scathing arraignment of Secretary MacVeagh's administration of "the government affairs," and has created a profound sensation in official circles.

"For further evidence of the peculiar difficulties which surrounds the handling of business in the treasury," he suggests that President Taft consult Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency; Lee McClung, treasurer of the United States; Joseph E. Ralph, director of the bureau of engraving and printing; Charles A. Kram, auditor for the postoffice; Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue; James Knox Taylor, former supervising architect, and Charles D. Norton, Dr. Andrew's predecessor, and former secretary to the president.

MacVeagh Thought of Resigning.

Mr. Andrew's letter to Secretary MacVeagh advising him of the resignation, discloses the hitherto unpublished fact that Mr. MacVeagh was on the verge

Chicago, July 3.—The hearing of the charges against Miss Aileen Heppner, who was arrested yesterday accused of perjury in her testimony in the suit of John C. Henning against Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, for alienation of the affection of Mrs. Henning, was continued today to July 9.

Counsel who represented Henning in the recent trial in which Funk was declared not guilty had asked for an immediate hearing.

The state's attorney's office asked for a continuance of ten days. Officers are searching for Henning for whose arrest a perjury warrant has been issued.

Miss Heppner testified that she saw Mr. Funk and Mrs. Henning in a hotel. The persons with whom Miss Heppner said she was dining at that time declared they were not in the hotel nor with Miss Heppner on the day she named.

TO PREVENT DEADLOCK

Governor Marshall Is Then Nominated for Vice President.

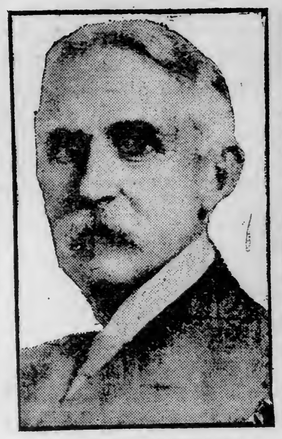

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—In the dying hours of the Democratic national convention this morning it seemed for a time that there would be another deadlock over the nomination for vice president. Governor John Burke of North Dakota, for whom Mr. Bryan had expressed a preference for the second place on the ticket, had polled enough votes on the first two ballots to block the nomination of Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, the leader.

The third ballot had just been ordered when the chairman of the North Dakota delegation obtained recognition from the chair and said:

"North Dakota offered her three times governor to the party, believing him to be the strongest running mate for Governor Wilson that could be named. We made the best fight we could for him and realize we are beaten. We therefore withdraw his name, assuring this convention that, wher-

Bryan Feels Nomination of Wilson Will Appeal to the Country.

Should Have Not Less Than 2,000,000 Majority of Popular Vote.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—William J. Bryan, in a statement last night, said that the nomination of Woodrow Wilson on a progressive platform meant an overwhelming victory for the Democratic ticket next fall. Mr. Bryan said:

"I fel sure that the action of the convention thus far will appeal to the country. I had no choice among Progressive candidates, but from the first included Governor Wilson in every list I had occasion to make. His action in coming out strongly against Mr. Parker for temporary chairman was the turning point in his campaign.

"The paramount question before this convention was whether we would take sides with the reactionaries and thus encourage the organization of a third party, and giving to the third party the hope of defeating the reactionaries divided into two parties, this on the one side, and on the other the nomina-

VIEWS DIFFER ON ELECTIONS

Panama, July 3.—The opposition and independent newspapers today contain articles praising the correct and cordial conduct of the American commissioners to whose supervision Panama owes its first really free elections.

However, Los Hechos, President Pablo Arosemena's semi-official organ, expresses its disappointment because the free elections resulted in an overwhelming victory for the opposition in 90 per cent of the districts. The newspaper attacks the commissioners.

Several students from the engineering schools of Peru have arrived here for the purpose of undertaking a special inspection tour of the Panama canal.

A number of prominent citizens of the Pacific provinces of Columbia, which constituted the old state of Cauca have started a campaign to force the Bogota government to settle its differences with the United States before the opening of the Panama canal, which they think will mean so much for the development of the provinces along the Pacific coast, in which one-third of the inhabitants of the Columbia live.

PITCHER McQUILLAN IS ARRESTED WITHOUT CAUSE.

Chicago, July 3.—When Earl McQuillan, a pitcher recently "farmed" by the St. Louis Americans to the Des Moines team, stepped from a train with his fiancee, Miss Beatrice Williams, today, a policeman arrested him. It was suspected McQuillan was trying to abduct the girl, who looks younger than she really is, 19 years old.

A telegram was sent to the girl's mother in Lovington, Ill., who confirmed her daughter's statement regarding her age.

RUSH OF DELEGATES AND OTHER VISITORS TO GOVERNOR WILSON

Congratulations Pouring in Upon the Nominee for President.

All His Rivals for the Nomination Predict Great Victory.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 3.—Governor Wilson slept late this morning after the arduous day preceding his nomination. Visitors began gathering on the lawn in front of the "Little White House" before 8 o'clock, however, and nearly a dozen tents, erected for telephone booths and other accommodations, sprang up on the grounds.

Besides the usual run of enthusiasts, many delegates returning from Baltimore were expected at the Wilson cottage today. Texas delegates, forty strong, notified the governor that they would stop over at Sea Girt on their way home, practically the entire New Jersey delegation is expected, and many delegates from Pennsylvania and Tennessee are coming.

The governor retired late last night without knowing officially that Governor Marshall of Indiana had been chosen as his running mate. He was told, as early as 11 o'clock, that Governor Marshall had been nominated, however, and although this report was premature, it was confirmed by the convention's subsequent act. But when this action was taken Governor Wilson was asleep.

Photographers are here by the scores and several moving picture concerns have men on hand taking every phase of the activity hereabout. One set of moving pictures was taken last night while the governor was moving about the lawn with the newspaper men before he retired.

Congratulates Marshall.

"Sincere congratulations. I shall look forward with pleasure to my association with you.

The governor also gave out the following statement:

Will Continue to Stand for the Progressive Party's Nomination.

Convention Will Be Held in Chicago Early in August.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 3.—"I shall, of course, continue to stand for the Progressive nomination," said Col. Roosevelt last night after he heard of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

The former president stated his belief that the events in the Democratic as well as the Republican conventions demonstrated the need of a new party.

The national convention of the new party will be held in Chicago, probably the first week in August.

This is Col. Roosevelt's statement:

"Before I left Chicago and again at Oyster Bay, when Comptroller Prendergast of New York came out to see me, I stated that the third party movement and my candidacy would not be in any way affected by the outcome at Baltimore. I never go into a fight on a contingent basis. I shall, of Charles Fitzgerald, Duluth, slightly bruised.

When an automobile belonging to Henry C. Turrish, the well known lumberman, turned turtle on the Pike Lake road, four miles this side of Pike Lake last night, the lives of three people were sacrificed and three others were injured. Those killed are: Mrs. William White, Sr., of 1718 East Superior street; Miss Gladys Richardson of Bridgeport, Conn., a college mate and guest of Miss Nannie Turrish; and Langford Maddigan, chauffeur for Mr. Turrish. The injured are: Miss Nannie Turrish who is more or less bruised but who is in a really dangerous condition from the shock; William White, son of the dead woman, who is in St. Mary's hospital quite painfully hurt about the left shoulder and side; and Charles Fitzgerald, hurt about the left shoulder.

Miss Richardson and the chauffeur, it is believed, were instantly killed, but Miss Turrish says that she heard Mrs. White scream after the car overturned.

CHAUFFEUR WAS WARNED

"Be Careful on That Road," Was Friend's Parting Advice.

Sharp Turns and Repair Work Made It Dangerous at Night.

"For God's sake be careful out on that road, Lang," were the words which Al Dion, a chauffeur for Al Wagner and formerly in the employ of Ward Ames in the same capacity, said to Langford Madigan, driver for Henry Turrish, when Madigan visited the Mutual garage at 10 o'clock last night and announced that he was about to go to Pike lake.

"It's a dangerous road; there's a lot of sharp turns, and repair work has made it exceedingly dangerous," said Dion, who was a great friend of Madigan's, having helped him to learn the business and helped him to get positions.

All the members of the party agree that at the time of the accident last night the car was moving at a very low rate of speed.

Madigan was but 21 years of age. He was born and raised in Duluth, being a graduate of the Cathedral high school of this city.

With his mother, Mrs. Nellie Madigan, manager of the Somers Employment company, he lived at 15 North Second avenue east. Fred Madigan, a brother, is employed as a helper at the Interstate garage.

At the point where the car went off the road there has been some repair work going on. Loose gravel had been sprinkled upon the road, it is stated, and if this be true, the fact that the wheels could not get a firm hold probably accounts for the skidding.

NATURE FAKE STORIES FROM THE DAY'S GRIST

HOUSE CAT AS TARGET

Fireman "Dropped" Peaceful Feline Before Eyes of Owners.

Shot From Fire Headquarters Causes Consternation in Boarding House.

Although since time immemorial back alley cats have been generally regarded as good targets for bricks, boots or bullets, Mike Radeka, proprietor of an Austrian boarding house at 617 West First street, thinks that the line should be drawn when some misguided marksman has the audacity to shoot a perfectly good tabby cat, especially when Tabitha is out on the veranda getting some fresh air with the rest of the family.

Radeka is today carrying a grudge against one of the firemen at headquarters, who last evening about 6:30 o'clock put a bullet through the boarding house feline. The shot came from a second story window of the firehall and Tabitha keeled over dead at the feet of an astonished group of boarders and the members of the Radeka family, who were seated on the steps of the front porch.

The peace of mind of the family circle was quite disturbed by the exhibition of marksmanship and some of the nervous ones went inside until after it was learned that the battle was all over. Then arose the ire of Mike, the head of the household. He went to the police with his grievance and asked for a warrant for the arrest of the unknown fireman who shot the shot that killed his cat.

Mike told Chief Troyer that he never did fail for this William Tell stuff and strenuously objected to having domesticated pets used as targets for practicing marksmen, not that he wanted to discourage the use of firearms in their proper place, but as a safeguard against the possibility that the eye of the marksman might err.

Mike has been in conference with the city attorney, chief of police and chief of the fire department since the shooting. He declares that he will ask the board of fire commissioners to make an investigation and dismiss the fireman who slew his cat under such aggravating circumstances.

Several of the firemen at headquarters station are prominent members of the Gun club and have carried off honors in the weekly shoots of that organization. Nevertheless, argues Radeka, this fact does not excuse the bluecoat who destroyed the pet of the Radeka household and nearly drove the boarders to nervous prostration.

MONKEY IN A BOX CAR

Jacko Jumps Out When Car Is Opened in Soo Yards.

Escapes to Roof of Freight Shed and Defies Pursuers.

Duluth had an unexpected visitor last night, who, among his other eccentricities, does not believe in paying railroad fare, or for sleeping accommodation.

When the freight handlers at the Soo Line depot, opened the door of a box car early this morning Mr. Jacko sat up, rubbed his eyes, vigorously scratched his head (and every other portion of his anatomy) and without stopping for any further explanation made a jump for the door before his discoverers had recovered from their astonishment.

Jacko it appeared did not care to make the ground floor of the freight house his temporary quarters, but proceeded to make his way to the two-by-fours supporting the roof. From his coign of vantage he gazed serenely down upon his early visitors, but repulsed all attempts to become better acquainted, by performing most extraordinary gymnastic feats and contortions when any one attempted to approach him.

After a time, the monotony of the freight house began to pall on Jacko, so after hanging head downwards for a considerable time, by way of showing his contempt for the laws of gravity, he seized a moment of inattention on the part of his watchers, to slip out of the door, and make his way to the dock nearby. After making a general survey of the harbor and the town generally Jacko perceived a stealthy attempt of a couple of brakemen to engineer a flanking movement on him, so with great resource he defeated their effort by jumping on to the adjacent roof and climbing far out of reach.

From this point he harangued the assembled truckers, teamsters, clerks, etc., in a most voluble manner in monkey language and at noon today he was still continuing his address. Whether it is a eulogy on the beauties of Duluth or an indorsement of Woodrow Wilson no one has at present been able to find out, but his language is forceful and continuous.

He is believed to have been the property of some Chicago organ grinder, and probably escaped, taking refuge in the box car.

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

A meeting of the boys who are going on the Thomson "hike" will be held at the boys' building tonight at 7:30 to make arrangements. The plan is to leave the boys' building at 2:30, take the West Duluth car and walk to Fond du Lac, where they will camp out for the night, and make an early start Saturday morning. Each boy will carry his blanket and a share of the provisions. The boys will take turns at the cooking.

Every boy who walks 100 miles during the summer will become a member of the Century club and will wear a small C on his jersey.

Hamilton Phelps, Phil Mars and Marion Yelle have walked twenty miles to date.

The boys from the West Duluth Boys' club who are planning to go will meet at their club rooms, 208 Central avenue, at 8 o'clock tonight.

The boys who took the bicycle trip to St. Paul returned last evening. They report a very hard trip, although none of them would have missed the experience now that it is over. At St. Paul they weer the guests of the boys' department and were entertained at the central department building.

NEW DEPOT IS ORDERED

Prescribes Dimensions of the Building West Duluth Has Long Needed.

West Duluth will have a new railroad station by Oct. 1 of this year.

After a campaign lasting over ten years and ending in a special hearing conducted by the state railroad and warehouse commission May 21 at the West Duluth Commercial club, this end of the city has won its fight against the Northern Pacific railroad.

J. J. Frey, chairman of the railroad committee of the West Duluth Commercial club, this morning received the official report of the hearing and the final decision of the commission, which orders the Northern Pacific railroad to construct a new passenger and freight station at West Duluth, making numerous provisions for dimensions and sizes of rooms, and also ordering that the building be ready for occupation by Oct. 1 of this year. The plans for the new structure must be in the hands of the commission by Aug. 1 for the final approval of the members.

The report contains a complete list of the dimensions of the present building, also the business of the road at the West Duluth station during the year ending Dec. 31, 1911, and making the following recommendations for a new structure: A men's waiting room not less than 20 by 30; a ladies' waiting room not less than 16 by 30; an office not less than 20 by 16; a freight room not less than 20 by 50; perishable freight and baggage rooms, each not less than 12 by 14; and separate toilet facilities for men and women.

Residents of West Duluth are elated over the decision of the state railroad and warehouse commission. For the past two years the West Duluth Commercial club has been behind the campaign, which ended with the special hearing conducted May 21 at the local club rooms by the state railroad and warehouse commission, with Judge Ira B. Mills of St. Paul presiding.

Copy of Report.

Following is the complete report and decision received by Mr. Frey this morning:

"In the matter of the application of the Duluth Commercial club for a new depot on the line of the Northern Pacific railway at West Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota.

"This matter was duly heard before the commission at the Commercial club rooms at West Duluth, Minnesota, on the twenty-first day of May, 1912, at 10 o'clock a. m., all of the commissioners being present.

"The Northern Pacific railway was represented by K. M. Nicoles, superintendent at Duluth; C. L. Nicoles, general superintendent at St. Paul, and Louis Hanitch of Superior, attorney. Numerous witnesses were examined on behalf of the petitioners. The commission finds:

"That the Northern Pacific Railway company is a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Wisconsin, and is a common carrier operating a line of railway from St. Paul, Ramsey county, to Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, and that West Duluth is a station on said line of railway.

"That West Duluth is a city having a population of about 10,000 people; that this station has a large earning capacity for said railway company, and that the business at said place is constantly growing; that for the year ending Dec. 31, 1911, the freight and passenger business 'in' and 'out' amounted to $85,772.25, of which $4,-397.90 is for freight forwarded, $49,-002.75 for freight received, and $16,-185.60 for passenger business 'out.' Under the statute, passenger business must be 'in' and 'out,' which would make the revenue from that source $32,371.60; that about 200 passengers leave said station each morning on trains furnished by said railway company, and that during the whole day there is a considerable demand for the use of said station by patrons of said road; that the men's and ladies' waiting rooms in said station are wholly inadequate, and that the depot is not sufficiently large to accomodate the freight, baggage and passenger business of said station; that the present depot is an old building, and includes a men's waiting room 13 feet 8 inches by 26 feet; ladies' waiting room 13 feet 8 inches by 16 feet; an office 12 feet 2 inches by 20 feet, and a freight room 23 feet 3 inches by 48 feet 6 inches, and there is attached thereto a covered platform twenty feet by twenty feet.

"That it is reasonable and necessary to have a new station building at West Duluth, and that the same should contain a men's waiting room not less than 20x30, a ladies' waiting room not less than 16x30, an office not less than 20x16, a freight house not less than 30x50, and a perishable freight room not less than 12x14, and that separate toilet rooms be provided for men and women, and that said depot should be built within a reasonable time.

"It is therefore ordered, That the Northern Pacific Railway company be and it is hereby required to build a new depot at its station of West Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, and have the same ready for operation by Oct. 1, 1912, and that the said station should contain a men's waiting room not less than 20x30, a ladies' waiting room not less than 16x30, an office not less than 20x16, a freight room not less than 30x50, perishable freight and baggage rooms, each not less than 12x14, and separate toilet facilities for men and women; that the company do file plans for said depot with this commission on or before the first day of August, A. D. 1912, for its approval.

"By the Commission.

"A. C. CLAUSEN,
"Secretary.

"Dated at St. Paul, Minn., this first day of July, A. D. 1912."

SPUR TRACK IS COMPLETED

Workmen have just completed the spur of the Canadian Northern road from the trestle at Forty-seventh avenue west to the bay at Forty-ninth avenue. This brings the tracks to the dock property, where the merchandise and ore docks will be built this summer. It was announced this morning that construction on the docks would begin the latter part of this month.

The trackage for the road is now practically completed with the exception of the two bridges over the Northern Pacific tracks at Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth avenues west. These will be finished within a few days, when the entire road will be ready for traffic, which is expected to start the middle of this month. The spur runs under the Oneota street bridge and will connect with the transfer track on the bay front.

Although the work on the docks will start within the month, actual construction will not begin until next spring. A dredging company will prepare the site for the actual construction of the docks, which are expected to be ready for use by the fall of next year.

Will Give Degrees.

Duluth chapter No. 5, Royal Arch Masons, will hold a special meeting this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the West Duluth Masonic hall. Several degrees will be given to the new and old members of the order by the presiding officers. The members of the chapter have been requested to be on time at the meeting, as the session is expected to be a lengthy one.

COSTLY FIREWORKS FOR THE FOURTH.

The executive committee has purchased $500 worth of fireworks. J. J. Baker, president of the association and head of the committee in charge of the affair, stated that the fireworks received this morning contain some of the most costly displays and novelties ever manufactured. There are a number of large set pieces, which are to be placed up tomorrow morning by two experts, who have been hired for the occasion.

The celebration will begin at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening immediately after the moving picture show at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 208 Central avenue, to be given in the afternoon and evening free of charge to the children of West Duluth. The display will last for about two hours, ending up in a most spectacular exhibit of six set pieces, which will display special patriotic scenes and pictures. The display will open with a salute of a 12-inch bomb, followed by a series of roman candles and sky rockets.

MERRITT TEAM IS RESUSCITATED.

Following the announcement in last evening's Herald that the Merritt church was planning to drop out of the West Duluth Interchurch Baseball league, the men of the church met in the parlors last evening and decided to remain in the league for the remainder of the season. The men promised to support their team by attending and taking part in the games in the future. A meeting of the directors of the league will be held Friday evening at the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street, when the schedule will be rearranged for the remainder of the season.

ONEOTA BRIDGE IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

Although the city council instructed the board of public works six weeks ago to advertise for bids for a culvert over the hollow at Fortieth avenue west, nothing has been done as yet.

The bridge is in an unsafe condition and has been condemned. The part leading off into Fortieth avenue west has been closed altogether, while the Oneota street bridge is still being used by the street car company and traffic on the avenue.

Alderman Gibson said this morning that something should be done immediately to remedy this condition, as the bridge at present is unsafe. "The council has ordered the board of public works to advertise for bids for the building of a culvert over this point," he said, "and any delay now may mean a greater danger later on. The street railway company is filling in the hollow, but this work will take too long and something should be done at once."

Surprised By Friends.

Emery Nelson of 110 South Sixty-seventh avenue west was pleasantly surprised by his friends last evening in honor of his birthday anniversary. "HUMAN FLY" DROPS 3,500 FEET.

New York World: Rodman Law, the "human fly," who has made many sensational leaps, stepped into an aeroplane at Hicksville, N. Y., with Aviator Harry Brown and, at a height of 3,500 feet, launched himself in a parachute. Two minutes later he landed safely. Law's story of the drop follows:

"People who have watched me have said I don't know what it is to be nervous. They are wrong. I am very nervous, but in a way different from the nervousness you expect to see. I chafe at delays. My whole nervousness is experienced waiting for the crucial moment to arrive.

"After days of delays, everything was ready at 6 o'clock in the morning. Brown ran the Wright biplane out of the tent, and a little later we were in the air.

"The engine didn't develop power enough for climbing. When we were circling around 300 feet in the air, a cyclinder head blew out. Brown started to volplane down. Right ahead of us, as we neared the only possible landing place, were telegraph wires. We skimmed over them, missing them only by a very few inches. A moment later we landed, smashing a wheel of the running gear.

"The whole day was spent in repairing the damage to the cyclinder and the running gear. At 6:40 we started. The sun, low on the horizon, was all but hidden by the cloud-haze. It was a dimly luminous, gray ball. Straight toward we headed on the first lap of our long climb.

"We gained our altitude in an ever widening spiral. The last gap began over Hicksville and ended over the field near the Plate farm, three miles distant. On up we climbed 800 feet. It was that field I had picked for my landing place. As a marker I had selected the big white tent. At three hundred feet in the air it was only a white dot. When I thought we were just over it, I dropped.

"My parachute had been lightly tacked in a canvas slip on the bottom of the lower plane just under where I sat. The parachute ring I held in my lap, together with the trapeze bar.

"My problem was to drop down through a space scarcely larger than my body, restricted by wires and the skids. I had to lower my body below the skids, hanging by one hand, while with the other hand I disentangled ropes that had become twisted about the wire. It seemed to me I hung there a full minute.

"For fifty feet I dropped like a plummet. My 165 pounds of weight ripped out the tacks of the canvas slip so that danger was over. The parachute envelope spread out, checking my descent with a jerk. But even then my troubles were not over. The parachute showed an inclination to shoot downsideways. I had to climb up on the trapeze bar to balance it.

"Then for the first time I had a chance to look up and see if Brown was all right. Speculation had it that my leap from the aeroplane would unbalance it, but I saw him soaring away toward the south. Then I looked down. People seemed to be soaring up to me with the earth, growing bigger and bigger. It didn't seem long getting down. They say I was only two minutes. The last thirty seconds of that time I spent in speculating where I was going to land. I struck feet first on the bank of a culvert alongside a railroad track. There was no jar. I wasn't dazed in the least. My chief concern then was to get back to New York, and, for the first time in a week, to get a square meal, a bath and a good bed."

MAKING THE EVANGELISTS SEE.

Lippincott's: An Englishclergyman visiting this country tells of a bishop in England, who, when a new church in his diocese was to be consecrated, received many letters complaining that the architect had disfigured the interior with useless decoration.

The bishop decided to make an inspection of the new building and accordingly summoned the architect to meet him there.

The bishop could find nothing wrong until, just as he reached the chancel, he chanced to catch sight of four wooden images apparently guarding the pulpit.

"What do these figures represent?" he asked.

"The four evangelists."

"They appear to be asleep."

"Do you think so?"

"I certainly do."

Whereupon the architect called out to a man who was at work on one of the pews:

"Henry, bring your chisel and open the eyes of the evangelists."

MONKEY IN A BOX CAR

Jacko Jumps Out When Car Is Opened in Soo Yards.

Duluth had an unexpected visitor last night, who, among his other eccentricities, does not believe in paying railroad fare, or for sleeping accommodation.

When the freight handlers at the Soo Line depot, opened the door of a box car early this morning Mr. Jacko got up, rubbed his eyes, vigorously scratched his head and every other portion of his anatomy and without stopping for any further explanation made a jump for the door before his discoverers had recovered from their astonishment.

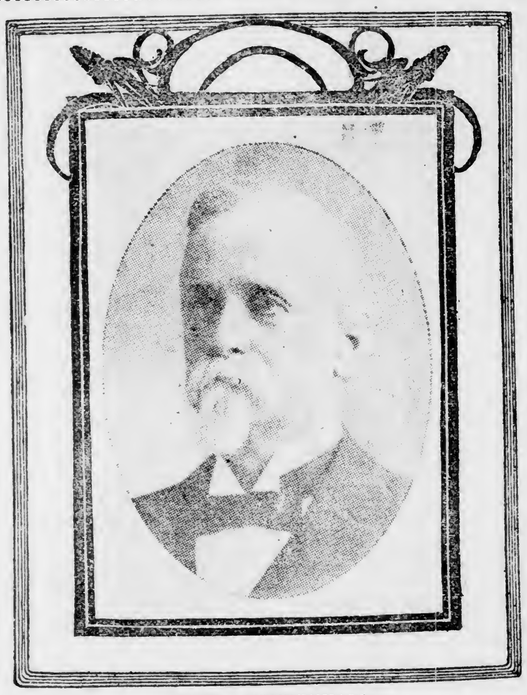

Jacko it appeared did not care to make the ground floor of the freight house his temporary quarters, but proceeded to make his way to the two-by-fours supporting the roof. From his point of vantage he gazed serenely down upon his early visitors, but repulsed all attempts to become better acquainted, by performing most extraordinary gymnastic feats and contortions when any one attempted to approach him.

After a time, the monotony of the freight house began to pall on Jacko, so after hanging head downwards for considerable time, by way of showing his contempt for the laws of gravity, he seized a moment of inattention on the part of his watchers, to slip out of the door, and make his way to the dock, hurriedly taking a general survey of the harbor and the town, generally Jacko perceived a stealthy attempt of a couple of brakemen to engineer a thanking movement on him, so with great resource he negated their effort by jumping on to the adjacent roof and climbing far out of reach.

From this point he harangued the assembled truckers, teamsters, clerks, etc., in a most voluble manner in monkey language and at noon today he was still continuing his address. Whether it is a eulogy on the beauties of Duluth or an indorsement of Woodrow Wilson no one has at present been able to find out, but his language is forceful and continuous.

He is believed to have been the property of some Chicago organ grinder, and probably escaped, taking refuge in the box car.

BANQUET WILL BE GIVEN IN HONOR OF LUTHER MENDENHALL

LUTHER MENDENHALL.

Prominent Duluth professional and business men will assemble at the Kitchi Gammi club on the evening of July 16 for the purpose of doing honor to Luther Mendenhall, who retired from active business on July 1.

The dinner is being arranged in Mr. Mendenhall's honor. G. G. Hartley, A. L. Ordean, A. M. Marshall, C. P. Craig, John Stephenson and Thomas S. Wood comprise the committee on arrangements.

C. G. Goodrich and Horace Lowry of Minneapolis, as well as other lifelong friends of Mr. Mendenhall's from Superior, Duluth and some of the range towns have promised to be present. It is planned to have all Mr. Mendenhall's friends present at the affair which has been planned in his honor.

Mr. Mendenhall retired from the firm of Mendenhall & Hoopes, real estate dealers, on July 1, after being in business in Duluth for nearly thirty years.

The dinner is a sort of testimonial in the feeling of other business men towards him.

NEW DEPOT IS ORDERED

Prescribes Dimensions of the Building West Duluth Has Long Needed.

West Duluth will have a new railroad station by Oct. 1 of this year.

After a campaign lasting over ten years and ending in a special hearing conducted by the state railroad and warehouse commission May 21 at the West Duluth Commercial club, this end of the city has won its fight against the Northern Pacific railroad.

J. J. Frey, chairman of the railroad committee of the West Duluth Commercial club, this morning received the official report of the hearing and the final decision of the commissioners, which orders the Northern Pacific railroad to construct a new passenger and freight station at West Superior and, making numerous provisions for dimensions and sizes of rooms, and also ordering that the building be ready for occupation by Oct. 1 of this year. The plans for the new structure must be in the hands of the commission by Aug. 1 for the final approval of the members.

The report contains a complete list of the dimensions of the present building, also the business of the road at the West Duluth station during the year ending Dec. 31, 1911, and making the following recommendations for a new structure: A men's waiting room not less than 20 by 30; a ladies' waiting room not less than 16 by 30; an office not less than 10 by 12; a freight house not less than 20 by 50; perishable freight and baggage rooms, each not less than 12 by 14, and separate toilet facilities for men and women.

Residents of West Duluth are elated over the decision of the state railroad and warehouse commission. For the past two years the West Duluth commercial club has been behind the campaign, which ended with the special hearing conducted May 21 at the local club rooms by the state railroad and warehouse commission, with Judge Ira B. Mills of St. Paul presiding.

Copy of Report.

Following is the complete report and decision received by Mr. Frey this morning:

"In the matter of the application of the Duluth Commercial club for a new depot on the line of the Northern Pacific railway at West Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota.

"This matter was duly heard before the commission at the Commercial club rooms at West Duluth, Minnesota, on the twenty-first day of May, 1912, at 10 o'clock a. m., all of the commissioners being present.

"The Northern Pacific railway was represented by K. M. Nicoles, superintendent at Duluth; C. L. Nicoles, general superintendent at St. Paul, and Louis Hamitch of Superior, attorney. Numerous witnesses were examined on behalf of the petitioners. The commission finds:

"That the Northern Pacific Railway company is a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Wisconsin, and is a common carrier operating a line of railway from St. Paul, Ramsey county, to Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, and that West Duluth is a station on said line of railway.

"That West Duluth is a city having a population of about 10,000 people; that this station has a large earning capacity for said railway company, and that the business at said place is constantly growing; that for the year ending Dec. 31, 1911, the freight and passenger business 'in' and 'out' amounted to $85,572.25, of which $1,397.00 is for freight forwarded, $19,002.75 for freight received, and $136,185.50 for passenger business 'out.' Under the statute, passenger business must be 'in' and 'out,' which would make the revenue from that source $32,371.00; that about 200 passengers leave said station each morning on trains furnished by said railway company, and that during the whole day there is a considerable demand for the use of said station by patrons of said road; that the men's and ladies' waiting rooms in said station are wholly inadequate, and that the depot is not sufficiently large to accommodate the freight, baggage and passenger business of said station; that the present depot is an old building, and includes a men's waiting room 13 feet 8 inches by 20 feet; ladies' waiting room 13 feet 8 inches by 16 feet; an office 12 feet 2 inches by 20 feet, and a freight room 22 feet 3 inches by 48 feet 6 inches, and there is attached thereto a covered platform twenty feet by twenty feet.

"That it is reasonable and necessary to have a new station building at West Duluth, and that the same should contain a men's waiting room not less than 20x30, an office not less than 20x16, a freight house not less than 20x50, and a perishable freight room not less than 12x14, and that separate toilet rooms be provided for men and women, and that said depot should be built within a reasonable time.

"It is therefore ordered, That the Northern Pacific Railway company be and it is hereby required to build a new depot at its station of West Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, and have the same ready for operation by Oct. 1, 1912, and that the said station should contain a men's waiting room not less than 20x30, a ladies' waiting room not less than 16x30, an office not less than 20x16, a freight room not less than 20x50, perishable freight and baggage rooms, each not less than 12x14, and separate toilet facilities for men and women; that the company do file plans for said depot with this commission on or before the first day of August, A. D. 1912 for its approval.

"By the Commission.

"A. C. CLAUSEN,
Secretary.

"Dated at St. Paul, Minn., this first day of July, A. D. 1912."

SPUR TRACK IS COMPLETED

Workmen have just completed the spur of the Canadian Northern road from the trestle at Forty-seventh avenue west to the bay at Forty-ninth avenue. This brings the tracks to the dock property, where the merchandise and ore docks will be built this summer. It was announced this morning that construction on the docks would begin the latter part of this month.

The trackage for the road is now practically completed with the exception of the two bridges over the Northern Pacific tracks at Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth avenues west. These will be finished within a few days, when the entire road will be ready for traffic, which is expected to start the middle of this month. The spur runs under the Oneota street bridge and will connect with the transfer track on the bay front.

Although the work on the docks will start within the month, actual construction will not begin until next spring. A dredging company will prepare the site for the actual construction of the docks, which are expected to be ready for use by the fall of next year.

Will Give Degrees.

Duluth Chapter No. 5, Royal Arch Masons, will hold a special meeting this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the West Duluth Masonic hall. Several degrees will be given to the new and old members of the order by the presiding officers. The members of the chapter have been requested to be on time at the meeting, as the session is expected to be a lengthy one.

COSTLY FIREWORKS FOR THE FOURTH.

The executive committee has purchased $500 worth of fireworks. J. J. Baker, president of the association and head of the committee in charge of the affair, stated that the fireworks received this morning contain some of the most costly displays and "pieces" ever manufactured. There are a number of large set pieces, which are to be placed up tomorrow morning by two experts, who have been hired for the occasion.

The celebration will begin at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening immediately after the moving picture show at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 20 North Central avenue, to be given in the afternoon and evening free of charge to the children of West Duluth. The display will last for about two hours, ending with a most spectacular exhibit of six set pieces, which will display special patriotic scenes and pictures. The display will open with a salute of a 12-inch bomb, followed by a series of roman candles and sky rockets.

MERRITT TEAM IS RESUSCITATED.

Following the announcement in last evening's Herald that the Merritt church was planning to drop out of the West Duluth Inter-church Baseball league, the team of the church met in the parlors last evening and decided to remain in the league for the remainder of the season. The men promised to support their team by attending and taking a hearty interest in the games in the future. A meeting of the directors of the league will be held Friday evening at the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street, when the schedule will be rearranged for the remainder of the season.

ONEOTA BRIDGE IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

Although the city council instructed the board of public works six weeks ago to advertise for bids for a culvert over the hollow at Fortieth avenue west, nothing has been done as yet.

The hollow is in an unsafe condition and has been condemned. The part leading off into Fortieth avenue west has been closed altogether, while the Oneota street bridge is still being used by the street car company and traffic on the avenue.

Alderman Gibson said this morning that something should be done immediately to remedy this condition, as the bridge at present is unsafe. "The council has ordered the board of public works to advertise for bids for the building of a culvert over this point," he said, "and today now may mean a greater danger later on. The street railway company is filling in the hollow, but this work will take too long and something should be done at once."

THE ROOSEVELT PARTY CANNOT TAKE PART IN MINNESOTA PRIMARIES

Formal Statement Is Issued By Attorney General Smith.

Held Party Has No Legal Standing in the State.

Cannot Qualify Under the Provisions of the State Law.

St. Paul, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Progressive party being organized under the leadership of Col. Roosevelt cannot take part in the primaries in Minnesota this fall, according to a formal statement issued by Attorney Lyndon A. Smith today. The party has no legal standing in the state and cannot qualify under the provisions of the state law.

After a discussion which took up a portion of yesterday afternoon and some time this morning, the attorney general and his assistants came to this conclusion.

Prior to issuing his statement, Mr Smith also held that it was not necessary, under the new corrupt practices act, for candidates to file their expense accounts with the secretary of state until they had made some expenditure. This releases Governor Eberhart and others from any obligation until they have spent money for campaign purposes.

Mr. Smith's statement follows:

Political Party Defined.

"A political party, as that term is used in the primary election law, is one which has maintained in the district or territorial division in question a party organization and presented candidates at three or more biennial elections within the preceding ten years. This rule is modified only as to counties by the clause which permits a number equal to 10 per cent or more of the members of a party not qualified to nominate county officers at a primary election to present a petition to the county auditor for a place on the primary election ballot of such county.

"It follows that any party now being formed cannot nominate its candidates at the coming primary election.

"I am confirmed in this opinion that a group of persons desiring to form a new party must have their candidates put upon the election ballot by certificate of voters by the language of the clause, which reads as follows: 'But nothing herein shall prevent the nomination of candidates by groups, individuals or so-called political parties which cannot be recognized as such by certificate of voters to the number hereinafter specified.'

Could Not Qualify.

"It is also to be noted that any person filing for the nomination at a primary must swear 'that he affiliated with such party at the last general election.' If there had been no such party at that time he could not so qualify. The voter at a primary, if challenged, must swear that he generally supported the candidates of that party at the last election, and intends to support that party at the election next ensuing. So without either candidates or voters qualified to participate, any party now forming has no place in the coming party election.

"The clause of the election law reading as follows: 'Candidates for office shall be chosen at such primary election by voters of the several political parties and not otherwise,' means the same as though the word 'respective' was used in place of the word 'several,' and that it forbids the voters of one party taking part in the choice at a primary election of aonther party in the selection of its candidates."

HAS BROKEN ALL RECORDS FOR DIVING BOATS

U. S. SUBMARINE SEAL.

The U. S. submarine boat Seal, recently established, at Bartlett's reef lightship, off New London, a new record for submersion. The Seal descended 256 feet below the surface of Long Island sound. This feat for depth surpasses tests of any class of submarines. The best previous mark was set by the submarine Salmon in October, 1911, when she plunged 144 feet under water, remaining twenty minutes. The Seal remained thirty and one-half minutes and rose to the surface without difficulty.

OSBORN IS FOR WILSON

Michigan Governor Hopes That Roosevelt Will Not Be Candidate.

Says Issue Before People Is "Wall Street Versus Wilson."

Lansing, Mich., July 3. — Governor Chase Osborn, an ardent Roosevelt supporter during the colonel's battle for the Republican presidential nomination, today issued a statement in which he declared his belief "that there is no necessity for a new political party." He also stated that he hoped Roosevelt would not be a candidate.

"The issue is clearly joined for the people," said the governor in his statement. "It is Wall Street versus Wilson."

GOVERNOR CHASE OSBORN.

"Woodrow Wilson's character, temperament, preparation and fitness is above the high average of American presidents. He is a Christian, a scholar and a fearless citizen.

"Republicans can vote for Wilson without leaving their party or bolting. The real Republican party has no candidate for president this year. There has been no nomination. The action of the political freebooters at Chicago is not binding upon the Republican party even if for the moment they are bearing aloft its stolen ensign."

BUT JOE AND DOC OBJECTED.

New York Evening Post: The two most distinguished mules in New York are Joe and Doc. Unless you had some time or other been a perfectly good mine mule up around Rome, and had been brought to this bedlam of a population center, and had learned they were going to let you down in a crate with pulleys and things into a little 20-foot hole, which is no hole at all to speak of, and put up at the ignominious task of hauling surpluse real estate out of a thing called a subway—unless you had gone through such an experience as this you could never for the life of you even begin to come anywhere near appreciating the disgust with which Joe and Doc viewed the entire proceedings, before breakfast time the other day, at Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street.

Peter Kelly bossed the job. That is, he believed he did. But when Joe and Doc, who arrived in our midst, saw the hole and the crate and the pulleys, Peter Kelly went far over on the far side of the decimal point and ceased to count.

Joe is a brown mule and Doc is a gray one. They tried to lead Joe into the crate first. Then they desistetd, after Joe had kicked numerous holes in the atmosphere. Joe said things, too, that are unprintable. If Prof. Garner had been around he would have learnued about a thousand fine, full grown words in animal language. Doc sympathized with Joe by laying his ears back and biting at Peter Kelly's face. Then Joe kicked a dent in the side of the crate and heehawed he wasn't going to take the nomination no matter what the convention wanted. Seventeen hundred and thirty-six persons applauded Joe and said they'd bolt if he would.

Then Peter Kelly stepped back across the decimal point and, by the exercise of the adroitest finesse, managed to blindfold old Joe.

It took the combined efforts of the crew, two negroes, five policemen and eleven assortetd citizens, but Joe finally went into the crate. He fell into it backwards, which everybody said was a mean advantage to take of him, and then subsided in a shapeless mass of mule as he shot down into the subway. It took a half hour more to deliver Doc, after they untangled Joe and what was left of the crate.

THE CHILD'S SAVINGS.

Kansas City Star: William Jones is a thrifty father with a plan of his own for teaching his four children the value of money. These children are 15, 11, 8 and 6 years old; the two eldest are girls, and the two youngest are boys. Father Jones is head of a branch of his household which he calls the "thrift department."

To teach a child to save Jones believes it is essential to let him handle a little money of his own and always have some in his possession. "I believe," says Jones, "that the boy who can go through a store full of attractive things, spend a small amount thoughtfully and come back with some loose change in his pocket is on the road to thrift."

In carrying out his duties as general manager of the thrift department Jones pays each child a certain amount for work done about the house. The 8-year-old boy earns 25 cents a week in this way. He is expected to spend 15 cents of that amount in any way he pleases, but to have at least 10 cents every Saturday night for the small metal "home bank," which is kept for him. If he only brings eight cents the next week his allowance is cut to 23 cents, and 15 cents of this is put into the bank by General Manager Jones before the boy can touch it.

The plan works. Nearly $100 is in a savings bank to the credit of the eldest girl; the other girl has $40. The 8-year-old boy has been "broke" a number of times, but he is learning that it doesn't pay to spend it all. Jones says that his 15-year-old daughter has become a careful and successful shopper, that she always has money for whatever she wants most, and that so far as she is concerned his duty as overseer is about ended.

I've never heard of a thrift plan that seemed more reasonable, interesting and likely to succeed. I believe it would do a lot to hold a family together. Certainly, in Jones's case, it is going to ease the responsibilities of the future.

EXIT THE HOBBLE SKIRT.

Chicago Tribune: Exit the diligently studied, difficultly learned tight skirt hobble. Milady's skirt no longer is to be made of a yard and a half of goods.

The once despondent cloth merchant eagerly awaits the coming of "the season." Plaits are coming back. They will be hidden somewhat, but when madam tries to step across a puddle she will find for a season at least that an inelastic article of apparel does not precipitate her into the murky waters.

Her skirt will appear to be as tight as heretofore—until she steps. Carefully concealed plaits in the back or side will make for elasticity, but the dress will be so pressed as to cling tightly.

The jacket, which has stopped not more than twenty-six inches from the neck, will become a coat not less than thirty-six inches nor more than forty inches in length. The "set in" coat sleeve is coming back. The Medici collar, giving the wide shoulder effect, will be worn.

ABOVE THE MILLION MARK

More Than $25,000 Will Be Paid State in Inheritance Tax.

THEIR HEIRS WILL PAY STATE INHERITANCE TAX.

Estates—	In County Only.
Mrs. Helen Thomson	$461,500
John Ware	160,000
John Mekins	107,500
William C. Winton	100,000
Louis R. Clark	58,400
M. M. Clark	46,730
Daniel H. Roe	30,000
James Sheridan	23,000
William Whitridge	10,000
William Jory	10,000
John Wilson	8,910
Louisa M. Botsford	3,000
Total	$1,019,243

Heirs of wealthy Duluth and St. Louis county citizens who have died within the past three months will pay upwards of $25,000 into the state treasury as inheritance taxes, according to the quarterly report which Arthur Templeton, clerk of the probate court, is today sending the state auditor and the county treasurer.

The report shows that twelve estates have been probated within the past three months upon which an inheritance tax will be imposed, an average of about one a week. The estimated wealth of the twelve estates amounts to about $1,019,243, which represents the value of the property of the decendants in St. Louis county only.

Under the graduated system of determining the inheritance tax, whereby the amounts differ as to exemptions and tax rate, it is a difficult matter to closely estimate just what the state will derive from the estates mentioned in the report. Whatever the amount is, the county will receive 10 per cent.

The figures for St. Louis county will probably be larger than those of any other county in the state for the same period of time. Most of the estates are of Duluthians.

Baby Atheline Morton Miller, who was born but a few weeks after the death of her father, Athol Morton Miller, on Feb. 16 last, will receive $468,379.17 as a two-thirds share of her father's estate. From this amount $12,976.37 will be deducted to pay to the state as an inheritance tax.

Mrs. Helen S. Miller, the widow, will receive $244,560 as her one-third share. In her case the inheritance tax has been determined as $6,261.80. The total tax paid into the state treasury by this estate will be $19,238.17. Of this amount the county will receive 10 per cent. The Miller estate is not included in the above list.

CHEMICAL TARIFF BILL DEFEATED

Senate Rejects House Measure By Vote of 32 to 26.

Washington, July 3.—The house chemical tariff revision bill, amended to place dyes used in coloring cheaper cotton goods on the free list, was defeated in the senate today 32 to 26. The bill would have been reduced the rate on many artficles in the present chemical schedule by about 25 per cent and would have transferred others, including pepper, cinnamon, cloves, licorice and balsam, from the free list to the dutiable.

MACVEAGH IS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Washington, July 3.—A congressional investigation of Secretary MacVeagh's administration in the treasury department is impending as one of the results of a row of long standing between the secretary and one of his assistant secretaries, A. Platt Andrew, which culminated today in Andrew's resignation.

A few hours later, Representative James Cox of Ohio introduced a resolution proposing a complete investigation of Mr. MacVeagh's administration.

SHOWERS FOR THE FOURTH

Weather Man's Forecast Is None Too Favorable to Picnickers.

The Fourth may not be a good picnic day.

There will be showers this afternoon, tonight and tomorrow, states the weather man.

The showers will probably be short and the sun will probably shine in between them, but unless one can pick out a place where the showers are not going to touch, he had better eat his picnic lunch at home.

The showers today have been peculiar in that only a part of the city has been rained on each time.

There will be but little change in temperature, says the weather man.

"STEVE" PIERCE FILES FOR OFFICE

Steve L. Pierce yesterday afternoon filed with the county auditor for the Republican nomination for sheriff at the fall election. John R. Meining, the present incumbent, will also be in the field for re-election. As yet, Mr. Meining has not filed for the nomination.

GREATEST ISSUE BEFORE PEOPLE

Should Be Made Easy to Change Federal Constitution.

Madison, Wis., July 3.—"The greatest issue in America today is the plan to amend the federal Constitution so that it can be changed with ease and facility," said Dr. Charles McCarthy, chief of the legislative reference library, today. He asserted that all other issues are subsidiary until this has been settled It is so difficult to change the Constitution under its present form, he said, that the courts in making their decisions from precedent are able so destroy many of the reform laws demanded by the people. When the Constitution is so amended as to make it possible to change it easily, he said, the greatest achievement for conserving the people's rights will have been accomplished.

LARGE INHERITANCE TAX ON CRANE ESTATE.

Chicago, July 3.—The estate of the late Richard T. Crane, ironmaster, has been assessed the largest inheritance tax ever placed in Illinois, the sum being $329,131. This was announced today by Walter K. Lincoln of the state inheritance tax department.

The Crane estate was estimated at $17,000,000 when appraisers were appointed. The Marshall Field estate paid an inheritance tax of $125,000, escaping a much larger assessment by a decision of the supreme court holding that certain properties did not come under the provisions of the inheritance tax law.

ON THE ROADS OF PERSIA.

Alfred Heinecke in the Los Angeles Times: The most useful vehicles for long journeys in Persia are the palakis and kajavahs, the quaintest contrivances for travel to be seen anywhere. These "Persian cabs" are fixed up on mules. Each animal carries two of them, one on each side. They are furnished with bedding. Men, women and children sit on them cross-legged, a painful and irksome position for Europeans, who usually prefer to ride a horse or donkey rather than screw themselves up in these boxes

Some skill, too, is required in loading up the mule with its human freight, care being taken that the two people who travel side by side are about the same weight. If a tiny husband and a fat wife have to go together, his box must be filled up with ballast so as to equalize the weight. Similar care has to be exercised in dismounting, for if one passenger jumps out without giving warning of his intention, the neighbor is shot to the ground with unseemly haste.

The only difference between the kajavah and the palaki is that the latter is open, while the former is covered with a light waterproof roof and is curtained against bad weather.

The most comfortable means of travel, sacred to the use of the wealthiest class, is the takhttravan, a kind of palanquin, consisting of a box about seven feet long and five feet high, fitted with doors and windows and furnished inside with a soft mattress and luxurious cushions.

The vehicle is built on the sedan chair principle, the poles resting on a sort of saddle on the backs of the mules, which are harnessed tandem. Their area of usefulness is restricted to the plains and the sensation experienced while riding in them is like being tossed in an old-time liner on the story Atlantic.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

The annual inspection of the fire department will take place July 17.

As in former years all the nails in the city, from Lakeside to West Duluth, will be visited by the city officials, who will be taken about in automobiles.

The men composing the local fire department have had a record for efficiency for years past and each year they are adding to their reputations as fire fighters. The discipline maintained is strict, but not onerous and each man knows just what to do when the time comes.

There is strong rivalry between the various stations as to which will make the best showing at the time of the annual inspection. This city has no tournament and participates in none, so the annual inspection is the only time when they can vie with one another. When the inspection is made the time is taken for all the various hitches, the stringing of hose, and other work which is done by the department in fulfilling its duty of protecting the municipality against the fire demon. These are completed in remarkably short spaces of time, men and horses working at top speed and under high tension. The horses seem to understand that the occasion is special and out of the ordinary and appear to be just as eager and expectant as the men themselves. Among the most spectacular performances are the ladder climbing and the ascent of the high tower.

The party will probably leave the city hall early in the afternoon, completing the trip late the same day.

Werner Wanhatala does not object to plenty of vegetables, especially potatoes, but he does enter strenuous kicks against being asked to eat the spuds raw.

Because he so expressed himself in no uncertain language he got into an altercation with Mikko Hattinen, who runs the St. Croix avenue boarding house at which Werner has been stopping. He claims that Mikko told his wife that the potatoes in their natural state were good enough for him, and to add insult to injury he asserted that Mikko told her that she need not bother to peel them.

When Werner elucidated upon his opinion of Mikko the latter became enraged. He declared that Werner's remarks were a detriment to his reputation as a keeper of a boarding house and threw Werner out of the house, handling him in anything but a gentle manner.

Werner thought that being asked to eat raw potatoes, unpeeled, was bad enough, but he couldn't stand for the ejectment. Whereupon he caused Mikko's arrest on a charge of having assaulted him. Mikko was found guilty after a trial in police court this morning. He paid an assessment of $5 and costs. The court did not make any ruling upon the merits of boarders being fed raw Murphys, but held that Mikko could not throw boarders out of his house because they did not say nice things about the grub laid out for them. If Werner didn't like what was being handed out to him it was his privilege to pack up his belongings and take his departure but he did not have to submit to being forcibly ejected.

That a man loafs about the streets is not sufficient evidence on which to convict a man of vagrancy.

Charles McDonald was arrested a couple of nights ago on that charge by a policeman who had seen him frequently along his beat. But the officer did not know whether or not he was without visible means of support and evidently did not take much trouble to find out.

Charles, better known as "Scotty," told the court that he had a place where he rested his weary head during the night and that he earned enough to provide himself with food and clothing by portering in a saloon. The court let him go.

The case against Hilda Johnson, arrested on a charge of selling groceries on Sunday, was dismissed in police court this morning. The complaining witness, George M. Peterson, did not appear against her. It was stated that Mr. Peterson, secretary of the local grocers' association, would make it a test case.

M. A. Neauregard of 422 West First street, reported to the police last night that he had been held up and robbed about 9 o'clock at Lake avenue and Second alley, between First and Second street, by two highwaymen. He stated that he had lost $85. While one man held him to the ground the other went through his pockets. After he had been relieved of his money one of the robbers struck him a heavy blow in the mouth.

Richard T. Boynton was placed on parole for three months when he was brought into police court yesterday afternoon. He had already entered a plea of guilty to stealing a horse hair, which he later tried to sell, and in the interim the authorities had been investigating his record. It was found to be satisfactory and he was given an opportunity to walk the straight and narrow path.

* * *

Alphonzo Harrie, colored, didn't appear in police court this morning to testify against Ben Durand, colored, whom he had had arrested on charge of assault. The court directed that a bench warrant be issued for his arrest and if caught he stands a nice chance of being punished for contempt of court. Another colored man who was present said that he had been told that Harris left last night for Indianapolis. Durand asserted that he acted in self defense, believing that Harris was going to draw a knife on him. It seems that Durand had fired Harris, who was working under him at a local hotel, causing hard feeling between them. Durand stated that all he did was to shove Harris against a fence. He couldn't tell where Harris got his swollen eyes, etc.

Axel Berg, a sailor, is believed by the police to be rather weak mentally. He was locked up last night on a charge of drunkenness but may be examined as to his sanity. He seems unable to carry on an intelligent conversation.

MEXICAN FEDERALS AND REBELS IN HOT BATTLE

At Rebel Front, Bachimba, Mex., July 3.—Shells from the artillery of the federal forces began falling near the hills where the rebels are entrenched, two miles from Bachimba, shortly after 11 a. m. today. At the same time the federal cavalry, in three columns, began moving up slowly.

Shortly before noon the shelling by the federals became more frequent, the rebels finally answering with their artillery, while rebel sharpshooters waited for the federal cavalry to move into range. The federal shells were not well placed at the opening of the battle and the rebels held their position easily.

DEMOCRATS DELIGHTED AT WILSON'S NOMINATION

Prominent Duluth Members of Party Express Unqualified Pleasure.

Roosevelt's Third Party No Longer Necessary, Says C. O. Baldwin.

C. O. Baldwin is of the opinion that Woodrow Wilson's nomination has made it entirely unnecessary to form the third party that Col. Roosevelt has had in mind since his defeat at the hands of the conservatives at Chicago.

"If Mr. Roosevelt has only the good of the country at heart he will not find it necessary to bring into operation his third party," said Mr. Baldwin. "If it is a matter of personal ambition with him, rather than the principles that he is supposed to stand for, then he may go ahead with the organization of the movement. But Mr. Wilson stands for the progressive political thought that the colonel has stood for and there seems no excuse for the third party movement.

"I am personally very well satisfied with the nomination of Mr. Wilson. Some people have the habit of calling him a theorist. But during his two years as governor of New Jersey he has shown well defined executive abilities and wisdom of practical conditions. It is generally believed by Democrats, I am of the opinion, that the nominee of the Democratic party is a big and able man, and also the man who will lead the Democrats to victory."

Nelson Enthusiastic.

Andrew Nelson is very enthusiastic over the chances of Woodrow Wilson. He is of the firm opinion that the candidate of the Democratic party is going to carry Minnesota, going on record with that prediction.

"Mr. Wilson will carry Minnesota, being the first Democratic candidate to accomplish this feat," declared Mr. Nelson. "The nomination of Wilson meets the thorough approval of the Democracy of Minnesota. There are also a host of Republicans here who will cast their vote for the man that the Democratic convention has honored by selecting as its standard bearer.

"Woodrow Wilson is a big man, a man representing the true ideals of Democracy. He is the unanimous choice of the Democrats of this state, and personally I believe there is little doubt of his election. He stands for the best in politics, the progressive thought of the nation, and in selecting him the Democratic party has shown wisdom and a regard for the highest type of a leader."

T. T. Hudson Smiles.

T. T. Hudson, the battle-scarred veteran of St. Louis county Democracy, is one of the happiest men in the state today. He sees victory ahead and indorsement by the people for the principles which he and his associates have fought for all these years. He was asked a foolish question:

"Do you like the ticket nominated at Baltimore yesterday?"

"Do I like the ticket!" he exclaimed, and his smile widened. "I don't believe any sane Democrat or Progressive Republican lives—provided he really is progressive—who does not like that ticket. And it was chosen under the most propitious circumstances that could be imagined. Not the least hint of control by the interests, no taint of the use of money, not besmirched by doubt as to the sincerity of the nominees, and being nominated in the face of a hard and stern fight by reactionaries who used every means in their power to defeat it, that ticket stands forth as the most remarkably chosen one since the Constitution was adopted and political parties were formed on this continent. It will be elected, I firmly believe, for it is progressive without question, its principles are well known and clean, and it will appeal to every progressive regardless of previous affiliation."

Another Democrat of the dyed-in-the-wool variety who is more than pleased over the Wilson-Marshall selection is John J. Jenswold, Jr. Asked as to his sentiments Mr. Jenswold said:

"I consider the result of the Baltimore convention as the most signal triumph of political actions which has occurred in a lifetime. It showed plainly that the great majority of the people rule and always will rule. It was an ideal selection of men and principles. To my mind it assures the success of those principles as well as a partisan victory."

McManus Jubilant.

A. E. McManus is jubilant. He says until the finish he did not know whether to make up his mind to vote the Democratic ticket this fall or not, but with the selection of Wilson that doubt was dispelled. "It's a big victory for Billy Bryan, too," he asserted. "He's the boy to put people on record and put the cattle in their proper stalls."

Thomas J. Walsh expressed the opinion that there is no question of so strong a ticket as the Wilson-Marshall combination being accepted by the people at the polls.

"Anyway," said Mr. Walsh "I believe that with the two party tickets named, there will be no place for a third party for all true Progressives have a home to go to in the Democratic party and all reactionaries know that their place is with Taft and Sherman."

W. J. Joerns says of the nominees:

"Governor Wilson impresses me as a wise, firm and honest man whose predispositions are conservative but who has seen the light of progressive thought and stands committed to it. He owes his nomination, in a large degree, to the powerful personal influence and stand of Mr. Bryan and the loyal support of the delegates in the convention who believe in Mr. Bryan and the principles he stands for. It is but fair to assume that he, himself, as president will be loyal to those principles. In my judgment Mr. Wilson will unite all but the ultra-reactionary elements of his own party and he ought to receive a large Progressive Republican vote. Mr. Marshall of Indiana, the vice presidential candidate is well known as a Progressive of character and ability and, I believe, will add strength to the ticket."

MARINE

MAITLAND RUNS ON ROCK BOTTOM

Captain Had to Beach the Boat to Avoid a Collision.

Detroit, Mich., July 3.—An accident that cannot occur when the new Livingstone channel is completed took place in the lower Detroit river, when the big ore-laden barge Maitland was run on the rock bottom to avoid a collision. Before the Maitland was released, the steamer City of Berlin, towing the barge Aurora, came along and the tow line parted. The Aurora headed for the rocks, and if she had struck a serious blockade probably would have resulted.

The Maitland was in tow of the steamer Fitch, bound down, and the steamer Corrigan, bound up, is said to have crowded her to the edge of the west bank of the old channel. To avoid striking the Corrigan, the Maitland's rudder was put hard over and she struck two of Sullivan's drill boats, putting them out of business.

The Maitland then fetched up on the rocks near the head of Stoney island, out of the way of traffic. Both the Fitch and the Maitland scraped the rocks before the latter came to a standstill. The tug Marion E. Trotter was soon on the scene with a diver, and examination disclosed that the Maitland's seacock had been torn out and that she had nine feet of water in her hold. Temporary repairs were made and the boat was released yesterday afternoon and proceeded to her destination last night.

The mishap to the Berlin and Aurora occurred nearly opposite the stranded Maitland. When the towline parted, the latter stopped her work on the Maitland and headed with all speed for the Aurora, catching her just as she was swinging broadside on to the rocks. The barge was towed to Bar point, where she was picked up by the Berlin. She scraped the rocks, and is said to be leaking.

The Livingstone channel was to have been completed today, but the severe weather of the spring delayed the work, and it will be another month before it is opened to traffic.

The channel itself is finished, but the work of dredging away the dams is not finished.

If the channel were in service the Corrigan could not have crowded the Maitland, as she would have been in one cut and the Corrigan in the other.

McCOMB FOR CHAIRMAN

May Become Head of the Democratic National Committee.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—Governor Woodrow Wilson will in the main determine the direction of his own campaign for president; pass upon the desirability of appointing a campaign committee, and confer with a subcommittee of the national committee on the naming of the officers of the new Democratic national committee.

This was the sense of the members of the new national committee which met today, and after continuing the officer of the old committee in power until a permanent organization was effected, designated a sub-committee of five, consisting of Chairman Mack, Secretary Woodson and three other committeemen to confer with Governor Wilson on the permanent organization of the new committee.

This sub-committee will also confer with Governor Wilson on any plans that the presidential nominee may have, with respect to the conduct of his campaign and will report back to the full national committee at such time and place as Chairman Mack may designate.

It was stated in committee meeting that the continuance of the retiring officers until a permanent organization was perfected was entirely agreeable to Governor Wilson.

Protest Dismissed.

The committee heard a protest made by Congressman George F. O'Shaunessy of Rhode Island against the seating of George W. Greene of Woonsocket on the committee. Mr. O'Shaunessy urged that he was duly elected by a primary provided by the Rhrode Island state central committee. Mr. O'Shaunessy charged that fraudulent votes were cast for Greene. The committee dismissed the protest on the ground that the national committee had previously passed on the case and that its action has been confirmed by the full national convention. The committee then adjourned.

The name of W. F. McCombs of New York, campaign manager for Governor Wilson, was talked about this afternoon as a likely for either the new national chairman or head of a campaign committee.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

CLEVELAND SCOUT HERE

Agent of Ohio Team Will Look Over Duluth Players.

R. J. Gilks, familiarly known as "Bob" to "the gang" down Cleveland way, is here today on a scouting expedition. The Gilks chap is the official scout for the Cleveland Naps the present season, as he has been in seasons past, and he comes here to look over some of the wares in the See-Bye league shop.

It is believed that Harvey Bluhm, the sensational red-headed first baseman of the White Sox, is the man that is going to engage the attention of the Cleveland scout while he is here on the job. Gilks is not the only scout who has been tipped off to the playing of the local boy, and as Cleveland would like to land a capable first baseman, it may be that Gilks will spend some time in looking over the qualifications of the boy who has been playing such sensational baseball during his term here.

"Cleveland is going fairly well under the direction of Davis," said Gilks. "There are a number of youngsters on the team and they are doing fairly well. The race is young in the American league as yet, simply because it belongs to most any of the real good teams. The Naps have a very good team and they are liable to come to the front at any stage of the race. They have beaten some of the best teams, and if they hit the right kind of a stride they are liable to win a lot of games."

Americans Still Winning.

Stockholm, July 3.—The individual competition in the clay bird shooting events in the Olympic events was continued today when the second stage was concluded. The best aggregates scored in the first and second rounds were made by the Americans, A. F. Gleason, Boston A. A., and J. R. Graham, Chicago A. A., with 47 out of a possible 50 birds. The German contestant, Goelden, with 44 hits, was third. The third stage will be shot tomorrow.

LITTLE FLYNN MONEY IN SIGHT

East Las Vegas, N. M., July 3.—There has been little change in the betting on tomorrow's fight, Johnson to win money at 2 to 1 being offered with few takers. The board shows few recorded wagers. The Flynn supporters make an offer of $300 to $90 and do not appear anxious to get their money down at less than that—3 to 1. One freak bet, 30 to 50, that Johnson will knock Flynn down before the fourth round, is recorded and immediately below it comes the notation:

"50 to 40 he does not."

As a commentary on these bets, the following explanation is written on the board: "A man on his knees is considered down, and if struck wins the fight."

As to the round betting, the eleventh appears to be favorite for the termination of the fight, probably because the eleventh round of the last Johnson-Flynn bout proved to be the fireman's undoing. Most of the round betters, however, are down on the fourteenth to the twentieth with a scattering fire from the seventh to the twenty-fifth.

Butler Defeated.

Henley on Thames, July 3.—In the third heat of the Diamond sculls G. E. Fairbairn of Jesus college, Cambridge, won easily over E. B. Butler of Toronto.

Racing at Marshall, Mich.

Marshall, Mich., July 3.—The Great Western circuit opened the season's harness races here yesterday with three well-contested events. The five heats were required to decrease the 2:25 pace. The Burgett looked like a sure winner in the final heat, but a bad break in the last quarter killed his chances.

HOMESTEADERS ARE PROSPEROUS

Crookston, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The receipts at the Crookston United States land office today broke all records for ten years. Receiver Peterson having taken in over $14,000 before noon. It came mostly from homesteaders who bid in the land at the sale five years ago and who are making final proof and paying the balances due. The payments reflect the prosperity of the settlers and indicate the value of their holdings. Homesteaders who bid in land five years ago at from $4 to $14 today refused as high as $60 per acre for their land.

WILSON IS UNDECIDED

Does Not Know Whether He Will Resign the Governorship.

May Wait Until Democrat Is Elected President of Senate.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 3.—"I haven't had time to think of all these things."

Governor Wilson came out of the "Little White House," sat in an easy chair on his porch, crossed his legs, took off his glasses and thus replied today to a bombardment of questions hurled at him by a group of reporters. He was looking rather careworn and tired.

"I don't know yet whether I shall appoint Mr. McCombs my campaign manager or suggest him for the chairmanship of the national committee," he said.

"I haven't decided whether I shall resign as governor of New Jersey; I haven't had time to read the platform; I have made no campaign plans—in fact, I have devoted all my time to morning callers and to my correspondence.

Friends Need Rest.

"These and other details I shall take up in due time with my friends. Poor fellows, they will have to get some rest.

"To all the thoughtful and generous friends who have sent me messages of congratulations I want to express my hearty thanks. I shall not be able to answer them individually I am afraid, they are so delightfully numerous. I hope this inadequate acknowledgment will fall under their eyes. These messages of personal confidence help immeasurably to make public service seem worth while."

"Do you care to comment on the convention's work?" he was asked.

"I can only say," he replied, "that I am much gratified by its harmonious ending. As to the work of my supporters, I never saw anything like it for absolute devotion to what they wanted to accomplish. There were many of them, my warm personal friends."

Will Not Resign Soon.

Whatever else the governor does, he will continue to visit Trenton every Tuesday, maintaining the custom set when a summer mansion was first built, of keeping "Governor's Day" at the state capitol. His friends are positive that he will not resign as governor, until after the first of next year, as under the New Jersey law the president of the senate automatically takes the governor's seat upon the latter's resignation. John D. Prince, the present president of the senate, is a Republican.

"The governor would rather wait until a Democrat is elected president of the senate," said one of his friends today "and turn the office to him rather than to a Republican, although he has very high personal regard for Mr. Prince. We believe the governor is not required by law to resign. If this be true, he probably will continue in office until Jan. 1 next. His term expires on the third Monday in January, 1914."

Writes Shorthand.

Among the governor's accomplishments, he boasts a mastery of shorthand. He displayed his knowledge of this today by making notes from dictation. As he wrote, leaning his pad upon the arm of his easy chair, the camera squad snapped him again and again, and a moving picture man recorded his movements.

"Shorthand?" asked the governor, looking up in answer to a query; "why, yes; I write shorthand. I have written it for forty years. I taught myself how when I was 15 years old."

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE DECLARES FOR WILSON.

Atlanta, Ga., July 3.—The Georgia house of representatives today adopted resolutions congratulating Woodrow Wilson on his nomination and pledging him the support of the state's Democracy. The senate adopted resolutions of congratulations. Georgia went for Underwood in the presidential primary, and its delegates voted for the Alabama candidate until the last ballot.

You can, of course, "afford" to miss a dollar-saving chance now and then, through failing to read the ads—but is it worth while?

MIRACLES OF HEALING

Electricity Proves to Be More Powerful Than Medicines.

It is a great sight to witness the many sick who apply for treatment at the offices of the Electro Medical Doctors. It seems that the various faith-healers have made quite a deep impression on the minds of many people and as if there is a tendency to get away from old methods and old standard remedies to which the world has clung so far.

The Electro Medical Doctors have made many a wonderful cure; it is true, however, they resent any obsolete glorification as miracle performers, such pretentions usurpation would be all right for charletans, faith-healers and others who have no license to practice medicine.

The method of curing chronic diseases in a new way was not known in Duluth, and many people who came with great expectations to this city, have gone home again with greater satisfaction. Electro Medical treatments are really simple, like all things electrical, because electricity is a natural product; it is in the air, as well as in every healthy body. The more electricity a man has the better success he has in life, because it fills his body with vitality and keeps out disease and germs. Sick people are exactly in a condition minus of electricity, every diseased organ is lacking this natural prevective element and the longer any organ stays sick, the more the whole body will be deprived of its natural electric power. It is this power which the doctors so wonderfully fill the patient with, and they get well quicker than they expected. The corporation has equipped this office with $10,000 worth of scientific instruments so that every form of disease can be treated, and there is not a day when some happy patient does not return home leaving his crutches and sticks behind in Duluth. Among those who rejoice in health now and are looking forward to a complete cure are:

Miss Anna Greeningen from Chisholm, who has suffered intensely from diphtheria, antitoxin poisoning. She was so weak and anaemic that every one of her friends feared the worst. She is over the worst now and soon will be entirely cured.

Philip Gilbert of 28 West Second street, Duluth, has had a bad attack of arthritic rheumatism, the joints were swollen to an extent almost of ankylosis. With a few treatments the swelling has subsided and a complete cure will be established in the near future.

Mrs. P. W. Nelson of Cloquet, Minn., has had one of those cases which are rare and hard to be cured. She had diarrhoea for over three years which could not be stopped by any doctor. She is now recovering and no one appreciates the wonders of Electro-Medicine more than Mrs. Nelson.

The doctors desire all those cases of men, women and children who have been given up by other doctors. Do not fail to consult the doctors, whether the case is of long standing or not. All consultations are free from 9 to 12, 1 to 5, 6 to 8. Sundays 10 to 1. At No. 26 West Superior street (upstairs). Married ladies must be accompanied by their husbands and minors by the parents.

TWENTY MILE BOULEVARD

Opening of Snively Road Another Link in Wonderful Chain.

Park Board Also Condemning Land for the Western Extension.

With the opening of the Snively road on the west branch of the Lester river, Saturday, Duluth's board of park commissioners will have taken one more step in the direction of providing a parked highway winding for twenty miles along the crest of the hills and extending from Lester park on the east to Fairmont park on the west.

Through the central portion of the city the beautiful driveway connecting the various parks is an unbroken chain. At the eastern and western extremities there are a few links in the chain to be supplied. The dedication of the Snively road to park purposes will furnish three miles of new boulevard with an eastern terminus at Lester park.

The park commissioners, at a session held yesterday afternoon, decided to open the Snively road Saturday, although it has not yet been graveled. However, it is in good condition and farmers and automobile owners will find it very serviceable as a highway. Ultimately more money will be spent in putting it in first-class condition.

Between the Snively road and Congdon park and between Congdon and Chester parks serviceable public roads form connections in the park boulevard system. Luther Mendenhall, president of the park board, today stated that as yet none of the streets so used had been designated by the park board as a boulevard, but that this might be done in the near future.

Between Chester park and Oneota cemetery, the present western terminus of the boulevard, the parked driveway is a continuous road designated by the park board as a boulevard. The park board is now turning its attention to the improvement and extension of the western end from Oneota cemetery to Fairmont park.

The Western End.

The boulevard will be extended along a line following the northern boundary of Oneota cemetery to the east bank of Keene creek. It will then follow the winding course of the stream for about a half mile in a general north and easterly direction, crossing the creek near its intersection with the old St. Louis river road.

On the western side of Keene creek, the drive will be extended in a general southerly direction to the new Getchell road, which is now under course of construction. The Getchell road will be followed for a short distance until a connection with Bay View boulevard is reached.

Bay View boulevard is a driveway which was dedicated to the park board a few years ago when Bay View addition was platted. Bay View boulevard will be followed and at its southern extremity, an extension in a southwesterly direction will be made to Fairmont park.

In the acquiring of the necessary property for the western extension about twenty acres will be condemned by the park board. It will be necessary for the boulevard to cross the tracks of the Belt Line incline railroad at West Duluth. The crossing will not be at grade, according to present plans.

Near Fairmont park, the boulevard will connect with the Thomson road, a highway much used by automobiles to and from Duluth and the Twin Cities.

ever there is a fight for Democratic votes next fall, Governor John Burke will be found in the thick of it."

The speaker thereupon moved to make the nomination of Governor Marshall unanimous. Immediately a wild scramble for the doors followed, few waiting to hear the motion put. Chairman James' gavel fell at 1:56 a. m., and the first adjournment of one of the most notable conventions in the history of the Democratic party.

Bryan's "Valedictory."

William J. Bryan remained a center of interest to the last. A short time before adjournment he spoke his "valedictory" as he called it, transferring the party's standard to the shoulders of Governor Wilson. The respectful attention which the speech received and the applause at its conclusion were tributes to his leadership.

A large number of delegates left the city after the nomination of Governor Wilson yesterday afternoon without waiting for the final session. Those who remained showed the relief they felt that the fight was over and a spirit of hilarity prevailed among them.

The Missouri delegation, loyal to the last to "old Champ Clark," joined in the revelry as best they could and mingled their cheers for Woodrow Wilson with those of their convention neighbors, the joyful twenty-four from New Jersey.

Wilson and Marshall.

Baltimore, Md., July 3. — For president, Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey; for vice president, Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana. This was the ticket completed by the Democratic national convention at 1:56 a. m. today. The nomination of Governor Marshall for vice president came as something of a surprise, for when the night's balloting for vice president began, it seemed that the Bryan-Wilson contingent in the convention had definitely settled upon Governor John Burke of North Dakota.

There was not much of a fight, however, and when two ballots disclosed Marshall easily in the lead, Governor Burke's name was withdrawn and Marshall was proclaimed the nominee by acclamation. A minute later the convention adjourned sine die. The delegates, worn and weary, made their way out of the hall singing and happy to the start for home.

Governor Wilson was nominated at the afternoon session on the forty-sixth ballot and his nomination, like that of Marshall, was practically made unanimous.

Best of Feeling.

The best of feeling pervaded both sessions and the dedelgates seeemd to be in a happy frame of mind.

Mr. Bryan had announced his intention of introducing a resolution in effect discharging the national committee from conduct of the coming campaign, and allowing Governor Wilson to appoint hisown campaign committee. He was dissuaded from this course, and instead of making a move that might have stirred up strife, he made a little speech which he termed his "valedictory," and in happy vein turned over the mantle of his former leadership as a presidential candidate to Governor Wilson.

He pledged his faithful support to the presidential nominee and ended by urging that either Governor Burke or Senator George Chamberlain of Oregon be nominated for vice president. The Nebraskan was understood particularly to favor Governor Burke as a type of the modern progressive.

When, after the first ballot, some one moved to make the nomination of Marshall unanimous, Mr. Bryan started for the stage to make a statement. The motion was withdrawn before he could speak. When the motion was renewed after the second ballot, Mr. Bryan did not protest.

The platform, hewed out in committee several days ago, and warmly praised by Mr. Bryan, was adopted with a whoop.

Floor and Galleries Filled.

Despite the fact that the main business of the convention—the nomination of a presidential candidate had been disposed of, floor and galleries were filled for the final session of the Democratic national convention. The nomination of a vice presidential candidate and the adoption of the platform framed by the sub-committee of the resolutions committee of which Bryan is chairman, were the duties remaining to be performed by the convention which had been in session since last Tuesday. But a resolution framed by Bryan to allow the candidate to name his own campaign committee, promised trouble.

The delegates were tired. When the hour for the convening of the session arrived, there were several delegations which had not taken their places. A week of convention politics had just about tired out the most enthusiastic and every one wanted to go home. All the aggressiveness that marked the previous sessions, was gone, and the delegates were in a mood to finish things with a rush.

As the convention met, vice presidential gossip was given an impetus by the circulation of a report that Champ Clark, defeated for the presidential nomination, would be willing to accept second place on the picket.

Despite the rush to fill the hall, the police regulations were greatly relaxed. On the floor there were almost as many women as there were delegates.

The New Jersey delegates, enthusiastic over their victory, cheered Wilson and Bryan impartially after they took their seats. They also sang parodies on various popular songs for both Wilson and Clark. In return a Missouri delegate from across the aisle yelled "the houn's dawg is for Wilson now."

General Love Feast.

Thereupon New Jersey cheered. Wilson buttons were pinned upon the Missouri delegation, and there was a general love feast between New Jersey and Missouri.

The Maryland delegation began to sing "Maryland, My Maryland," and those on the floor and in the galleries arose. A chorus of songs of every kind followed, and the convention seemed to have entered upon a long delayed "era of good feeling."

The Clark-for-vice-president boom grew stronger despite a statement by the Clark managers that he would not accept the vice-presidential nomination.

Frederick J. Lynch of Minnesota, who was closely associated with the late Governor Johnson of Minnesota, was also mentioned as a vice-presidential possibility.

The names of Governor Marshall of Indiana and Governor Burke of North Dakota were also heard in this connection.

William J. Bryan entered the hall while political and patriotic songs were still being sung, and they were interrupted by the cheers that greeted Bryan. Mr. Bryan took his seat with the Nebraska delegation, and immediately became the center of a group of delegates anxious to congratulate him. It became apparent as the Bryan advisers left his side and mingled with the Wilson delegates on the floor, that Governor Marshall of Indiana would not have the support of the Bryan-Wilson forces for the vice-presidential nomination. Bryan let it be known that he did not believe Marshall would be a strong candidate.

Called to Order.

At 9:30 p. m. Chairman James called the convention to order.

Order was restored and the Rev. Carlton D. Harris of the South Methodist Episcopal church of Baltimore delivered the invocation.

Immediately after the prayer, Chairman James announced: "Nominations of candidates for the vice presidency of the United States are now in order."

The roll call began. Alabama passed. Arizona had no name to offer. California, Colorado, Connecticut and Delaware passed. H. H. Dean of Georgia mounted the platform to make the first nomination. "We want to nominate a really great man," he shouted. From all over the hall came cries of "Clark." For several minutes Dean continued amid shouts of "Name your man, who is he?" When he finally placed Clark in nomination, a yell sounded through the hall. Meantime Former Governor Dockery of Missouri hurried to the platform and said: "The Hon. Champ Clark has decided he cannot accept the office of vice president," he said.

"Champ Clark did not reach this conclusion out of pique," continued Dockery. "He is as loyal to the Democratic party as its nominee, Woodrow Wilson ever was. Speaker Clark simply prefers to stay in his present place, or remain a simple member of the house of representatives."

Burke Named.

As Dockery concluded Idaho yielded to North Dakota, and Former Senator Purcell placed Governor Burke of North Dakota in nomination.

Mr. Purcell characterized Governor Burke as a "Progressive of Progressives." He asserted that Burke would draw many Progressive Republican votes to the Democratic ticket.

Idaho seconded the nomination of Burke. Samuel Alschuler of Illinois took the platform and nominated Elmore W. Hurst of Rock Island, Ill.

A motion to limit nominating speeches to five minutes and seconding speeches to three minutes went through by acclamation.

F. G. Menzies of Indiana then took the platform and nominated Governor Marshall for the vice presidency.

Henry Volmer of Iowa nominated Martin J. Wade. He urged "Wilson and Wade" as a ticket that would sweep the country.

Kansas seconded the nomination of Burke and Louisiana seconded Governor Marshall.

Alonzo L. Miles of Maryland placed Mayor James Preston of Baltimore in nomination. After Miles concluded A. Mitchell Palmer, a Wilson manager, asked unanimous consent that the consideration of the vice presidential nominations be suspended, and that the report of the committee on resolutions be acted upon. Unanimous consent was obtained and Chairman Kern, of the resolutions committee, read the platform.

He had scarcely begun then there was a general movement to leave the hall. It was several minutes before the business could proceed and the police were kept busy clearing the aisles. When order was restored Senator Kern resumed the reading of the platform.

Platform Adopted.

The reading of the report of the committee on resolutions consumed nearly an hour. It was listened to with careful attention by the delegates and the few spectators who remained in the hall. When the reading concluded Senator Kern moved the adoption of the report, which was done by viva voce vote.

Governor Brewer of Mississippi offered the formal resolution giving the thanks of the convention to National Chairman Norman E. Mack and National Secretary Urey Woodson. It was passed without debate. The other customary resolutions approving the convention committees also were adopted.

It also was apparent that the real fight for the vice presidency rested between Governor Burke and Governor Marshall of Indiana. The states seconding the nominations of the two governors were about equaly divided.

A series of resolutions praising Baltimore, Mayor Preston, the police and fire department, the hotels and practically everything else in Baltimore, were put through. The delegates grew restless and Alexander D. Petts of Mississippi yelled "the regular order."

When the vice presidential nominations were again taken up it was after midnight.

The first balloting resulted: Marshall, 389; Burke, 305 2-3; Chamberlain, 157; Hurst of Illinois, 77; Preston, 58; McCombs, 18; Osborne, 9; Sulzer, 3; Wade, 26; absent, 46¼. As the second ballot progressed, Marshall gained steadily. Many of the so-called Wilson states shifted to support him. Burke's name was withdrawn, and then Marshall was nominated by acclamation.

STRAWBERRY PICKER KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Zumbrota, Minn., July 3.—This part of Goodhue county was visited by a severe wind and electric storm, and Dora Guenther, aged 17, was instantly killed by lightning on the farm of Ignatz Huelsman, northeast of town, while picking strawberries. The Newlands church, under construction, was struck by lightning and a large amount of damage done. Several other buildings were struck.

WOODROW WILSON'S LIFE STORY

Trenton, N. J., July 3. Woodrow Wilson, who now becomes the Democratic nominee for president of the United States, was born in 1856 in Virginia, where he was baptized under the full name of Thomas Woodrow Wilson. He dropped the Thomas about the time that he completed his first book and took his first position as a teacher.

Mr. Wilson cannot appeal to the sentimentality of the public on account of a self-made man's rise to power. His father and grand-father were educated men, prominent in their communities, while not rich they were able to give the aspiring young scholar a liberal education. His father, the Rev. Joseph Ruggles Wilson, moved to Georgia when the boy was 2 years old and later preached in various churches in North and South Carolina.

It was not toward scholarship, however, that his earliest ambitions led him. He resolved in college to become a public man. To that end he studied law and hung out his shingle. But his legal practice was not lucrative and after eighteen months of it, he gave it up, and with it, for years to come, his desire for office.

Young Wilson entered Davidson college at the age of 17. After two years he entered Princeton, from which he was graduated in 1879. He then studied law in the University of Virginia, receiving the degree of bachelor of law in 1882.

He received the degree of bachelor of philospohy from Johns Hopkins university in 1886, that of doctor of laws from Lake Forest university, North Carolina, in 1887, and that of doctor of literature from Yale university at its bi-centennial celebration.

President at Princeton.

Prof. Wilson occupied the position of adjunct professor of history in Bryn Mawr college and was afterward professor of history and political economy in Wesleyan university. In 1890 he became professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton. He gained fame as a lecturer and writer. His work entitled "The State" and his "Life of George Washington," are among his best known writings. Prof. Wilson became the thirteenth in the roll of presidents at Princeton in 1902 and was the first layman to hold this office.

During his administration at Princeton Dr. Wilson made two attempts to change materially the character of American education. In one project, he not only failed, but alienated the support of a large number of the alumni. Of many of the trustees and some of his co-workers on the teaching staff. That project, which did not succeed, was to establish the "squad" system for undergraduates. It was resented by the alumni as an attack on the student clubs, and the opposition became so strong that the president was asked by the board of trustees to withdraw his proposal. The successful innovation was the preceptoral system. That called for the appointment of fifty teachers or preceptors to be added to the faculty at an increased cost to the university of $100,000.

Elected Governor.

When Mr. Wilson, after twenty-five years' service as an educator, resigned the presidency of Princeton in 1910 to accept the nomination for governor of New Jersey, there was a general tendency to look askance at the "schoolmaster in politics." However, Mr. Wilson was elected by a plurality of 49,000 votes and became the first Democratic governor which New Jersey had had for sixteen years.

It was this sweeping victory in a state which had been consistently hostile to Democratic principles that brought Mr. Wilson prominently into national politics.

His Platform.

The platform on which he ran pledged his party to the enactment of a workmen's compensation act, a reform of the election laws of the state which would make direct nominations possible, a corrupt practice act and a public utilities commission bill.

In addition, a law was passed authorizing municipalities to adopt a commission form of government, as well as several other measures of a reformatory character.

While his success in obtaining the passage of these measures served to bring him still more prominently before the nation, it was his fight to obtain the election of James E. Martine to the United States senate to succeed Senator John Kean which probably focused the more widespread attention on the New Jersey Governor.

James Smith, Jr., leader of the state "machine" which nominated Governor Wilson, let it be known after the election that he expected the senatorial toga, but the governor espoused the cause of Mr. Martine, the candidate chosen in the popular primary.

In the 1911 elections, tables were rather turned against Wilson, and he lost ground in the legislature. Current comment in many quarters was that the governor had received a rebuke from his activities the previous year, but the Wilson adherents claimed that he had been merely "knifed" by the bosses of the Democratic "machine."

In the New Jersey presidential primaries the governor retrieved his so-called loss popularity by sweeping every district except two, in which Smith and James Nugent made a big fight against him. Of the twenty-eight delegates to Baltimore, twenty-four were pledged to Wilson.

MARSHALL'S RECORD.

Indianapolis, July 3.—Thomas R. Marshall, Democratic candidate for vice president, has been governor of Indiana since 1908. As a lawyer, first in criminal and later in corporation suits, his practice extended over the northern part of Indiana. He swept the state for governor when the Republican party was divided on the "wet" and "dry" question.

Mr. Marshall was born in North Manchester, Ind., in 1854. He attended the common schools, helping on the home farm at the time. He later attended Wabash college, from which he was graduated. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, of which his grand-uncle, Former Chief Justice John Marshall, was founder. He began the practice of law when he was 21 years old.

His work as a reform governor gained him attention throughout the country. Probably his best known act was his recommendation of changes in the state Constitution, which by many was regarded as radical.

WORD GIVEN TO ATTACK

Several Days' Delay Was Due to Reaching Designated Positions.

At Gen. Huerta's Federal Headquarters, three miles south of Bachimba, Mex., July 3.—After several days of delay during which the troops, by a big flank movement, were reaching designated positions, Gen. Huerta, the federal commander, gave the word at 5 o'clock this morning to begin the attack on the rebel army, gathered near Bachimba under Gen. Orozco. With a few shells the government artillery had dislodged the rebels from one important position during the night.

The troops are being moved cautiously to avoid rebel mines, a number of which have been discovered and exploded.

Explanation of the reported catastrophe of two days ago, when a big explosion was heard in the rebel camp, was made today in a report to headquarters. A rebel mine destroyed a big water tank, seriously injuring a civilian and slightly wounding another. Many mines were discovered nearby and the detonation was caused by their explosion after being removed by the government engineers.

Rebels Ready for Attack.

At the Rebel Front, Bachimba, July 3.—Impatient at the dilatory tactics of the federals, who for three days have been marching their troops to within twenty miles of Bachimba and then turning them back, the rebel army directed by Gen. Orozco early today prepared for a federal attack.

Eleven wagon loads of ammunition and provisions left today for Colonia Morelos. Information has been received by Gen. Sanjines that the rebels are advancing in three columns from Chihuahua and have already passed Casas Grandes, Pearson and Madera, on the Mexico Northwestern railroad. Federal officials here believe Orozco will abandon Bachimba and Chihuahua and move his entire force into Eastern Sonora.

ROOSEVELT WILL STICK

course, continue to stand for the Progressive nomination. I have been just going over with Senator Dixon the call which is about to be issued by the provisional committee for the Progressive national convention.

Irreconcilable Elements.

"To my mind what has gone on in Baltimore for the past ten days has shown the utterly irreconcilable nature of the elements which exist in the Democratic party, elements so irreconcilable as to make it hopeless to expect from them any permanent reform movement along constructive lines. It has also shown that any nomination obtained at Baltimore could after all be obtained only by the support of men like Mr. Taggart in Indiana, and Mr. Sullivan in Illinois, and the success of the candidate at the polls, without regard to his personality, would be conditioned, not only upon the hearty support of Mr. Taggart and Mr. Sullivan and their colleagues and representatives in every other state from New York to Colorado, but would also be conditioned upon these men succeeding in carrying their several state tickets and in perpetuating themselves in control of the Democratic party.

"Under these conditions I feel that the events at Baltimore, like the events at Chicago, prove the absolute need of a new nation-wide, non-sectional party which shall, in good faith, stand for the interests of the people as a whole, and shall, in far-reaching fashion alike in the nation and the several states, take the lead in the movement for social, political and industrial justice, a movement which must include a broad, constructive governmental policy, which shall look to both the present day economic needs of our people as a whole and the necessity for the fullest possible commercial development, both at home and abroad."

Plans for New Party.

While the Democratic convention was nominating Governor Wilson, Col. Roosevelt and his lieutenants were hard at work making plans for the new party.

The call probably will be issued on Thursday, the Fourth of July, Senator Dixon saying that he thought it a suitable day.

Col Roosevelt was asked whether he would attend the convention.

"I don't know," he replied. "I hadn't thought of it. Perhaps," he said smilingly, "I shan't be elected as a delegate."

Col. Roosevelt would not discuss the victory of Governor Wilson nor would he say a word regarding the Democratic convention in addition to his reference to it in his statement. He was asked whether a new party would place a ticket in the field in Ohio in opposition to the one selected by the Republican state convention there yesterday and said that his supporters in Ohio would settle that question.

VICTORY IS CERTAINTY

tion of a ticket that would so appeal to the progressive element of a nation as to make a third party improbable.

Expects 2,000,000 Majority.

"I am satisfied that, with Mr. Wilson running for president on the platform which has been prepared, there will be comparatively few Progressive Republicans who will not feel justified in supporting the Democratic ticket. If I were to make an estimate tonight, I would say that we ought to have not less than 2,000,000 majority of the popular vote, and enough of the electoral vote to give us an overwhelming majority in the electoral college.

"The action of the convention in adopting the anti-Morgan-Ryan-Belmont resolution has demonstrated that the Democratic party is not only progressive, but is bold enough to throw down the gauntlet to the predatory interests. It is fortunate that Mr. Wilson's nomination was made without the aid of Mr. Murphy. It is no reflection upon the many good men in the New York delegation to say this.

"From every standpoint the outlook is hopeful. The only unpleasant thing about a political fight is that success to one aspirant brings disappointment to others. Those who fail ought to find some consolation in the fact that failure is not always a reflection upon the individual. Men are only available when they fit conditions. I decided two years ago that I did not fit the conditions as we then saw them, and I was not willing to assume the responsibility of advocating any particular progressive, partly because I refused to trust the wisdom of the multitude, and partly because I felt that a great deal would depend upon the action of the Republican convention. When the Republican convention adjourned, it was even more apparent than before that circumstances required some emphatic action on the part of our convention to insure consolidation of the progressive vote under our banner."

Wilson Fits the Conditions.

"The incidents of the convention have in a strange way emphasized the progress of our party far more than I had expected that progressiveness could be emphasized, and the convention has decided, with rare unanimity, that Governor Wilson fits the conditions that the Republican convention and our convention have joined in creating.

"Knowing what the platform is, I feel that it will help him in his fight, and I have no doubt that our convention will proceed to choose a vice presidential candidate who will strengthen the ticket.

"It has been a long convention, but the results are worth the time. The dawn is here, and progressive Democracy will be the people's pillar of cloud by day."

Mr. Bryan held an informal levee in his roms yesterday afternoon and many delegates dropped into congratulate him on his fight. Telegrams poured in praising him for the campaign he had made in the interest of progressivism.

A party of Princeton students marched to Mr. Bryan's rooms and there gave free outlet to their enthusiasm over the naming of the former head of Princeton university for the standard bearer.

The students demanded a speech.

"You say you are very happy," said Mr. Bryan. "Well if you get happier and happier every day until the election, you will be as happy as I am now."

When some member of the crowd said he had been for Mr. Underwood, Mr. Bryan addressed himself personally to him saying:

"I had no special pleasure in opposing your man. He is a splendid fellow personally, but he simply did not fit the occasion."

If it bore no nameplate—the Studebaker Flanders "20" would be bound to make an immediate and an impressive appeal to your preference.

Study it from any of the ordinarily accepted specification standards—motor-measurement, power, wheel-base, axle-strength, ease, style—and rivalry, in its class, recedes into the remote background.

But you are not asked to draw a check for $800 on the evidence of your own eyes; or your own experience; or your own sense of value.

Seventy-five thousand of your fellow citizens vouch for Studebaker value.

And we would like you to feel the impact of that tremendous pressure of public opinion.

We would like you to summon up a mental picture of that mighty host of Studebaker cars rendering yeoman service in every nook and corner of the nation.

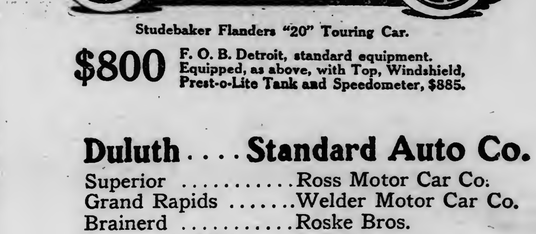

We would like you to remember that the satisfaction of these 75,000 citizens has its source in the name Studebaker.

We would like you to realize that each and every one of these 75,000 cars does its full duty, day by day, precisely because it is a Studebaker car.

The Studebaker "20" which you buy and drive is the embodiment and the expression of the sixty-year-old Studebaker policy of serving its public.

We want you to remind yourself that the Studebaker word has been good as gold to the buying world for more than a half century—and that it is being made good in every car that issues from the mighty Studebaker plants.

The globe-girdling sales system of the Studebaker Corporation—the 1,800 Studebaker stores in America—the superb laboratory and manufacturing equipment in the Studebaker plant—and the low cost of production and distribution which they involve—in these factors you find the reason why the Studebaker "20" lays immediate hold upon your preference—why it appeals to you as the very uttermost of value at or about $800.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 3.—George L. Isles, the state agent for the Columbia Fire Insurance company of Omaha, died suddenly at his home Monday night of hardening of the arteries. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Boils, Rashes, Pimples, Etc.

When the blood becomes infected with any unhealthy humor the effect is shown by boils, pimples, and rashes or eruptions on the skin. Humors get into the blood usually because of an inactive condition of the eliminative members. Remove these humors and no skin trouble can exist, because its very source is then destroyed. Boils, rashes, pimples, etc. can never be cured through the application of external medicines, the most to be obtained from such measures is temporary relief. S.S.S. CURES all skin affections because it purifies the blood. It goes down into the circulation and cleanses it of every particle of unhealthy matter. Then the blood supplies nourishment to the cuticle instead of irritating it with a fiery humor. If you have any skin trouble you could not do better than purify your blood with S. S. S. It does not "patch up;" it cures. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free to all write and request same.

DAMAGE TO CAR SLIGHT

Mud on the Top Shows It Turned Completely Over.

Laden high with picnic baskets and other outing paraphernalia and with much less damage to itself than one would imagine, a Pierce automobile stands today at the Interstate garage as mute evidence of last night's grim horror on the Pike Lake road when three people were killed.

The damage to the car is slight. The confusion with which things were thrown into the tonneau of car together with the smashed lamps and badly twisted fenders, are the only evidences of an accident.

The car was towed in to the city shortly after the accident by an employe of the Interstate company and it is probable that it would have run in under its own power, had he not been too excited to think of cranking it.

The fenders on both sides are bent and broken which shows that the car did not turn once, but twice, at least. Outside the damage to the fenders and the lamps, the car is undamaged, it seems, after a quick examination.

The car must have turned completely over as fenders on both sides are broken and the corners of both sides of the top contain earth.

The car is the heaviest and most luxurious as well as one of the most powerful turned out by the Pierce factory. It is rated at 48 horse power, it is said, but will develop 60, so automobile men say.

of Mr. Fitzgerald at Pike Lake. On the return trip at a point about four miles from Pike Lake, where the road dips gently to a turn to the west, and the turn was attempted, the car skidded into the ditch, hitting a pile of stones on the opposite side of the ditch. The car was traveling at about fifteen or twenty miles an hour; it is claimed by Mr. Fitzgerald but the momentum caused the car to make a complete turn in the air, throwing its occupants out and landing on four of them with terrific force. The chauffeur, either purposely or accidentally, shut off his engine as the accident happened or it is believed that the car would have caught fire and added to the horror before help could have arrived.

Mr. Fitzgerald said this morning that he and Miss Turrish were thrown clear of the machine, a considerable distance further than the others. It seems to him to have been almost providential for Miss Turrish was sitting beside Miss Richardson who was killed.

Mrs. White, Miss Richardson, William White, Jr., and Maddigan were thrown only far enough for the car in its descent to fall upon them. Mr. White fell across the body of Miss Richardson and the heavy rear wheels rested upon his shoulders when rescue came.

Unable to Move Car.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in recovering from the shock of the fall, tried to raise the car, but the feat was impossible for one man, so he hastened for help. He went to two farmhouses near by and returned with Joseph Woods and son and a neighbor, Joseph Marshall. Mr. White and Miss Turrish were taken in a passing car to the home of Mrs. Kimberly, a quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident, and from there telephone messages were sent to the city.

Mr. White Notified.

Mr. White, Sr., received the shocking news as he was visiting with his friend, Dr. McComb, who lives on the corner. Together they started out for the scene of the accident. Mr. Turrish was summoned by his daughter, Miss Nannie, who did not lose her composure, and told the people in the Turrish home that there had been a "slight accident" and asked for help. She is still quite composed—too calm, the attending physician fears, for a reaction in the form of a severe nervous collapse may result.

After the coroner had viewed the remains and the scene of the tragedy, the bodies were taken to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms by the police wagon which had arrived one of the first.

Miss Turrish is permitted to see no one except her immediate family, for a breakdown is being guarded against. Her mother was taken quite ill yesterday, being confined to bed, and the shock of this news has rendered her condition distressing. Mr. Fitzgerald is able to be about, his injury being very slight. Mr. White, Jr., is resting well in St. Mary's hospital and is expected to recover.

Mrs. William White was one of Duluth's best known women. During her residence of about sixteen years in the city she had established herself as one of the leaders in charitable work, and was a leading member of the First Presbyterian church. Her husband, William White, is a prominent business man of Duluth and was a member of the former firm of Panton & White.

Miss Gladys Richardson was 20 years of age and is prominently connected in the East. Her mother and stepfather live in Bridgeport, Conn., the latter being Col. N. H. Heft, inventor of the third rail. Miss Richardson was a college mate of Miss Turrish and was graduated this spring from Bennett's school at Millbrook, N. Y. Upon her graduation she immediately left for Duluth with her chum, Miss Turrish, telling her parents, who were at the graduation exercises, that she would come here before returning home. Since her arrival here she had become quite popular with the younger set and many affairs were planned in her honor.

Mr. Turrish telegraphed the awful news to Col. Heft at 3 o'clock this morning, but up to 1:30 p. m. had received no reply. Mr. Turrish also had another exceedingly difficult duty to perform—breaking the news to the chauffeur's mother and sister. Mrs. Madigan and her daughter reside at 15 North Second avenue east, where the former manages an employment bureau. The scene at the little home, when word of his death was received at 2 o'clock this morning, was heartrending.

First Thought for Others.

The words were the dying admonition of Mrs. White to Charles Fitzgerald after she had been extricated from underneath the automobile. Mr. Fitzgerald had just pulled her and her son from the auto to the roadway and helped her to the side of the bank a few feet away.

To all appearance she was not injured by the accident and is believed to have died of heart failure induced by the shock. It was stated this morning that she had rather a weak heart.

Fitzgerald hurried to the car and tried to raise it, but the big Pierce-Arrow, weighing three tons, could not be budged. The young man thought that he might be able to move it slightly, but half a dozen men with a wrecking outfit sent from the city were required to raise it before the bodies could be removed.

When he returned to the side of Mrs. White she was lying white and still beside the roadway. He thought that she had fainted and threw cold water in her face in an effort to revive her, but she was beyond assistance.

Skidded Long Distance.

Those who visited the scene of the terrible tragedy state that the car skidded from 130 to 140 feet. It shot from the side of the roadway across the ditch and plunged erratically along the slight embankment paralleling the driveway, leaving a trail like some giant snake twisting and writhing along the raise. It maintained the same general direction for about 70 or 75 feet and then veered at an angle, sliding and pitching for about the same distance. When the machine made the turn it pitched Miss Turrish and Fitzgerald out, hurling them about a dozen feet to the side and leaving them safe and uninjured except for minor bruises and scratches. Both of them were sitting in the large rear seat. Mrs. White, who was chaperoning the party of young people, sat in the front seat beside the chauffeur. Mr. White was in one of the small swivel seats between the front and rear seats and Miss Richardson was in the rear seat.

The car was not turned squarely on the ground, but rested on its side at an angle, crushing the life out of both Miss Richardson and Maddigan. Dr. F. F. Clark, who hurried to the scene in an automobile, states that Miss Richardson was undoubtedly killed instantly. His opinion was that the chauffeur could have lived but a few minutes.

Miss Richardson was flat on her face, with the side of the car between the front and rear seats pinning her down across the back of her neck. Her jaw was broken in two places and the spinal column fractured.

The side of the car above the front wheels crushed Maddigan across the chest. His spinal column is also thought to have been broken.

Mrs. White and her son were not caught where any of the great weight of the car rested directly upon them and Fitzgerald was able to get them out by desperate efforts.

After Fitzgerald had released Mrs. White and her son he hailed a passing automobile. He placed White inside and started for the city. They were met on the road by Dr. Clark, who made an immediate examination of White. He found no bones fractured and after rendering temporary aid sent him on to the city. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital. It was stated there this morning that he is in good condition but that he would not see no one. It is expected that he will be able to leave the hospital within two or three days.

Fitzgerald returned with Dr. Clark. Several men had been summoned from nearby farmhouses but their combined efforts were futile when they tried to lift the car so that the crushed bodies of the two underneath could be taken out. This was not accomplished until aid arrived from Duluth. The bodies were carried to the roadside and covered. Dr. C. F. McComb, county coroner, was notified of the accident by Dr. Clark and he hastened out. The police were also informed and a detail hurried from headquarters in the large police touring car.

Fitzgerald stated this morning that he would estimate that the car was traveling at a speed of fifteen to twenty miles an hour. He was certain that it was not being driven at a high rate of speed.

He commented upon the calmness and coolness of Miss Turrish. He declared that her composure was remarkable, enabling her to be of great assistance. She was taken unconscious into a farm house, but was revived in a comparatively short while.

News of the awful catastrophe spread rapidly throughout the downtown section of the city after the calls for assistance had been received. Relatives had already been informed by telephone of what had happened and rushed to the scene. Mr. Turrish, who had just returned from a business trip outside the city, secured the first automobile which came into sight after he had learned of the accident. Mr. White was there soon afterwards, as was Ward Ames, Jr., his son-in-law.

The body of Mrs. White was removed to her home in the East end, while that of Miss Richardson is being held at the undertaking rooms of L. Crawford pending word from her relatives in the East. The body of Maddigan was taken to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan. No arrangements have been made for the funerals.

est reputation both as an executive and as a Democrat and I feel honored by having him as a running mate. He is, I am happy to say, a valued personal friend of mine, as well as a fellow Democrat."

Governor Wilson said that one time during the convention he completely despaired of receiving the nomination. That was on Friday evening, when Speaker Clark received a majority of the total vote. Governor Wilson then wired to his manager at Baltimore, William H. McCombs, to release the wilson delegates. Mr. McCombs, according to Governor Wilson, told the delegates they were released, but they refused to change their vote.

Murphy Prophesies Victory.

Nearly 1,000 messages of congratulations to Governor Wilson were in the hands of his secretary before the governor had arisen from the breakfast table. Among the first received was one from Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall: "Permit me to extend my hearty congratulations," it read: "your nomination means a great Democratic victory."

W. J. Conners of Buffalo, wired: "A splendid fight won the right way. I congratulate you and the Democratic party upon your nomination."

United States Senator Mark Smith of Arizona: "I was for my schoolboy friend and college classmate, Champ Clark, until this afternoon. From now I am with you all that is in me. I congratulate you, our party, and our country on your success, which will be repeated in November."

Perry Belmont: "My sincerest congratulations. Under your leadership a progressive Democratic party will triumph over both President Taft and his predecessor."

Hobson Heard From.

Richard P. Hobson and wife: "We congratulate you, the Democratic party and the country upon your superb victory."

Governor Hall of Louisiana: "I extend my congratulations."

Atlee Pomerene, United States senator from Ohio: "Accept my hearty congratulations. My services at your command for the campaign."

Old classmates and pupils from near and far sent messages of good will. Some were bubbling with enthusiasm. "Hooray," wired one ecstatic fellow, "school has begun, and thus endeth the first lesson."

A message from Mont Clair, N. J., reading: "Heartiest congratulations," from the New Jersey Association for the Blind, affected the governor greatly. He has taken great interest in the work of this organization.

"Legitimate business has nothing to fear. Socialism nothing to hope for," wired a North Carolina friend.

When the News Came.

When the news of Wilson's nomination reached Sea Girt yesterday, twenty newspaper reporters who were sitting on his lawn rushed for the porch where the governor had been sitting. He had vanished, and they burst into the parlor door.

"Mr. President," they shouted with one voice, "we congratulate you."

They found the man they sought when his life as the nominee of the Democratic party was less than a minute old. He was laughing and chatting with his wife and daughters. The news, he said, had come a moment before over the long distance telephone after days of waiting and the few seconds he had spent with his family were his first of real relaxation during the week.

"The honor is as great as man can get by the nomination of a party," the nominee said, as the group stood attentively by, "especially in the circumstances, and I hope I appreciate it at its true value, but just at this moment I feel the tremendous responsibility it involves even more than I feel the honor. I hope with all my heart the party will never have reason to regret it."

The governor was only allowed a brief respite before there poured in a deluge of callers who had hung about the tickers and bulletin boards for seven days. They streamed by every road and pathway to the white cottage, swarmed over the lawn, climbed in on the porch, perched themselves on the brass cannon guarding the entrance on the knoll nearby, on the fence—anywhere there was room to sit, and cheered again and again. Between bursts of applause, they called him "Woodrow" and "governor" and "Wilson," but most of all they hailed him as "the next president of the United States."

Flags Hoisted.

A thousand yards away a company of militia on the rifle range peppered away at long lines of targets backing on the sea. Someone telephoned the clubhouse, and the firing ceased. Down the twisted roadway there raced a bevy of automobiles. As they drew up in front of the governor's cottage, a half dozen men jumped from one and ran with a flash of bunting under their arms to a lofty flagpole, and a second later a forty-foot flag was rippling from the top in the breeze.

"Three cheers for the next president," shouted a lusty-lunged enthusiast, and the crowd gave them with a will. The governor removed his soft brown hat, bowed and said:

"Gentlemen, I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Within the governor's parlor there was a great crowding of visitors and shaking of hands and bestowal of all sorts of good wishes and predictions.

Governor's Family Happy.

The governor's three daughters, Jessie, Margaret and Eleanor were quite beside themselves with happiness, while Mrs. Wilson smiled and said she felt "Oh, so solemn" and that the responsibility was almost as terrible as the suspense. But the governor acted like an enthusiastic boy grown dignified and said it was almost too good to be true.

Miss Jessie Wilson opened the presidential campaign of 1912 for her father. She gathered a pocketful of Wilson buttons and pinned them on the callers. She did not forget four railroad brakemen who came in to shake hands with the governor and tell him that they were tired of being Republicans and would cast their first Democratic votes for him.

The days of waiting have not all been bright. Last Friday evening the governor's chances seemed to have gone glimmering when Clark polled a majority, and he telephoned his managers at Baltimore to release his delegates. Word came back that they refused to be released, and not a man, he said, deserted him. Meantime the governor told his secretary, and the secretary made a bet with a friend on Champ Clark against the field. The secretary paid last night.

Governor Wilson has not decided whether he will resign as New Jersey's governor to make his presidential campaign.

His close friends say he won't—at least not for a while, and probably not until election.

Marshall Gets Word.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 3.—Governor Thomas R. Marshall last night got out of bed and came to the door to learn that he had been chosen Democratic candidate for vice president. The porch light showed him clad in silk pajamas. He said that he had been sleeping soundly and that the fight at Baltimore had not been worrying him. He made no formal statement other than that he was glad that the nomination had come to him while he remained inactive as a candidate.

Governor Marshall did not feel that he had been wronged by his delegates when they went to Wilson. He said that he did not anticipate second place on the ticket, believing that the honor would go to some Democratic leader of the South or West.

Yesterday afternoon, Governor Marshall telegraphed to Governor Wilson: "To the length of my ability and influence I purpose to work for your election."

"I never asked any delegate to the Democratic convention to vote for me," said the governor, "and I did not expect the nomination except as a remote possibility. The nomination of Governor Wilson is eminently satisfactory to me."

Harmon Congratulates.

Columbus, Ohio, July 3.—After being informed that Governor Wilson had been nominated for the presidency, Gvernor Harmon sent the successful candidate a telegram congratulating him. Asked what he thought of the selection of Governor Wilson, Governor Harmon said:

"I do not care to say anything about it now. You can say I am pleased with the support accorded me by my boys."

Clark Adds This.

"Baltimore, July 2—Governor Woodrow Wilson, Seagirt, N. J.: Just leaving for Washington. I congratulate you on your hard-earned victory. I will do all I can to elect you.

"CHAMP CLARK."

Stone for the Nominee.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—Senator Stone of Missouri, one of the principal leaders of the Clark campaign for the presidential nomination, joined with the speaker last night in pledging support to Governor Wilson.

"I am for the nominee," said Senator Stone, "and will work from now until election day for the success of the Democratic ticket. It will be triumphant at the polls in November."

Senator Dubois, who was the active manager of the Clark campaign, was in the same mood.

"We made a strong fight," he said. "We had a good candidate. He joins with me in pledging support to Woodrow Wilson. He will be elected."

August Belmont also contributed to the Wilson jubilation. "I came to this convention as a delegate from Nassau county, duly elected at the primaries," he said. "It came with the purpose to do everything in my power toward the nomination of a good candidate. Whatever my preferences may have been they were to the exclusion of no man. I am a Democrat, I have always been a Democrat, and expect to remain one, because I believe in the fundamental principles and the progressive policies of my party. I shall support the ticket."

Lawler Sends Congratulations.

St. Paul, Minn., July 3.—D. W. Lawler sent the following telegram of congratulation to A. C. Weiss, chairman of the Minnesota delegation at Baltimore: "As a supporter of Speaker Clark in our state convention, I congratulate you and the entire delegation on the nomination of Governor Wilson. By united action we can carry Minnesota for the national and state tickets."

Henry Watterson Peeved.

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—Henry Watterson, whose activities in behalf of and against Woodrow Wilson in the pre-convention campaign received considerable attention, says in the Courier-Journal today:

"In a contest between three tickets, headed respectively by Taft, Roosevelt and the devil, the Courier-Journal, being a daily newspaper and unable to take to the woods, perforce will be obliged to support his Satanic Majesty. Democrats pray for the best. The Courier-Journal approves at least the platform and will support the ticket."

of leaving the cabinet in December, 1910. In one part the letter says:

"You cannot forget how I stood by you when you were on the point of having taken from your hands what was probably the most important undertaking of your administration. When the White House in December, 1910, without consulting you, and entirely without your knowledge, entered into negotiations for an issue of Panama bonds, the embarrassment of the situation threatened to force your resignation. You will remember that I did everything in my power to avert your humiliation and that I loyally agreed to resign and leave the service with you if your resignation became necessary."

Mr. Andrew's letter to the president says in part:

"In presenting my resignation of the office with which you have favored me, I deem it proper to acquaint you with conditions which have existed in the treasury for the last two years at least and which are of grave concern not only to every official of the treasury, but also to the many thousands throughout the country who have business to conduct with this department.

Secretary Alone Responsible.

"For a long time the transaction of much of the treasury's business has been at a standstill and an outbreak of some sort has been imminent. Many able and energetic treasury officials have had to bear the brunt of harsh criticism from people outside who have suffered interminable delays in their business with the treasury, for which the secretary alone was responsible, and at the same time they have had to submit to criticism even more harsh and more undeserved from Mr. MacVeagh himself, whenever he discovered that they had ventured to act upon some matter of minor importance without awaiting his decision.

"Time and time again heads of the great divisions of the treasury have found themselves unable to carry on the business entrusted to them and have been discouraged to the verge of resigning their positions, because they were unable to obtain any opinion or decision from Mr. MacVeagh upon urgent questions which had been before him for many months. At the same time they have invariably been reproached by him for such limited action as they may have been compelled to take on their own responsibility.

Would Not Speak.

"Mr. MacVeagh's mental attitude is difficult to realize by those who have not had intimate everyday experience with it. Toward many of the higher treasury officials he has from time to time displayed an aversion, suspicion and distrust, which, in view of the fact that these officials were men of his own choosing, would seem inexplicable in a man of normal mind. For many months at a time he has persistently refused even to speak to those officials of his department with whom he should naturally have been in constant personal communication.

"When Mr. Hilles was assistant secretary of the treasury there was at least one period amounting to several weeks during which Mr. MacVeagh refused to have any relations with him. I know there were several longer periods of curiously suspended relations with Assistant Secretary Norton.

"Mr. McCluang, the treasurer of the United States, affirms that he has only been allowed one short interview with the secretary during a period covering more than a year. Mr. Ralph, the director of the bureau of engraving and printing, has repeatedly complained of similar treatment of himself and many other instances could be cited.

Decisions Held Up Months.

"In my own case, with an office adjoining and communicating with that of the secretary, the situation has been similar. Although I have supposedly been the representative of the secretary in his dealings with nineteen different bureaus and divisions of the treasury, I have not been allowed in the aggregate a total of more than one hour's conversation with him, including private interviews and conferences in the presence of others, during the entire past year. Meanwhile, I have sent him hundreds of letters and memoranda asking a decision in regard to matters urgently pending. On very rare occasions I have received a reply within a short time; in a few cases the reply has come only after the lapse of a month; in many cases only after a lapse of several months, when not infrequently the matters had already settled themselves); but in the majority of cases I have received no reply at all. Yet like the other officials mentioned, who have been refused any opportunity for personal conferences I have been promptly criticized for any decision made or action taken.

"The conduct of business in a department under such conditions is, of course, impossible. The energetic young men whom Mr. MacVeagh was the wise enough to select as heads of the various divisions have been hampered and discouraged at every turn by his idiosyncrasies, his astounding capacity for procrastination, his incapacity for decision and the peculiar moods of suspicion and aversion to which he is constantly subject.

"There has never been a time since I have been in the treasury when he has not labored under the delusion that some of those who were working loyally and conscientiously for him were in a cabal conspiring against him. This has led him to treat some of his most efficient aides with harsh ingratitude and with a lack of consideration that was little short of brutal.

Others Similarly Treated.

"My experience in these matters is only the familiar experience of the majority of treasury officials. Mr. McClung, the treasurer of the United States, in April of the present year, found the delays, indecisions, distrust and complaints of Mr. MacVeagh so intolerable that he brought the matter to Mr. Hilles' attention in the hope that you might offer some method of relief. Mr. Ralph, the director of the bureau of engraving and printing, and Mr. Murray, the comptroller of the currency, have on several occasions, with difficulty been dissuaded from an intention to resign, due to no other reason than their lamentable unsatisfactory relations with Mr. MacVeagh. It was only on account of their devotion to their work and a constant hope that a change in conditions was pending that they have not left the public service. I am told the same is true of Mr. Cahell, the commissioner of internal revenue and it is doubtless true of others.

"For the foregoing reasons, whereby the transaction of all business pertaining to my office has become practically impossible, I beg with infinite regret to place my resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury in your hands."

His Letter to MacVeagh.

In his letter to Secretary MacVeagh, the retiring assistant secretary plainly tells his chief his reasons for resigning. He says in part:

"Your disposition, methods and point of view are such as to render impossible any real co-operation or any satisfactory transaction of the government's business. Until recently I have continued to hope that this state of affairs, so prejudicial to the transaction of the government's business, might change for the better but your peculiar disposition in this regard has continued to grow so as now to render quite impossible any substantial accomplishment."

Prior to Dr. Andrew's appointment as assistant secretary, he had been director of the United States mint. He was also special assistant to the national monetary commission. Prior to his entrance into official life he was assistant professor of finance at Harvard. He is a writer of wide reputation upon financial topics.

Dr. Andrews assembled all the bureau chiefs in his office this morning to advise them of his resignation and bid them good bye.

Senators Crane, Lodge and Smoot, it is understood, have had frequent conferences with the president lately in a vain endeavor to bridge the difficulty between Secretary MacVeagh and his assistant.

Roberts May Succeed.

A successor to Dr. Andrew has not yet been decided upon. George E. Roberts, director of the mint, is prominently mentioned.

Dr. Andrew's resignation becomes effective at once. He will leave Washington tonight for his home at Gloucester, Mass., to spend the summer. He has several business propositions under consideration, but has not decided which he will accept.

The White House made public the following statement by President Taft:

"Mr. Andrew's resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury was requested, submitted and accepted in view of his failure to obey orders given him by the secretary."

This was the only comment President Taft would make.

When Dr. Andrew heard of President Taft's statement that his resignation had been asked for, he said:

"That is technically true, but the statements in my letter of resignation show the reasons which led to that condition."

He declined to discuss it further.

DULUTH PRODUCT GOES TO CHINA

Pekin Man Orders Locally Manufactured Lamp for Leopard Hunting.

Secretary Eva of the Duluth Commercial club has received a letter and a money order from Pekin and will accede to the writer's request at once. The writer signs himself as Louis Broome, but does not state his business. He asks the secretary to forward to him at once a "hunting lamp which I understand is manufactured in Duluth." The lamp he evidently has heard about is evidently the one manufactured by R. C. Krusehke, which has attained wide fame and is generally used by hunters. Mr. Broome adds that "I have to take frequent trips into the interior, and the lamp will aid me in hunting leopards at night."

The lamp will be forwarded via Japan to Tientsin, China.

DIABETES

Treatment That Costs Nothing If It Fails to Benefit.

Diabetes has long been considered an incurable disease, and the only hope held out to patients has been to prolong their years by abstemious living. A newly discovered plant in Mexico called Diabetol herb has been found to be a specific in the treatment of diabetes, quickly reducing the specific gravity and sugar, restoring the weight and building up the system.

The treatment is very inexpensive; $1.00 worth of the herb will last two weeks and will remove the worst symptoms in the most aggravated cases. Call at our store and see the proofs and get a free booklet of diet lists, showing the proper foods for diabetes. Boyce Drug Store.

Woman's Realm

To paint and draw, to play the piano and do fancy work with the needle are accomplishments which a girl with two strong arms and hands can be proud of, but to do these things with the mouth entirely and to do them well, is little short of marvelous. These accomplishments, added to the blessings of a perseverance and patience and a bright sunny disposition, are the gifts of Miss Georgia Wilkinson of Ashland, Wis., who is in Duluth this week.

An exhibition of some of Miss Wilkinson's pictures is attracting much attention at the Engle Art store. There are copies of Harrison Fisher heads which are exquisitely done both in outline and in coloring with a daintiness and style of an artist.

Miss Wilkinson has never had the use of her hands at all and has just picked up her accomplishments by herself.

"No, I have never had any lessons or help," she said in speaking of her work, "it simply came naturally to me and I have worked it out for myself.

"When I was a very little girl I began by drawing little things. My mother is naturally a very good artist and she used to draw for me and then I would take a pencil in my mouth and copy what she had done.

"I do want to study with Harrison Fischer for I am especially fond of his work and I am hoping to go to New York or Paris before very long and have instruction in my work, for I need confidence. I want to do so much and I know if I can just have lessons I can do so much more."

Miss Wilkinson also played the piano at the Boston Music company's store, amazing the people who happened to be there at the time, with "Bedelia" and "Mr. Dooley."

"Just patience and perseverance," she said in answer to a question as to how she did it. "I just picked out the tunes myself and kept at it.

"But I guess patience and perseverance are all anyone needs for most anything only it just takes me a little longer."

This is the first public exhibition of Miss Wilkinson's work which has been made and the pictures are being sold rapidly for their artistic worth.

She made a copy of a picture of Anna Held, which was received with delight by that actress and they have become very good friends.

Miss Wilkinson will be in Duluth until the first of next week and her paintings are on exhibition in Engle's Art store.

TEACHERS' NAMED.

Mrs. Boyington and Miss Walker in Charge at Homecroft Course.

Teachers for the eight weeks' course in cooking and "housekeeping by the year," which will be opened in the Homecroft society, will be Mrs. R. P. Boyington and Miss Irene Walker. The former is well known having been connected with work of this kind for several years and Miss Walker is the domestic science teacher in the Irving Industrial high school.

At a preliminary meeting last evening at the Salter school Mrs. Boyington was one of the speakers. She said in part: "Modern women know more about Greek drama than they do about potatoes. The kitchen should be the best equipped room in the house, because it is the most important. It is a laboratory as well as a work room and the cooking is a science.

"The domestic thoroughbred animal is the result of careful scientific feeding, but practically no attention is given to what and how human beings eat. The chief source of indigestion is the wrong cooking of vegetables, although another big source is from the commercial canned fruits and vegetables, often artificially colored and preserved."

One of the chief objects of this course of lessons is the teaching of the cooking of vegetables and fruits and how the housewife can prepare them for winter use in the summer.

Home gardening will also be encouraged as much as possible.

This side of it was brought out by C. E. Rice, educational director of the Homecroft society in a talk on "The Man With the Hoe."

Classes will be organized next Tuesday at the school building and will be held every other day for eight weeks, Monday, Wednesday and Fridays of one week, and Tuesdays and Thursdays of the next alternating with classes at the Irving school.

There will be two sessions, one at 9 a. m. and one at 1:30 p. m. The fee for the entire course will be $1 so those who are not members of the Homecroft society to whom the course is free.

THE EVENING STORY

RITA'S RIDE HOME

By J. P. Loughnan.

Stephen Dyke picked up his hockey stick and looked out of the Wilston H. G. pavilion window. His glance wandered out across a field of closely cropped turf, between "touch" flags, and on to the further goal posts, near which a group of players stood round in an irregular circle hitting a ball idly from one to the other. "Hang Jack Cheenles," muttered Stephen. "He rides over here with her; he takes care to play on the same side with her. No one gets a chance with Rita when he's round, and yet last month, when he was 'crocked,' I got on famously with her."

Stephen looked out of the window again. Jack Cheenles and Rita Thorne were still talking together behind the goal posts, a little apart from where the other players stood. The members of the Wilston Hockey club met for a practice game every Wednesday afternoon on their club ground, those who lived at a distance from the little town of Wilston cycling over for these games. Stephen Dyke, Jack Cheenles, and Rita Thorne lived with their respective parents at adjoining villages from six to eight miles outside Wilston. Things had gone wrong with Stephen this afternoon. He had been late in starting from home, he was last to arrive at the ground, and now the first sight that met his eyes after changing into playing kit was that picture of Jack enjoying a tete-a-tete with Rita.

He clenched his stick angrily and strode out to join the other players who were now lining out ready to begin. To his disgust, he noticed that Rita was playing full back with Jack upon the opposite side to himself. His own place was center forward. Of the game that followed Stephen had but a dim idea afterwards, although everybody declared that he had never played better in his life. Truth to tell, his mind was chiefly taken up with the question as to whether, and if so, how, he could cut Jack out when the game was over, and himself ride home with Rita.

He played well because his mood demanded violent exercise; apart from that, he scarcely realized what was taking place around him or the various fluctuations of the contest. Several times he burst through to his opponents' goal, twice he scored from the edge of the circle, and once Jack robbed him of the ball and cleared his lines. As the ball flew back he heard Rita's exclamation: "Well played, Jack," and the words filled him with bitterness and resentment against the man who thus won praise from her lips.

His own luck certainly seemed dead out this afternoon, but it might be turned. How could he turn it? How spite Jack? For three parts of the game he wrestled with this problem, and then, just at the end, an idea suddenly struck him, and he waited impatiently for the whistle that should announce "No side."

It came at last, and, instead of hurrying back to the pavilion, Stephen loitered behind until the other players were all ahead of him. Then he turned off and hurried over to where a little shed stood up by the hedge. Inside were several bicycles, his own and Jack's amongst them. Meanwhile, Rita, who always hurried away from the field after a practice game, had changed her shoes, pulled on a coat, and now emerged from the pavilion to get her machine. At the door of the bicycle shed she met Stephen coming out, a somewhat sheepish expression on his face, which roused her suspicions, she knew not why.

"Off already?" he exclaimed with forced gaiety. "May I ride back with you?" "Yes, if you can catch me," she answered, a sudden idea entering her mind as she hastened into the shed.

"Good, I will be after you in five minutes," he said hurrying away. Jack Cheenles was already half changed when Stephen got into the pavilion. Jack knew Rita was always first away after practice games, and he meant to beat his rival in the race back today. He was dressed and out of the pavilion fully three and a half minutes before Stephen, and yet when the latter went to get his bicycle from the shed he found Cheeenles still there, fiddling with his back wheel and breathing words of fire and slaughter against things in general. "Hello, what's the matter?" asked Stephen innocently.

"A puncture," growled the other fiercely, "tire as flat as a pancake —shall have to repair it."

"Bad luck," said Stephen, as he pushed his own machine out. Two minutes later he was scorching along the dry country road, with its hedge on either side, which led from Wilston to the village of Southfield, some seven miles distant. Rita lived at Southfield, and the quicker he rode the sooner he would overtake her. Then they would ride slowly on together, and, perhaps, when they reached her home she would ask him to tea. He bent over his handle bars and shot forward at the thought.

The road from Wilston to Southfield was one with many curves in it, and more than one by-way branching off to right and left. It was, therefore, impossible to see far ahead, and there was a sporting chance of being run down by motors. Stephen, however, was in no mood to calculate such possibilities. He looked neither to right nor left, but with eyes fixed straight ahead rode furiously onward towards his goal.

But the peculiar thing was that although he rode at his top speed— and he was no muff cyclist—never a sight of Rita did he catch. The chase was a most tantalizing one, for he kept making up his mind that Miss Thorne was just fifty yards ahead or around the next corner. So on round the next corner he would sweep only to see an empty stretch of road before him, with another next corner a little further on.

The thought that he was being left behind by a mere girl stimulated him to redouble his efforts, and so at last, by the time he actually reached the little village of Southfield, he was wet with heat and panting from his exertions. Soon the white gates of the hall came into view and he began to debate with himself as to whether he should ride up and find out for certain if Miss Thorne had yet arrived home, for he found it hard to believe that she could have beaten him with such a short start and after playing a game of hockey. Impelled by curiosity and a vague uneasiness, Stephen turned his machine in through the open gates and rode up the winding chestnut avenue that led to her house. A grave man servant answered the ring and said that Miss Rita had not returned.

So Stephen, more bewildered than ever, rode slowly back down the drive, wondering whether anything had happened to Rita, and more determined than ever to solve the mystery. Arrived on the high road once more, he turned back towards Wilston, instead of continuing on his way home. "Perhaps she had a tumble into the ditch, and I passed without noticing her," he thought. "Well, I'll ride slowly this journey, and no mistake!"

When Jack Cheenles, after considerable trouble, had succeeded in mending his tire, he mounted his machine and rode leisurely from the ground towards Southfield, reviling his luck as he pictured Stephen and Rita enjoying each other's society on their way home.

"I wouldn't mind so much if I knew that she cared for me," he thought, "but Rita never lets on what she really thinks of a chap, and Dyke is a good-looking fellow, the sort of man a girl might easily fall in love with, I should think." Filled with disquieting reflections like these, Jack rode slowly forward, with eyes fixed on his front wheel and paying but slight attention to his surrounding. He had ridden thus for about a mile, when, happening to look up, he was just in time to see a cyclist disappear round a bend in the road ahead. He only caught a momentary glimpse of the disappearing figure, but his whole bearing changed immediately, and, gripping his hande, he pressed forward eagerly at full speed.

Round the next corner he sped, and there, twenty yards in front, riding quite slowly, was the figure. Jack gave a low laugh of triumphand, ringing a peal of his bell to announce his approach, sailed up alongside of Rita.

"Where on earth have you sprung from, Rita?" he exclaimed.

"From the Wilston Hockey ground," said Rita demurely.

"Yes, of course, but—well, I made sure Stephen would have ridden home with you."

"So did he," said Rita quietly. Jack looked rather mystified, but his companion attempted no further explanation.

"Did you and Stephen quarrel about anything?" he hazarded presently.

"I have not spoken to Mr. Dyke since he left the field." Jack opened his eyes. "Not spoken to him?" he repeated. "Surely he did not pass you without speaking?"

Rita nodded. "Yes, he passed without speaking, and it was just as well."

"By jove, then you don't admire him after all?"

"Is there any reason why I should admire him?"

Jack was nonplussed by the directness of the inquiry.

"Oh, no," he said, "except that Dyke is a good-looking sort of fellow, you know."

"He may be that, but he doesn't play the game, and I can't stand meanness."

"H'm. Isn't that rather severe on him? I really don't think Dyke would play a low down trick on any one, I must say."

"Well, I know he did one this afternoon, anyway," returned Rita.

"This afternoon? He hadn't much time to do anything this afternoon, unless you count the skin he knocked off my right knuckles, but as I hit him on the shins, we're all square."

Rita turned on her companion impatiently.

"What I mean had nothing to do with the game, Jack. It was something that happened just afterwards. I always get away early after a practice, and today my machine happened to be near yours. Well, I just bent down to test the tire, when I heard a peculiar hissing sound coming from yours, and looking closer, I saw that the air was gradually escaping from your back tire. Now, if you had punctured it on your way over, the air would have escaped long before then, so I came to the conclusion that some one had been playing an underhand trick, and that some one, I am quite sure, was Stephen, for, do you know, that he went straight over to the cycle shed after the game? I know this, because I met him coming out just before I discovered the puncture in your tire. So now, Jack, perhaps you know what I mean by a dirty trick, and also why you had a puncture."

Jack flushed angrily. "What a rotten thing to do!" he said. "And yet," he added, "I'm glad he did it."

"Why, Jack?"

"Because it's knocked him out of your favor and given me the pleasure of a ride back all alone with you."

"Don't be silly, Jack."

"I'm not silly. I mean all I say and a lot more. You don't know what these rides mean to me, and how I hate it when Stephen or anyone else sees you home I feel I could kill him."

Rita looked round at the landscape. "It's getting rather late, I'm afraid," she said; "we must hurry, or it will be dark before we get back."

"No, no, darling, don't hurry. Let me try to tell you first how I love you, Rita, dear, is there a chance for me? I can't stand this uncertainty any longer. Can you ever love me just a little?"

His hand closed over hers where it lay on the handle bar. They were travelling at a snail's pace now through the deepening twilight. And, then, somehow they came to a complete standstill, side by side, in the shadow of an old oak. "Rita!" His lips were close to hers, his breath touched her cheek. He was murmuring sentences, low, indistinct, passionate, but she could not answer him, for her tongue seemed as though tied, her heart beat tremulously, stirred by some new, sweet knowledge. Then his arms stole round her, and there, in the mysterious winter dusk, their lips met.

Two miles outside the village Stephen Dyke met two cyclists pushing their machines slowly before them. They appeared to be deeply engrossed in a private conversation, and did not notice him until he dismounted just beside them when the man looked up and remarked in a tone the significance of which there was no mistaking: "I have mended my tire, you see."

Stephen was silent. The darkness was rapidly becoming deeper, and he felt glad of it. Presently Jack spoke again. "It wasn't a ricket," he said "but I'm glad you did it. You see, you played clean into my hands, and now I'm the happiest man in the world. He glanced at Rita, and Stephen understood.

He saw that he had lost the game, that his rival was successful, and that his unsportsmanlike act had recoiled on his own head. He did the only thing possible under the circumstances by apologizing.

"I'm sorry for the trick I played you," he said, rather unevenly. "I deserve all I've got and I hope you'll allow me to congratulate you very sincerely upon your good fortune." Jack's reply was to put out his hand.

"All's fair in love and war," he declared heartily, "and if you tried to trick me, Rita actually succeeded in tricking you."

"She did, indeed, and I wonder how?" said Stephen.

"Listen, and I'll tell you," replied Jack, as they all three remounted their machines. "She got away from the field scorching back to Southfield, as you expected her to do, she just turned off down the first side road and waited there for you to pass. Presently you came past along the main road, riding as though for your life, and of course never looking to right or left. As soon as you had disappeared in a cloud of dust, up gets Rita and quietly rides on until I overtake her. Then, tableau," concluded Jack, and, laughing heartily, they rode into the village.

Sweaty Feet, Quick Relief Also Corns and Callouses

The following is absolutely the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments, and especially for sweaty feet. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel so good you could sing for joy. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. It is not a patent medicine but is an ethical preparation.

WARNING TO USERS OF SO-CALLED SUPERFLUOUS HAIR "CURES"

Every woman must realize that even when a soft fuzz is removed by these so-called superfluous hair 'cures," which stimulate the growth after each removal, that it will only be a question of time before she will have to resort to the use of the razor, because eventually the hair will become so coarse that no preparation will be strong enough to remove it without ruining the skin.

Why take the risk of disfigurement by using these unknown and uncertain means for removing superfluous hair, when there is such a safe method as DeMiracle—the one perfected, non-poisonous and harmless depilatory that dissolves hair, thereby taking the vitality out of it, consequently retarding and preventing an increased growth.

Don't be deceived by the imitator and impostor who resorts to copying certain phrases of the DeMiracle advertising to inveigle you into using a worthless, poisonous concoction, the continued use of which will produce eczema or other serious skin diseases. When a faker tries to deceive and delude you by alluring and impossible claims, tell him that DeMiracle Chemical Company will forfeit Five Thousand Dollars if it can be proven that any so-called superfluous hair "cure" ever eradicated one single growth of superfluous hair. Insist on proof when a claim is made that such a preparation is "indorsed by the medical profession."

To substantiate our claim that DeMiracle is the only depilatory that has ever been indorsed by reputable physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals, prominent magazines and newspapers, we will send copies of the testimonials on request.

The mere fact that fake-dangerous preparations are short-lived should alone be sufficient warning to avoid the use of any depilatory but that of proven merit. DeMiracle has stood the test of time. It was the largest selling depilatory ten years ago and more of it has been sold each year since than the combined sales of the nostrums.

All reliable dealers sell and recommend DeMiracle, knowing it to be the best and safest depilatory. Some unprincipled ones will tell you they cannot procure it so that they may more easily influence you to purchase their own or possibly some other dangerous, worthless substitute under another label for a few cents more profit. To protect you from just such imposition, if your dealer will not supply you, mail us $1.00 and we will send you, all charges paid, in plain, sealed wrapper, a $1.00 bottle of DeMiracle, and we will make you a present of a full-size jar of DeMiracle Cream. If you care to, give us the name of the dealer who tries to sell you a "just as good" imitation or substitute.

Write for free booklet, which will be mailed sealed in plain envelope. DeMiracle Chemical Company, Dept. 3E, Park Ave., 129th and 130th Sts., New York. You can always procure DeMiracle without argument in Duluth from I. Freimuth.

THE EVENING STORY

RITA'S RIDE HOME

By J. P. Loughman.

Stephen Dyke picked up his hockey stick and looked out of the Wilston H. G. pavilion window. His glance wandered out across a field of closely cropped turf, between the "touch" flags, and on to the further goal posts, near which a group of players stood round in an irregular circle hitting a ball lolly from one to the other, calling. "Jack Cheenles," muttered Stephen. "He rides over here with her; he takes care to play on the same side with her. No one gets a chance with Rita when he's round, and yet last month, when he was 'crocked,' I got on famously with her."

Stephen looked out of the window again. Jack Cheenles and Rita Thorne were still talking together behind the goal posts, a little apart from where the other players stood. The members of the Wilston Hockey club met for a practice game every Wednesday afternoon on their club ground, these who lived at a distance from the little town of Wilston cycling over for these games. Stephen Dyke, Jack Cheenles, and Rita Thorne lived with their respective parents at adjoining villages from six to eight miles outside Wilston. Things had gone wrong with Stephen this afternoon. He had been late in starting from home, he was last to arrive at the ground, and now the first sight that met his eyes after changing into playing kit was that picture of Jack enjoying a tete-a-tete with Rita.

He clenched his stick angrily and strode out to join the other players who were now lining out ready for the kick. To his disgust, he noticed that Rita was playing full back with Jack upon the opposite side to himself, his own place was center forward. Of the game that followed Stephen had but a dim idea afterwards, although everybody declared that he had never played better in his life. Truth to tell, his mind was chiefly taken up with the question as to whether, and if so, how, he could cut Jack out when the game was over, and himself ride home with Rita.

He played well because his mood demanded violent exercise; apart from that, he scarcely realized what was taking place around him or the various fluctuations of the contest. Several times he burst through to his opponents' goal, twice he scored from the edge of the circle, and once Jack robbed him of the ball and cleared his lines. As the ball flew back he heard Rita's exclamation: "Well played, Jack," and the words filled him with bitterness and resentment against the man who thus won praise from her lips.

His own luck certainly seemed dead out this afternoon, but it might be turned. How could he turn it? How spite Jack? For three parts of the game he wrestled with this problem, and then, just at the end, an idea suddenly struck him, and he waited impatiently for the whistle that should announce "No side."

It came at last, and, instead of hurrying back to the pavilion, Stephen loitered behind until the other players were all ahead of him. Then he turned off and hurried over to where a little shed stood up by the hedge. Inside were several bicycles, his own and Jack's amongst them. Meanwhile, Rita, who always hurried away from the field after a practice game, had changed her shoes, pulled on a coat, and now emerged from the pavilion to get her machine. At the door of the bicycle shed she met Stephen coming out, a somewhat sheepish expression on his face, which roused her suspicions, she knew not why.

"Off already?" he exclaimed with forced gaiety. "May I ride back with you?" "Yes, if you can catch me," she answered, a sudden idea entering her mind as she hastened into the shed.

"Good, I will be after you in five minutes," he said hurrying away. Jack Cheenles was already half changed when Stephen got into the pavilion. Jack knew Rita was always first away after practice games, and he meant to beat his rival in the race back today. He was dressed and out of the pavilion fully three and a half minutes before Stephen, and yet when the latter went to get his bicycle from the shed he found Cheenles still there, fiddling with his back wheel and breathing words of fire and slaughter against things in general. "Hello, what's the matter?" asked Stephen innocently.

"A puncture," growled the other fiercely, "tire as flat as a pancake —shall have to repair it."

"Bad luck," said Stephen, as he pushed his own machine out. Two minutes later he was scorching along the dry country road, with Rita's bicycle on either side, which led from Wilston to the village of Southfield, some seven miles distant. Rita lived at Southfield, and the quicker he rode the sooner he would overtake her. Then they would ride slowly on together, and, perhaps, when they reached her home she would ask him to tea. He bent over his handle bars and shot forward at the thought.

The road from Wilston to Southfield was one with many curves in it, and more than one by-way branching off to right and left. It was, therefore, impossible to see far ahead, and there was a sporting chance of being run down by motors. Stephen, however, was in no mood to calculate such possibilities. He looked neither to right nor left, but with eyes fixed straight ahead rode furiously onward towards his goal.

But the peculiar thing was that although he rode at his top speed — and he was no mean cyclist—never a sight of Rita did he catch. The chase was a most tantalizing one, for he kept making up his mind that Miss Thorne was just fifty yards ahead or around the next corner. So on round the next corner he would sweep only to see an empty stretch of road before him, with another next corner a little farther on.

The thought that he was being left behind by a mere girl stimulated him to redouble his efforts, and so at last, by the time he actually reached the little village of Southfield, he was wet with heat and panting from his exertions. Soon the white gates of the hall came into view and he began to debate with himself as to whether he should ride up and find out for certain if Miss Thorne had yet arrived home, for he found it hard to believe that she could have beaten him with such a short start and after playing a game of hockey. Impelled by curiosity and a vague uneasiness, Stephen turned his machine in through the open gates and rode up the winding chestnut avenue that led to her house. A grave man servant answered the ring and said that Miss Rita had not returned.

So Stephen, more bewildered than ever, rode slowly back down the drive, wondering whether anything had happened to Rita, and more determined than ever to solve the mystery. Arrived on the high road once more, he turned his back towards Wilston, instead of continuing on his way home. "Perhaps she had a thud he into the ditch, and I passed without noticing her," he thought. "Well, I'll ride slowly this journey, and by mistake."

When Jack Cheenles, after considerable trouble, had succeeded in mending his tire, he mounted his machine and rode leisurely from the ground towards Southfield, reviling his luck as he perceived Stephen and Rita enjoying each other's society on their way home.

"I wouldn't mind so much if I knew that she cared for me," he thought. "But Rita never lets on what she really thinks of a chap, and Dyke is a good-looking fellow, the sort of man a girl might easily fall in love with, I should think." Filled with dispiriting reflections like these, Jack rode slowly forward, with eyes fixed on his front wheel and paying but slight attention to his surrounding. He had ridden thus for about a mile, when, happening to look up, he was just in time to see a cyclist disappear round a bend in the road ahead. He only caught a momentary glimpse of the disappearing figure, but his whole bearing changed immediately, and, gripping his handle, he pressed forward eagerly at full speed.

Round the next corner he sped, and there, twenty yards in front, riding quite slowly, was the figure. Jack gave a low laugh of triumphand, ringing a peal of his bell to announce his approach, sailed up alongside of Rita.

"Where on earth have you sprung from, Rita?" he exclaimed.

"From the Wilston Hockey ground," said Rita demurely.

"Yes, of course, but—well, I made sure Stephen would have ridden home with you."

"So did he," said Rita quietly. Jack looked rather mystified, but his companion attempted no further explanation.

"Did you and Stephen quarrel about anything?" he hazarded presently.

"I have not spoken to Mr. Dyke since he left the field." Jack opened his eyes. "Not spoken to him?" he repeated. "Surely he did not pass you without speaking?"

Rita nodded. "Yes, he passed without speaking, and it was just as well."

"I say, then you don't admire him after all?"

"Is there any reason why I should admire him?"

Jack was nonplussed by the directness of the inquiry.

"Oh, no," he said, "except that Dyke is a good-looking sort of fellow, you know."

"He may be that, but he doesn't play the game, and I can't stand meanness."

"Hm. Isn't that rather severe on him? I really don't think Dyke would play a low down trick on any one, I must say."

"Well, I know he did one this afternoon, anyway," returned Rita.

"This afternoon? He hadn't much time to do anything this afternoon, unless you count the skin he knocked off my right knuckles, but as I hit him on the shins, we're all square."

Rita turned on her companion impatiently.

"What I mean had nothing to do with the game, Jack. It was something that happened just afterwards. I always get away early after a practice, and today my machine happened to be near yours. Well, I just bent down to test the tire, when I heard a peculiar hissing sound coming from yours, and looking closer, I saw that the air was gradually escaping from your back tire. Now, if you had happened to look on your way over, the air would have escaped long before then, so I came to the conclusion that some one had been playing an underhand trick, and that some one, I am quite sure, was Stephen, for, do you know, that he went straight over to the cycle shed after the game? I know this, because I met him coming out just before I discovered the puncture in your tire. So now, Jack, perhaps you know what I mean by a dirty trick, and also why you had a puncture."

Jack flushed angrily. "What a rotten thing to do!" he said. "And yet," he added, "I'm glad he did it."

"Why, Jack?"

"Because it's knocked him out of your favor and given me the pleasure of a ride back all alone with you."

"Don't be silly, Jack."

"I'm not silly. I mean all I say and a lot more. You don't know what these rides mean to me, and how I hate it when Stephen or anyone else sees you home. I feel I could kill him."

Rita looked round at the landscape. "It's getting rather late, I'm afraid," she said; "we must hurry, or it will be dark before we get back."

"No, no, darling, don't hurry. Let me try to tell you first how I love you, Rita, dear, is there a chance for me? I can't stand this uncertainty any longer. Can you ever love me just a little?"

His hand closed over hers where it lay on the handle bar. They were travelling at a snail's pace now through the deepening twilight. And, then, somehow they came to a complete standstill, side by side, in the shadow of an old oak. "Rita!" His lips were close to hers, his breath touched her cheek. He was murmuring sentences, low, indistinct, passionate, but she could not answer him, for her tongue seemed as though tied, her heart beat tremulously, stirred by some new, sweet knowledge. Then his arms stole round her, and there, in the mysterious winter dusk, their lips met.

Two miles outside the village Stephen Dyke met two cyclists pushing their machines slowly before them. They appeared to be deeply engrossed in a private conversation, and did not notice him until he dismounted just beside them when the man looked up and remarked in a tone the significance of which there was no mistaking: "I have mended my tire, you see."

Stephen was silent. The darkness was rapidly becoming deeper, and he felt glad of it. Presently Jack spoke again. "It wasn't a ricket," he said, "that I'm glad you did it. You see, you played clean up to my hands, and now I'm the happiest man in the world. He glanced at Rita, and Stephen understood.

He saw that he had lost the game, that his rival was successful, and that his unsportsmanlike act had recoiled on his own head. He did the only thing possible under the circumstances by apologizing.

"I'm sorry for the trick I played you," he said, rather unevenly. "I deserve all I've got and I hope you'll allow me to congratulate you very sincerely upon your good fortune." Jack's reply was to put out his hand.

"All's fair in love and war," he declared heartily, "and if you tried to trick me, Rita actually succeeded in tricking you."

"She did, indeed, and I wonder how?" said Stephen.

"Listen, and I'll tell you," replied Jack, as they all three remounted their machines. "She got away from the field searching back to Southfield, as you expected her to do, she just turned off down the first side road and waited there for you to pass. Presently you came past along the main road, riding as though for your life, and of course never looking to right or left. As soon as you had disappeared in a cloud of dust, up gets Rita and quietly rides on until I overtake her. Then, tableau, concluded Jack, and, laughing heartily, they rode into the village.

WOODROW WILSON.

A long, hard, splendid fight has ended in a great, splendid victory—a victory for Democracy, a victory for the people, a victory for the nation.

Woodrow Wilson's nomination is the answer to the Chicago shame.

Woodrow Wilson's nomination is an answer to the third term issue.

Woodrow Wilson's nomination is an answer, complete, final and overwhelming, to every need of the hour.

At Chicago the bosses, backed by the special interests they represent, fought and won ignobly.

At Baltimore the people fought the bosses and the special interests behind them, and won nobly.

The people, insulted and shamed at Chicago, triumphed at Baltimore.

The nomination is in complete harmony with the brilliant opportunity which political fate had offered to the Democratic party. Best of all, it comes to Governor Wilson unstained and unspotted. The party rose splendidly to the occasion.

Woodrow Wilson, after a lifetime of preparation which fits him pre-eminently for the high honor to which he has been called, after showing his grasp of men and issues and public affairs as governor of New Jersey, after a clean, dignified contest such as only a statesman and a MAN could conduct, now stands before the nation as the candidate of a party that has renewed its splendid youth in the magic fountain of popular rule.

Clean, clear-visioned, clean-cut, high-idealed—a practical idealist, a constructive theorist, a progressive without turbulence or boisterous egotism, a MAN with the deepest and broadest sympathy with the needs and aspirations of humanity—he is above all men the man created to fit the situation, the man above all men the nation needs in this hour of crisis and confusion.

Woodrow Wilson is a Democrat, but he is bigger than that: he is a democrat. He is a people's man—a believer in the people, with a whole-souled faith that only through the rule of the people can democracy succeed.

The platform is good, but the nomination is better. In a large degree, though the Baltimore platform sounds a clarion note of progress, Wilson is his own platform, and his own thought and word will carry farther in the coming campaign than the long political creed which is the product of the ripened judgment of the most progressive forces in the Democratic party.

The nomination of Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore is a magnificent triumph not only for the Democratic party, but for democracy—for the rule of the people. The long hours of battle between the forces of progress and the forces of conservatism were hard, bitter and exhausting, but hardships count as nothing in the glory of the victory that came out of them in the end.

The nomination of Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana for vice president is good. The Northwest would have been glad if John Burke of North Dakota could have had this place, but the showing he made in the convention was gratifying. The platform, too, is in keeping; though the platform will have less attention than the ticket.

The real fight was at Baltimore. The situation, the nation's needs, the confusion of partisan issues, the delay in real reforms while this confusion reigned, all demanded exactly the result which the Baltimore convention provided. Victory for this ticket in November is demanded by these same conditions, and in no way could the nation strike straighter for the open and for clearness and order in public affairs than by electing Woodrow Wilson president of the United States.

The Herald is confident that this will come about, and that the electoral vote of the entire Northwest will co-operate to that end.

MINNESOTA SHARES IN THE TRIUMPH.

On the question of the unit rule in Ohio, where a state convention sought to throttle a strong minority elected at a presidential primary, Minnesota voted twenty-four against the unit rule.

On the nomination for president, Minnesota's solid twenty-four was a part of Wilson's 324 on the first ballot, and it was a part of Wilson's 990 on the forty-sixth and last. It was a part of Wilson's growing total on every ballot between.

Had it not been for the steadfastness of the Minnesota delegation and other delegations making up the original 324, the 990 never would have been achieved, and a splendid triumph for Democracy and the nation would have been defeated.

BRYAN.

William Jennings Bryan never was finer and more magnificent in all his career than he was at Baltimore, fighting for the right without compromise and without regard to friend or foe. He fought not for himself, but for another; and not so much for any individual as for principle, and only for the individual because he believed that that individual best examplifies the principle for which he fought. He lost his faith in Clark, his friend, only when crushing proof forced him to part with it.

It was a hard thing to do, and a brave thing. No doubt his brave and determined battle, his scorn of compromise, his utter recklessness of conventional political amenities, disturbed even some of his friends and followers. But he fought the good fight, and he won; and he won because it was an unselfish fight, a fight for principle, and a fight for the plain people in whom, like Woodrow Wilson, he puts his trust.

It was a splendid climax in a splendid career, and it marks Bryan more vividly than ever as a people's leader and a dauntless champion of the people's rights.

THE UNIT RULE AND THE TWO-THIRDS RULE.

Democratic tradition has made it necessary that a candidate shall have a two-thirds vote to win the presidential nomination.

Democratic tradition allows each state, if its state convention so declares, to bind its delegates to a national convention under the unit rule.

Both these traditional rules have been attacked. In all probability neither will last into another presidential campaign.

And neither should last, for neither is democratic, and the Democratic party must be democratic or belie its name.

Nevertheless, friends of the Democratic party who realize that only as a progressive party and as a party holding steadfast to the doctrine that the people must and shall rule can the party deserve survival, have found much satisfaction in both these traditions.

If it were not for the two-thirds rule, Champ Clark would have been the nominee of the Baltimore convention, and an unworthy result of the convention's work would have come about. And only by the breaking of a precedent was Clark's nomination prevented, for never before in a Democratic convention did a candidate get a majority of the votes without ultimately getting two-thirds and the nomination.

If it had not been for the unit rule, Minnesota's solid and impressive vote of twenty-four right on every question would have been split, and the vote would have been twenty-two right and two wrong on practically every issue.

Yet if it had not been for the two-thirds rule and the unit rule, a nomination probably would have been made last week and the long, wearing, dangerous contest avoided.

The presidential preference primary is responsible for the first break in the unit rule, and that means its collapse. In Ohio, though the people had divided their district delegates between Harmon and Wilson, the state convention, in selecting the six delegates at large, clapped the unit rule on the entire delegation, seeking thus to gag the Wilson votes, constituting a substantial minority. The national convention held that the results of a presidential primary could not be gagged by a state convention, and in that state the unit rule was abolished.

That means the end of the unit rule.

The two-thirds rule probably will also go. Theoretically, the Democratic party believes in the rule of the majority; yet in its convention it has gone squarely against the rule of the majority by requiring a two-thirds vote for a nomination. The object, of course, was to insure nominations that would best represent the choice of the party membership; but it is not democratic, and the rule will go.

Yet it is not all bad, this rule.

If it applied in the Republican convention, the infamy of Taft's nomination at Chicago would have been impossible. As it took all but nineteen of the contested delegates, the national committee could not possibly have stolen enough delegates to make a two-thirds vote for Taft, and Taft would have been beaten. The Old Guard would of course have had enough votes to prevent Roosevelt's nomination, but they might not have been able to prevent the nomination of a man as progressive as Roosevelt. And that, beyond doubt, would have been the ideal solution of the Chicago problem from a Republican viewpoint.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY'S GROWTH.

When the board of county commissioners of St. Louis county meets Monday, it will be asked to create nine new voting precincts in this county.

These proposed new districts all are in places that are blank on the maps, but that are filling up with settlers.

One of them is north of the fringe of agricultural settlement just beyond the northern boundaries of Duluth; the others are north of the Mesaba range, several of them being in the extreme north end of the county.

All of which forms another indication of the manner in which St. Louis county's enormous area is filling with people, and of the stealthy but persistent spread of the settler's clearing and cabin where late the wilderness reigned supreme.

AN INGRAINED PROGRESSIVE.

Gunnar B. Bjornson, editor of the Minneota Mascot, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for representative in the legislature from his district.

If every voter in that district has read the editorial page of the Mascot, and in that way has got a line on Mr. Bjornson's views, the election ought to be about unanimous.

THE SHORT BALLOT MOVEMENT

By H. S. GILBERTSON.

II—How the Politocracy Confirmed Its Power

Some years ago the Omaha paving contractors, so it is said, found it a difficult matter to bring about the election of mayors whom they could "manage." Consequently the city engineer, who was an appointee of the mayor, was likewise apt to be "unmanageable." So they pulled wires in the legislature to "give the people more power" and got the city engineer made an independent elective officer. Then they didn't care whom the people elected for mayor; they needed only to slip their own candidate for city engineer past the scrutiny of the people in the friendly obscurity of the tail of the party ticket. Likewise it is easy to calculate who profited when the building inspector and the city attorney were taken from the mayor's control and put on the ballot

Curious how few are those who can see that the people of Omaha gained no power whatever by such a change! They lost their strong mayor and received in exchange a weak mayor plus three little officers. On this exchange, indeed, the people suffered a net loss of control, for by this division self-protection had been made four times as difficult for them.

Every American locality could tell the same story of the gradual overburdening of the ballot till politics became a learned profession for the few, and making the representative system so unhandy that the people lost control of it.

In fact, modern Americans are no longer surprised to see legislatures brazenly affront public opinion on important matters—and get away with it.

In Oregon, for instance, the fact that the people under the initiative, are passing measures which the legislature has flatly turned down, astonishes nobody, and a new legislature of the same sort is forthwith elected to continue its defiant or nonchalant attitude. Of course if the representative system were really representing, the votes of the legislators would always parallel the votes of the people, and measures that would pass the popular vote at a referendum election would also unfailingly pass the legislature.

But our long ballot representative system does not represent the people—it represents the politicians. Your member of the city council is more afraid of the ward boss than of fifty citizens.

Yet is it perfectly possible to create a workable representative system which will be sensitive to the will of the voters rather than to that of political experts. And the short ballot movement aims at just that very thing.

(The coming of this new movement will be described in the next paper.)

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied, in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

"A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE."

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Saturday's Herald I read a communication which denounced our commission form of government as giving too much power to a few men and comparing this to European forms of government. There is one flaw in his argument, however, and that is that the people have adopted the initiative, referendum and recall. Doubtless, Mr. Tomanick forgot to inquire about the latter—whether we have it and what it means. We have a commission form of government in view, which will be more efficient, less expensive, and more responsible to the people than the old form. The people will have the initiative, referendum and recall with which they will control their commissioners. This is fair and right and no one who is familiar with the facts can fairly compare Duluth's form of government with that of European duchies. Now, Mr. Editor, what I wish to criticize is the tendency of a great many of us to rely on "snap" judgment, made on the spur of the moment and with an imperfect knowledge of the facts in the case. We don't stop to consider all the phases of a proposition, thereby receiving an unfair view of it. In other words, a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. An editorial on "snap" judgment would be appropriate. Respectfully,

Duluth, July 2. KOLLIDGEKID.

Women and Their Servants.

Christian Science Monitor: To be a "domestic," laboring in a home is not the goal of ambition of many American women, native or foreign-born. Even when born to the status, with customary discontent and desire to change, the girl so started in life seldom continues therein any longer than indigency and enforced celibacy require. There is a transfer to factory or store, with their fixed hours of labor and definite time for recreation, or marriage and homekeeping follow. Of course, occasionally, the wires carry broadcast a touching tale of servants' careers extending over generations and duly honored by employers who have profited by loyal servitors' fidelity. But taking the country by and large, considering society in all its gradations, the impeachment must be admitted that Miss Tarbell has recently drawn for the American Magazine, namely that American women have not shown conspicuous success in adjusting the issues of labor and democracy where they intermingle most decisively for their sex, namely in the relation of home employer and domestic employee.

Solution of the problem, so far as it is a matter of conscious and conscientious adjustment, is not one of those affairs that lend themselves to statutory regulation or control through endowment of either servant or mistress with franchise rights. Nor is it to be met by abdication of the functions of homemaking and housekeeping on the part of women of means and leisure, and the setting up of domiciles in structures where service, food, heat and shelter are to be had at the expense of other persons' care.

Like the older—that is longer-displayed—strifes of men in the field of labor, this "domestic" problem of the American housewife awaits its settlement on the basis of co-operation and democracy. Each party to the dispute must view the matter from the other's standpoint more than in the past. Altered attitude toward the work as such would do much to rectify conditions. So would more definite understandings as to hours of labor and times of recreation and extra compensation for extra toil.

The root trouble in many cases is a disdain for the servitor on the part of the person served, and a contempt for labor as such on the part of the person employed. Women create the problem, and women must solve it; and in doing it will acquire experience useful to society at large, as they take on duties involved in municipal and national housekeeping. Yet the lesser task precedes the greater.

A Wish.

I'd like to sneak away today
Off yonder where the willows sway,
And loaf beside a little stream
Where long ago I used to dream.
Barefooted I would like to be,
A pole cut from a hickory tree,
A line of knotted string, and bait
I dug beyond the garden gate
I'd like to take along, the way
I did in golden yesterday.

But that's a wish I'll never get—
It's buried in the past, and yet
Somehow my rod of split bamboo,
My Shakespeare reel and tackle new
And artificial minnows fine,
The splendid silk and linen line
Set me to wishing I could know
Once more the joys of long ago,
The charms of that old fishing hole,
When I had but a hickory pole.

I'm starting out at break of day
To fish out yonder in the bay
With costly tackle, shining bright.
But I shall miss the old delight;
And I shall wish that I could be
That youngster, underneath the tree,
That bare of head, barefooted lad,
Who only home-made tackle had,
And live my yesterdays again,
Because I used to catch 'em then.

Paw—Any occasion when two or more women meet.

After You Leave the Office.

Kansas City Star: Breathe deeply.
You need clean air.
It will make you over.
Especially if you are "done to a frazzle."
You should use your lungs to refresh you.
Take the air bath as frequently as you would that of water and soap.
You will find it as refreshing as a drink of milk or a dip in salt water.

THE PENDULUM SWINGS BACK.

Chicago Tribune: When Chief Justice Marshall evolved for our courts of last resort the power to annul legislation as inconsistent with Constitutions it was recognized by courts that the power was one which should be used with care. The rule was early established, and never in theory has been changed, that legislation should be annulled only when it is plainly in contravention of the fundamental law and that in construction all doubts should be resolved in favor of the act under consideration.

For many years this wise attitude was maintained by the courts. But during the last generation a change in actual practice came about. Courts became more and more ready to hold laws invalid and to do so by bare majorities. If a court is sharply divided it can hardly be claimed that the case against the law is plain or that all doubts have been resolved in its favor.

The decisions which were most conspicuous and caused the greatest protest annulled legislation intended to better the condition of laboring men and women as to their health and conditions of work, and did so in many cases on the ground of protecting their liberty. The statutes were based on the police power and upon the legislature's theory of public policy. But the courts refused to hold that the police power was broad enough to include these regulatory acts as legitimate exercises of the police power, and in some cases even frankly challenged their policy—the function of the legislator, not the judge.

The protest against the decisions greaw steadily in depth and breadth, including not only the class immediately affected and social workers, but also constitutional students. Beginning as mere protest, it has developed radical plans for reform. But the courts themselves are now swinging back to their earlier and sounder principles, one of the best examples being given by a recent decision of the supreme court of Washington in upholding an eight-hour law for women.

Speaking of the police power, the court says:

> Circumstances and occasions calling for its exercise have multiplied with marvelous rapidity in recent years, by reason of the well recognized fact that modern social and economic conditions have called into existence agencies previously unknown, many of which so vitally affect the health and physical condition of laborers, and especially female laborers, that legislation of the character here involved has been sustained with greater liberality than was formerly evinced under less exacting conditions.

And on the public policy phase of the law it declares:

> We have before us, then, the question whether in this particular act the legislature has so far exceeded the necessary and reasonable exercise of the police power, in fixing the maximum daily labor at eight hours, as to render the act invalid. Any legislative enactment must be regarded as valid unless it unquestionably and palpably violates some right secured by fundamental law. All doubts as to its validity must be resolved in favor of the statute. Courts are not concerned with questions of propriety, advisability, or wisdom of any statute. Those questions are for the exclusive consideration of the legislature. Legislative functions are not to be usurped by the courts. After we have given the statute a careful consideration in all of its bearings, if we are not clearly convinced that it is unconstitutional we should resolve all doubts in its favor and sustain it.

This is in noteworthy contrast to the reasoning of the long line of decisions annulling social legislation as contrary to liberty of contract. It would have been better for the courts and better for the country if the reasoning of the Washington court had been applied to constitutional interpretation a quarter century ago.

The decision of the supreme court of Illinois approving the extension of the ten-hour law for women is welcome evidence of the new willingness of courts of review to uphold well considered social legislation as valid exercise of the police power.

Wilson's Ohio Parentage.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey may not be a native son, but his parents and grandparents were residents of this city. Thomas S. Woods, a well-known lawyer of Duluth, was in the city yesterday and gave the history of the well-known statesman.

Woods studied law in this city and is well known. He says that his mother and Jennie Woodrow, who became the mother of the governor, went to school together in Steubenville to the at that time famous Presbyterian seminary.

At that time the Steubenville Herald was owned and published by "Printer" Wilson, as he was known, the grandfather of Woodrow.

Wilson was elected to the legislature, and in those days the lawmakers were compelled to stay in Columbus all winter. During his absence Grandmother Wilson read the paper and boarded the hands.

Jennie Woodrow, who became the wife of "Printer" Wilson's son, was a resident of Chillicothe, Ohio. After the marriage the young couple went to India as missionaries. On their return to America they settled in Staunton, Va., where Woodrow was born.

The Vicious Circle.

Kansas City Star: In his speech in Orchestra hall Saturday night, Theodore Roosevelt pointed out to those Republicans who still cling to the hope of better things for their party organization, the impossible situation as the organization is now constituted.

The old national committee is perpetuated in the new. The old committee made up a fraudulent temporary roll; the fraudulent temporary roll appointed a fraudulent credentials committee; the fraudulent credentials committee seated the fraudulent delegates, who, in turn, elected another fraudulent national committee, and that committee is not only given the power to commit, four years hence, the same fraud that was perpetrated this year, but is given the power to unseat the committeemen honestly elected by delegates this year.

"They seem to forget," says Col. Roosevelt, "that the vicious circle has been completed."

The new party of the people—the Progressive party—will break that vicious circle.

Do Unto Others.

THE DOOR PLATE HAS GONE—THAT'S ALL.

Chicago Tribune: The committee of notification has been appointed. Let it inform William Howard Taft that states which will not give him a single electoral vote and colonial possessions of the United States which have no vote have "put him over." States that have given nothing to the Republican party have given its name to him.

William Howard Taft—the choice of Alabama and Georgia, of South Carolina and Florida, and of Tennessee, of Louisiana and Mississippi, of Virginia and Arkansas, of Porto Rico and the Philippines, of Hawaii and Alaska—the choice of states which never cast an electoral vote for a Republican president, the choice of territories and colonies which are not allowed to vote.

Let the southern states, which have delivered the Republican party to its enemies, lift up their gates and rejoice.

The Republican party in the south will be picking cotton next year. The Republican party in the south is leaving the pleasant fields of federal employment and is going back to manual labor, which will be a gain to the South. The Republican party in the South will have more calluses on its hands next year than it has been honored with for many years. Let this be its reward—the reward of its shrewdness and its honesty, the reward of its responsiveness to the will of the real Republican party.

Let this be its reward. It surely will find it.

The victory is a famous one. Why do the Republicans of Illinois and Pennsylvania, of Kansas and California, of Wisconsin and Maine, of the northwest, of the West, of the Mississippi valley and the East, of every state whose electoral votes elect Republican presidents, sit so silently, with clenched fists and dry, tight lips? Why don't they cheer? Surely it is a famous victory. Examine it. Observe it—a famous victory, surely.

Delegates stolen from states which had declared for Roosevelt, delegates from states which never cast a vote for a Republican president, delegates from territories and colonies which cannot vote—they made it a victory. They took the name "Republican" and gave it to a man Republicans had repudiated.

William Howard Taft is a candidate. BUT NOT THE CANDIDATE OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

It was beyond the power of the misrepresentative convention to give him anything else. Give him the name and let him go. Door plates can be stolen, but the house cannot be moved.

McKinley and Penrose, Barnes and Guggenheim, Rosewater and Mulvane, Crane and Smoot, etc., etc., have run off with the door plate, but they have not even a key to the house.

In the house genuine Republicanism still abides. It possesses the house, and the house is in better order than it has been for many years.

The door plate is gone—that is all.

Hang the plate on William Howard Taft, but the door is barred and bolted against him.

The Alcohol Habit.

Dr. W. A. Evans in Chicago Tribune: The alcohol habit is much more appealing than the other habits. It narcotizes certain adverse impulses, puts "bogies" to sleep, and infuses "Dutch courage." There are certain mental attitudes and certain types of mind that are harmonized into greater effectiveness by it.

While I cannot see why cocaine should tempt any one, I can understand why even a fairly smart man could be lured "into the marsh" by alcohol. It is much easier to escape its clutches than it is to get loose after opium has you, while the cocaine grip is practically unbreakable. This point is no mean factor, as a large part of the "addicts" genuinely feel that they can break away when they get ready. Some of them do. Most of them could, but they never get ready. Some of them suffer from an egomania due to alcoholism. Their drink makes them weak minded, and, at the same time, gives them an exaggerated idea of their power over themselves.

A man with the alcohol habit is a sick man, however much he may think to the contrary. He is mentally sick. He may have inherited a mental makeup which makes it strongly probable that he will be a drunkard, or it may be the fault of bad social training. Usually, however, the disease develops as the result of what it feeds on. The man's mentality becomes perverted through chronic alcohol poisoning.

Alcohol has fuel value, but no food value. Its poisonous qualities overshadow its fuel value. It has no toxin neutralizing power. It is no longer used by well informed people for snake bite, or consumption, or blood poisoning. Where it is a question of keeping a person alive for, say, four hours, in some crisis-disease, its use may be justified, but to keep a patient upon it for days or perhaps weeks in typhoid or pneumonia is unwise. Even as a stimulant, aromatic spirits of ammonia is better.

There is mighty little, if there is any, place for alcohol in medicine. But alcohol as a medicine is not an important source of drunkenness. Drunkards are made by the drink which is taken because it makes one feel good.

The harm of addiction to headache powders is pretty nearly limited to the habitue. Alcohol is different. A pebble dropped into the water causes a ripple that affects the entire mass. The alcohol habit ripples out, affects the family, and then society. The crimes of alcoholics are crimes against society. The drug end of cures does not amount to a row of pins. Just as whisky affects the mind of the drunkard and the lives of those around, the cure of the habit is mental and social. The drug end of "jag" cures is a minor detail. The items which count are suggestion and mental training followed by proper continuous, and sustained social help.

Playing Her Cards.

Auburn Citizen: Tommy—May I stay up a little longer?

Ethel—What do you want to stay up for?

Tommy—I want to see you and Mr. Green playing cards.

Mr. Green—But we are not going to play cards.

Tommy—Oh, yes you are; for I heard mamma saying to Ethel that everything depended on the way in which she played her cards tonight.

THE COLLAPSE OF AN ISSUE.

New York Globe: Before dismissing thought of the Chicago platform we wish our readers would give a little attention to considering two of its declarations.

> It (the Republican party) will strive, not only in the nation, but in the states, to enact the necessary legislation to safeguard the public health; to limit effectively the labor of women and children; to protect wage-earners engaged in dangerous occupations; to enact comprehensive and generous workmen's compensation claims in place of the present wasteful and unjust system of employer's liability.

The Court of Appeals of New York has declared unconstitutional a workmen's compensation act, an act forbidding night work for women factory workers, and an act prohibiting cigar making in tenements; the supreme court of the United States has declared unconstitutional an act prohibiting dirty underground bakeshops. It was this quartette of decisions that Roosevelt said should be "recalled," and for so saying was denounced by President Taft as one proposing "to lay an axe at the root of the tree of liberty." And now the platform on which President Taft is a candidate for re-election proposes the "recall" of identically the same decisions. If the language above quoted does not imply this it means nothing.

The Roosevelt proposal is to achieve the recall of decisions by an orderly vote of the full citizenship after a full discussion. The Taft proposal—if the Chicago platform embodies the Taft proposal—assumes that a tumultuous political convention may recall decisions by direct mandate and political pledge. It will be seen by all who take the trouble to think that the Taft method is more subversive and dangerous than the Roosevelt method. So far would it be to have the overturn of decisions in consequence of the verdict of an election in which all may participate than an overturn according to the whim of a body constituted as the Chicago convention was constituted.

The other reference in the platform to the judiciary is as follows:

> We favor such action as may be necessary to simplify the process by which any judge who is found to be derelict in his duty may be removed from office.

This squarely recognizes the principle advocated by those urging the recall of judges. What is sought is a better way than cumbersome impeachment for getting rid of crooked, inefficient, or otherwise unfit judges. The Chicago platform says there should be an easier way to bring about the recall of judicial undesirables. This is all that the fanatics of the west desire. Thus is dismissed the doctrine, recently much exploited, that to place a judge under the shadow of easier removal will make a coward of him. Greater personal responsibility will elevate the bench and not degrade it.

Shallowness and insincerity have been displayed by two-thirds of those who have pretended to be outraged by the so-called "attacks" on the courts. Mr. Taft, when he accepts the Chicago platform, will in substance say that his opponent was right on the matter with respect to which he chiefly assailed him. The issue of defending the courts has collapsed.

Where Children Really Obey.

From "Home Life in Germany," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick: As a rule German children of all clases are treated as children and taught the elementary virtue of obedience. Das Recht des Kindes is a new cry with some of the people, but nevertheless Germany is one of the few remaining civilized countries where the elders still have rights and privileges. I heard of an English woman the other day who said that she had never eaten the wing of a chicken, because when she was young it was always given to the older people, and now that she was old it was saved for the children. If she lived in Germany she would still have a chance, provided she kept away from a small loud set, who in all matters of education and morality would like to turn the world upside down.

In most German homes the noisy, spoilt American child would not be endured for a moment, and the little tyrant of a French family would be taught its place to the comfort and advantage of all concerned. I have dined with a large family where eight young ones of various ages sat at an overflow table and did not disturb their elders by a sound. It was not because the elders were harsh or the young folks repressed, but because Germany teaches its youth to behave.

The little girls still drop you a pretty old fashioned courtesy when they greet you. The little boys, if you are staying in the house with them, come and shake hands at unexpected times—when they arrive from school, for instance, and before they go out for a walk. They play the same games as English children and I need hardly say that they are brought up on the same fairy stories, because many of our favorites come from Germany.

Gully Editor's Hard Luck.

Fertile Journal: Bennie Hanson, editor of the Gully Reporter, certainly is having his share of luck. A couple of weeks ago he fell down off a chair on which he was standing trying to adjust a fractious stove pipe, and broke a leg. A few days later, the papers tell us, he went and committed matrimony. Misfortune generally comes in bunches, and we are waiting to see what his score will be in the third inning.

WILL CELEBRATE FOURTH AT ORPHANAGE GROUNDS

Elaborate arrangements have been made for a fitting and somewhat old fashioned celebration of the Fourth of uy at St. James orphanage. The city in general will lack such an affair, and those in charge of the orphanage determined that the spirit of patriotism would not be permitted to lie dormant so far as the orphanage charges are concerned.

The committee was fortunate in obtaining H. P. Proctor of Duluth as chief speaker of the occasion. Mr. Proctor was formerly a resident of Viroqua, Wis., where he attained an enviable reputation as an orator, a reputation which he has amply sustained since coming to Duluth.

The public in general is invited to attend the celebration and complete arrangements have been made for taking care of them.

The number of entries in all the athletic events is larger than usual and some of the contestants feel that records of former years will be freely fractured. There will also be a hotly contested ball game between teams belonging to the orphanage; and the Third Regiment band will furnish music throughout the day. The grounds at the orphanage have been carefully prepared and are in fine shape for the sporting events and also for the accommodation of picnic parties.

FINDS HUMAN SKELETON.

Red Wing, Minn., July 3.—A clam digger, George W. Brown of Winona, who has a camp below the bridge on the island, made a grewsome discovery Monday. Encircled and penetrated by the roots of a large cottonwood tree from which the high water had washed away the earth, glistened a grinning human skull, which startled Mr. Brown. Investigation proved that the entire skeleton was there and in a good state of preservation.

The bones were those of a grown man and must have been buried for a number of years, as indicated by the tree roots. There was no trace of clothing and no objects of any kind which the man might have had in his pockets to throw any light on the tragedy of which the bleached bones are mute witnesses.

Mr. Brown is holding the skeleton subject to the order of whoever has authority over it.

It is the general belief of those who know what was transpiring on the island when it was earning $1,000 a week for its proprietors, that the skeleton is that of some person who met with foul play.

CITY WILL BE BOMBARDED

Naval Militia Boats Will Make Attack on Chicago in August.

Hydroplanes Will Drop Bombs in Effort to Repel Attack.

A part of the Great Lakes naval fleet will bombard Chicago as a part of the 1912 maneuvers, which will take place this season beginning on Aug. 12.

The Gopher, the local ship, will be a part of the attacking party. With the Dubuque, Hawk, Don Juan de Austria the Gopher will try to capture the city.

A like number of boats will defend the city. The Tuscarora, Yantic, Dorthea, Wolverine and Essex will probably try to drive off the invaders.

It will be great sport and great experience for the youthful sailors who compose the Great Lakes naval militia. Last year there were no maneuvers because of the complaint made by the Canadian government. This was much to the disappointment of the men and they are looking forward anxiously to the renewal of the maneuvers this year.

The Gopher will probably leave Duluth on Saturday, Aug. 10. She is due at South Manitou island, Lake Michigan, on Aug. 12. A part of the drills and competitions will be held there, the entire fleet sailing from that point together for Chicago, where the bombardment of the city will take place.

The fleet will be in command of Commander A. H. Davis, U. S. N., detailed to assume charge of the maneuvers. The fleet will make its descent upon Chicago on Aug. 14. The ships will anchor inside the outer breakwater. At night there will be a searchlight drill to demonstrate the methods used by a fleet to guard against a torpedo boat attack.

Hydroplanes traveling forty miles an hour will be used during the drill, and it will be definitely proven whether this type of craft will be of assistance in warfare. Experts assert that these boats will be able to blow up the largest ships before the latter can prepare a defense.

The attacking force will put to sea on Aug. 16, and when out of range will form in battle line and return. The defending vessels will prepare for action and the lake front will be torn by the noise of thousands of exploding blank shells. Hydro-aeroplanes which have been racing to St. Joseph, Mich., and back, will dash in on the attacking fleet and finish what has been left undone by the defending warships.

On the night of Aug. 16 there will be another exhibition. The entire fleet will parade before the grandstand and at a signal the crews will desert the ships. More persons than were aboard the Titanic will be taken off the vessels in less than ten minutes.

CELEBRATION AT DULUTH HEIGHTS

Denizens of Uphill Section Will Show Their Patriotism.

Duluth Heights will spend all of tomorrow in celebration of the nation's natal day.

If Duluth as a whole does not care for celebration, it has been reasoned out by the people of the Heights, that that is no bar to those who still feel the pulse of patriotism venting their ardor; so the Heights will listen to the official bird scream.

There will be a parade in the morning at 9:30 o'clock with Rev. A. H. Mutschler as marshal of the day. Then will come the public exercises beginning at 10:30, at which W. E. McEwen and Ralph E. Johnson will be the chief speakers. A dinner on the picnic grounds will follow and then the fun will be resumed at 1 o'clock with a series of races. A baseball game at 3 o'clock will be pulled off between the Duluth Heights team and that known as the Oak Halls. A band concert from 6 to 9 o'clock in the evening and a dance at the latter hour will close the program for the day. Following is the list of prizes and their donors:

FROM RAW WOOL TO READY COATS

Large Party of Visitors Are Shown Work in Patrick Woolen Mill.

That the manufacturing of woolen cloths and blankets is interesting to Duluthians and Duluth summer visitors was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when the steamer Plowboy carried 250 people on a special excursion to the Patrick-Duluth woolen mill on Rice's Point.

A stop of forty-five minutes was made at the woolen mill, after which the Plowboy made an hour's trip around the harbor.

At the woolen mill dock the excursionists were received by the special guides of F. A. Patrick & Co., through whose courtesy the trip was given. From the raw wool to the finished cloth, every process of cloth-making was shown in full detail.

The women visitors, in large attendance, took a particular interest in the sanitary cleansing processes to which the wool is subjected. The four distinct scouring and rinsing operations include a use of melted soap, hot running water and patent wringing, which appeals to the immaculate standards of cleanliness of the American housekeeper.

The fleecy white wool of Minnesota sheep passed before the visitors through the scouring, drying, picking and carding processes, to appear at last on the whirring spinning machines, twisting into tight-spun yarn. Then on its spindles placed in the looms the yarn made its rapid transformation into the celebrated mackinaw cloth and blankets. To the onlooker the swift, accurate working of the processes seemed near-magic. The thorough workmanship of the cloth-making and the uniformly high quality of the raw materials used showed the visitors clearly the basis for the great popularity of Patrick-Duluth cloths and garments in all parts of the United States.

Although the cutting and tailoring of Patrick-Duluth mackinaw garments is done at the main building of F. A. Patrick & Co., on Fifth avenue west, an extensive exhibition of the completed garments in the newest designs was arranged at the woolen mill. Several moments were passed by the interested visitors in trying on the canoe coats, hunting coats and long motor coats with caps to match, made of the mackinaw cloth.

WEST END

WEST ENDERS WANT STATION

Determined to Secure Improvements to the Police System.

Although the West end has been asking the city for a new police station for the past ten years the residents here are still without their new building and are now planning to start a most vigorous campaign in its behalf. "We are tired of this wait and neglect of the West end in this matter," said one of the residents yesterday afternoon, "and it is now time that we showed it. The present insanitary and unhealthful condition of the police station alone ought to condemn the entire structure."

The residents and business men of the West end propose to circulate a petition in this end of the city asking for a new police station for the West end, the installation of call bells and the adoption of a better and more modern service. Bells are needed, say the residents, at Garfield, Twentieth, Twenty-first and Twenty-fifth avenues west.

The present station is located beneath the fire hall. The residents in this end of the city have been complaining for years because of the inadequate service and unhealthful location of the station, with no effect whatever. From now on, say the residents, the action will be concerted and will not end until some action is taken.

WELL REPRESENTED AT OLYMPIC GAMES.

According to letters received here by relatives of the West end residents who went to Sweden early this week and attend the Olympic games during the next three weeks. The members of the Duluth party separated immediately upon their arrival in Sweden about the middle of May and spent the past six weeks visiting friends and relatives in various parts of the country. The party will attend the games every day during the meet, according to the schedule arranged by the steamship company, and will sit in one of the reserved sections.

According to letters received here the members of the party are enthusiastic over their trip and are loud in their praises of the wonders of their home country, which most of them have not seen for over 20 years. The Olympic meet, which is the first ever held in Sweden, has brought thousands of vitors to that country from all parts of the world. The weather there is cool.

The party will attend the games until July 22, when the members will again separate for several weeks, visiting their old homes and friends in various parts of the country. Several are planning to visit on the continent for a short time, the entire party meeting again the first of September. They will all leave Gutenberg at that time, scheduled to arrive in Duluth about Sept. 22.

WANTED!

Lumber Loaders

—at—
Virginia, Minn.
STEADY WORK THE YEAR ROUND.
The Virginia & Rainy Lake Co.

BERRY PICKERS BEGIN ACTIVITIES

The supply of strawberries at Duluth, which all through the spring has been coming from points, nearer and nearer home, is at last being replenished from the woods and gardens of Northern Minnesota.

Early in the spring the only strawberries that could be obtained were from Florida, which always furnishes the earliest crop of fruits in the year. These were very high-priced and Duluthians of moderate means could afford only to take longing glances at the beautiful fruit, as it was picked up and sent to the homes of the more well-to-do. But there is no reason now why even the poorest families should not have strawberries, for they no longer have to be carried so far that the transportation makes any considerable difference in the retail price. Carloads are coming into Duluth from near-by points. Many have just been arriving from the Hinckley district.

Wild as well as cultivated berries are plentiful in Northern Minnesota this season. A ramble in the woods can hardly fail to bring to the attention of anyone who has eye-sight of average keenness, rich patches of strawberry plants, laden with small but delicious berries. Nor is the time far distant when the wild raspberries and other berries will be found in abundance in the wild country around Duluth.

DARK HORSE IS GIVEN NOMINATION

Judge Dillon Named By Republicans for Governor of Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, July 3.—Judge E. B. Dillon of the Franklin county common pleas court, a dark horse whose name scarcely had been mentioned before the fourth ballot, received the Republican nomination for governor on the fifth ballot late yesterday. Judge Dillon's strength came from forces in the convention that previously had been divided between Lawrence K. Langdon of Lebanon and B. H. Kroger of Cincinnati.

On the fifth ballot Hamilton county, which had stuck with Kroger on the previous ballot, swung to Dillon and his nomination stood assured. It was not until Miami county cast its vote, however, that the Franklin county judge had the 378 necessary votes to nominate.

Many of the delegates who had supported A. L. Garford of Elyria voted for him on the final ballot.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HAVE FOUND LOST CHILD

Couderay, Wis., Little Boy Discovered Alive Four Miles From Home.

Tot Is Nearly Dead From His Sixty Hours of Exposure.

Couderay, Wis., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ray Argetsinger, the 3-year-old boy of this place who was lost in the woods near here Sunday noon was found at 2 o'clock this morning near Devils Lake, on the Couderay Indian reservation, four miles from here, having wandered around in the woods sixty-two hours.

He was picked up by Henry Picord, one of the searching party. The child was crawling along on the ground calling for water when found and had suffered much from thirst, exposure and mosquito bites and was very weak.

The bloodhounds from Ashland were unable to pick up the trail and two more were on the way here from Decatur, Ill.

Two Indians Heard Child.

Two Chippewa Indians, Frank Cadotte and Ed Lyik led the searching party to where the child was found. They heard a child crying across the lake the night before while they were out fishing at midnight, but did not know until yesterday that any one was lost, thinking it was Indians camping, so did not investigate. Hayward Radisson and Winter sent men to assist in the search.

PLAN FACTORY FOR THIEF RIVER FALLS

Propose to Manufacture Various Articles Out of Flax Straw.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — A mass meeting of farmers and local people was held last evening to consider the erection of a flax fiber manufacturing plant here by Eastern and local capitalists to utilize the flax straw which is now burned by manufacturing it into various flax material. The prospect is that a paper factory will also grow out of the new proposition. Thousands of tons of flax straw are annually destroyed in this section and as the farmers will receive at least $5 per ton for the poorest straw and up to $8 for the longest straw fiber, it will mean a great conservation of good material. It will cost $75,000 to erect and equip the building and at least ten machines, which constitute what is known as a unit, will be installed. The process is somewhat secret and the machines are not for sale, but they are being manufactured in the East and are being placed in factories in every flax country in the world. The capacity of the factory will be about twenty-five tons of straw per day.

Biladeau, for many years a member of the Superior police force and a pioneer resident of that city, is dead at his home on a farm near here. He was 65 years old and is survived by a widow. At one time Mr. Biladeau was engaged in business at South Superior and owned considerable property there.

TO CHANGE FAIR DATES.

Agricultural Society Committee Discusses the Matter.

St. Paul, Minn., July 3.—The committee from the State Agricultural society delegated to investigate changing the date of the state fair beginning 1913 met here a few days ago and mapped out its work. The committee consists of C. F. Mahnke, publisher of the Star Gazette, Moose Lake; B. W. Randall, formerly for many years secretary of the state fair, and John B. Irwin, president of the Minesota Live Stock Breeders' association. The committee will investigate thoroughly the position the fair should hold in the regular circuit of fairs. The history of different weeks as to weather conditions; the county fair circuits; the maturing season of crops in different parts of the state; the live stock breeders' circuit of shows which would make the best exhibit possible. All of these and other conditions will be taken up carefully, so that a comprehensive report may be made to the board and the society. The fair dates this year will be as usual, the first week in September.

FINE SAWMILL BEING ERECTED

Up-to-Date Plant Will Soon Be in Operation at Hermansville, Mich.

Menominee, Mich., July 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the finest sawmills in the country is being erected by the Wisconsin Land & Lumber company at Hermansville, Mich., to replace the mill destroyed by fire a year or so ago. The new mill is equipped with the latest and best machinery and the most modern conveniences and appliances for the manufacture of lumber. It will greatly increase the sawing facilities of the Wisconsin Land & Lumber company, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the state of Michigan.

The company owns practically all of the village of Hermansville and takes pride in beautifying it and keeping it clean. Dr. George W. Earle is president of the company and Edwin P. Radford general manager.

JOIN BRITISH ARMY.

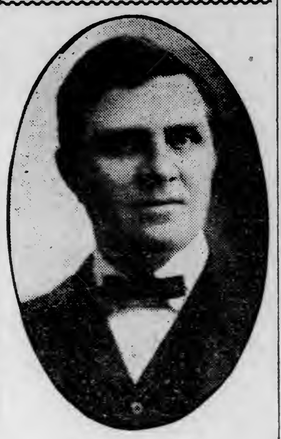

Two Sauk Rapids Youths Enlist Across Line.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., July 3.—James Burns and George Campbell, sons of James Burns, Sr., night watchman of the Watab paper mills, and J. B. Campbell, foreman of the big Rockville granite quarries, some two weeks ago went north and enlisted under the British flag.

Young Burns is 17 years old and Campbell is 19, and both are students in the high school. After the school closed they left on a trip for Walker, and from there went to International Falls. One day they went across to St. Frances, Ont., and were induced to enlist in the British army or navy. They are now in camp near Winnipeg. The news of their enlistment was a sad shock to their parents, who are good American citizens, and they have taken steps to have the enlistment cancelled. It is understood the boys are anxious to quit.

Senator Nelson will be asked to lay the facts before the state department, and Secretary Knox will make the diplomatic demand on the British government to release the boys, who are not of age, and who did not receive the consent of their parents.

GRAND FORKS MEN IN REGINA TORNADO

GEORGE E. DUIS.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—David H. Beecher and ex-Mayor George E. Duis of Grand Forks were in Regina, Sask., Sunday evening when the tornado struck the city, and both of them did valiant service in the effort to bring relief to those injured by the storm. Mr. Beecher returned home yesterday and Mr. Duis, who is state senator from the Seventh district, will be home today.

They were in a room in their hotel, only about 100 feet from the telephone exchange building, which was the first to go before the elements. After the storm passed, both assisted in the removal of injured girls from the wreckage of the telephone building, and they also made their way through blocks of the city where devastation had been wrought.

SANE FOURTH IN LEADING PLACES

North Dakota Towns Will Try Modern Methods of Observing the Day.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—In nearly all the large cities of the state, the plan of doing away so much as possible with dangerous methods of celebrating the Fourth will be carried out. Civic organizations have been instrumental to a large degree, in replacing the old time styles with new features which will give the boys and girls just as much opportunity to let loose their patriotism.

In Grand Forks the Women's Civic league is behind the sane Fourth of July celebration, arranging a big picnic which will be held at Lincoln park, and in which several thousand youngsters will be cared for.

Fargo has organized a civic committee which has for its object the carrying on of a sane observance of the day, the committee being created by the Commercial club, and it is backed by the business men of the city in an entirely substantial manner.

In Bismarck and Minot.

Bismarck and Minot also have special programs for the day, while at Devils Lake, the chautauqua will be utilized as a means of drawing the attention of the young patriots from the dangerous pastime of using gunpowder, to the enjoyable picnic, sports and patriotic features that are lacking in danger.

Nearly all of the leading cities have strict ordinances against the sale of fireworks. This will be the first year during which the prevention of the use of fireworks will be so general.

TO AGAIN CONSIDER RIVER NAVIGATION

Conference at Winnipeg July 17 to Discuss Improving Red River.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Red River navigation will be brought to the front again at a conference which will be held in Winnipeg July 17, attended by Mayor M. F. Murphy of Grand Forks, Mayor Waugh of Winnipeg, and the mayors of several other Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba cities.

The Grand Forks Automobile club will make a run to Winnipeg on July 17, and the Red River to Hudson Bay Navigation association officials have taken advantage of that fact to arrange for the navigation meeting with the object in view of continuing the work which was launched several months ago looking to the general improvement of the water highway from Grand Forks to Hudson bay, via the Red river and the Nelson river, and Lake Winnipeg.

ELLENDALE CELEBRATION.

North Dakota Town to Dedicate New Courthouse July 4.

Ellendale, N. D., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow the Dickey county courthouse, just completed, will be dedicated, with a very elaborate program.

Dr. E. W. M. Taylor of Moline, Ill., will be the principal speaker during the day, and there also will be addresses by a number of the prominent residents of the county.

VERDICT SET ASIDE.

Wisconsin Judge Overrules Judgment in Damage Suit.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 3.—Judge Wickham has filed with the clerk of the circuit court his decision in the case of Conrad Hollenbeck against the Chippewa Sugar company and M., St. P. & St. Ste. Marie railroad, in which he reverses the verdict of the jury. A verdict in which the plaintiff Hollenbeck was to receive $7,500 was rendered by the jury after a deliberation of seven hours. The case was tried at the spring term of circuit court.

Hollenbeck was injured by a Soo line beet train while working for the sugar company in their sheds last fall and was so seriously hurt that he will be unable to work during the remainder of his life. The case hinged upon the placing of responsibility of the accident and a special verdict consisting of seventeen questions was rendered.

In reversing the verdict Judge Wickham refers to question 16, which read as follows: Did any want of ordinary care on the part of the plaintiff proximately contribute to his injury? This question was answered by the jury, "No." The judge changes the answer of said question to "Yes."

LIVELY TIME FOR NORTH DAKOTA MAN

Nearly Drowns, Dislocates Shoulder and Saves Two Lives.

Belfield, N. D., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dislocation of a shoulder, a narrow escape from drowning in the Heart river, the participation in the running away of a 4-horse team attached to a drill, and the rescue by himself of two girls from drowning, gave O. L. Rapp of this place the two most eventful days of his life.

His dislocated shoulder was received in a fall. While fording the Heart river, he was swept down the stream and had a hard time getting out. The next morning he participated in the runaway, which nearly resulted in two horses being killed and his own serious injury. In the afternoon, while driving at the so-called Young crossing, he heard wild calls for help, and arrived at the scene of the trouble just in time to rescue the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frank, and the 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Schletvitz, who had fallen from some stepping stones into the stream, and were being whirled down the river into deep water.

SHERIFF IS SHOT.

Wounded By Man He Had Arrested at Detroit.

Detroit, Minn., July 3.—Sheriff Glaum is nursing a bullet wound in the leg he sustained Sunday in arresting Frank Rathbone, said to be a gambler run out of Fargo.

Saturday night a box car was broken into on the Northern Pacific right-of-way and some brandy and whisky taken. The next morning a farmer reported to the sheriff that some one had broken into his chicken coop near Detroit and stolen some chickens.

The sheriff went out to the farm and tracked the thief to a small creek, where it was afterward learned he had gone to prepare a "big feed" with a gang of hoboes, who had stolen the liquor from the box car.

About 11 o'clock Rathbone came out of the bushes and joined the gang to prepare the feast. The sheriff, who had been watching, immediately placed Rathbone under arrest.

The pair started back to town and Rathbone broke away, and in trying to escape shot the sheriff through the leg. The sheriff hobbled back to town, a posse was formed and Rathbone was found about 11 o'clock Sunday night and is now under arrest. The sheriff's wound is painful but not serious.

PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM ADOPTED BY DEMOCRATS

REFORM OF THE TARIFF

Downward Revision of Existing High Tariff Duties Is Favored.

For Vigorous Enforcement of the Criminal Law Against Trusts.

Opposes Aldrich Bill or the Establishment of Central Bank.

We, the representatives of the Democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the principles of Democracy announced and formulated by Thomas Jefferson and enforced by a long and illustrious line of Democratic presidents.

TARIFF REFORM.

We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government under the constitution has no right or power to impose or collect tariff duties, except for the purpose of revenue, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government, honestly and economically administered.

The high Republican tariff is the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth; it is a system of taxation which makes the rich richer and the poor poorer; under its operations the American farmer and laboring man are the chief sufferers; it raises the cost of the necessities of life to them, but does not protect their product or wages. The farmer sells largely in free markets and buys almost entirely of the protected markets. In the most highly protected industries such as cotton and wool, steel and iron, the wages of the laborers are the lowest paid of any of our industries. We denounce the Republican insistence on this subject and assert that American wages are established by competitive conditions and not by the tariff.

We favor the downward revision of the existing high and, in many cases, prohibitive tariff duties, insisting that material reductions can be speedily made upon the necessaries of life. Articles entering into competition with trust controlled products and articles of American manufacture that are sold abroad more cheaply than at home should be put upon the free list.

We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles, we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.

We denounce the action of President Taft in vetoing the bills to reduce the tariff in the cotton, woolen, metal and chemical schedules and the farmers' free list bills, all of which were designed to give immediate relief to the masses from the exactions of the trusts.

The Republican party, while promising tariff revision, has show by its tariff legislation, that much revsion is not to the people's interest, and having been faithless to its pledges of 1908 it should no longer have the confidence of the nation. We appeal to the American people to support us in our demand for tariff for revenue only.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The Republican party in its platform attempts to escape the responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the Republican party and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessaries of life are materially reduced and these criminal conspiracies broken up.

ANTI-TRUST LAWS.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trusts and trust officials and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. We favor the declaration by law of the conditions upon which corporations shall be permitted to engage in interstate trade, including, among others, the prevention of holding companies of interlocking directors, of stock-watering, of discrimination in price, and the control by any one corporation of so large a proportion of any industry as to make it a menace to competitive conditions.

We condemn the action of the Republican administration in compromising with the Standard Oil company and the Tobacco trust and its failure to invoke the criminal provisions of the anti-trust law against the officers of those corporations after the court had declared that from the undisputed facts in the record they had violated the criminal provisions of the law.

We regret that the Sherman anti-trust law has received a judicial construction depriving it of much of its efficiency and we favor the enactment of legislation which will restore to the statute the strength of which it has been deprived by the interpretations.

RIGHTS OF THE STATES.

We believe in the preservation and maintenance in their full strength and integrity of the three co-ordinate branches of the federal government, the executive, the legislative and the judicial, each keeping within its own bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others.

Believing that the most efficient results under our system of government are to be obtained by a full exercise by the states of their reserve sovereign powers, we denounce as usurpation the efforts of our opponents to deprive the states of any of the rights reserved to them, and to enlarge and magnify by indirection the powers of the federal government.

We insist upon the full exercise of all the powers of the government, both state and national, to protect the people from injustices at the hands of those who seek to make the government a private asset for their benefit. There is no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both. It is as necessary that the federal government shall exercise its powers resertain to them, as it is insist that federal remedies for the regulation of interstate commerce and for the prevention of private monopoly shall be added to and not substituted for state remedies.

INCOME TAX AND POPULAR ELECTION OF SENATORS.

We congratulate the country upon the triumph of two important reforms demanded in the last national platform, namely, the amendment of the Federal Constitution authorizing an income tax and the amendment providing for the popular election of senators, and we call upon the people of all the states to rally to the support of the pending propositions and secure their ratification.

We note with gratification the unanimous sentiment in favor of publicity before the election of campaign contributions—a measure demanded in our national platform of 1908 and at that time opposed by the Republican party—and commend the Democratic house of representatives for extending the doctrine of publicity to recommendations, verbal and written, upon which presidential appointments are made, to the ownership and control of newspapers and to the expenditures made by and on behalf of those who aspire to presidential nominations, and we point for additional justification for this legislation to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the president and his predecessor in the recent contest for the Republican nomination for president.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.

The movement towards more popular government should be promoted through legislation in each state which will permit the expression of the preference of the electors for national candidates at direct primaries and we direct the national committee incorporate in the call for the next nominating convention a requirement that all expressions of preference for presidential candidates shall be given and the selection of delegates and alternates made through a primary election conducted by the party organization in each state where such expression and election are not provided for by state law.

Committeemen who are hereafter to constitute the membership of the Democratic national committee and whose election is not provided for by law shall be chosen in each state at such primary elections and the services and authority of committeemen, however chosen, shall begin immediately upon the receipt of their credentials respectively.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund and any individual from contributing any amount above a reasonable maximum.

TERM OF PRESIDENT.

We favor a single presidential term and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution, making the president of the United States ineligible for re-election, and we pledge the candidate of this convention to this principle.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

At this time, when the Republican party after a generation of unlimited power in its control of the federal government, is rent into factions, it is opportune to point to the record of accomplishments of the Democratic house of representatives in the Sixty-second congress. We indorse its action and we challenge comparison of its record with that of any congress which has been controlled by our opponents.

We hail the attention of the patriotic citizens of our country to its record of efficiency, economy and constructive legislation.

It has, among other achievements, revised the rules of the house of representatives so as to give to the representatives of the American people freedom of speech and of action in advocating, proposing and perfecting remedial legislation.

It has passed bills for the relief of the people and the development of our country; it has endeavored to revise the tariff taxes downward in the interest of the consuming masses and thus to reduce the cost of living.

It has proposed an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people. It has secured the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as two soverign states.

It has required the publicity of campaign expenses, both before and after election, and fixed a limit upon the election expenses of United States senators and representatives.

It has passed a bill to prevent the abuse of the writ of injunction.

It has passed a bill establishing an eight-hour day for workmen on all national public work.

It has passed a resolution which forced the president to take immediate steps to abrogate the Russian treaty.

And it has passed the great supply bills which lessen waste and extravagance and which reduce the annual expenses of the government by millions of dollars.

We approve the measure reported by the Democratic leaders in the house of representatives for the creation of a council of national defense which will determine a definite naval program with a view to increase efficiency and economy. The party that proclaimed and has always enforced the Monroe doctrine and was sponsor for the new navy will continue faithfully to provide and maintain an adequate and well-proportioned navy sufficient to defend American policies, protect our citizens and uphold the honor and dignity of the nation.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANCE.

We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of recent Republican congresses, which have kept taxes high, and reduced the purchasing power of the people's toil. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useless offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people.

RAILROADS, EXPRESS COMPANIES, TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE LINES.

We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines engaged in interstate commerce. To this end we recommend the valuation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical value of the property, the original cost, the cost of reproduction, and any element of value that will render the valuation fair and just.

We favor such legislation as will effectually prohibit the railroads, express, telegraph and telephone companies from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers or patrons; also legislation preventing the over-issue of stocks and bonds by interstate railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and legislation which will assure such reduction in transportation rates as conditions will permit, care being taken to avoid reduction that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service, or do injustice to legitimate investments.

BANKING LEGISLATION.

We oppose the so-called Aldrich bill or the establishment of a central bank, and we believe the people of the country will be largely freed from panics and consequent unemployment and business depression by such a systematic revision of our banking laws as will render temporary relief in localities where such relief is needed, with protection from control or domination by what is known as the money trust.

Banks exist for the accommodation of the public and not for the control of business. All legislation on the subject of banking and currency should have for its purpose the securing of these accommodations on terms of absolute security to the public and of complete protection from the misuse of the power that wealth gives to those who possess it.

We condemn the present methods of depositing government funds in a few favored banks, largely situated in or controlled by Wall Street, in return for political favors, and we pledge our party to provide by law for their deposit by competitive bidding of the banking institutions of the country, national and state, without discrimination as to locality, upon approved securities and subject to call by the government.

RURAL CREDITS.

Of equal importance with the question of currency reform is the question of rural credits or agricultural finance. Therefore, we recommend that an investigation of agricultural credit societies in foreign countries be made, so that it may be ascertained whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States; and we also favor legislation permitting national banks to loan a reasonable proportion of their funds on real estate security.

We recognize the value of vocational education and urge federal appropriations for such training and extension teaching in agriculture in co-operation with the several states.

WATERWAYS.

We renew the declaration in our last platform relating to the conservation of our natural resources and the development of our waterways. The present devastation of the lower Mississippi valley actuates the movement for the regulation of river flow by additional bank and levee protection below, and the diversion, storage and control of the flood waters above, and their utilization for beneficial purposes in the reclamation of arid and swamp lands and the development of waterpower, instead of permitting the floods to continue, as heretofore, agents of destruction.

We hold that the control of the Mississippi river is a national problem. The preservation of the depth of its water for the purpose of navigation, the building of levees to maintain the integrity of its channel and the prevention of the overflow of the land and its consequent destruction, resulting in interruption of interstate commerce, general disorganization of mail service and the enormous loss of life and property impose an obligation which alone can be discharged by the general government.

To maintain an adequate depth of water the entire year and thereby encourage water transportation is a consummation worthy of legislative attention and an issue national in its character. It calls for prompt action on the part of congress, and the Democratic party pledges itself to the enactment of legislation leading to that end.

We favor the co-operation of the United States and the respective states in plans for the comprehensive treatment of all waterways with a view of co-ordinating plans for channel improvement with plans for drainage of swamp and overflowed lands, and to this end we favor the appropriation by the federal government of sufficient funds to make surveys of such lands, to develop plans for draining the same and to supervise the work of construction.

We favor the adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for the development and improvement of our inland waterways with economy and efficiency, so as to permit their navigation by vessels of standard draft.

POST ROADS.

We favor national aid to state and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

RIGHTS OF LABOR.

We repeat our declarations of the platform of 1908 as follows:

"The courts of justice are the bulwark of our liberties and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity. Our party has given to the bench a long line of distinguished justices who have added to the respect and confidence in which this department must be jealously maintained. We repent the attempt of the Republican party to raise a false issue respecting the judiciary. It is an unjust reflection upon a great body of our citizens to assume that they lack respect for the courts.

"It is the function of the courts to interpret the laws which the people enact, and if the laws appear to work economy, social or political injustice, it is our duty to change them. The only basis upon which the integrity of our courts can stand is that of unswerving justice and protection of life, personal liberty and property. As judicial processes may be abused, we should guard them against abuse.

"Experience has proved the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunction and we reiterate the pledges of our platforms of 1896 and 1904 in favor of a measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, relating to contempt in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

"Questions of judicial practice have arisen, especially in connection with industrial disputes. We believe that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which an injunction would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.

"The expanding organization of industry makes it essential that there should be no abridgement of the right of the wage earners and producers to organize for the protection of wages and the improvement of labor conditions, to the end that such labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade."

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law creating a department of labor represented separately in the president's cabinet, in which department shall be included the subject of mines and mining.

We pledge the Democratic party, so far as the federal jurisdiction extends, to an employes' compensation law providing adequate indemnity for injury to body or loss of life.

CONSERVATION.

We believe in the conservation and the development for the use of all the people, of the natural resources of the country. Our forests, our sources of water supply, our arable and our mineral lands, our navigable streams and all the other material resources with which our country hs been so lavishly endowed, constitute the foundation of our national wealth. Such additional legislation as may be necessary to prevent their being wanted or absorbed by special or privileged interests, should be enacted and the policy of their conservation should be rigidly adhered to.

The public domain should be administered and disposed of with due regard to the general welfare. Reservations should be limited to the purpose which they purport to serve and not extended to include land wholly unsuited therefor. The unnecessary withdrawal from sale and settlement of enormous tracts of public lands upon which no one has ever grown never existed and cannot be promoted, tends only to retard development, create discontent and bring reproach upon the policy of conservation.

The public land laws should be administered in a spirit of the broadest liberality towards the settler exhibiting a bona fide purpose to comply therewith to the end that the invitation of this government to the landless should be as attractive as possible; and the plain provisions of the forest reserve set permitting homestead entries to be made within the national forests should not be nullified by administrative regulations which amount to a withdrawal of great areas of the same from settlement.

Immediate action should be taken by congress to make available the vast and valuable coal deposits of Alaska under conditions that will be a perfect guaranty against their falling into the hands of monopolizing corporations, associations or interests.

DOOKS HAVE A FIELD DAY

Duluth Defeats the Red Hose By Easy Score of 10 to 3.

Johnson Holds the Taylor Gang While Sox Find Rhoades.

Duluth journeyed over to the land of the enemy, the tall grass of the village, i. e., Superior, and at Athlon park defeated the yokels by the score of 10 to 3. Johnson was on the mound for the White Sox, holding the visitors to a hit an inning with the exception of one round, while Rhoades was erratic and received the kind of support that would have sent a Bowery soubrette into tantrums and the police station.

There is no use of going into dreary detail as to how we got all the runs. Suffice it to say that we hit hard and often and that the playing of the outfit that Kid Taylor has gathered together this cheery season did not prove equal to the occasion of handling the bingles that came its collective way.

There was the usual cry regarding the umpire and a pernicious pennant he has for robbing the home team. But seeing that the score was so largely made by runners of the Duluth team the cry of the Superior barkers is without foundation and will be thrown out as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Johnson was not as steady as he has been on numerous occasions, but he had plenty to defeat the yokels with and he went through the game with plenty to spare.

The features of the contest were the general fielding of the Sox, the base stealing of the O'Brienites and the hitting of the Duluth team.

WINNIPEG WINS LAST OF SERIES

Maroons Have a Makeshift Team in Field, But Outplay Deacons.

Winnipeg, Man., July 3.—The Maroons took the final game of the series from Grand Forks yesterday by the score of 7 to 1. Kirkham was taken out of the game because of injuries, two pitchers and Manager Jim Brown doing the outfield work. But with the somewhat make-shift team, the locals outplayed the Deacons. Van Dine secured four of the visitors' seven hits.

HORSES SHOW PLENTY OF SPEED

Lansing, Mich., July 3.—Plenty of speed was displayed by the grand circuit trotters and pacers, which was in Lansing this week for the curtain-raiser of the big season. In the first heat in the first event, the 2:16 trot, the best time marked up was 2:10 and the pacers in the 2:14 class turned one miles in 2:06½.

Joe Patchen II easily won the 2:14 pace, although in the final heat Geers got Akar in his stride and carried the Patchen horse the first half in 1:01½.

There was some fine driving in the 2:16 trot, Echomore and Funny Crank making the pace sharp. In the 2:13 trot, Baden and Miss Archdale were contestants except in the third heat, when Marigold was turned loose in a hard drive, a break almost at the wire robbing the mare of her chance.

RIVERS WEIGHS MORE THAN AD

Los Angeles, Cal., July 3.—Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers announced last night they were ready to enter the ring tomorrow for the lightweight championship battle in the best condition they ever were in. Only light work was indulged in yesterday. Wolgast boxed four rounds and Rivers four rounds.

At the finish it was announced that Wolgast weighed 130 at which weight he expects to enter the ring. Rivers' weight was announced as 133, but it was said that the Mexican would go into the ring at 132. Betting today was swerved somewhat, and Rivers money was more in evidence.

Many bets have been placed at 2 to 1 on Wolgast, but now 10 to 7 seems to be the prevailing odds.

HENLEY REGATTA IS OPENED

Henley on Thames, Eng., July 3.—The annual regatta which on Saturday next is to be honored by the presence of King George and Queen Mary, who are coming in the old state barge, which has been renovated for the occasion and is to be manned by the king's water men in their historic costumes of the middle ages, opened today under the most depressing weather conditions. The attendance, too, was the smallest recorded for years. Later in the day, however, the weather became brighter and if the sun continues to favor the most important aquatic sporting and society event of the year the week held under royal auspices is expected to be a brilliant one.

The course from end to end was lined from an early hour with beautifully decorated houseboats, prominent among which was that of Alfred G. Vanderbilt. All the leading West end clubs and the colleges of Oxford and Cambridge also were represented.

Nineteen preliminary heats in the various events are down for decision today. The only trans-Atlantic competitor today is the Canadian, E. B. Butler of Toronto, who is to row in the third heat of the diamond sculls against G. E. Fairburn of Jesus college.

PLAY PROGRESSING IN LONGVIEW TOURNAMENT

The second day's play in the club tournament now under way at the Longview Tennis club, Twenty-fifth avenue east and Fourth street, brought out a number of strong players, but with the exception of the match between Walter Kennedy and W. C. Billings none of the matches were closely contested.

This afternoon will find several good contests, however, as the play is rapidly narrowing down. R. Bissonnette and L. Kennedy have reached the eights.

Yesterday's play was featured by the match in which W. Kennedy defeated W. C. Billings. The former, by clever net work and good overhead shots, overcame the more heady game of his experienced opponent. The loser was erratic and Kennedy was quick to take advantage of every weakness of his opponent.

The results yesterday: Becher defeated Dr. Collins and by default from Barnum goes into the third round. Labree defeated Bjordquist; Fraker defeated Van Cleff; Washburn defeated Sinclair; Dickerman defeated Smith; Dinwiddie defeated Withrow; L. Kennedy defeated Falk; Falk defeated Sopher; Bissonnette defeated Bohannon. The standings follow:

JOHNSON AND WOLGAST SHOULD DEFEAT RIVALS

Carefully Combing the Dope, the Chances of Victory Seem to Favor the Two Champions.

(BY BRUCE.)

Along with the scream of the eagle, a good old bird, fervid speeches and grammatical mistakes, burned fingers and singed eyebrows, references to the Plymouth rock, the cherry tree and G. Washington, we have two fights that will add to the gaiety of nations on the glorious Fourth.

It is generally customary for sporting writers who are not afraid of being guyed later on, to pick winners on such occasions. Therefore, right here we get down on Wolgast and Johnson. In the immortal words of P. McDonnell, "Them is our choice."

Under normal conditions Johnson should win in a walk at Las Vegas. That, too, not losing sight of the fact that he has been going some since the title was cleanly torn from the weakening clasp of Jim Jeffries. Along with Jackson, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries, the man who is to face Flynn tomorrow is one of the truly great of the ring.

Flynn some three years ago was in the class with Billy Papke. Johnson once toyed with Flynn. There you have the angle. Flynn may be better today than ever before—but, readers, he hasn't the class to do things to Johnson—the eternal if—if the black is anywhere near the man he was at Reno.

Wolgast is the greatest natural fighting lightweight we have had since the days of Lavigne and Nelson. This is not counting Ad Gans, for he was a marvel, the wonder of an age of great fighters. Wolgast is a natural fighter, born to the purple of the ring. The operation may have hurt him, but there is always a chance in everything, and a fight is filled with chances.

Here is one slant at our dope. Rivers hammered up poor little Frankie Conley on one occaston for twenty rounds, and some of the fair minded ones on the coast were in dispute as to which had the better of the fight. Later he knocked Conley out, 'tis true, but there was a vast difference in poundage.

Johnny Kilbane outpointed Rivers, according to some of the followers of fighting on the coast, and then was robbed of the decision. Later Kilbane came back and put the K. O. decoration on the record of the Mexican. This would at least indicate that his punishing powers are not as great as some of the others.

Racial Traits.

Racial characteristics may count for a good deal in the Los Angeles battle. Rivers is a Mexican, and the Mexicans as a race are noted for a quavering of the heart muscles when it comes to perilous times. Los Angeles sports, at least some of them, admit that there is doubt regarding the courage of the little greaser.

There has never been a doubt regarding the courage of Wolgast. His middle name is Gameness. He took a rough baptism of fire in winning the title from Nelson. At times it seemed impossible that the little Michigan lad could withstand the gruelling; but he did, and here he stands today, the most cocky, confident and confusing fighter of the age.

Rivers has had a sensational, a meteoric career. From a begging, half starving Peon, or whatever they call those waifs of the Mexican and Spanish quarters of Los Angeles, Jose Rivers has fought his way to that point of affluence where he wears diamonds, drives his own car and sleeps in a bed that is valued by the city appraiser at something like 5,000 little iron men. But for all this, giving the boy credit for what he has done, he is liable to feel a thrill of terror when he looks across the ring and spies that little demon of ring work, Ad Wolgast, the boy who crumpled up Owen Moran, blighted the hopes of One-Round Hogan and knocked the everlasting tar out of Frankie Burns. Wolgast is one of those bred in the deep purple, as it were, and there are characteristics that are stronger than mere nerves. There is the breeding that goes back through the generations, taking its mark from every jump of every ancestor at a shadow by the roadside. Rivers' ancestors are the kind that leap in the dark; and Wolgast comes from the stock that stand sturdily toe to toe in the daylight and fight with German stubbornness and persistency.

Let us swing once more to Las Vegas. In the argot of the ring, it should be a "pipe" for Lil' Artha. Pray, what has Flynn that Johnson hasn't better and more of? Some say Flynn has a punch. He didn't put Carl Morris out. But, say he has. So has Johnson. Flynn is fairly strong for a man of his size. Johnson is a giant and one of the strongest men in the world. Look at his shoulders and back. Flynn can't box. Johnson has a marvellous left hand and a right that is murderous. Flynn is said to be good in close. Remember what Johnson did to little Tommy Burns when they were entwined.

Unless Johnson is a shell, as was the once great Jeffries, he should win at most any stage of the game that he sees fit. There are always chances and there are always the proverbial ifs. A real smart spider might accomplish the end of an elephant in time. It looks Johnson all over to us, just another case of "Too much Johnson."

We are going down on little Ad and Lil' Artha, and if they are beaten—well, the dope is often spilled.

FLYNN'S LUCK IS A FIGHT FACTOR

Many a man has won drawing to a straight in the middle. It doesn't happen very often, but nevertheless it has been done. It is considered great luck when anyone fills a hand "open in the middle" and this is just the kind of luck Jim Flynn has had since he started boxing. The fireman is known as the luckiest man who ever entered the ring, and for this reason some of his friends think he has a chance of beating Jack Johnson when the pair hook up at Las Vegas. While the rank and file of form followers can't see where Johnson can lose and would not risk a lead nickel against the colored gladiator, they wouldn't be surprised to see Lucky Flynn win through an accident of some kind.

Flynn is a child of fortune. He was lucky to beat Al Kaufman in ten rounds at Kansas City. He gave the Californian the trimming of his life. A lucky punch in the last round brought Flynn to the front in leaps and bounds, although Kaufman at one time beat Flynn in nine rounds at Frisco. Following his victory over Al Kaufman, Flynn's luck was with him, and he was able to entice Carl Morris, seemingly most formidable of all white hopes, into the ring with him in New York, where he put the Oklahoma person on the decline.

Lucky to Get a Match.

Flynn's luck didn't stop here. He hooked up with Jack Curley at this juncture, and by persistent boosting got Johnson to sign articles for a battle. Now everything is ready for the staging of the event, and the eyes of the pugilistic world are fostered on New Mexico.

There isn't much betting on the outcome. Johnson seems to be a sure winner, but the Flynn lucky hunch won't down.

The statement has been sent out from Las Vegas that the odds on the match have been cut to 1 to 2 on account of the appearance of large sums of Flynn money. Chicago ring followers are inclined to the belief that it is either stage or confederate money. If there is any heavy betting on Flynn, as indicated by dispatches from Las Vegas, the backers of the fireman must think they "know something." The odds are altogether too close if Johnson is half as good as he ought to be.

Johnson Twenty Pounds Heavier.

Johnson will enter the ring about twenty pounds heavier than his opponent if not more than that. He has an advantage in reach, height, speed and ring experience. The only real ground for suspecting Flynn of having a chance to win is that it is altogether improbable that any man can lead the life Johnson has for the last two years and be as good as he was before it. However, Johnson doesn't have to be as good as he was when he beat Jeffries and Tommy Burns to whip Flynn.

There is no denying the fact that he looks too heavy, and that he has too much paunch to present the appearance of a perfectly trained athlete. He has had no ring workouts of sufficient caliber to furnish any test as to his present ability, and is much in the same boat as Jeffries was before his battle at Reno, in this respect. Jeffries persistently refused to do any boxing. Johnson boxes as much as he can, but has no one capable of giving him even a good warming up. These are the most favorable facts that can be produced in Flynn's behalf, and they are purely of a negative sort.

BOTH FIGHTERS READY FOR GONG

East Las Vegas, N. M., July 3.—With all boxing finished and nothing but roadwork and shadow sparring to do, Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn, who will meet here tomorrow for the world's heavyweight championship, took a rest today. Johnson made it a day of play after finishing his roadwork and he made it a point to meet every train from the east in order to greet his friends.

All of Johnson's training partners were in high good humor and with no more batterings from the big black insight, put on their Sunday raiment and came to town to amuse themselves for the first time since late in May. They are all supremely confident.

Flynn gave his boxing mates notice last Sunday that he would need their glove services no longer and there was general rejoicing among the tribe that has aided in getting the Puebloan in shape. Speculation as to how far the battle will go and what are the chances of the challenger have begun to grow warmer. The consensus of opinion is that if Johnson fails to stow the fireman away within ten runds, he will be beaten. Members of Flynn's camp agree to a man that Flynn will be badly worsted during the first seven to ten, but that, if Johnson does not finish the job within that time, Flynn will go to the front and wear the black down and beat him.

The confidence in both camps shows no diminishing and if it were left to this sentiment there would be two badly beaten men on Thursday afternoon. Flynn's followers, however, seem to be stouter in their adherence and are perfectly sure Jim will be the champion when the sun goes down on Independence day. They cannot see how Johnson can win and some have cracked their training money and placed a bet on Flynn. Betting was still at 2 to 1 on Johnson today, with but very little wagering done.

WISCONSIN BALL PLAYER IS INSTANTLY KILLED.

BIG VIRGINIA CONTRACT LET

Warren Brothers Will Pave Several of City's Streets.

Virginia, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night, after a session lasting until after midnight, awarded the contracts for extensive street paving to Warren Bros., who offered to lay bitulithic at $2.45 per square yard. C. C. Butler of Virginia was first awarded the contract to lay creosote blocks on certain streets at $2.71 per square yard, but before the council adjourned City Attorney Morgan advised the council that as Mr. Butler's prices were higher than Warren Bros. it would be necessary, not to violate the charter, to let all the work to Warren Bros., the lowest bidder, and this was done, thereby effecting a saving of about $284. The total work will amount to about $100,000.

The streets to be paved are Wyoming avenue from Walnut to Oak; also Wyoming from Maple to Larch, Mesaba avenue from Oak to Balsam, Virginia avenue from Maple to Cook, Locust from Virginia to Railroad, Beech from Cleveland to Virginia and Mesaba from Sage to Larch. Other bidders were Pastoret & Lawrence of Duluth and the General Construction Company of Boston.

Each contractor was given an opportunity to address the council. All stated that both material and labor are higher this year than last.

City Attorney Morgan advised the council that it can legally make a direct appropriation for a Fourth of July celebration or any such occasion under the city charter. Mr. Morgan also advised that the Virginia Electric Power & Water company can not legally make a charge for carrying water pipes from the street mains to the lot lines as has been done. He said, however, that it would doubtful if the property owners who have paid the charge of $25 made in each case could require the company, in the courts, to refund the amounts paid, for the reason that the payments have been made voluntarily.

Postpone White Way Work.

The question of the white way on Central avenue was also given attention and in view of the fact that this has close relation to the electric light plant which the city seeks to acquire by purchase and in the interests of economy, to which the present council is pledged, it was decided not to go ahead with the Central avenue white way this year.

The city has an ordinance limiting the speed of automobiles to eight miles an hour in the city. The city attorney gave an opinion that this ordinance is void for the reason that the city has no authority to pass an ordinance which is not in conformity with the state law.

W. J. Lenertz advised the council that all meat which he condemned was doped with kerosene and turpentine, to prevent it being used for food and that which was not so treated was given to the park board to feed the animals in the park or taken to the city incinerator.

SECOND VICTIM OF FIRE CALLED

Nick Agvaba, Who Burned in French Location Fire, Dies.

Hibbing, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Agvaba died yesterday at a local hospital, making the second victim of last week's fire at the French location when Mike Terrich was burned to death, and several were injured in jumping. Six dwellings were burned.

Agvaba was a single man about 30 years old and had been employed at the Mahoning mine. Funeral services were conducted this afternoon.

Unsavory Place.

The disaster has had the effect of calling attention to the conditions under which the people at the French location live. It has long been notorious for its filth and squalor. Since the first of the year there have been three deaths there from tuberculosis and a murder trial has just been disposed of in the district court in which all the principals were residents of the French location. Whole families live in ill-ventilated, poorly furnished shacks reeking with filth and vermin and the fact that pigs and chickens sometimes live with the family has several times been verified. Most of the people at the location are squatting on state land and an effort will be made to compel them to comply with the fundamentals of sanitary and decent living or see new homes, as the location is directly at the entrance to the fair grounds and has been an eye-sore to Hibbing people for years. It is outside the village limits.

HIBBING PLANS BIG CELEBRATION

All Previous Fourth of July Doings on Range to Be Eclipsed.

Hibbing, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing's Fourth of July celebration tomorrow, with favorable weather, will present one of the most varied and elaborate programs ever given on the Mesaba range on a similar occasion. It will begin at sunrise with the time-honored anvil salute of 100 guns, supplemented by the sounding of every whistle in the city and at the adjoining mines.

Next will come the big industrial parade, which will be formed at the corner of Fourth avenue and Pine street and in which fully 200 local business houses will be represented by floats. The police and fire department will be in the line of march, which will be headed by the Hibbing band. The second division will be led by Culver's drum corps of fifteen pieces from Duluth and there will be clown bands in the line of march besides the old-time calithumpians. Besides there is to be a big automobile section, in which it is expected fully 100 machines will be in line. Prizes will be given for the best industrial float, for the best appearing and largest organization, for the best appearing automobile and for the best decorated business house along the line of march.

Duluthian Will Speak.

At 10 o'clock City Comptroller W. S. McCormick of Duluth will deliver the address of the day at the baseball park, there will be music by the Hibbing male quartette and the Finnish Choral society, and the audience will join in singing "America."

Directly after this, there will be a free distribution of ice cream, lemonade and candy to the children. At 11 o'clock there will be a program of street sports on Pine street and Third avenue and in the afternoon there will be a program of sports for boys and girls at the Jefferson and Washington school grounds and the village playgrounds.

At 3 o'clock the ball game between Hibbing and Virginia will be called. It should be one of the best of the season. Both teams leave as soon as it is concluded for Virginia, where an evening game will be played. The display of fireworks will be fired at 8:30 on the south end of Third avenue and will be the most elaborate ever seen in Hibbing. A dance by Company M at the armory will conclude the day.

Besides the special program, there is a carnival company in town, and at the moving picture and vaudeville houses there are double bills and frequent shows for the benefit of the Fourth of July crowds.

Virginia, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — Miss Julia Mahoney, a teacher in this city, and Thomas Madden, vice president and range manager of the Aerial Cutlery company of Duluth, were married this morning at Our Lady of Lourdes church by Rev. Father W. J. Powers. Dan Mahoney gave the bride away. The bride's maid was Miss Nellie Mahoney and the best man was Joseph Madden. The couple left on a Western trip for a month. MAKES OFFER FOR THE PLANTS

Virginia, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another move in the effort the city is making to own its own electric light and water plants was taken by the council last night when a resolution was passed tendering $443,736.89 to the Virginia Electric Power and Water company for its plants. This is deemed to be an amount representing the physical value of the plant plus 7 per cent.

The city hired some experts to pass on the valuation of the plants several months ago, and they fixed them at $550,000, but these figures were considered too high and local people made another valuation which it is claimed is nearer the proper amount.

The company has thirty days in which to accept or reject the offer. If the offer is rejected the city will proceed to acquire the plants by condemnation proceedings or may go ahead and build independent plants.

MELLIN'S HAS LARGEST SALE

"When my baby was three weeks old I was taken with Typhoid Fever and had to raise him on the bottle. We tried many kinds of food. He was so weak he could not stand milk. He was nothing but a skeleton when he was born and weighed ten and one-half pounds when three months old. We went to a large drug store and asked what kind of baby food they sold the most of, and they told us Mellin's Food. I have used it ten weeks and now my baby weighs 23 pounds. He could not have lived much longer without Mellin's Food, and it was the only thing that agreed with him."

He has been urged to come by the members of the local board but could not arrange his affairs until now so that he could visit here. He comes from St. Ignace, Mich., having been in the East, and will leave here on Monday night for Kansas City.

The Duluth board of public welfare will endeavor to arrange a public meeting for Monday night at which Mr. Billikopf may be heard. It is believed that his visit to the city will result in the members of the local board and other citizens interested in the work receiving from him valuable suggestions as to what may be done in public welfare work.

Mr. Billikopf is a member of the Kansas City board of public welfare and has made a study of the work to such an extent that his services as adviser are sought in most of the cities of the United States. Former Mayor Cullen met him at a national municipal meeting a few years ago, and declares that the Kansas City man's address at that time was the best of the gathering, and so pregnant with ideas and suggestions that he was consulted personally by a majority of municipal officers in attendance and was very much the center of attention.

Further arrangements will be announced later.

COMET LIGHT IS VARIABLE.

Los Angeles Tribune: Comets are capricious things, not only in their sudden and for the most part unexpected appearances, but also because they vary so greatly from time to time.

The light of a comet consists of two parts, reflected sunlight and the light from the comet itself. If the light were only of the former kind, it would be an easy matter to predict the brightness of a comet at any time. The matter would resolve itself merely into the question of its distance from the sun, the smaller this distance the brighter the comet. But the matter is not so simple as this, for the intrinsic light of the comet must be taken into consideration, and this is subject to great varians.

The Light Varies.

There are instances on record where, for a few hours, a comet suddenly became from six to eight times as bright as it had been, and then, just as suddenly, it dropped back to its normal brilliancy. This intrinsic light of the comet is due to luminous gases and vapors which are given off by the comet itself. These are usually compounds of carbon with nitrogen or oxygen, but at times metallic vapors make their appearance. Thus, the fine comet so well seen in California just after sunset in January, 1910, showed brilliant masses of sodium vapor. Other comets have given evidence of magnesium and possibly iron.

Electricity in the Sun.

The cause of the luminosity of these gases and vapors is somewhat obscure, but, from all the evidence available, it seems safe to assume it due to solar influence. It is known that intensely hot bodies give off electrified particles which fly away with tremendous velocities. It is also known that there are electrified particles in the sun. If, then, some of these electrified particles fly away from the sun and strike the comet they cause electric discharges in the latter and it is these discharges which render the gases luminous.

The various solar activities with which we are acquainted are not constant and it is inferred, therefore, that the emission of electrified particles by the sun is subject to similar variations. Fluctuations of this nature would explain the peculiar variations so often noted in the light of these celestial vagabonds, the comets.

SECOND VICTIM OF FIRE CALLED

Nick Agvaba, Who Burned in French Location Fire, Dies.

Hibbing, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Agvaba died yesterday at a local hospital, making the second victim of last week's fire at the French location when Mike Terrich was burned to death, and several were injured in jumping. Six dwellings were burned.

Agvaba was a single man about 30 years old and had been employed at the Mahoning mine. Funeral services were conducted this afternoon.

Insanity Plaint.

The disaster has had the effect of calling attention to the conditions under which the people at the French location live. It has long been noticeable for its filth and squalor. Since the fire of the year there have been three deaths there from tuberculosis and a murder trial has just been disposed of in the district court in which all the principals were residents of the French location. Whole families live in ill-ventilated, poorly furnished shacks reeking with filth and vermin and the fact that pigs and chickens sometimes live with the family has several times been verified. Most of the people at the location are squatting on state land and an effort will be made to compel them to comply with the fundamentals of sanitary and decent living or seek new homes, as the location is directly at the entrance to the fair grounds and the presence there of sore to Hibbing people is not to be desired.

It is outside the village limits.

HIBBING PLANS BIG CELEBRATION

All Previous Fourth of July Doings on Range to Be Eclipsed.

Hibbing Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing's Fourth of July celebration tomorrow, with favorable weather, will present one of the most varied and elaborate programs ever given on the Mesabi range on a similar occasion. The police and fire department will be in the line of march, which will be headed by the Hibbing band. The second division of the parade will be composed of fifteen pieces from Buhl, and there will be clown bands in the line of march besides the old-time calithumpians. Besides there is to be a big automobile section in which it is expected fully 100 machines will be in line. Prizes will be given for the best industrial float, for the best appearing automobile and for the best appearing commercial and for the best decorated business house along the line of march.

MAKES OFFER FOR THE PLANTS

Virginia, Minn., July 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another move in the effort the city is making to own its own electric light and water plants was taken by the council last night when a resolution was passed tendering $443,736.89 to the Virginia Electric Power and Water company for its plants. This is deemed to be an amount representing the physical value of the plant plus 7 per cent.

The city hired some experts to pass on the valuation of the plants several months ago, and they fixed them at $570,000, but these figures were considered too high and local people made another valuation which it is claimed is nearer the proper amount.

The company has thirty days in which to accept or reject the offer. If the offer is rejected the city will proceed to acquire the plants by condemnation proceedings or may go ahead and build independent plants.

A. Landis. We feel that our children have never had a more efficient teacher and we all desire to have Mr. Landis remain as our school principal for another year."

MELLIN'S HAS LARGEST SALE

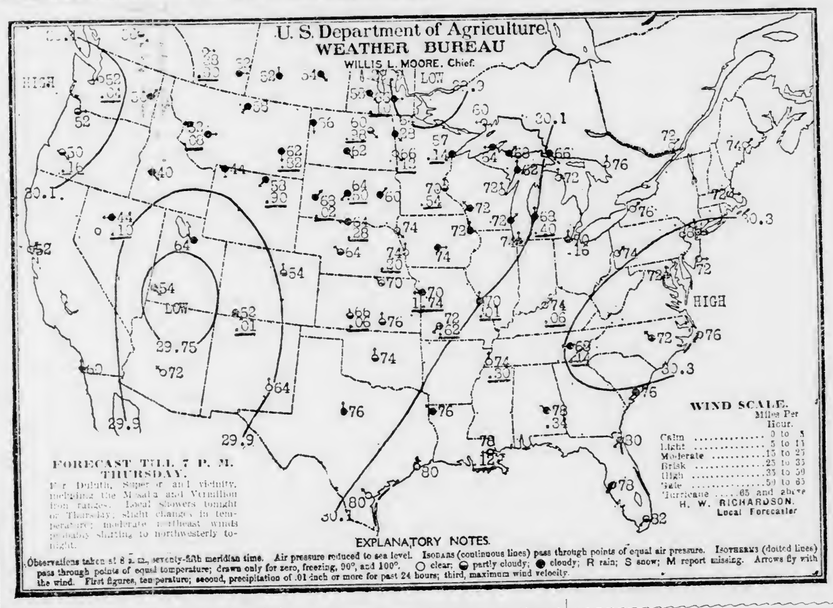

"When my baby was three weeks old I was taken with Typhoid Fever and had to raise him on the bottle. We tried many kinds of food. He was so weak he could not stand milk. He was nothing but a skeleton when he was born and weighed ten and one-half pounds when three months old. We went to a large drug store and asked what kind of baby food they sold the most of, and they told us Mellin's Food. I have used it ten weeks and now my baby weighs 23 pounds. He could not have lived much longer without Mellin's Food, and it was the only thing that agreed with him."

DATES SET FOR DULUTH VISIT

Kansas City Social Worker Will Arrive Here Saturday.

John Stone Pardee, secretary of the board of public welfare has received a telegram from Jacob Billikopf of Kansas City, a recognized authority in the work of public welfare boards, that he will be here on Saturday, Sunday and Monday to look over Duluth. He has been urged to come by the members of the local board but could not arrange his affairs until now so that he could visit here. He comes from St. Ignace, Mich., having been in the East, and will leave here on Monday night for Kansas City.

The Duluth board of public welfare will endeavor to arrange a public meeting for Monday night at which Mr. Billikopf may be heard. It is believed that his visit to the city will result in the members of the local board and other citizens interested in the work receiving from him valuable suggestions as to what may be done in public welfare work.

Mr. Billikopf is a member of the Kansas City board of public welfare and has made a study of the work to such an extent that his services as adviser are sought in most of the cities of the United States. Former Mayor Cullen met him at a national municipal meeting a few years ago, and declares that the Kansas City man's address at that time was the best of the gathering, and so pregnant with ideas and suggestions that he was consulted personally by a majority of municipal officers in attendance and was very much the center of attention.

Further arrangements will be announced later.

The cause of the luminosity of these gases and vapors is somewhat obscure, but, from all the evidence available, it seems safe to assume it due to solar influence. It is known that intensely hot bodies give off electrified particles which fly away with tremendous velocities. It is also known that there are electrified particles in the sun. If, then, some of these electrified particles fly away from the sun and strike the comet they cause electric discharges in the latter and it is these discharges which render the gases luminous.

The various solar activities with which we are acquainted are not constant and it is inferred, therefore, that the emission of electrified particles by the sun is subject to similar variations. Fluctuations of this nature would explain the peculiar variations so often noted in the light of these celestial vagabonds, the comets.

SEPTEMBER WHEAT SAGS

Beared By Continued Good Weather Reports—July Is Higher.

Large Arrivals of Flaxseed Cause New Downward Movement.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 3.—While July wheat gained a little today, September lost more than that gain. Good weather reports beared September, but July was held up by present short supplies of wheat, small receipts and by Bradstreet's report of a large decrease in the world's visible supply. Duluth July wheat closed ¼c higher but September closed at a decline of ⅞c. Cash wheat closed a cent over the July price. Durum closed 2½c off and oats ½c off. Rye and barley closed unchanged. Duluth July flaxseed closed 3¼c down, September 5c down and October 4c down.

The trend of wheat prices on the North American markets during the morning was clearly downward. This was especially true of the September option, as that was most readily affected by the bear'sh crop news of the American Northwest and the Canadian West. The July option, on the other hand, was stiffened to some extent by the smallness of the American primary receipts. The movement of the rainy weather conditions eastward into the drouth-threatened regions of the spring wheat country on both sides of the Canadian boundary line was showed by the weather map to have continued through the past twenty-four hours, and dispatches from the regions that have long needed rain told the same story of timely relief and vastly improved prospects.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.10⅜ bid, opened today with the same quotations, and at noon was at $1.10⅜ asked. Duluth September, which closed yesterday at $1.05⅝ asked, opened today at $1.05⅝ asked and at noon was at $1.04⅜ asked. Minneapolis July was a little higher at noon while September was down. Chicago July was unchanged while September was off. At Winnipeg both options were off.

Liverpool wheat today closed ¼d lower to ¼d higher. News that the relieving rains in Canada were only partial yesterday, and unfavorable weather in the United Kingdom and Russia were the chief bullish factors.

Harvest Again Stimps.

Owing to a large movement of flaxseed on the Duluth market, the price sagged considerably this morning. Farmers and country elevators are still rushing their flax to the selling places to turn it into money. Seeding is done, the prospects for a great yield are brilliant and there is no reason for holding the seed now. The prospect of a decline in price has been causing quite a movement from the country, though all signs point to the conclusion that there is not a great deal of the seed there. Duluth July at noon today was 2¾c off at $2.18 asked, September 4½c off at $2 bid, and October 3½c off at $1.89½ asked. There were 17 cars on the track for inspection.

Car receipts at Minneapolis and Winnipeg were also large, for the same reasons, Minneapolis reporting 42 cars and Winnipeg 71. Winnipeg July flax at noon today was quoted at $1.98½ asked. Buenos Ayres July last night was up at $1.79¾. London July today closed 1¾c off at $2.23.

The Minneapolis Commercial West says: "There is a fair demand for linseed oil for prompt shipment. Consumption throughout the country is undoubtedly on a fairly large scale at the present time, and it seems inevitable that supplies of flaxseed and linseed oil in every position will be entirely exhausted before there is new crop oil on the market. Such a situation as this will of course keep the old crop flaxseed at a very high price compared with the new crop futures.

"Receipts of haxseed in Minneapolis since the beginning of this crop season have now amounted to 7,820,000 bu, compared with 5,300,000 bu a year ago."

* * *

Le Count wired from Bradley, S. D.: "There were more showers today and it is threatening rain. Enough rain has fallen here to mature early wheat and oats. Late wheat and oats have had too little rain. The oat situation in the Dakotas is exactly the same as early wheat. Early wheat is heading and looking fine. All crops east of the James river are above average, but late fields must have more moisture in order to mature properly. The last week has been favorable for corn and the crop has made splendid progress. Some stand is poor and a little late, but the crop is about average."

* * *

Snow's report of the winter wheat condition is 75.2; spring wheat, 91.4. The indicated crop on the new basis of figuring is: Winter wheat, 365,000,000 bu; spring wheat, 276,000,000 bu. On the old basis of figuring it is: Winter, 365,000,000 bu; spring, 303,000,000 bu.

* * *

John Inglis wired from Grand Forks, N. D.: "Rain seems to have extended over a large area and has put a different complexion on the wheat fields. It is still threatening, cloudy and cooler."

* * *

Minneapolis wired today that the demand for cash wheat was very keen and that No. 2 northern was commanding a cent over July. This was a very stiff price. Heretofore No. 2 northern at Minneapolis has been selling at the July price to half a cent under.

T. W. Lewis wired from Minneapolis: "I motored 160 miles on Tuesday from Aberdeen in Brown county, through Spink, Beadle, Clark and Codington to Watertown. This section of South Dakota has the largest acreage in the state and comprises about 1,000,000 acres. Brown county and those counties east of it have not suffered severely, while in Spink, Beadle, Clark, etc., the damage is more extensive. The wheat is nearly all headed and in the last named counties heat caught much of it just in the bloom, causing as much as half of the head to turn white in a few fields, but as a rule only the top of the head is hurt in this manner. Such damage cannot be remedied, but the bulk is in condition to be greatly improved by cool weather and rains, which seem to have been general over the north and west sections of the state yesterday. From all I could hear the counties west of Brown and Spink have been damaged severely and the yield will be small per acre. Had the hot weather continued for a few days longer, the damage would have been very heavy. As it is the situation is temporarily saved, but a retrun of hot weather at once is going to be feared. Given a week or ten days of moderate temperatures and I believe this section of South Dakota can raise an average crop."

It will be noticed by the tables of grain prices on this page that there has been a large slump in the price of durum wheat: July being 2½c down and September 5½c down. This is not so significant as one might suppose who did not know that the trading in durum was extremely narrow, very little changing hands. When the market is very narrow, it does not take much to produce violent and sensational-appearing fluctuations.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Market Opens Strong and Higher, But Has Violent Reaction.

Gains Turned to Losses and Especial Weakness in Favorites.

New York, July 3.—Strength was shown by stocks at the opening today. The feature was steel in a block of 5,000 shares at 72⅜@72½, a maximum 1-point gain. Advances of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Reading, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and National Lead.

Leading stocks fell back in the first hour, some going under yesterday's close, but the advance held elsewhere, with especial strength in the Hill stocks and Louisville & Nashville.

Following the conclusion of the second of the great party conventions, the market today opened strong. Gains of 1 to 2 points were registered by many securities with pronounced strength in Steel, Union Pacific, Reading, the Hill issues and Brooklyn Transit. By midday, however, the market reacted almost violently, gains quickly turning to losses with especial weakness in the speculative favorites.

Bonds were heavy.

The market closed irregular. The grangers followed the lead of the Hill issues in the last hour and Ontario & Western rose over its prices of last week, when the dividend was suspended. The leaders and American Tobacco continued under pressure.

We are not asking you to go miles into the country, as our tracts are within twenty-four blocks of the heart of the city and the nearest only four blocks from car line and schoolhouse, one block from city water, and graded streets with cement walks up to the property. FORTY PASSENGERS KILLED AND FIFTY INJURED

MEXICAN REBELS ARE DRIVEN TO NORTH END OF MOUNTAIN PASSES

Great Showing Made By Federals in First Day's Fighting.

Entrance to Bachimba Canyon and Several High Positions Gained.

Battlefield Strewn With Dead and Wounded on Both Sides.

REBELS RETREATING.

Gen. Orozco's Rebel Headquarters, Mapula, Mex., July 4.—Under cover of darkness the entire rebel army withdrew early today from Bachimba, a distance of twenty-five miles north of Mapuin, which is fifteen miles below the city of Chihuahua.

The rebels admit their defeat, attributing it to a lack of ammunition. The whole rebel army will retreat toward the American border, abandoning the city of Chihuahua to the federals.

Gen. Orozco gave the order to retreat after his troops had been subjected to the heaviest fire they have yet experienced. The rebel commander and a large part of his force will return to the city of Chihuahua today, but only for a temporary halt.

At Gen. Huerta's Federal Headquarters, Bachimba Station, Mex., July 4.—The semi-circular battle line of government troops at daybreak today renewed the attack on the rebels for possession of Bachimba canyon, the entrance to which, for a distance of a mile, together with several high positions, was gained by the federals in the opening of hostilities yesterday. Twenty-six cannon and sixteen machine guns distributed on the east and west sides of mountain passes here opened fire on the rebels simultaneously. The rebel artillery in comparison seemed defective and erratic.

Losses in the first day's fighting at parently were great, as today the battlefield was strewn with the dead and wounded on both sides. The rebels had clung tenaciously to their positions, but the combined assaults of infantry and cavalry, supported by the deadly fire of the artillery, had forced them to yield strategic hills and ranges overlooking the canyon. The federal troops carried out orders with mathematical precision. Conspicuous in the fighting besides Gen. Huerta as the commander-in-chief were his lieutenants general, Rabago and Telle, as well as Raoul Madero, a brother of President Madero.

"The government forces made a great showing today," said Gen. Huerta, as he moved his box-car tele-

GARLIC CURE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. William C. Minchin of Dublin Writes Book on Its Use.

Dublin, July 4. — Dr. William C. Minchin of Dublin has just written a book on the use of garlic in consumption that is attracting wide interest.

Though many prominent medical men bear out Dr. Minchin's assertions, including Prof. Poore of University College hospital, London, and Prof. Cavazzani of Vienna university, the book has aroused considerable opposition in the profession.

This fact does not, however, disturb the author, in view of the fact that he remembers how the medical faculty scoffed at Dr. Bodington and Dr. Henry MacCormac of Belfast when they first advocated the open air treatment for tuberculosis patients.

Dr. Minchin traces the causes and symptoms of "the white plague" and boldly declares the garlic treatment is not only of value in pulmonary cases after other treatments have failed, but in all tubercular affections of the hands, feet or other accessible parts of the body. He gives instances of cases where amputation was recommended, but where the use of allyl sulphite (garlic) effected a complete cure on being tried as a last resort.

The garlic treatment has the advantages of being cheap and safe in the patient's own home, for Dr. Minchin declares the allyl sulphide, being a powerful germicide, will effectually prevent the spread of infection to others.

New York, July 4.—Samuel Untermeyer, the prominent New York corporation lawyer, sailed on the Caronia for England. He has been the attorney in many famous cases, including the famous Dodge-Morse controversy, the reorganization of the New York Shipbuilding company, the Hyde-Alexander Equitable insurance fight, and many others. He was born March 2, 1858, at Lynchburg, Va.

COMMISSION DISTURBED

Duluth Grain Rate Decision Causes Statement By State Board.

Intimates That the Railroads May Ask for Some Modification.

St. Paul, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.) — Charging that if the rates authorized by the interstate commerce commission as a result of the complaint of the Duluth board of trade are made effective, the entire parity of state rates will be overturned, the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission today gave out a statement, intimating that when the railroads realize the effect of the change, they will ask for a modification of the order.

The statement of the railroad commission follows:

"In opinion No. 1930 of the interstate commerce commission, received yesterday by the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission, a decision is handed down in the case of the Duluth board of trade, Superior Commercial club and the chamber of commerce of Milwaukee, which, if carried out as it is at present understood, will have a widespread effect on the grain trade of this state.

"The lines directly interested have not yet had time to fully analyze the decision, but if the main points of the case are correctly understood, it will mean the overturning of the parity of rates between the various primary markets that has been in effect for years.

Chief Changes Made.

"The main points of the decision are that the rates to Duluth from Willmar and points south thereof on the Great Northern railway as far as Sioux City, Iowa and Huron and Yankton, S. D., shall not exceed by more than 3 cents the rate to Minneapolis, whereas, under the present rate adjustment, the difference at the present time is 3 cents at some points and 4 cents at others. In addition to this, it is ordered that rates to Duluth from points on the Soo Line, Chicago & Northwestern, Omaha and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul shall in no case exceed the rates from the same points to Minneapolis by more than 4 cents, whereas the present rates are founded on a difference of 5 cents.

"When the decision has been thoroughly canvassed by the interested carriers it is likely that some modification may be asked for."

Wife Testifies Her Sister Was Embraced By Husband.

Columbus, Ohio, July 4.—"I saw him kiss my sister in our dining room once," said Mrs. Clara B. Myers, in the trial of her divorce case here, "and she carried the mark on her check for a week."

"Did he always kiss so hard?" inquired her lawyer. "Before we were married he did," she said. "But after our marriage he hardly ever kissed me at all." Orgie B. Myers, the husband, admitted that he might have kissed his sister-in-law "in fun," but not so ardently as to leave a mark.

OSBORN TO RUN AGAIN

Michigan Governor Will Head Progressive Ticket at August Primaries.

Third Party Launched in Indiana and Roosevelt's Name Cheered.

Lansing, Mich., July 4.—At a conference held late yesterday in the executive office, attended by Governor Chase S. Osborn, Senator William Alden Smith, Attorney General Kuhn and others, it was decided that they will not lend themselves to a third party in Michigan this year.

The third party ticket proposition was discussed from every angle. The consensus of opinion was that no third party would be formed, but that the Progressive Republicans would fight out the battle in the coming state convention. The plan is to put a straight Progressive Republican ticket from governor down in the field for the fall elections. It is said Governor Osborn, although he has heretofore announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election, will head the ticket at the August primaries.

Third Party for Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 4.—A third political party was launched in Indiana yesterday, when Progressive Republicans called from all over the state by Edwin M. Lee, former Republican state chairman, adopted resolutions condemning the Chicago convention, and declaring they would not abide by its acts. Provision was made for tickets in every county, as well as a state ticket. During the speeches Theodore Roosevelt's name frequently brought forth cheers.

The conference effected a temporary organization by electing Edwin M. Lee state chairman. Mr. Lee was au-

REGRETTED HE FAILED TO KILL

Would-Be Assassin at Hong Kong Wanted to Kill Governor.

Hong Kong, July 4. — The attempted assassination yesterday of Sir Francis Henry May, the newly appointed governor of Hong Kong, is regarded as possessing some political significance. The would-be murderer was formerly a hospital dispenser in this city. He said today that he regretted he had missed because he wanted to kill the governor, because the colonial government of Hong Kong had stopped the circulation of Chinese copper coins on British territory, and he interpreted this action as directed against China.

TOMB NOISY COMPARED TO DULUTH

Not a Firecracker Disturbs Peaceful Calm of Early Morning.

Not a Sleeper Is Jarred From His Bed By Bombs.

Not a Boy Nurses Maimed Hand; Not a Dog Worried.

Not a bomb is heard, not an urchin's gloat,
Not a dog with his face looking worried;
Not a boy dared discharge a farewell shot
O'er the grave where the Old Fourth is buried.
—After "The Burial of Sir John Moore"
—A long time after.

Much excitement was indulged in by many this morning in the way of sleeping late.

Elaborate plans for this unusual stunt were generally made all over Duluth last night. This morning, owing to the wisdom and foresight of the city council as expressed in its ordinance placing a muffler on the Fourth of July exhaust, the sleeper was not jarred out of his bed and almost out of his mind by a succession of severe explosions under his bedroom window. But just because they had the time and the inclination to sleep late this morning, many persisted in waking up and remaining awake at the time when it is usual for them to climb out on work-aday days—darn the luck!

Those who did not sleep this morning went out to hear a garden or get out to town, or to some picnic ground. Wives and best girls were responsible for a good many yawns and imprecations this morning because the male of the species had promised to lug a basket for them to some place where the "skeeters" and sand are plentiful.

With this can tied to the firecracker industry, many a small boy heartily wished himself down around Chihuahua, Mex., where fireworks are going on ad lib, the federals and rebels endeavoring to clean up each other with greater number remained closed all day. Shopping was generally done last night. So far as public offices are concerned, there is nothing doing—all are closed tight as a drum.

The four city playgrounds are scenes of animation, for on them games, con-

NATIONAL COMMITTEE IS VISITING GOVERNOR WILSON AT SEA G[IRT]

Minnesota Historical Society ST PAUL Minn

Planning of the Democratic Campaign Will Likely Be Discussed.

New Head for National Committee Also to Be Selected.

Nominee Waves the Olive Branch Towards Former Senator Smith.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 4.—Governor Wilson did not get up until 9 o'clock today, for he did not retire until after midnight, finishing his reading of the Democratic national platform.

Dean and Mrs. Henry B. Fine of Princeton and family spent the night at the governor's cottage and were accompanied to the station by the governor when they departed today.

The national committee is expected early this afternoon and will be received in the governor's tent on the lawn. Upon the visit of the committee awaits the planning of the Democratic campaign. Until the committee's arrival Governor Wilson will say no word of the form which he expects the line of battle to take.

Olive Branch to Smith.

The governor waved the olive branch last night in the direction of Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., by expressing a wish that Mr. Smith visit him here next Monday with the Wilson men of New Jersey's delegation to Baltimore. Governor Wilson includes James R. Nugent, Mr. Smith's friend and lieutenant, also in the invitation.

When informed that Mr. Nugent was reported to have given out an interview declaring he would support the nominee, Governor Wilson expressed a keen desire to see it and "get acquainted with Mr. Nugent again."

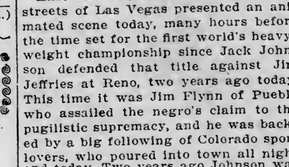

Governor Wilson was given little time to devote to his personal affairs, or his family yesterday. From early morning his summer home was besieged with visitors, thousands of them.

Regiments of men, women and children on foot trod down the shrubbery, camped on his porch, climbed on the brass cannon in front of his residence and repeated in the hand-shaking, until the governor's right arm was sore and stiff.

But the governor did not show that he minded. He had a smile for each newcomer and a hand-clasp even for the smallest girls and the boys who won't vote for a dozen years or more. When they would not come in, the gov-

AWAITING THE FIGHT

Las Vegas Crowded With Spectators for the Johnson-Flynn Battle.

Johnson's Own Money, at 2 to 1 on Himself, Not Taken.

East Las Vegas, N. M., July 4.—The streets of Las Vegas presented an animated scene today, many hours before the time set for the first world's heavyweight championship since Jack Johnson defended that title against Jim Jeffries at Reno, two years ago today. This time it was Jim Flynn of Pueblo who assailed the negro's claim to the pugilistic supremacy, and he was backed by a big following of Colorado sport lovers, who poured into town all night and today. Two years ago Johnson was a short-ender in the betting. Jeffries, then unbeaten, but retired, was a 10 to 7 favorite. Today it was all the other way. Johnson's own money, offered at 2 to 1 on himself, found no takers.

Despite the one-sided look of the betting commissioners' boards, there appeared to be a wide interest in the fight. A great many fight followers had gathered in this city to witness the match and Las Vegas looked in a small way today much as Reno did two years ago. The rattle and clink of roulette wheels, the droning voices of the faro dealers, were missing, but the same restless, foot-weary crowd surged back and forth all morning along the narrow sidewalks.

No Feeling of Uncertainty.

The crowds, the Fourth of July bunting here and there, and the cries of newsboys and hucksters left an air of excitement and anticipation, but the feeling of uncertainty and eager interest in the outcome which marked Fourth of July morning at Reno was absent. There were no heated debates

KAISER AND CZAR MEET IN BALTIC

German Emperor Receives Salutes of the Russian Warships.

Baltic Port, Russia, July 4.—The German emperor, accompanied by the imperial chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, and his third son, Prince Adalbert, arrived here today on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern escorted by the dreadnought cruiser Moltke, to meet the emperor of Russia, who, with the members of his family, Premier Kokovsoff and Foreign Minister Sasonoeff, wa sairead in waiting here.

A division of Russian torpedo boats, the Russian admiralty yacht Neva, with the German ambassador to Russia and the attaches of the German embassy at St. Petersburg, went out to meet the German emperor who, upon his arrival, received the salutes of the assembled Russian warships and was greeted with cheers by their crews, to which the sailors of the Moltke replied.

A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM.

BAD WRECK ON LACKAWANNA

Express Train Crashes Into Passenger Coaches Near Corning, N. Y.

Plunges Half Way Through the Rear Pullman Before Stopping.

Thirty-Four Bodies Are Already Recovered From the Debris.

Corning, N. Y., July 4.—Nearly forty passengers were killed and fifty injured today when an express train crashed into the west-bound Lackawanna passenger train No. 9, two miles east of this city.

The death list probably will run over forty. Thirty-four bodies had been taken from the debris at 9 o'clock this morning.

The work of identification progressed slowly. Among the first identified were:

ANTONIO NOVA. Caterat, N. J.

MRS. LILLIAN REYNOLDS, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WILLIAM A. ARMSTRONG, Hoboken, N. J.

MRS. LUCY SETTODUCATI, aged 60, New York city.

As soon as news of the accident spread, hundreds of automobiles dashed to the scene, blocking the roadways and interfering with the removal of the dead and injured. A detail of police was sent from this city to keep the roads open and to keep the crowds back from the wreckage.

Among the killed are several babies and young children.

Rear-End Collision.

The passenger train which runs from New York to Buffalo had been standing on the track a few minutes when the express train, which carried no passengers, struck it in the rear at full speed. The two day coaches attached to the rear of No. 9 were hurled down an embankment and the express plunged half way through the rear Pullman of the standing train before it came to a stop.

Most of the killed were passengers in the day coaches who were going home to spend the Fourth. F. W. Drake of Passaic, N. J., the Pullman conductor, said that four passengers were killed in the Pullman.

A score of physicians were on the scene and the injured were being brought to the Corning hospital.

A number of the injured are still pinned under the wreckage and their groans and shrieks can be clearly heard.

The bodies of the dead were laid on the top of the embankment along the tracks and at the roadside and covered with blankets from the Pullman.

Every undertaker in Corning was called to help care for the dead, but

THOUSANDS TO WITNESS RACES

Annual Regatta of Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association.

Davenport, Iowa, July 4.—Thousands of visitors arrived today for the fifth annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, which opens here this afternoon.

Conditions were ideal for racing, the water smooth, and no threat of a storm. Thousands of spectators lined the banks of the river, watching the speed boats tune up for the first event.

Cities in all parts of the Mississippi valley were represented. Fleets of boats from St. Paul, La Crosse, St. Louis and other river cities arrived this morning. Many lake boats from Chicago are here.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION

Toledo, Ohio, July 4. — A patriotic service, occupying the morning session, was the principal feature of the first day's session of the international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of the United States and Canada, which opened here today. Rev. Russell Conwell of Philadelphia delivered the address at this meeting.

The board of managers' report contained the recommendation that workers in various sections of the international field may undertake work independently of the international field committee as may seem necessary for the advancement of their specific needs, but this work need not interfere with the international fellowship.

The roar of a cannon broke the otherwise Sabbath stillness of the Fourth early this morning.

It wasn't a made-to-order cannon of the regulation kind, such as could have been purchased in local stores a couple of years ago, but a home-made affair. The contrivance was unusually clever, but operating it got its owner into trouble today.

The minature Gatling was made of a piece of lead pipe sunk in a rectangular chunk of concrete weighing about twenty pounds. Not only was it fitted out in the common way, but it was also fitted with electrical apparatus so that it could be discharged by the mere turning of a button. The load which it could carry would not be sufficient to sink a modern battleship, but nobody would especially desire to be within a foot or two of the muzzle when it was discharged.

The builder was Harold Armstrong. The detonations of his cannon reached the ears of a policeman who was several blocks away this morning and he placed him under arrest on a charge of violating the safe and sane Fourth of July ordinance, which prohibits the discharge of explosives of any kind as well as their sale.

Up to noon the young man was the only person who had been booked at headquarters. If the police station is any indication, and poorer condition vanes exist, the Fourth is extremely quiet. Not even celebrants who deem it necessary to consume abnormal quantities of intoxicat'ng liquors in order to properly commemorate any noteworthy event or anniversary are in evidence. A few who went too far in that direction yesterday or last night were in the grist this morning, but all of them were allowed to go, receiving suspended sentences after entering pleas of guilty. At the hospitals no accident cases were received this morning. About the only noise was that from toy pistols and revolvers, and they were not common.

* * *

Charles Smith, George Lewis, Margaret Timblin and Mabel Kelly were arrested in the West end early this morning on disorderly charges. They pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow afternoon. Bail in each case was fixed at $50.

* * *

Sam Apperson was brought into headquarters last evening by Patrolman Musolf on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. A woman, who claims to be his wife, caused his arrest. She claimed that he had been threatening to do her harm and the officer was sent to investigate. He went to the house in which they are stopping shortly after Apperson arrived and found him abusing the woman. When he saw the bluecoat Apperson whipped out a revolver which was lying on a table. The woman saw the policeman gather himself for a leap and shouted to him not to pay any attention to the gun. "I thought that he might do something like that," she said, "and I took the cartridges out to be sure that he wouldn't hurt anybody." Apperson pleaded guilty when he was brought into police court thi morning. The court desired a further report in the matter and continued the case until tomorrow for disposition. Bail was fixed at $100.

* * *

One man slipped through the grist easily this morning. It wasn't surprising. His name was "Greasy."

* * *

Stanley Novack was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny after a preliminary examination in police court yesterday afternoon. He is accused of having stolen a bicycle valued at $30 from Leo Behnke.

* * *

Charles Hanson and John Neva were gathered in by the police yesterday afternoon on a charge of gambling. They and a third man, who got away by virtue of a pair of fleet heels, were found indulging in a game of "penny-ante" on the lake shore. Both pleaded guilty to the allegations, but were allowed to go with suspended sentences.

* * *

No one has yet been able to learn which of the men at the headquarters fire station fired the shot which killed the cat which was owned by a man living across the street. Assistant Chief Wilson and Capt. Klock, the only two men at the hall who belong to the gun club, have been "joshed" considerably over the matter. They have also been caused considerable annoyance. Neither of them knew anything about the death of the feline until the day after its spirit had been started on its journey to another world.

FORTY PASSENGERS KILLED AND FIFTY INJURED

their wagons were first pressed into service to carry the injured to the hospital. Many of the injured also were taken away in automobiles.

Cause Not Determined.

As yet the cause of the wreck has not been determined. The place where it occurred was a straight stretch of track. So far as can be ascertained the engine of the express train had no warning that the passenger train was in its way. It is believed that when he first saw it he believed that the train was standing on a parallel track.

A special relief train from Elmira arrived later, bringing physicians and nurses.

Coroner Herbert B. Smith ordered all the bodies removed to this city and he is planning to hold an inquest today before the passengers, who will be the main witnesses in the case, have left the city.

The passenger train, which left New York at 8:45 last night, was heavily loaded and was drawn by two engines. It was running about half an hour late.

No Time to Post Flagman.

Information received by the company says that train No. 9 had stopped at Corning freight station to allow a freight train ahead to take a siding when the express train smashed into it almost at full speed. It is believed by officials here that it was impossible to get out a flagman in time to prevent the crash, the express having entered the block close behind the passenger train.

Nearly all the cars in both trains were wrecked, being thrown across the tracks. Telegraph wires were broken down to such an extent that full details cannot be obtained at this time.

Division Superintendent Cycek with a wrecking train carrying doctors from Binghamton, Waverly and Elmira hurried at once to the scene of the wreck.

Most of the injured were removed to Corning hospital. Nearly all the passengers boarded the train at Hoboken. Some got on at Scranton and were bound for Buffalo and points beyond.

Freight Train Was Stalled.

The passenger train had been brought to a standstill by a freight train which had become stalled. One of the two engines of the passenger train was uncoupled and attached to the freight train to put it on the siding. Conductor Staples of the passenger train says he caused the blocks to be set against any west-bound train.

"The train had been standing about twenty minutes when there came an awful crash which pitched me forward against the front of the dressing room," said A. D. Ingram of Chicago, one of the Pullman passengers. "A second later there seemed to come a second jolt, and then the engine of the express train came to a full stop.

"There was an awful grinding and crunching and then a great crash, as the day coaches were pitched into the ditch. Then came the screams of passengers who found themselves pinned in the wreckage."

Wires are Down.

Scranton, Pa., July 4.—Only meager details have been received at division headquarters of the Lackawanna railroad here of the wreck at Corning. According to this information twenty persons were killed and about twenty-five injured.

Telegraph wires are down and the company is making efforts to get further information.

TOURISTS FROM PORT ARTHUR

Steamer Forest City Pays First Visit to Duluth.

The steamer Forest City, a Canadian boat, arrived in the local port this morning from Port Arthur. She turned several hundred Canadian tourists loose in the city, when she docked at the Northern Pacific pier about 11 o'clock.

The boat has never been to Duluth before unless it has visited the local port under a different name. The United States immigration inspectors met her at the dock.

The tourists will spend the day in Duluth, returning to Port Arthur this evening.

WORK SUSPENDED ON LOCAL ORE DOCKS.

Today being a holiday, work was suspended at the Allouez, Missabe and Soo ore docks.

A few loads were finished early this morning, but by 10 o'clock work was at a standstill and employes of the different roads were spending the day to suit themselves.

Coming as it does in the middle of the week, the holiday will interfere with the week's shipping figures to a large extent.

The boats are bunched at the other end of the lakes, although several are at the local docks waiting to be loaded.

The first of the week a bunching of boats is expected in the Duluth-Superior harbor, but the Great Northern is hoping for delivery on its new equipment daily and if it comes in time the boats will not lose a great deal of time.

BOATS DECORATED IN HONOR OF HOLIDAY.

The steamers Gopher and Marigold, both government boats, were gaily bedecked with flags today.

All the boats in the harbor were decorated to some extent, but the two government boats' decorations were most elaborate of all.

The Gopher is the local naval militia boat and the Marigold is the supply boat for the lighthouses on Lake Superior. She arrived in the local port yesterday.

The Duluth-Superior ferry boats were decorated with flags and a large number of gaily decorated gasoline yachts started up the river this morning.

JUNE BROKE RECORD FOR ORE SHIPMENTS.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 4.—Ore shipments from Great Lakes ports last month exceeded those of any other month in the history of lake transportation. The movement amounted to 7,567,555 tons, exceeding that of the banner month of 1910, which was the banner year, by 250,000 tons. The total shipments this year to July were 13,690,671 tons. In 1910 the movement was 14,918,250 tons to July.

WEDDING TRADITIONS.

New York World: Here are a few of the traditions—or superstitions—about bridal costumes:

A wedding dress must not be tried on complete, so many brides wait for the last stitches until they are finally dressed for the wedding.

Lilacs are unlucky; orange blossoms symbolize hope, and laurel leaves triumph.

If you are married in white you have chosen right, and every woman knows that at her wedding she must wear "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue."

A bride's shoes must be put on without the aid of a shoe horn or the witches will prove unkind.

Green must never be worn at a wedding. Diamonds bring harmony between husband and wife. The wedding ring is of plain gold because it is the symbol of eternity.

The bride should toss her bouquet among the bridesmaids before she starts on the honeymoon. The one who catches it will be first married.

The bride must enter the church with the right foot first.

VICTORY FOR SETTLERS

Railroad Commission Orders Rates Reduced on Logging Road.

Also Reduces the Minimum Weight of Carload Lots.

The state railroad and warehouse commission late yesterday handed down at St. Paul a decision giving a victory to the settlers living along the Minneapolis & Rainy River railroad, commonly known as the "Itasca Logging road," and to the business men of Deer River, Marcell and Big Fork, in the fight for lower freight rates.

The decision gives the petitioners practically all they ask. The reductions in tariff rates range from 20 to 33 per cent. This means much for the development of that part of the state.

The petitioners in their complaint charged that the rates were such as to retard the commercial progress of that whole section of the state, because the farmers were unable to sell their timber at a profit. It was said that it was practically impossible to get out the logs as long as it had to be done at a loss.

The complaint charged that the railroad company was showing discrimination in favor of the Deer River Lumber company and the Itasca Lumber company, whose stockholders controlled the road.

The decision, it is said, will be of great benefit to the farmers in enabling them to ship their dairy products to the creamery at Grand Rapids and their pulpwood to the paper mill at the same city.

One very important part of the decision applies to carload lots. Heretofore the minimum carload has been 40,000 pounds. Most of the shippers have found it impossible to load so much on one car. The commission fixes the minimum on lumber, poles, posts and ties under 34 feet at 24,000 pounds; on grain, 24,000; coal, 30,000; livestock, 10,000 to 26,000, according to the length of the car.

Furthermore, the decision holds that the charge made of $1 per car for spotting is unlawful; also that in order for the railroad to perform properly its function as a common carrier it is necessary that it should install track scales for weighing freight in carload lots, and that within thirty days the company must put into service at Deer River, or some other convenient place, such scales.

The title of the case was George Herried against the Minneapolis & Rainy River Railroad company. Testimony was taken before the commission at Deer River last February. The argument took place at Minneapolis during the same month.

It developed in the course of the hearing that the public examiner, on re-examination of the books and accounts of the railroad company, had found omitted gross earnings in the sum of $400,000. This omission was in part the result of cut rates in favor of the lumber companies in whose favor the petitioners complained that the railroad was discriminating. The defendant company admitted the invalidity of these contracts, and the result was that $16,000 in back taxes was paid to the state.

graph office into Bachimba station at 10 o'clock last night, a place only the previous day held by the rebels. Two bomb-throwing machines and several prisoners were captured from the rebels.

Report to Madero.

Last night, Gen. Huerta reported to President Madero as follows:

"At 9 a. m. today we began the battle around Bachimba. The fighting lasted until 5:30 p. m. The engagement has been a great day for the federal army, since the division under my command has obtained a great victory. Tomorrow I shall advance farther, using all possible precaution as to the railway track which is full of mines. I have all of the more important situations.

"Rebels have selected for their last stand the town. At this moment one of the brigades of cavalry in the vanguard is engaged with the enemy. We have captured three mortars and some prisoners, and also have some loss to regret. I will inform you later of their number, as the division is not yet together. Up to date, we have extracted eight or nine mines planted by the enemy."

From the Rebel Side.

Rebel Front, Bachimba, Mex., July 4.—In the heart of the mountains of Northern Mexico, where Bachimba canyon, a natural fortress, controls the entrance to the city of Chihuahua, forty miles north, was begun yesterday what may prove to be the last great battle of the Mexican revolution.

During six hours of brisk fighting between 5,000 rebels under Gen. Pasqual Orozco, and an almost equal number of government troops under Gen. Victoriano Huerta, no great advantage was gained by either side, indications being that if the rebel ammunition holds out, the issue will not be decided for several days. A federal victory means the end of organized revolution.

Col. Francisco Castaneda, chief of Orozco's staff, distinguished himself during the fighting by leading a column that thwarted a federal assault on the northwest. He had hardly recovered from his wounds received in a collision of troop trains ten days ago.

For five weeks the contending armies had been separated by a series of burned bridges and mangled trackage, destroyed by the rebels, as they retreated north aftetr the battle of Rellano. Slowly the government commander had repaired 150 miles of railroad, and several big bridges on the main central railroad, finally bringing his artillery to Bachimba, where, in the meantime, the rebels had securely entrenched themselves.

Guns Brought Into Place.

Owing to the rugged topography which furnished the opening scene of the battle, an assault in front of Bachimba was early seen to be impossible, and the government commander consequently brought his guns into place. On the east and west side of the canyon which winds north and south for a distance of three miles, perpendicular walls of rock, with occasional ledges guarding both sides of the canyon, and prohobiting a frontal attack.

Leaving a small force at the entrance to the canyon, to guard troop trains, the federals moved to the right and left of the pass and mingled a heavy artillery bombardment with the steady fire of infantry and cavalry. In defense, the rebels had placed the cannon at right angles to Bachimba pass, protected by large columns of infantry. As the fighting progressed, there were desperate sallies of federal cavalry through the sharp gaps which cut through the canyon on many places, but the rebels managed to check each attempt. The federal shelling did little damage in the rebel camp.

RED CROSS GIVES HOPE

Tries to Get Aid for Him and Family From Steamship Company.

The Red Cross Relief committee in New York was most generous in its treatment of Nikola Lulich of Virginia, Minn., a survivor of the Titanic disaster.

Lulich, since his rescue from the Titanic, on which he was coming to America from Europe, has been a nervous wreck. His nervous system was so shattered that he has been utterly unable to do any work and in fact his hands and limbs twitched and shook as though he were afflicted with palsy. After reaching Virginia and finding that he could do no work, he returned to New York in an effort to have the steamship company do something for him. He was aided by W. Frank Persons of the Red Cross Emergency Relief committee there, who did everything he could to have the steamship company aid the afflicted man.

The company officers said that they are doing nothing just yet, but offered to furnish Mr. Lulich with free transportation back to Austria or transportation to America for his wife and four children, who are still in Perucib, state of Croatia, Austria. Mr. Lulich says that if he does not recover in a few months he will go back, but if he does, he will bring his family here. In the meantime the Red Cross Relief committee has furnished him relief funds, and for this he feels especially grateful for he is unable to earn anything for himself and family. The committee furnished him $150 for his personal use and $100 for his family; and besides that will give Lulich $50 a month for five months in order to give him a chance to rest and recover his health.

Mr. Lulich says that it is impossible for him to express his gratitude for what Mr. Persons and the committee have done for him. Instead of leaving him in despair they have given him encouragement and a chance to get well.

New Train Service.

St. Louis, Mo., July 4.—Traffic arrangements by which fast passenger trains will be operated between Kansas City, Omaha, Sioux City and St. Paul, have been completed by the Missouri Pacific, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Omaha lines. The new service will be effective next Monday.

LOST APPETITE AND HOPE

Mrs. Rosa Boyer.

Mrs. Rosa Boyer, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., writes: "If any one has reason to praise Peruna it is surely myself.

"Last spring I became so run down from the serious effects of a lingering cold, that several complications united in pulling me down. I could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit.

"I finally tried Peruna and it did wonders for me. In two weeks I was like another person, and in a month I felt better than I ever had before.

"I thank Peruna for new life and strength. I send you two pictures, so you can see what Peruna has done for me."

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Unknown Man Not Injured; Woman Driver Badly Frightened.

After knocking down a man, a woman who was making the turn on Fifth avenue west and Superior street last evening in an automobile, jumped out and boarded a street car.

Outside a few bruises and some soiled clothing the man was unhurt, but the woman evidently was too excited to wait to find out how bad the injuries were.

She left the car standing in front of the Spalding hotel and it was later taken away by a chauffeur.

Tests have shown that the aid in the crowded sleeping quarters of modern warships is purer than in barracks of average residences ashore.

The coroner's report shows 2,483 deaths from violence last year in New York city. They occurred chiefly in localities where the population is congested.

A NOTED DOCTOR SAYS,

Everyone should use some little antiseptic powder in the shoes. Confining the feet in shoes, is in itself unnatural and causes a moist or smarting condition. People of refinement now use daily, Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, and would as soon go without a dentifrice as without the use of Allen's Foot-Ease.

NICKOLICH MAY RETURN

Alleged Absconder Writes That He Is Coming Back to America.

Has Money Belonging to Three Estates and Two Wards.

V. D. Nickolich, the Montenegrin, who is believed to have abscounded with about $4,000 trust money belonging to three estates in the probate court and two guardianship accounts, has written from Montenegro to a friend in Duluth that he will return about July 15. The letter is thought to be a ruse.

Nickolich has been missing for about two months. He was guardian for a minor of his own nativity, for an insane man at Fergus Falls and administrator in the estates of Philip Vukumirocvich, Zivko Kandich and Medaljc Vojnovich.

Yesterday afternoon Judge of Probate Gilpin upon the petition of Attorney H. F. Greene ordered the removal of Nickolich as administrator of the estate of Philip Vukumirovich and appointed Pete Vokomirovich, a brother, in his stead. Of this estate, which amounted to about $1,400, only 10 cents can be accounted for. Nickolich is supposed to have taken the money with him to Montenegro.

In his letter to his Duluth friend, which was shown yesterday in the probate court, Uickolich made no reference to his money affairs, nor to the trust funds in which there are serious shortages. He wrote that he would probably be back in Duluth about July 15.

Among other things he stated that on his voyage across the Atlantic he met with an accident on the boat in which he broke his arm. His injury healed quickly, however, he said, and upon his arrival to Europe he was employed as a guide for tourists.

Nicholich left Duluth about two months ago. At New York he had made arrangements to sail for South America but changed his plans and took a passage to Paris. From Paris he went to Montenegro.

Whether he will return to Duluth or not is a matter of speculation among his acquaintances among the Austrians here. By some the letter is believed to be a ruse of some kind to throw the authorities off the track and give him time to change his location.

Of $2,250 which Nicholich held in trust for a minor $1,600 is missing. The $250 which he was keeping for an insane man at Fergus Falls is also gone. From the estate of Vukomirovich, all but 10 cents of $1,400 is short; of the estate of Kandich, $300 of a $700 estate has disappeared, and half of a $400 estate belonging to Vojnovich is unaccounted for.

The United States has no extradition treaty with Montenegro. The bonding companies will make good the loss if Nicholich does not make a restitution.

SHOWERS ARE PREDICTED

Duluth awoke this morning in a sultry atmosphere with every indication that there would be showers later in the day—all of which worked to the discomfiture of picnickers and those who had planned outings.

Up to noon, however, no rain had fallen. Weather Forecaster Richardson's forecast calls for local showers tonight and Friday, after which cooler weather and moderate south winds may be expected. Today's weather will be unsettled.

The weather forecast in other portions of the Northwest is as follows:

Upper Michigan — Unsettled with showers tonight or Friday; somewhat cooler in north portion.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota—Unsettled with showers tonight or Friday.

Iowa—Generally fair in east portion, probably thunder storms in west portion tonight or Friday.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Friday; cooler in southeast portion tonight.

MODERN APPLIANCES FOR WHALING.

Springfield Republican: The use of the modern whaling cannon in place of the old-fashioned and more picturesque hand harpoon has been familiar for a good many years, but it is probably not widely known that another modern invention has been pressed into service. Compressed air is now pumped into the whale's carcass until it resembles a toy balloon, and the hole filled with oakum, so that the whaler may set the carcass afloat with a buoy to mark it, without danger of its sinking.

In this way time can be saved in starting on the pursuit of other whales which may be in sight.

YOUNG GIRLS ON STREETS

Three Are Sent to State School at Red Wing.

Keeping the young girl off the streets at night was one of the principal cares of Humane Agent "Bob" McKercher during the past month. In the June report of the Duluth Humane society it is shown that thirteen cases involving young girls were investigated. In six of those cases the misses turned out to be incorrigible. Three were sent to the state industrial school for girls at Red Wing.

During the month Mr. McKercher brought about the arrest of one man for immoral actions with young girls. He was bound over to await the action to the grand jury. Three cases of child abuse came to his attention. He handled two cases in which girls were arrested. During June there were three juvenile court cases involving young girls in which the Humane society was directly interested. In four instances the society found employment for girl applicants.

Mr. McKercher brought three cases involving three young boys into the juvenile court during the month. The boys were charged with incorrigibility and were placed on parole.

The total number of cases investigated during June by the Humane society was eighty-two, thirty-four of which concerned human beings and forty-eight involving animals. The number of human beings involved was 109.

During the month seven small children were placed in the Children's home and one was put in the care of a private family. In one instance a child was taken from its parents and placed with relatives on account of home conditions.

The general nature of the cases involving human beings for June is shown in the following summary:

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE

Chinese Fires at Governor of Hong Kong But Misses.

Hongkong, July 4.—An attempt was made to assassinate Sir Francis Henry May, the governor of Hongkong, yesterday. A Chinese rushed at the governor near the postoffice and fired a revolver, but the bullet merely perforated the chair in which the governor was seated, without doing further harm. The attack caused intense excitement.

Sir Francis Henry May was appointed governor of Hongkong Feb. 16 last to succeed Brig.-Gen. Sir Frederick J. D. Lugard.

SOCIETY PEOPLE ARE AMONG THE DEBTORS.

New York, July 4.—John D. Rockefeller is named as debtor in the sum of 56 cents to the Purcell Manufacturing company, a confectionery and bakery concern, which has filed schedules in bankruptcy. The oil magnate is among a long list of New Yorkers prominent in financial, social and professional circles, scheduled as indebted to the concern, presumably for buns, cakes or candy, in sums ranging from 10 cents to $40. Miss Helen Gould owes 44 cents, Mrs. Patrick Campbell $3, Felix Adler 50 cents, John H. Flagler $1.97 and Thomas F. Ryan $15.35.

PERUVIAN TOWN HIT BY A TERRIFIC HURRICANE.

Lima, Peru, July 4.—A terrific hurricane swept over Mollendo yesterday. It was preceded by great heat. Waves along the coast rose to a great height, and twenty-five launches and other small craft were wrecked. Within the town thousands of windows were destroyed and many houses were unroofed. All traffic was suspended.

DINKEY ENGINE IS A LOCOMOTIVE

Judge Cant Decides Against Widow of Boiler Inspector.

A dinkey is a locomotive and is not subject to state boiler inspection which exempts locomotives, according to the decision handed down yesterday by Judge Cant of the district court, presiding in the case of Mrs. Marie Lowe, administratrix of the estate of John D. Lowe, former state boiler inspector, against the Drake & Stratton company, stripping contractors.

Mrs. Lowe sued for $615 claimed to be due her late husband from the Drake & Stratton company in fees for the inspection of the boilers of 205 dinkey engines. The contractors refused to pay the bill on the grounds that dinkeys were locomotives and therefore exempt from the state boiler inspection. The case was taken to court for a decision.

The decision handed down by Judge Cant yesterday is of considerable importance as there are several hundred dinky engines in operation on the range, on most of which boiler inspection fees have been paid for several years. This will mean a considerable saving for stripping contractors.

CHAUFFEURS RAISE FUND

Subscribed $100 for Flowers and Monument for Langford Madigan.

The chauffeurs of Duluth collected nearly $100 among themselves yesterday with which to buy flowers and a small monument for Langford Madigan, the chauffeur, who was killed while driving the Turrish automobile on the Pike Lake road Tuesday evening.

As soon as the chauffeurs heard of the accident, a committee was named and the members went out collecting. In a very few minutes nearly $100 was contributed, for Madigan was popular among his fellows.

The chauffeurs will attend the funeral which will be held from the cathedral tomorrow morning. Interment will be at Calvary cemetery.

Michael Madigan, father of the boy, was on his claim when the news came to him of the death of his son. He hurried to the city, arriving here yesterday afternoon.

The chauffeurs of the city seem to feel deeply the loss of Madigan and the accident was the one topic of conversation about the garages yesterday and today.

BEARS AND MOOSE FOR CHICAGO ZOO

Cyrus De Vry, head keeper of the Lincoln park zoo at Chicago, is returning to his home after a fishing trip at Lake Vermilion. He is taking several large bears and a pair of moose back with him. They will be added to the large collection now at the zoo. Mr. De Vry has had several narrow escapes during the many years that he has been engaged in his present line of work.

CLARK AND UNDERWOOD ARE GIVEN OVATIONS.

Washington, July 4.—When Speaker Clark, snowing the effect of the strain under which he has labored during the Democratic convention, entered the house yesterday he was given an ovation that lasted for several minutes.

When Representative Underwood of Alabama appeared, the cheering and applause was resumed. Members pounded their desks and the Southern contingent added to the noise by their shrill "rebel yell."

ONE THOUSAND MINERS AND LABORERS STRIKE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 4.—One thousand miners and laborers went on strike in the Wyoming valley yesterday. Five hundred men employed by the Susquehanna company at Nanticoke went out because a number of men refused to join the union. The union men have issued an edict that if underground workers want to enjoy the benefits secured from the operators by the United Mine Workers they must join the union. At the Butler colliery, Pittson, 500 miners quit work because the foreman discharged a slate picker.

EXODUS FROM CAPITAL BY PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

Washington, July 4.—Washington is well-nigh deserted by public men today. Both houses of congress have adjourned over the Fourth of July. President Taft has gone to Beverly and Vice President Sherman is in New York. Secretary MacVeagh is in New England, Secretary Stimson at Huntington, L. I., Attorney General Wickersham at Cedarhurst, L. I., and Secretary Knox has planned several days' holiday at Valley Forge. Many other officials, senators and representatives have joined in the exodus.

WEST END NEWS

HERALD BRANCH:
Herman Olson, Manager, 1823 West Superior Street.

MANY NEW HOMES AND BUSINESS BLOCKS BEING ERECTED IN WEST END

As a result of the building operations now going on in the West end, this end of the city is undergoing a decided change in its appearance. Superior street from Eighteenth to Twenty-eighth avenues west is dotted with new buildings and improvements. This is also true of the other streets.

The most expensive of the buildings recently completed at the Woodmen hall, at the corner of Twenty-first avenue west and First street, erected by Duluth Camp No. 2341. The structure was built at a cost of $25,000.

The two-story brick building at 1817-19 West Superior street has also been finished and is now occupied by two saloons. The second floor is arranged for lodge halls and flats, all of which have already been rented. The structure was built by the Minneapolis Brewing company and cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

Repairs on the old Cody building at 1915 West Superior street have been completed and the structure is now occupied by P. George Hanson & Sons, real estate dealers, who bought the structure early this spring from "Buffalo Bill," William Cody, at a cost of $8,500. About $5,000 was spent in improvements and additions to the building, the upper two floors of which have been arranged for flats.

David Adams, the veteran West end builder, has finished three houses in this end of the city. Yesterday afternoon he closed a contract for two more houses, and with an additional three he is now constructing in other parts of the city, he will soon reach the 100 mark. Mr. Adams has the record of having already built seventy dwellings in Duluth, all for working men at easy monthly payments.

The old five-and-ten-cent store at 2022-2024 West Superior street has been torn down and the foundation for a two-story brick building has already been built. Workmen started on the superstructure yesterday morning and expect to have the entire building ready for occupancy by Sept. 1. The building will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 and will be occupied by the Mohaupt Brothers, proprietors of the present five-and-ten-cent store at 2020 West Superior street. A. H. Burg & Co are in charge of the contracting work.

Many other buildings are now being planned and will be constructed within the next eighteen months. The largest among these is the Swedish fraternity house or social center, which is being planned by the Vasa Order No. 170, Swedish Sons of America, and will cost about $100,000 when completed. The members of the order are being assisted in a campaign for funds by the various other West end Swedish organizations. The plans for the structure have been drawn by Bray & Nystrom, architects, and provide for a three-story structure similar to the Duluth Y. M. C. A. The building will have a gymnasium, lodge rooms, theater and offices for Swedish societies and business organizations. The site for the building has not been chosen as yet, but will be in the immediate vicinity of Twenty-first avenue west, on the lower side of Third street.

Another large building now being planned and for which plans have been drawn by Abraham Holstead, architect, is the Adams Athletic association building. The structure will be two stories, with a gymnasium, swimming pool, club rooms, gallery and dining hall among the main features. The building will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000 and will also be located near the center of the West end business district. The members of the Adams Athletic association are conducting a subscription campaign among the business men and residents of the West end.

A number of residences and apartment houses are being built in various parts of the West end at the present time.

NEW ROOMS WILL SOON BE READY

Street Car Men Will Have Comfortable Quarters in Car Barn.

It was announced yesterday afternoon that the new club rooms at the Duluth Street Railway company's car barns will be finished within two weeks and that they will be opened to the motormen and conductors of the company on July 20.

Work on the addition to the car barns at Twenty-seventh avenue west and Superior is progressing rapidly. The small two-story building is being erected within the present large car barn. It will contain two rooms on each floor. There will be an entrance to the structure on both First and Superior streets.

The rooms will each be forty feet long and thirty feet wide, entirely surrounded by brick walls so that the gases from the car barns will not penetrate the rooms. The lower room will be provided with books, newspapers and magazines and will be furnished as a regular club room and loungling room for the motormen and conductors of the road. Several reading tables and one of two pool tables will be installed. A small room to the rear will contain the lavatory and three shower baths.

The room to the front will be fitted with a lunch counter. No provisions for serving lunch have been made as yet, but it was announced yesterday that the privilege will be leased to one of the local restaurants within a few days. The second floor will have several beds, to be used by the employes who are compelled to work on the late runs. The second floor will also be provided with lockers, reading tables and game boards. A caretaker is to be placed in charge of the quarters.

WILL CELEBRATE FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Rev. George E. Silloway, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will celebrate the first anniversary of assuming the pastorate of the local church with a special service Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Silloway has prepared a fitting sermon for the day and the church choir will render a special program of music.

Rev. Mr. Silloway came to Duluth from Coleraine, Minn., where he had charge of a pastorate for two years. Previous to that he was assistant to the pastor of the Hennepin Avenue M. E. church of Minneapolis for some time. He is one of the youngest pastors in the city and very popular both among the ministers and laymen whom he has met during the past year.

SCHOOLS NOT DANCE HALLS

Fifth Ward Club Members Place Themselves on Record.

"Schools are for teaching and not for dancing," said Capt. D. E. Stevens, a member of the school board, at the meeting of the Fifth Ward Improvement club, held last evening at the Emerson school, Eleventh avenue west and Third street. Capt. Stevens gave an interesting talk on the present issue, following which the members of the club went on record as opposing dancing in the public schools.

Capt. Stevens, who is a candidate for re-election to the school board, said that the schools were built for educating the children and not to teach them how to dance. He is heartily in favor of establishing social centers in the schools, he said, but utterly opposed to any such form of amusement as dancing.

The committee appointed last month to investigate the conditions about Buckingham creek reported to the club that a cover for the creek is absolutely necessary at the present time. The creek, the members of the committee claim, is an open sewer and dangerous to the health of the residents in this end of the city. The committee was requested to take the matter up with the city authorities and report at the meeing of the club next month.

Church Picnic.

The congregation of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, is holding its annual picnic today at Lincoln park, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. An informal social program is being carried out during the day and refreshments are being served by the ladies of the church.

Will Adopt Baby.

Rev. and Mrs. Edward Erickson of 330 North Twenty-fourth avenue west filed papers yesterday with the clerk of district court asking that they be allowed to adopt Dorothy Hazel Erickson as their own daughter. The child is 18 months old and is now being cared for at the Maternity hospital, the parents of the baby having deserted it several months ago.

Bolin-Wiberg.

Miss Elizabeth Bolin of Lake Nebagamon and John Wiberg of Poplar, Wis., were married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Swedish Baptist church, 2212 West Third street. Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the church, read the service, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wiberg left for their home at Poplar, Wis.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday school class of St. Peter's Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, will accompany the other Episcopal Sunday school classes of Duluth at their annual picnic and outing to be held next Thursday at Fond du Lac. The classes will leave in the morning on the steamer Columbia, returning on the same boat late in the evening. During the day a program of athletic and track events will be featured. About 600 people are expected to attend the affair.

Midweek Services.

The regular mid-week services of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, were held last evening. Mrs. William J. Morris was the leader for the evening, following the address by Rev. George E. Silloway and the music by the church choir.

Holiday Dance.

The Adams association will give a special Fourth of July dance this evening at the Lincoln park auditorium, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. The members of the association have been conducting a series of Thursday evening dance during the past few weeks, which have proven very popular among the residents in this end of the city. Flaaten's orchestra will play a special program of patriotic music during the evening.

Cole-Wickmann.

Miss Rosella Cole of Superior and Frank Wickmann of Sheboygan, Wis., were married at 8 o'clock last evening at the parsonage of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, 322 North Twenty-fourth avenue west. Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the church, read the service. Mr. and Mrs. Wickmann will make their home in the West end after a short wedding trip to the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bjork and children of 2217 West Second street left yesterday for Deerwood and Crosby, where they will spend the week with relatives.

Misses Althild Benson and Ethel Allen left yesterday for Rice Lake, Wis., where they will spend the Fourth with relatives.

The Young People's Society of St. Peter's Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, will meet in the guild hall tomorrow evening.

thorized to appoint an executive committee and to call a state convention.

W. D. Headrick of Indianapolis and G. K. Stimson of La Fayette, were the leading opponents of the third party idea. Mr. Stimson was a member of the resolutions committee and brought in a minority report against the third party. Mr. Stimson said that, while he was with the other members at heart, he believed they could win by remaining within the Republican party. His report was not put to a vote. Mr. Headrick expressed the same views, declaring the Progressives could control the Republican state convention and "clean house."

Conference at Oyster Bay.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 4.—With the Democratic national ticket in the field, Col. Roosevelt and a group of his lieutenants yesterday took up the work of laying the foundation upon which they hope to build a new party. Since the birth of the party in Chicago, little has been done, as Col. Roosevelt says he felt it necessary to await the outcome at Baltimore. The situation, in the light of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, was discussed at a conference at Sagamore Hill, which was attended by Senator Dixon of Montana, William Flinn of Pittsburg, Gerald Perkins and Frank Munsey of New York, and E. A. Van Valkenberg of Philadelphia.

The presence of these men at Sagamore Hill gave rise to reports that the third party movement had suffered a serious setback as a result of the selection of candidates by the Democratic convention, and that some of Col. Roosevelt's leaders were in favor of abandoning the fight. Col. Roosevelt denied this emphatically.

"There was no thought of abandoning the fight," said he. "These men simply came to talk over the situation with me and to discuss details of the new national convention."

Col. Roosevelt was asked what the party would be named.

"Search me, by George," he replied. "The names I have heard most frequently mentioned are Progressive party and National Progressive party. The convention will decide."

Although Senator Dixon said that the call for the convention would probably be issued today, Col. Roosevelt gave it as his opinion that it would be delayed until Monday.

Will Stick to Party.

Washington, July 4. — Several Progressive Republican senators, conferring over the situation growing out of the presidential nominations at Chicago and Baltimore, have voiced the opinion, that, although a third party in their states was unnecessary, their several opinions are that electors in sympathy with the former president will be on the regular Republican ticket in California, Washington, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas, among others.

None of the Progressive senators here has announced any intention of leaving the regular Republican party.

Senator Works of California and Senator Bristow of Kansas have told their colleagues that the Progressive element was in control in their states, and that there would be nothing to gain by joining a third party movement. Senator Poindexter of Washington said he believed that it would be unnecessary to organize a third party in his state.

THE PANGS OF HOMESICKNESS.

New York Times: In the steerage office of a European steamship line sat sad eyed men and women of the steerage type.

"America too swift for 'em, eh?" said a brisk American passing through. "Going home back home, eh?"

"Nothing of the kind," said a clerk. "The poor devils have't been here long enough to know whether they will be a failure or not. Just at present they are knocked out by homesickness. That is why they are here.

"The persons comprising this particular group came over alone. They have no friends here and the loneliness has floored them. A visit to the office of the steamship line that brought them over is about the best bracer they can find.

"Here they can at least see the picture of the ship they came in, and maybe strike up a conversation with someone who is buying a ticket to go back. They'll hang around here off and on for several weeks until the sharp edge of their homesickness has worn off."

If you have never read every ad in any one issue of this newspaper, try the experiment. You'll be glad you read this suggestion.

The Coffee Can Is Becoming A Sensitive Subject

A couple of years ago one could get a pound of fairly decent coffee for from 15 to 25 cts. Now that same coffee costs from 25 cts. to 45 cts. per pound and a further raise of ten cents is in prospect.

"There's a Reason"

Four years ago Brazil found that in spite of the fact that it was producing over 90 per cent of the coffee consumed in the United States, its rich planters were not squeezing as much money out of Americans as they could and the Brazilian government was not receiving enough revenue from a product that was one of that country's chiefest products.

And so Brazil determined to levy tribute upon rich and prosperous America, even as the British taxed our tea in olden days; only this modern type of piracy was engineered and executed in a kid glove way.

Certain foreign capitalists (German, English and others) were called into consultation. They devised a scheme called "valorization." They started by buncoing our American Congress into removing the import tax on coffee, and that done, Brazil immediately transferred the income to its own treasury by imposing an export tax. This was followed by perfecting a system whereby the Brazilian government could control the output and the price of coffee.

The net result has been that Brazil for the last three years has sold just what grades of coffee it wanted to sell, at any price it chose to fix; and in consequence the Brazilian government has shared with a syndicate of foreign money kings a profit of Hundreds of Millions of Dollars, every cent of which has come from the pockets of the American People.

This Is Where YOU Come In

The average coffee drinker knows that coffee is a really harmful drink to most folks. Headache, biliousness, indigestion and other signs of an up-set liver, as well as heart irritation, nervousness and sleeplessness are too evident to most coffee drinkers to permit of their ignorance of that fact.

AWAKENED BY BURGLAR

Masked Midnight Prowler Invades West Duluth Man's Bedroom.

Peter Johnson and Wife Ordered to Throw Up Hands.

When Peter Johnson was awakened by his wife early this morning he was confronted by a real burglar, who was certainly prepared for the occasion with automobile goggles over his eyes, a revolver and a small electric lantern. Johnson's ability to keep cool saved him from being robbed and perhaps saved his life.

About 2:30 o'clock this morning, according to the information given the police by Mr. Johnson, a burglar entered the room where he and Mrs. Johnson were asleep. Mrs. Johnson awoke first and later awakened her husband. Both were compelled to throw up their hands at a command of the burglar. The latter asked Johnson where he kept his money and Johnson replied that it was all in the cash register in the store downstairs. The burglar then backed out of the room, apparently planning to go into the store.

Just as the burglar left Mr. Johnson rushed to the window and yelled to his hired man, who was sleeping in the barn. Johnson at the same time watched the movements of the burglar and saw him walk about the store several times and finally walk away. Johnson was unable to awaken the hired man, but his calls caused the burglar to leave the premises.

Johnson is unable to describe the man, as the latter wore the goggles over his eyes, hiding half of his face. The man was well dressed, said Johnson, and appeared to be about 30 years of age and of medium build. "He seemed new at the business from the way he went about things," said Johnson.

Johnson keeps a dairy at 7026 Grand avenue and lives over a small confectionery store and milk depot, where he sells his milk and cream.

NEW CHURCH AT NEW DULUTH

Catholics of Western Suburb Plan to Build This Year.

Catholics of New Duluth are planning to build a new church and the following building committee has been appointed by Rev. John Begley to look over the property in this end of the city: Matt Prettner, J. Lockhart, Sr., Harry Hutter, Edward Martell and J. Geelenny.

The members of the church held a meeting in one of the local halls last evening and decided to build a church. The congregation in New Duluth has grown steadily the past few years and the necessity of a church has become apparent during the past winter. Rev. Father Begley, who is the assistant to Rev. D. W. Lynch, rector of St. James' Catholic church of West Duluth, and who is in charge of the New Duluth congregation, is anxious to have the church built this year and was instrumental in securing the support of the people.

Edward Martell and Harry Hutter were appointed to the trustee board at the annual election last evening. The church is in a strong financial state at present and well able to build a church, say the members of the executive building committee. The committee will make its first report early next month.

WILCOX BATHS ARE POPULAR

More popular than ever are the Wilcox baths at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west, which were opened this week for the boys of West Duluth. About seventy-five boys a day visit the baths, and Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police station, who is supervising this feature, said this morning that as soon as the warm weather comes to stay, he expects an average of 300 boys to take advantage of the pool every day.

The pond is now a most attractive spot, with its various boards and toboggan slide. The beach is of sand, which was dumped there recently, and makes a pleasant playground for the younger boys of this end of the city. The bath house has been improved and enlarged by Lieut. Wilcox, and the pond has been roped in for a distance of 300 feet from the shore.

Although preparations have been made to accommodate 300 boys, it is the belief that the baths will be overcrowded during the warm days. Last year many were turned away because of the large crowds, and the necessity for a larger pool and accommodations was evident at that time.

WANT BRIDGE AT FOND DU LAC

New Duluth Commercial Club Will Begin An Active Campaign.

The New Duluth Commercial club at its regular meeting last evening decided to inaugurate a campaign for the construction of a bridge for teams and pedestrians across the St. Louis river at Chambers' Grove, Fond du Lac. The matter will be taken up with the government at once, assistance to be asked also from the county authorities.

The river at this point is about 800 feet wide and the necessity of a bridge has been brought up at several previous meetings of the club. The subject was discussed at length last evening and the campaign decided on by a unanimous vote of the club. The plan was originally taken up twelve years ago.

The members of the club will also ask the county to assist in building the bridge, as it would connect New Duluth with the wagon road to Wrenshall, a well developed farming country. The improving of the road from Chambers' Grove to the river and the building of the bridge into Carlton county means much for the farmers in that section of the state.

Up to the river the road is good, while the roads on the otner side are all fair, with the exception of a stretch of two miles beyond the river. From there the road is again excellent, running through Wrenshall and continuing down to St. Paul. This road is one of the oldest in the state, having been known at one time as the military road, extending from St. Anthony Falls at Minneapolis to Fond du Lac, which was then a trading station. By building the bridge across the river and repairing and improving the two-mile stretch of road on either side of the bridge, farmers would have a perfect road to Duluth from the center of the state.

CREAMERIES ARE MONEY-GETTERS

Those of Pennington County Big Boon to the Farmers.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The secretary of the local creamery shows that about $6,000 was disbursed to the patrons during May. The June report, which will be compiled within ten days, will probably show a decided increase over that of May. It is expected that June will net the farmers who patronize this creamery at least $7,000. All the other creameries in Pennington county are in an exceedingly prosperous condition. In case of a shortage of grain crop or if dry weather should happen to embarrass the farmers they can always rely on a good stout monthly pay check from the creamery.

WILSON LIKELY TO CARRY WISCONSIN

Concerted Movement Among the La Follette Leaders In His Favor.

La Crosse, Wis., July 4.—That Wisconsin will give all its electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson for president, is the opinion of leading progressives of the western part of the state who were interviewed after the nomination of the New Jersey governor in the Democratic convention was announced.

The statements made by the leaders here convey the impression that without particularly endangering the foot among the La Follette leaders in Wisconsin to carry the state for Governor Wilson. Asked if they would go out on the stump and espouse the cause of Wilson, the progressives declared this was hardly necessary—the state could be carried for him without conducting a speaking campaign.

The last legislature passed a law providing for the use of two ballots in a national election in Wisconsin, one for presidential electors and the other for state and county officials. Thus it will be possible for a Republican to vote for a Democrat for president with one crossmark and for Republican candidates for state and county offices with another cross, there is a concerted movement on chances of the latter by bolting the head of the ticket.

Chances of Theodore Roosevelt making much progress with his third-party movement in Wisconsin are discouraged by the nomination of Governor Wilson. Leading Progressives declare they favor a Progressive Democrat of Wilson's type to Roosevelt, who is charged with treating La Follette badly in the presidential campaign. Another thing that works to the disadvantage of Roosevelt in obtaining any great support in Wisconsin is a law passed by the last legislature which requires presidential electors to be nominated in the spring in this state. It is possible for the name of a presidential elector to be written upon a ballot, under this law, but it is argued it would be difficult for a candidate to make much of a showing under this handicap.

Woman's Realm

An exhibit at the parlors of the Glass Block store of paintings done by a Duluth woman, Mrs. Adelle L. Strain, is attracting a good deal of attention. Every one of the ten pictures done by this woman is delightfully refreshing and appealing.

One of them which is often spoken of and which seems to have made a particular impression is a painting of a scene on Deer river, showing a little clearing, a log cabin and the river running by with a white horse in the field, giving a touch of life to the scene. Another of local interest was painted in Chester park and nature lovers can easily recognize the spot with its rocky cliffs and trees. ...

Mrs. Strain is at work on another scene on Chester park near the ski hill which she is much interested in.

Another picture, called "Hunting Dogs," would appeal to any sportsman or lover of animals. Three splendid bird dogs are most naturally portrayed.

A clearing scene painted near Gunn station gives the deep rich full landscape and a picture painted on the La Prairie river gives contrast with its spring freshness.

Portrait work is represented with a picture called "Old Age," showing a vigorous white haired man well painted.

There are other pictures of as much interest and every one has a particular atmosphere of naturalness, devoid of the mechanical part of the work.

These pictures will be hung in the parlors on the fourth floor for some time and the public is invited to call and see them.

Concert Lectures.

A series of three concert lectures by Sophia Stephali will be given next week under the direction of the Woman's relief corps, No. 69, auxiliary to the J. B. Culver post, No. 128, G. A. R., co-operating with the National Society for Broader Education.

The concert lectures will be given on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening at the Memorial hall of the courthouse.

The Friday evening lecture will be on "Influence of Music." In this is shown the actual relation of music to life, the manner in which music affects the emotions and influences thought and action; the great possibilities of music in character building. The talks will be illustrated as far as possible with music to produce the thought desired in the listeners' minds.

The Saturday afternoon lecture on "Music and Childhood" which will commence at 3:15 o'clock will give much that will be helpful to those interested in the formation of the child character.

The last one of the course will be on "Music and Life" in which music is presented as a force rather than as an influence.

Stephali's voice is a colorature mezzo-soprano of breadth and power and her technique and method have been highly praised.

Miss Berenice Lathrop will play the piano accompaniments and some of the illustrations.

THE EVENING STORY

THE BLACKMAILER

By J. Seaton Hawkins.

Mr. William Singledon sat moodily in his study breathing heavily, his face between his hands. The dejection of his attitude and expression befitted a man mourning the inexplicable loss of a wife, whose devotion to him had always seemed above suspicion. Four days had elapsed since the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Singledon, a beautiful and attractive woman. The affair was impenetrable. The only solution which the police could admit as probable was that the missing woman had succumbed to the fascinations of a man, whose identity remained a mystery, and had eloped with him in a most baffling manner, but the great objection to this theory was the fact that from the day of their marriage only five years before Mrs. Singledon's fidelity to her husband had been beyond question.

Mr. Singledon himself refused to entertain for a moment the possibility of his wife's unfaithfulness. He had never observed or heard of the slightest questionable action on her part, and knew of no male acquaintance for whose society she had shown any inclination whatever. Mr. Singledon's account of the circumstances leading up to the discovery of the disappearance was as follows: He had returned from an afternoon appointment at his club rather earlier than he had expected. As he had in his pocket certain papers that he wished to look up in his desk he went at once to his study for that purpose. On his writing table he found a sheet of note paper, on which was written, in his wife's handwriting, the following commencement of a letter. "This is to tell you that I cannot possibly—" There the writing abruptly ended, the pen having been taken from the paper before the letter "y" in the word possibly had been completed.

Mr. Singldon, imaging that his wife had been disturbed in the act of writing some message, and had afterwards forgotten to return and finish it, rang the hall and asked if Mrs. Singledon was at home. The servant did not know. She had seen nothing of her mistress since lunch. Mr. Singledon, however, had such faith in his wife that he would believe nothing unworthy of her until her non-appearance at midnight compelled him to put the matter in the hands of the police.

Scotland Yard devoted much time and energy to the case, but without success. The principal points of the mystery appeared to be the sudden ceasing of the letter, and the remarkable fact of Mrs. Singledon's departure without the luggage she had carefully packed. What had caused her to rise so suddenly from the writing table, and why, if the note had been intended for her husband had she omitted any prefix to it?

Another point that called for question was how had she intended to get all that luggage out of the house unseen by the servants and before her husband returned from his club? Apparently her plans for doing so had failed and she had been compelled to leave them behind her. None of the servants had entered the study that afternoon and no visitor had been admitted to the house. The affair was buried in the most profound mystery.

Mr. Singledon continued to sit, motionless and brooding, in his study. He could not be persuaded to leave it. Of the meals that were brought to him he ate little. Hour by hour he became more gloomy and morose. Condoling acquaintances called to express their sympathy and proffer assistance, but he would not see them. The telephone poured business questions into his ears from his office, but he paid scant attention to them. Only when the police called to report progress did he awaken to interest; and so far these reports had been all in the negative. He sat on, an unmoving image of despair.

A maid entered with a card on a tray, but he did not raise his head. She crossed the room and stood at his side a full minute before he looked up, and, perceiving her errand, shook his head. "I can see no one." He spoke in a dull, monotonous tone.

"This gentleman insists, sir, and says his business will take no denial." He took the card. On it was inscribed: "Mr. James Tillington."

"Ask him to send a message," he said wearily.

"He refused, sir, and said he would remain in the house until you saw him." Mr. Singledon looked up with a shade of anxiety.

"Very well. Show him up here." A few minutes later a tall, heavily built man, with a black beard and mustache, and a particularly hard expression of face, entered the roo. Mr. Singledon rose.

"You say you have important business, sir. I must ask you to be brief. This is a time of great grief, and I am hardly in a condition to receive you." The man's lips parted in an ugly smile. Turning he quietly locked the door; then, crossing the room, stood at Mr. Singledon's elbow.

"Well, sir," he began in a low tone, and a voice in keeping with his appearance, "since you ask me to be brief, I'll come to the point at once. I am in need of $1,000 within the next half hour."

"And what concern," demanded Mr. Singdon sternly, "is your need to me? Get out of this house immediately, or——"

"Stop a bit," interrupted his visitor, raising his hand. "This is not the way to treat me, Mr. Singledon, as you'll see in a minute. You are going to give me $1,000 before I leave this room, and I'm not here to make a lengthy call. I'll take the money in notes, if you don't mind."

"What is this game?" asked Mr. Singledon fiercely. "Do you imagine that it is in your power to force money out of me?"

"Well, sir, frankly, it is."

"You are, I suppose, a professional blackmailer ——?"

"It's an ugly word," smiled the other; "but that's just what I am. And I tell you ——"

"And I tell you, my man, that for once you have shot at the wrong bird. Now I give you just two minutes to put yourself outside this house, otherwise I call the plice. D'you hear? Get out!"

"Pretty," retorted the man impudently; "but I didn't come here for a blooming dramatic lesson. I came for $1,000, and I'm going to have 'em."

"Indeed," returned Mr. Singledon sarcastically. "And may I inquire the particular event, or events, in my career on which you propose to blackmail me?"

The smile vanished from Mr. Tillington's brutal face, leaving it hard as flint. He drew a step nearer. "Don't you know?" he whispered tensely, his steely eyes fixed on Mr. Singledon's face.

For an instant Mr. Singledon met his gaze; then, as its full meaning forced itself upon him, he shrank back with every appearance of the most consuming terror. His face became deadly and horribly white. He struggled for breath. Desperation gleamed in his strained, bulging eyes. The blackmailer relaxed his scrutiny with a coarse laugh.

"Well," he asked cruelly, "is it enough?" Mr. Singledon remained silent. After a pause of many minutes he turned suddenly.

"You asked me for $1,000 Would you like to earn $1,500 more?" Mr. Tillington started, looking warily at his interrogator. Evidently he was on his guard against a trap.

"How?" he inquired shortly.

"There would be a risk, but I take it you are not the man to shirk a little danger?"

"What is it?" queried the blackmailer cautiously.

Again Mr. Singledon relapsed into silence, drumming his fingers on the table in fierce doubt. At last he stepped across the room and removed the key from the door. Then he walked to a large safe that stood in a far corner, and unlocked it. Looking round, he found the blackmailer at his elbow. He paused his hand on the lever of the lock. "Lister," he whispered. "There is something in this safe that I want taken away—right away, and destroyed without a trace of any kind. It will be a dangerous business, but a man like you should be able to manage. I will pay you $500 extra. Do you accept?"

"Open the door," returned the other. "First accept or refuse. You know what it is?"

"Yes." The blackmailer did not seem to relish the proffered task, but apparently the money was sorely tempting him. "I'll do it," he added, with a gesture of decision.

Mr. Singledon pushed back the lever, and sprung the heavy doors open. In the safe, propped up in a horribly life like position, was the dead body of a young, handsome woman. On the left temple was the mark of a savage blow. Mr. Singledon turned his face away. "Yes," he said dully. "I killed her. It was the only thing to do. She would have given me up. She was unreasonable."

"You told a clever story," said the other, regarding him with admiration. "Devilish clever."

"Circumstances favored me," returned Mr. Singledon. "I merely made the most of them. How are you going to take it?"

"Wait a bit," replied the blackmailer. "I'd like to know just what happened. It would help me in the disposing of the body. Ward off any possible suspicion."

"It was very simple," Mr. Singledon answered. "By the accidental discovery of a slip of paper which I had omitted to destroy, my wife came to know of a certain event in my life—which—which was—well, not repulsive, but criminal. She was a woman with very high sense of honor, and the discovery turned her previous love for me into violent disgust. She declared that unless I made full and immediate restitution to the parties concerned, she would not only leave me forever, but would also denounce me to the police. Such restitution, however, in addition to costing me more than half my fortune, would have completely ruined my business. I explained this, but she looked only on the moral side of the case. I left her, to keep an appointment at my club, begging her to reconsider.

"While I was away she packed up her trunks, and when they were finished went into my study to leave a note to me. In her anger she omitted any prefix, commencing: This is to tell you that I cannot possibly——

"As she was in the act of finishing the word 'possible' I entered the room. She flung down the pen and completed the letter verbally. In my rage at finding her still determined I flatly refused to make any restitution whatever, and at that she stated her intention to leave me and denounce me.

"Seeing that she was really ready to do so, I completely lost control of myself and struck her a heavy blow on the temple. Without uttering a sound she collapsed at my feet, and bending over her, I found that she was dead. My horror at the crime I had committed was soon swallowed up in the desire to conceal the truth. Placing the body in the safe, I rang the bell and the servant found me standing at the table, with the unfinished letter in my hand. That is all."

"Clever," said Mr. Tillington, admiringly. "And now about getting the body out of the way. Tricky business, I'm afraid. Help me to lay it quietly on the floor. Take the feet, will you? So——"

A click of metal, a bellow of rage, a savage struggle, and Mr. Singledon sank into a chair securely handcuffed. Detective Inspector Sawyer of Scotland Yard leisurely removed his black beard and moustache, an expression of pardonable pride on his face.

"A little ruse, Mr. Singledon, a little ruse. I was convinced that, for some reason or other, you had made away with your wife, and expected that you would be in difficulties about getting rid of the body. So I hit on this little plan for inducing you to betray yourself. And now——"

He took something from his pocket, opening the window, and the air was rent by the loud blast of a whistle.

Tonight West Duluth will have an exhibition of fireworks at the playgrounds at Fifty-second avenue, directed by the West Duluth Fourth of July association.

A big celebration and picnic is being held today at Woodland by the St. James' orphanage, and the public is invited to attend.

Old-fashioned sports, such as chasing the greasy pig, climbing a greased pole, and other popular games are going on at Duluth Heights. A parade, with Rev. Mr. Mutschler as marshal, took place this morning, and speeches were made by W. E. McEwen and Ralph E. Johnson. Picnicking and a band concert helped make the day a most pleasant one for the people on the hill.

A fireworks display will be enjoyed this evening at the Northland Country club and besides that the members will enjoy music and dancing. The day will be taken up with golf. A contest for ladies occupied the morning and the afternoon saw a spirited contest among the men.

But the old-fashioned Fourth seems to have vanished from Duluth. Last night quite a number of people, who had not acquainted themselves with the law, tried to buy fireworks, but as the ordinance passed by the city council forbids the sale as well as the use of explosives, they were met everywhere with the "nothing doing" sign, and in almost every case they protested volubly. They did not seem to understand that the council has withdrawn the privilege of blowing one's self up for the good of the public in general.

The streets of the city today have an unwonted quiet that has the tamest Sunday seeming like a riot in comparison. The small boy is disconsolate, and many of the adults are slapping their pockets and making frequent trips into the house looking for something—they do not realize what—that seems missing.

History of Bryan Telegram.

In the midst of all his present day activity, bit by bit there are coming to light incidents of Governor Wilson's making during the convention, and immediately prior to it. Yesterday his secretary told the history of the telegram to William J. Bryan, in answer to Mr. Bryan's message declaring against the selection of Alton B. Parker as temporary chairman of the convention.

"As soon as Mr. Bryan's message became public, even before it reached the governor," the secretary said, "Wilson managers at Baltimore got the governor on the telephone.

"'Don't answer the message until you hear from us,' they begged, and the governor said he wouldn't.

"Down at Baltimore they rigged up a rough draft of a reply and sent it to the governor. He read it and handed it to me. It dodged the issue. The governor took it from my hands.

"'It won't do, Joe,' he said, as he tore it into bits. 'The people expect more than this of me. It wouldn't be just to them or to myself if I used this. We'll fix up another one.'

"He took a pad and placed it across his knee and wrote his answer to Mr. Bryan without crossing out a single word he had put down."

Governor Wilson had many pleasant interchanges of courtesies with his visitors yesterday, many of these members of other parties than that of which he is standard-bearer. He was halted by a man with a moving picture machine and bowed and smiled and looked east and west and did a dozen other things for the films. Not a step was made outside his doorway that will not be thrown on the screen.

Many Old Friends Call.

"It seemed as if every visitor today was an old classmate, a former pupil, a dear, dear friend or a political astrologer who had known that it was going to happen ever so long ago," said the governor. There were a dozen who used to call him Tommy, scores who could quote his exact language on innumerable occasions and topics, hundreds who knew he was a man of destiny, and seemingly innumerable "original Woodrow Wilson men." And they did not mind saying so.

Gilbert J. Walter, a delegate to the Baltimore convention, dropped in on his way home to Honolulu to tell the governor that Hawaii could not see anything but Wilson.

F. A. Thompson and D. W. Gregory, Texas delegates, told Governor Wilson they had said "Wilson" forty-six times at Baltimore and would have said it forty-six more. They came up from Baltimore with Walter Measday, the governor's personal secretary.

Henry C. Campbell, editor of the Milwaukee Journal, a Republican, begged the governor to put Wisconsin down for a visit in his campaign.

Ryan For Wilson.

Baltimore, Md., July 4.—Thomas F. Ryan, the financier, who was a delegate from Virginia to the Democratic national convention, last night authorized the following statement:

"The Baltimore convention has registered the independent will of the Democratic party through its chosen delegates, and it is the dtuy of every Democratic partisan, without regard to past preference, to accept that decision with good will and no regrets, and to go into the coming battle with courage and determination to make Governor Wilson president.

"We should all contribute every effort in our power dictated by good judgment and honest considerations, to accomplish that result. The party is united, and as the campaign progresses, I believe it will gain the confidence of the country."

Committee Off for Sea Girt.

Baltimore, Md., July 4.—The Democratic national committee left here this morning for Sea Girt, N. J., to call upon Governor Wilson. The visit has no political significance as it has been the custom of years for the national committee to make a call upon the party nominee just after the convention. While the campaign will come in for informal discussion it was agreed that no plans would be broached or policies outlined.

A sub-committee composed of Chairman Mack, Secretary Woodson and three other members of the committee expect to talk over with the candidate the naming of the new head of the national committee to succeed Mr. Mack, who has announced his retirement.

TINTAH WIPED OUT.

Little Town in Traverse County Has Bad Fire.

Wheaton, Minn., July 4. — The village of Tintah, in the northern part of Traverse county, was destroyed by fire late Tuesday. As far as can be learned, every business building except the blacksmith shop is wiped out. The heaviest losses will be on R. G. Cross & Sons, Collins' meat market, Farmers' & Merchants' State bank, Nelson Lumber company, Printy Harness shop. No estimate can be made of the loss. There was little insurance and the fire will mean a complete loss to many.

The origin of the fire is not known.

FIRES UPON "MASHER."

Mill City Woman Shoots Man Who Annoyed Her.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 4. — (Special to The Herald.) — Annoyed for three years by men who have insulted her on the way home from work, Miss Beatrice Trowbridge, 76 Ninth street south, last night drew a revolver from her handbag and opened fire on a man, who, when rebuked, had seized her by the shoulder.

She aimed at his feet. She believes a bullet hit the man in the leg. He made his escape.

THE FIRST AMERICAN HEROINE.

E. F. DeLancy in the Magazine of American History: And the first woman who fought for American liberty was Gunner Corbin's widow, at the capture of Mount Washington, by the Scotch and Hessians. In the midst of the fight Gunner Corbin, struck by a ball, fell dead at his wife's feet as she was aiding him in his duties.

It was not an uncomon occurrence for Irish women (as at Limerick) to share the dangers of the bivouacks, as instance the deeds of that other heroine, Molly Pitcher. Instantly, without a word, she stepped into his place and worked the gun with redoubled skill and vigor, fighting bravely until she sank to the earth, pierced by three grapeshot! Though terribly wounded, she finally recovered, but was disabled for life.

A soldier's half pay and the value of a soldier's suit of clothes, annually voted her by the continental congress (but soon discontinued) were all the reward that the first woman who fought for American liberty ever received for such heroic love, courage and suffering.

MACARONI EATERS ALWAYS HEALTHY

Some of the healthiest men and women in Duluth are great eaters of "Minnesota" macaroni and spaghetti. Many people who never cared for these foods before are delighted with the rich, nut-like flavor of "Minnesota" macaroni and spaghetti and it is surprising how much better a family will feel by eating more of these foods and less meat.

Good macaroni and spaghetti are the best and most nourishing foods known. They are fine for children—making their bodies strong and healthy. But if you want that rich, nut-like flavor be sure and get the delicious "Minnesota" brand macaroni or spaghetti—made from the finest Northern Durum wheat, with all the nourishing Gluten left in. It is easily digested and never gets soggy. All good Duluth grocers sell it.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Now that the country is abandoning the barbarous fashion of celebrating its glorious birthday with noise and tumult and explosions in imitation of war, more of the old time spirit is coming back into the observance of the day.

Another thing is more responsible for the change than the reform of the Fourth. That thing is the fact that there has come a new birth of freedom, and a new assurance that "government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

During a generation when the Fourth of July became a mere occasion for noise and tumult, the nation was given over to commercialism. The conquest of a vast continent was yielding great riches. It is true that this rich fruit of the common toil and enterprise was going largely to a few, but the rest of us nursed the hope, soon to become hopelessness, that we might yet become one of the few and surround ourselves with all the luxury that great wealth could bring.

There were mutterings of discontent and alarm, however. Long ago strange and more or less uncouth movements gave warning of a coming disturbance. The Greenbackers, the Grangers, the Populists, the free silver epidemic, marked various stages in a growing protest against the absorption by a few of the rich fruits of the enterprise and industry of a people engaged in conquering a vast domain. All the time it was becoming plainer that while there was comfort enough to go around, there was luxury enough only for a few. All the time it was becoming plainer that it was not only unjust that a social surplus ample for everybody's comfort should be so divided that it meant luxury for a handful and poverty for the mass, but a deadly menace to society and to free government.

A nation growing a cancer of plutocracy at one extreme and a cancer of poverty at the other is a nation into which the seeds of decay have entered.

It is darkest just before the dawn. Those uncouth movements of a generation ago, which were mere vague evidences of the beginnings of restlessness, have assumed coherency and gained strength. The crank of the '80s preached doctrines obscurely which the statesman of today preaches clearly and with fire and vigor. A time of confusion intervened when party lines were all but obliterated, and when the more restless chased eagerly after strange new issues. Chaos had come, but out of it has been born order.

Now the people know exactly what they want, and what they want the nation needs and must have if it is to endure. They want this to be a democracy in fact as well as in name. Brushing aside the bosses, they have stormed the citadel of Special Privilege which the bosses have built and protected. They want full and complete control of their government. They want their public servants to be faithful to them, and to that end they are seeing to it that they, and not others, nominate and elect these public servants. To that end also, they are seeing to it that they have such machinery of government as will assure that the people's government will be responsible and responsive only and always to the people.

These are but means to an end, and that end is not only democracy in government, but democracy in industry. They want to put an end to special privilege. They want to put an end to corrupt and menacing diversions of the fruits of their joint toil into the coffers of a few. They want each worker to have a living wage that is large enough to make him a good citizen and to enable him to rear good citizens. They seek the greatest good to the greatest number, and they demand that government shall seek to promote the comfort of the many, the common welfare, and that it shall cease to impoverish the many and to ignore the common good in order that the few may decay in vitiating luxury.

This is the meaning of the situation. This is the inspiration of the new patriotism which is making the Fourth of July a newly dedicated anniversary. This is the meaning of the futile struggle of the progressives against the reactionaries at the Chicago convention. This is the meaning of the glorious victory of the interests of humanity over the interests of the dollar at the Baltimore convention.

On this Fourth of July in 1912, the one hundred and thirty-sixth birthday of American liberty, this nation is nearer the ideal of democracy, and its government is in a way to become more truly representative of the common good, than at any period since July 4, 1776. This thought adds new beauty and new glory to the day, and new hope and new inspiration to patriotism to the American people.

THE DEMOCRATS AND THE TARIFF.

Says the Chicago Tribune, in discussing the Baltimore platform: "The stubborn preference shown by the Democrats for the old vicious system of tariff-making by log rolling and ex parte evidence—tariff making, in other words, by those who enjoy the privileges of protection—more than cancels platform heroics about the tariff as the mother of trusts and the high cost of living.

"We never shall have a tariff that is not a bulwark of privilege, we shall never have a tariff that is what it purports to be, until we establish a scientific test of the facts and legislate openly, and therefore honestly, in harmony with them and our expressed principles."

This is as severe an attack upon the Baltimore platform as it is likely to get.

And it misses the point so completely that it is surprising that the Tribune's editorial got by the proofreader.

What the Tribune complains about is that the Democrats at Baltimore failed to declare for a tariff board.

What the Tribune overlooks is that the purpose of a tariff board is to make an equitable distribution of the "benefits" of a protective tariff policy, and that if the Democrats act consistently with their platform and bring about a tariff designed to produce revenue rather than to tax the people for the benefit of special interests, THERE WILL BE NO TARIFF PAP TO BE DISTRIBUTED!

The infamy of tariff "log rolling" and the shame of "tariff making by those who enjoy the privileges of protection" are the foul brood of the Republican system of protection.

The Republican doctrine, moderated to that form by fear of popular anger, was stated in 1908 to be a tariff covering the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, with the addition of "a reasonable profit to the manufacturer." The tariff board presumably was to discover the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, and perhaps to define what constitutes "a reasonable profit." In practice, if the Old Guard were given as complete control over the nation as the steam roller practices at Chicago left it over the Republican organization, the interested manufacturers would dictate both the "difference in cost of production" and the "reasonable profit."

The American people may thank Providence that the control perfected at Chicago in June will be shattered at the polls in November.

The doctrine of 1908—which the Old Guard dared not repeat in the platform of 1912—was the height of absurdity. What is the difference in cost of production? What shall be the basis? Shall it be the cost in the interior, the cost near the Pacific coast, or the cost near the Atlantic? With what costs abroad shall the comparison be made? Shall it be with England, with Germany, or with Belgium? If it is Germany, shall the comparison be made with the northern part, the western, the eastern or the southern? And who shall judge what is a reasonable profit?

A tariff chiefly imposed for "protection"—in other words, for taxing all the people according to their consumption for the special profit of a few stockholders in manufacturing industries—needs a tariff board if the distribution of the "benefits" is to be made in a manner approaching decency and order.

A tariff imposed chiefly to produce the revenue needed by the government, with protection only incidental, needs no tariff board to distribute its subsidies because there will be no subsidies to distribute.

OSBORN FOR WILSON.

If he would, Col. Roosevelt could take a valuable hint from yesterday's statement by Chase Osborn, Republican governor of Michigan and one of the seven Roosevelt governors, that Wilson answers every need of the progressive cause and that Roosevelt shouldn't be a candidate now.

Roosevelt got the support of Osborn and others because they wanted a chance to help elect a progressive statesman as president of the United States—NOT BECAUSE THEY WERE BENT ABOVE ALL ELSE ON FURTHER HONORING ROOSEVELT.

If the Colonel continues thinking that the progressive cause is embodied perpetually in himself he will make the mistake of his career.

THE HOUSING ORDINANCE.

The real estate exchange is reported inclined to be against the much needed housing ordinance that is pending, principally because of a general charge that it is "drastic" and a specific charge that it prohibits buildings intended for human occupancy from occupying more than half the lot.

We hope that on second thought the exchange will think better of this ordinance, and support it.

The division of the lot equally between building and grounds seems fair enough. A family has a right to breathing space. It has a right to a little lawn and a modest garden space. It has a right to a place for the kiddies to play in, and it isn't fair to drive them into the street to be run over and exposed to perils even deadlier.

And as to being drastic, we don't at this moment think of anything a housing ordinance, designed to protect humanity against greed, needs to be more than it needs to be drastic.

THE RESULTS OF TWO PREDICTIONS.

Jan. 26, 1912, the following appeared in these columns:

> Although the conventions are five months away, conditions are beginning to clear themselves a little. A shaft of brightest light begins to creep through the caverns of mystery and to illumine the future.
>
> Bearing in mind that he is either very brave or very foolhardy who ventures a prediction thus early, The Herald will hazard two, just to see how they will come out:
>
> Prediction No. 1. When the Republicans gather in convention in Chicago June 18 they will be obsessed above all other things by the desire to win. They will nominate as their candidate for president Theodore Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, N. Y.
>
> Prediction No. 2. When the Democrats gather in convention in Baltimore June 25 they will be obsessed above all other things by the desire to win. They will nominate as their candidate for president Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, N. J.

Prediction No. 1 met with a mishap at the Sign of the Steam Roller. Yet Roosevelt carried the large majority of states likely to produce Republican electoral votes. In almost every state where the party rank and file had a chance to express their choice his victory was overwhelming. And if those rightfully entitled to sit in the convention had escaped the Old Guard's steam roller, he would have been nominated.

Besides, it will be noted that the prediction hinged on the assumption that the Republicans would want to win. The mistake, apparently, was not in the prediction but in the assumption.

As to Prediction No. 2, characteristic modesty prevents us from speaking further.

Judging by the ravings of the New York Sun Bryan's little fling at the interests trying to run the Democratic convention got under the skin.

The call of duty found Old Cincinnatus plowing and Woodrow Wilson bathing. New Jersey's governor proposes to have a clean start over Taft.

The British coal strike has moved Rudyard Kipling to write a new story. That's all right, if only the idea doesn't prompt the incumbent poet laureate to deal with the subject in verse.

AN OLD ISSUE MADE NEW

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Honorable Francis G. Newlands, a senator in congress from Nevada, has become a pillar of the Democratic party as represented in the superlatively dignified legislative council of which he is a conspicuous member. Mr. Newlands has had a rather extensive and somewhat versatile political career and ought to be a good judge of politics, having tried so many different orders of the thing.

Nevada came into the Union—on a telegraph dispatch—during the big war between the North and South. It got to be a state solely because the G. O. P. needed a vote or two in the senate to pass by a two-thirds vote the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Federal Constitution abolishing African slavery in the states where it existed. The first two senators were William M. Stewart and James W. Nye. The latter was a brilliant man and a wit. For many years John P. Hale of New Hampshire was the funny man of the senate. Nye succeeded him and played the part even better than Hale had played it. He was a poor man, not only the first poor man but the only poor man, who ever represented Nevada in the senate, though it is true that old Stewart lost his millions.

* * *

Nye was a great favorite among the newspaper chaps. One day Joseph B. McCullough asked him if he was a candidate for re-election. "Good gracious, man!" he exclaimed, "don't you know that the fellow who wants my seat is worth $10,000,000?" He was, and he got it, and kept it thirty years. And he was an Englishman named Jones—John P. Jones. Newlands is his successor. Jones was a curiosity. Like a celebrated British orator of Chatham's time, we may call Jones "Single Speech" Jones. It was about silver. Nobody but Jones and the proofreader ever read all of it, and nobody at all—not even Jones—ever understood it. That is the opinion I pass on it after reading passages here and there. It made a bulky volume. The argument was stated in the caption of a speech by John J. Ingalls, "The Image and the Superscription of Caesar." Ingalls was trying to break into the Populist camp at the time. The contention was that the stamp of the government created value, something that is now universally held to be not only fallacy but absurdity.

Taciturn—silent as he was—Jones managed to create the impression that he was one of the most accomplished men of his time, fabulously erudite, wonderfully intellectual, a wise statesman, a great man. In 1896 he turned Democrat on the silver question and in 1903 he voluntarily retired from the senate.

* * *

Newlands came here a Republican member of the Fifty-third congress. He succeeded a very fine fellow, a Mr. Bartine, who made as capable a speech in advocacy of 16 to 1 as any of them, and as good an argument as that side would admit of. But old man Stewart was the political boss of Nevada and he took Bartine out of congress and turned Newlands into congress. That was in 1892.

Now Newlands is a man of ability. It may be allowed to draw illustration from the great English statesman and orator, Carteret, I might say that, like so many other mediocrities, Newlands has a certain "power" of intellect, but he is utterly without the "authority" of intellect, and that is what makes so many of our statesmen failures. It takes a great man to supplement his mental powers with a mental authority that takes you and me captive and chains us in his train. Woodrow Wilson is such a man. Abraham Lincoln was such a man. John C. Calhoun was such a man. Daniel Webster was another, and we have had many statesmen possessed of the authority of intellect in lesser degree than those named.

Newlands gradually got into the Democratic party. As late at 1902 when he was making his first canvass for senator, he circulated a speech made at some place or other in Nevada in which he made this declaration: "I am a Democrat on the coinage question and a Republican on the tariff question." He is reputed a very rich man, and he was elected and is now serving his second term in the senate, and certainly he has become as good a Democrat on the tariff question as some other Democrats holding seats in the senate I could name. Mr. Newlands wants a gradual and horizontal cut of the tariff, which he deems too big a cherry to take at one bite. But if that cherry is ever eaten it will be but one bite, and a savage bite at that.

* * *

Mr. Newlands has seen a new light on the race question. He would disarm every citizen of the ballot other than those who have white skins. And that may grow to be a living issue. As for the negro, the G. O. P. once had the passion for him the fond bridegroom carries to the marriage altar. But the most loathsome thing in life is love turned to disgust. And the G. O. P. is ready to confront the negro in the divorce court.

* * *

The negro kept John Sherman from being president. At Chicago in 1888 I saw the beginning of the Alger boom. The first night the procession was about 200 persons and a single band. The next night it was two squares long. On Saturday night it was more than two miles long with forty bands, and when the balloting came on the following Monday Alger had Sherman's negro delegates, so Sherman wrote in his book. And a like scene was enacted recently in that same town of Chicago, where Roosevelt played the howling dervish and his henchmen were "fascinating" the "man and brother" from the Cotton states.

* * *

Did you know what Abraham Lincoln denounced and brought an indictment against a great New York Democrat for advocating the ballot for the negro in the Empire state? If the Hon. Newlands wants the very strongest arguments against negro suffrage he can find them in the speeches of Abraham Lincoln. Remember that Lincoln was a Southern poor white. That accounts for it. He freed the negro for the Southern poor white, not for the negro, and had he lived there would have been no Fifteenth amendment.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE SCHOOL DANCE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Between the alternatives of a lengthy discussion of this question now pending in our city, and no discussion of it at all, we choose condensed brevity. In short, then, the objections of a large and serious minded class to this innovation, are:

First—The dance is far removed from the original purpose and design of schools. It promotes neither mental culture nor a knowledge of any of the essentials of life. To say the least, it is a frivolous waste.

Second—It is in line with the danger our present tendency to supplant the serious and essential with the sportive of the sensual type. Its trip is clearly downward, and is of the sort that marks both mental and moral decadence.

Third—Dancing of whatever sort, and however supervised, has that in it which defies moderation. When did dancers ever do so sane a thing as to stop when fatigued, or to retire at decent bedtime?

Fourth—Dancing of any kind has ever led on to dancing of every kind, even the most objectionable; and dancing in any place to dancing in every sort of place and in all sorts of company. It has never been very long kept respectable or safe. Like all things sensuously bewitching, it tends to the lowest extreme.

Fifth—Against convictions like the above in the minds of a very large and respectable class of citizens, is it right or expedient to attempt to swing the public schools into line with the systematic promotion of dancing among the young?

ALLEN CLARK.

Duluth, July 2.

BRYAN AND WILSON.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The nomination of Governor Woodrow Wilson for the presidency by the Democratic national convention at Baltimore last Tuesday is one of the most hopeful signs in the political arena that has occurred in a long time. Mr. Wilson is one of the most progressive of the men in public life and with his progressiveness has an honorable and genuine dignity and scholarly learning that places him in the front rank of the men in public life in America today. There is no doubt that his nomination is due in a large measure to the loyal support given him by the great Commoner, William Jennings Bryan, who by his sagacity, activity and power within the party really forced the nomination at a time when it began to look as though a "dark horse" would be the winner. And in the support of Mr. Bryan Mr. Wilson will have the confidence of the people. No man in this nation has suffered the defeats that Mr. Bryan has and no man has been turned down with such regularity and been so villified and ridiculed as he and yet today he stands forth as the first man of the nation. Sincere in his every purpose, possessing a foresight that is almost prophetic in its certainty, and a powerful personality that is better understood and more appreciated than ever, he is easily the first man of the nation. When history is finally written this man who has been so villified, so purposely slandered and ridiculed, will take his place in the hearts of his countrymen and will rank with Washington, Jackson and Lincoln.

Yours truly,
A. P. YNGVE.

Cambridge, Minn., July 3.

He Was Going Far Away.

Indianapolis News: When a group of visitors was going through the county jail recently, a burly negro trusty was called to open doors and perform other similar duties for the visitors.

"How do you like it in here?" one of them asked.

"Like it? Lawd, if evah Ah gets out o' heah, I'll go so fer from town it'll take $9 to sen' me a postal card."

Careless.

Los Angeles Evening Herald: "So you found a poker chip in your husbands pocket?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Flimglit.

"And you reproved him?"

"Indeed I did. A man who is that careless about cashing in should not be allowed to play cards."

DO YOU REMEMBER IT?

Kansas City Star: And so, my contramen, this is your country's natal day. Keep it as a heritage for your children and your children's children—aye, even unto the third and fourth generation!

That proud, bald bird that soars on eagle wing watches with flaunting eye the land of the free and the home of the bahrave. Old Glory's every silken wave that laps the milky baldric of the skies flutters the golden music notes of Liberty. Freedom perches on her banner, and never will it descend. Never, never, never will it descend as long as the gallant yeomanry and proud knighthood of this grrand old commonwealth have a heart to feel and a tongue to praise.

Truth is immortal. The mighty song of Independence hurled by Thomas Jefferson in the teeth of George III, was a message thundering down the ages to the ears of all the tyrants of the world that Amerikey must, aye shall be free. No Eastern Potentate dare set his foot upon that soil where blooms the fair, white flower of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. No aristocrat of the effete monarchies of Europe may send his minions forth to enslave a race of freemen than whom there is none nobler, grander, freer under the vault of heaven's blue dome.

And so, my fellow countramen, I leave you. Secure in the faith, exultant in the hope, into your unsullied hands I give my country—my country and yours. The land of fair women and brave men; the land of song and history, the land whose morning star is Honor and whose evening star, thank God, is Glota, in the bright radiance of a dazzling day. Take this country, the grandest God's sun ever shone upon, and keep it and preserve it as bequeathed to you by George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the other Fathers whose spirits know no East and West, no North and South, and smile their benediction alike upon the blue and gray.

I thank you.

The Gold Must Be Recast.

Meredith Nicholson in the Atlantic Monthly: There seems to exist inevitably even in the smallest congregation "a certain rich man" whose opinions must be respected by the pulpit. The minister of a large congregation confessed to me despairingly, not long ago, that the courage had been taken out of him by the protests evoked whenever he touched even remotely upon social topics like child labor, or shorter hours for workingmen. There were manufacturers in that church who would not "stand for it." Ministers are warned that they must attend to their own business, which is preaching the Word of God not so concretely or practically as to offend the "pillars."

Just what is it, I wonder, that a minister may preach without hazarding his job? It is said persistently that the trouble with the church at the present day is that the ministers no longer preach the Word of God; that if Christian Truth were again taught with the old vigor, people would hear it gladly.

This is, I believe, an enormous fallacy. I know churches where strict orthoxoxy has been preached uninterruptedly for years, and which have steadily declined in spite of it—or because of it.

Not long ago, in a great assembly of one of the strongest denominations, when that cry for a return to the Old Bible Truth was raised, one minister rose and attacked the plea, declaring that he had never faltered in his devotion to the ancient truths, and that yet his church was dying. And even so, many churches whose walls echo uninterruptedly an absolutely impeccable orthodoxy are falling. We shall not easily persuade Smith to forego the golf links on Sunday morning to hear the Old Gospel Truth preached in outworn, meaningless phrases. Those old coins have the gold in them, but they must be recast in new molds if they are again to pass current.

Careless of Him.

Detroit Free Press: The late Gen. F. D. Grant used often to tell on Memorial day a funny story about Bull Run.

"A soldier," he would begin, "had a scar on his face.

"'Where did you get that scar?' they asked him.

"'At Bull Run,' he replied.

"'What?' they cried incredulously. 'What, shot in the face at Bull Run? How could that be?'

"'Well,' replied the soldier, 'it was like this: After I'd run four or five miles I got kind of careless and looked back.'"

TWENTY YEARS AGO

All Duluth did not sleep last night, and from the noise of the firecrackers, anvils and cannon which could be heard all night long one would suppose that a very small percentage of the population of the great Zenith City was "wrapped in the arms of Morpheus." The parade this morning was the most imposing and magnificent demonstration that Duluth has ever seen and was a credit to the city. The trade display was remarkably good and the merchants are to be commended for their enterprise and interest in the celebration. The exercises at the head of the incline this afternoon are attracting thousands of people. Mayor d'Autremont is president of the day, and an interesting program of addresses and singing is being carried out. Following this, Prof. Alletzhaeuzen and the Duluth Turnverein will give an exhibition of feats in calisthenics and on the horizontal and parallel bars in the pavilion, after which a program of sports will be given in the park with W. P. Lardner, Simon Clark and J. W. Anderson as judges and James D. Buxton as starter.

The Pro-Cathedral and the episcopal residence of Bishop McGolrick were totally destroyed by fire on the evening of July 2. Practically everything in the house was saved, although some of the furniture is badly damaged. The bishop's library, which is one of the finest in the Northwest, was almost wholly saved but was considerably damaged by smoke and water. The total loss will run above $10,000, and it is covered by insurance.

The steamer Cambria arrived here yesterday with 117 excursionists from Port Arthur, who came to Duluth to celebrate the national holiday of the land in which they were born. Many of the visitors were old residents of Duluth.

R. M. Todd of Minneapolis, whose flour mill at Albert Lea was burned in May, is seriously contemplating going into the milling business at Duluth and not rebuilding at Albert Lea.

Little Mamie Pfau, daughter of John Pfau, residing at 420 Sixtieth avenue west, was almost burned to death yesterday while playing with some other children in the rear of the Fourth street houses. A spark from a firecracker fell on her dress, and in an instant her clothing was in a blaze. W. F. McManus of the City of Mexico, who is visiting his brother at 525 West Fourth street, saw the accident and dashed down the stairs and into the yard. He threw her on the ground and tore the burning clothing from her body. Dr. Harlbut was called and says she will recover.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Fateful Day.

Moorhead News: An exchange calls attention to the fact that June 18 is a fateful date in history. Ninety-seven years ago—June 18, 1815—was fought the battle of Waterloo, which changed the map of Europe. One hundred years ago—June 18, 1812—Congress declared war against Great Britain, and June 18, 1912, brought us the Republican national convention.

Slightly Exaggerated.

Janesville Argus: Oh! this primary system is a fine thing, indeed. We all want it badly. It relieves us of the necessity of attending caucuses and conventions. It gives us the opportunity to speak our mind where we did not have the opportunity before—or thought we didn't. It appeals to our intelligences as the only real genuine method of getting an expression from the people. Of course we indorse it even if the ticket is a mile long and it requires an hour or a day to vote it.

Costly Justice.

Winona Independent: Of the $492,000 which the government finally recovered from Gaynor, Green and Carter after the Savanna harbor frauds, Uncle Sam paid out $381,000 for special attorney fees. Is it any wonder that the present system of jurisprudence is eminently satisfactory to the lawyers?

The Autos Help.

Bricelyn Sentinel: It is pleasing to note that now since the farmers are buying automobiles they are paying more attention to good roads. Where there are several auto owners on a road the road drag is being used and all the farmers, whether they own autos or not, notice the advantage of a good highway and are joining in the movement for better roads. They also see that the highways are properly drained and in places gravel is being used to some extent. This is what was predicted when autos were first used on farms and will help spread the gospel of good roads to every section of the farming community. Let the good work go on.

Caswell, the General.

Cambridge Independent Press: I. A. Caswell, clerk of the state supreme court, says he is still a Republican, though a Roosevelt man. "Shy" made a fight to land Minnesota for the Colonel and carried the state in a manner that left no doubt that he is a master hand as field general, but those fellows who thought to ride him out of the Republican party by reason of the defeat of "Teddy" at Chicago reckoned on the wrong side.

No More Conventions.

Cambridge North Star: Minnesota has enjoyed its last state convention and in all probability the country will have seen its last national convention with the close of the present campaign. And, judging from the doings at Chicago, it will be just as well if the people "cut out" the "rule by a representative part of the people"—the slave-like delegates and their owners, the bosses.

Four years from now the people will do their own nominating—and we believe it will be a safe prediction to make right now that no one like Taft will be considered.

Wealth in the Soil.

Walker Pilot: Up here in Northern Minnesota a little spot well tilled, makes a pocket book well filled.

Farmer Ben Is Pleased.

Farmer Ben in Austin Transcript: Of course the special session of the legislater knocked out by pretty near unanimous vote the freak law requirin' farm wagons, baby carriages, wheel harrows, et cetera, to carry lights at night when out on the public roads. The law retains the compulsion for all motor driven vehicles to have lights. This is the way the original bill was put up and some freak for a joke or to add trouble to the farmers sneaked in from malice to the other requirement which is now vetoed. I've drove on the public road for goin' on seventy years and I never had trouble in the night without lights until the pesky autos came into bein'. There's no danger now except from the whiz cars and these ought to be lighted up to protect the innocent horse propelled vehicles that may get in their mad, swift way. When I'm joggin' along at five miles an hour I am in shape to get out of the way of teams comin' or goin' but when it comes to clearin' the highway for a stinker goin' at fifty miles a hour it's another prop.

Gooseberry Desserts.

The Housekeeper: Gooseberry and rice pudding—Butter a shallow pudding dish, put a layer of gooseberries in it, sprinkle with sugar and grated lemon peel, and then add a layer of boiled rice. Alternate these layers until the dish is full, having the last layer of rice. Sprinkle over with crumbs and bits of butter, and bake in a moderate oven until the fruit is tender: about half an hour will be sufficient.

Another very pleasing way to serve gooseberries with rice is as follows: Butter a mold, and cover the inside with a layer of boiled rice about an inch thick; leave the inside of the mold empty until the rice sets, then fill it with rich, thick stewed gooseberries; cover it with buttered paper, and steam it for an hour. Turn the pudding out carefully and serve with a thin custard or with cream and sugar.

Gooseberry charlotte—Top and tail the gooseberries, and stew until tender with a very little water. Add sugar to make quite sweet. Butter a shallow pudding dish, put in a layer of thin bread and butter, then a layer of the gooseberries and proceed in this way until the dish is full, having bread on top. Sprinkle over with brown sugar, pour over half a small cupful of water and bake in a moderate oven for half an hour. Serve with whipped cream.

The Exception.

Washington Post: The navy department has officially reported to congress that nothing flies above the American flag—except, of course, the high cost of living.

A Bull Moose Is a Hard Loser.

Philadelphia Inquirer: We notice with regret that up to the hour of going to press Mr. Roosevelt had not wired his congratulations to Mr. Taft.

WILSON.

New York Independent: The nomination of Woodrow Wilson for president means a new Democracy. It means a new epoch in American self government.

The Democratic party at last has broken its shackles. It has emancipated itself. It has rehabilitated itself in power and principle. It has turned its face to the rising sun, to re-establish the faith of the American people in their own institutions.

Woodrow Wilson will be the next president of the United States.

Chicago Record-Herald (Rep): Thus, after a struggle for which few parallels can be found even in the long history of the Democratic party, the freedom was solved in the best possible way. The strongest of the progressive candidates was nominated and the logic of the whole political situation, as not only Democratic but Republican and independent observers saw it, was followed.

Philadelphia Record: No party ever nominated a candidate for president more free to enter the presidency, as the impartial representative of the whole people, Woodrow Wilson would have been nominated on the first ballot at Baltimore had he been willing to deal in the usual political way for support, but he has kept himself free to be the representative of the whole people when he becomes their president.

New York Herald: The New Jersey governor has won and won handsomely. When it is analyzed it is a personal triumph. He was nominated in spite of Mr. Bryan's tactics and as the direct result of the action of the Illinois delegation, which started the "stampede" resulting in a practically unanimous choice on the forty-sixth ballot.

Hats off to the governor. His work is cut out for him. He may not know it, but he is "on his way" and that is the way of a radical of the radicals.

New York Globe (Ind.): The appeal in behalf of the Wilson candidacy has been a straightforward one—the same in one part of the country as in another. It has not appealed to sectionalism or to race feelings, nor has it made professions of extraordinary and impossible virtue. Woodrow Wilson went into the campaign as the representative of progressive ideas, and he has stuck to them. He has not sought alliances or relied on the welding together of a machine impelled by selfishness. Nor, on the other hand, has he played the part of demagogue or been guilty of the offense, deemed by the selfish interests as heinous, of "trying to stir up the passions of the people." The Wilson candidacy from the beginning has addressed the head rather than the heart; this is probably one of the reasons why it was so slow about getting in motion.

Minneapolis Tribune (Rep.): On the whole the nomination of Wilson is the most satisfactory to the party and the country of any that could have been made.

St Louis Republic (Dem.): Woodrow Wilson, lawyer, scholar, historian, executive, has been nominated by the Democracy for the presidency.

This is a day of new tasks and new leaders. The record of Governor Wilson in the executive chair at Trenton has been a just source of pride of every Democrat. He has been firm on issues of principle and wise in matters of policy. His achievements belong to us all. He is a man of outstanding intellect and of spotless character.

While Woodrow Wilson is the beneficiary of the wrong done to Champ Clark, the republic doubts not that he is the innocent beneficiary.

Denver News: No honest Democrat may quarrel with the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, for not only is he expressive of those ideas and ideals that Jefferson imposed upon the nation in its plastic period, but by every principal action of his public career he has proved himself alive and sympathetic to those fundamental problems that have ground out of economic, social and industrial changes and on the solution of which so largely hang the permanency of our Democratic institutions and the happiness of a people.

Baltimore Sun (Ind.): To those of us who have been struggling these many years for knowledge and an intimate sense of the needs of the people—for enlightenment upon great public questions—for high intelligence in public office—for the economist's view of public questions, as contrasted with that of the politician—the news that Woodrow Wilson has been nominated for the presidency, seems almost too good to be true.

Pittsburg Post: Woodrow Wilson will be accepted by every state in the Union as the wisest and best choice that could possibly have been made.

His nomination came as the result of a steady and progressive growth that continued from the beginning of the struggle.

Two Dollars to the Good.

Indianapolis News: An advance agent was ahead of a small one-night-stand show. The theater, in an Arkansas town of 4,000, was called the Jones opera house, but the agent, thinking it had no name, had his "dates" printed "Grand opera house." The "dates" are the sheets that go on the billboards, and show what night the performance will be given. When the manager of the opera house saw the dates he was provoked.

"You've got to git 'em changed to 'Jones opry house,'" he said. "Jones, that's my name; it's named after me."

He insisted, so that agent went to a local newspaper office to see what he could have the dates struck off for. He found it would cost $8. That was too much. He went back and told the opera house manager. The latter thought it over a while.

"Well," he finally said, "that is a lot to pay. I'll tell you what to do. You gimme $3 an' I'll get a painter to change the name of the opery house to the 'Grand.' The painter will do it for $1 and I'll have $2 for losing the honor of havin' the house named for me."

The agent handed over the money.

DULUTH HAS A SLUGFEST

Sox Defeat Superior By 11 to 5 Score and Finish Pulled Up.

Sluggers of Home Team Gather Eighteen Hits From Tired Jensen.

It was another slaughter yesterday. Duluth took the fourth game of the intercity series by the score of 11 to 5. Jensen was perched on the peak for the visitors and had nothing but a signified presence and a spirit of quitting. Towards the end of the game he was merely lobbing 'em over. Hoffman was hit hard, but not timely, and the Sox won about as they pleased.

Every man on the local team got one or more hits with the exception of Elmer Miller. The hitting stump of the former White Sox star is something of the painful order and he appears unable to get the ball out of the diamond.

There is nothing very much to relate of the game. One of the features was the hitting of Muggsy McGraw, while the bold, bald and brazen theft of home by Sam Meniece must be set down on the records of achievement.

Samuel started with the windup of Jensen, the curveless kid, and slid over the pan with the arrival of the ball, simultaneously. Kid Anderson dropped the ball, but the Meniece boy had it beaten at that.

The fielding of young Bluhm was of course one of the features of the game, the youth digging 'em out of the sand, spearing the wide ones and generally comporting himself as a perfect gent should out there on the bag. Nice boy, that.

You would be doggone weary if we started to tell and explain in weary detail just how all of the runs were made. There was only one round that the seven hicks, that being the fourth. We also scored in every round but the second, fourth and eight. There was something doing all the gay time, most of the hitters taking pickings on the first one heaved across. They might as well as this Jensen boy had nothing but the desire to be yanked out of the game.

Suffice it to say that we gathered eighteen hits during the fray, that the opposition had a sort of free hitting contest of its own, garnering thirteen blows, and that generally the going was mild to the merry.

DAKOTAS TAKE OPENING GAME

Deacon Lohr's Tribe Gallops Home With Score of 5 to 1.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 4.—Grand Forks took the opening game from the Peggers here yesterday by the score of 5 to 1. Myers was hit rather freely, but succeeded in holding the Peggers when hits would have been the most effective. He was backed by sensational fielding and several chances to score were cut off by the great work of his support. Moe was effective in all but one inning.

NEW YORK WINS SIXTEENTH STRAIGHT GAME.

New York, July 4. — New York stretched its winning streak into sixteen consecutive victories by taking a double-header from Brooklyn. In the first game Marquard made a new major league record by winning his nineteenth straight game of the season. He was outpitched by Rucker, but proved strong in the pinches. In the first three innings eight Brooklyn men were left on the bases. New York won the second game in the eighth inning when a short passed ball enabled Schafer to score. In trying to head Shafer off at the plate, Erwin hit Snodgrass, who was at bat, with the ball, and Fletcher scored the winning run. The scores: R. H. E.

Louisville, Ky., July 4.—Louisville snatched victory from Toledo in the ninth inning after two were out, on Stansbury's single and a double by Lennox. Both Toney and James pitched in fine form. Beaumiller and Manager Hayden were ejected from the grounds in the final inning on the charge of protesting a decision by Umpire Connolly, who was escorted from the grounds by the police after the game. ANXIETY FOR NATOOSH.

Yacht Sixty Hours Overdue in Cross-Seas Contest.

Honolulu, July 4.—With the yacht Natoosh sixty hours overdue in the fourth biennial race from Los Angeles harbor to this port, great anxiety has been expressed here for her safety.

An appeal has been made to Rear Admiral Cowles, and his consent has been obtained, to allow the use of the naval tug Navajo in a search for the Natoosh.

The Natoosh was entered in the race by the Royal Victoria Yacht club of Victoria, B. C. She is owned and commanded by Capt. G. P. Ashe of Victoria. The length of the craft over all is seventy feet. She carried a crew of twelve.

The four yachts in the cross-seas contest left Los Angeles harbor June 16. The Lurline was 1a days 23 hours and 16 minutes on her way before she dropped anchor, the winner. The distance covered was about 2,600 miles.

ATTELL WINS OVER MARINO

Former Champion Leads All Through Ten Fast Rounds.

Tacoma, Wash., July 4.—Abe Attell showed his old time form last night by defeating Eddie Marino in ten rounds of fast boxing, in which the former champion led all the way. Marino retreated around the ring, giving Attell small chance to land effectively.

Attell demonstrated that he is in perfect physical condition by hardly drawing a long breath throughout the contest. He landed four blows to one by Marino, and made the Seattle boy look like a novice in the in-fighting.

The fact that Marino fought a great defensive fight and proved to be game, was all that saved him from a knockout. Attell had all of his old time speed and cleverness, but his right hand blows lacked steam because the hand was injured.

PATRICK SETS RECORD FOR HOUGHTON COURSE.

The record for the Portage Lake golf course was broken Saturday afternoon by R. S. Patrick, one of the Duluth visitors, who went over it in seventy-six strokes, far less than anyone has made the holes in since the relocation was made.

Miss Sutton Wins.

Cincinnati, July 4.—Miss May Sutton of Los Angeles, Cal., the national champion, won her first match in the Tri-State tennis tournament here yesterday by defeating Miss Ruth Kinsey of Cincinnati in two straight sets. Miss Kinsey won only one game of 12 played, losing the first set, 6-1, and the last set, 6-love.

Our Colonel Is Victor.

Marshall, Mich., July 4.—Our Colonel furnished the surprise at the second day of the Great Western races, winning the last three heats of the 2:18 pace after finishing far back in the first two.

After taking the first heat of the 2:23 trot, a broken line caused Tex to run away three-quarters of a mile, but he won the third and fourth heats, dropping the second to Rico June.

DOUBLE-HEADER WILL BE HOLIDAY BASEBALL CARD

This is to be a day of festivities here at home and one of the biggest features of the glorious, eagle-screaming occasion will be the evening baseball game between the White and Red Sox, the soiree being set for six bells.

In having the game set for the evening the management took the wishes of the fans into consideration. The game across the bay is set for this afternoon, so the contest here this evening will give many of the fans an opportunity to go to picnics and lots of other things, and then find time to attend the ball game.

It is to be hoped that the attendance here today will show an increase. The holiday crowds at Winnipeg have been something to make the men behind baseball in that town happy. Today is really the first holiday date here, and if there is the proper interest in the game the crowd will set a record for the season.

The White Sox are playing fine baseball, for that reason the enthusiasm in the team should be at a very high notch. Grand Forks and Winnipeg have two losing teams and yet the attendance has been corking there. Winnipeg is of course the largest city in the league and could be expected to lead in the attendance. To date the crowds at the Peg have kept the other teams in the financial running.

This evening's game will be the last at home contest until the return of the team from the road. O'Brien is anxious to take both of today's games from the yokels, thus giving him a substantial lead for the grind away from home. When you come to analyze it, the lead of the Sox is not any too large, for Winnipeg is coming into its own stride and is playing fast and consistent baseball at the present time.

With the break-up of the Minny league negotiations will probably start for players by the management of the Superior team. It is stated that if given the authority by the rather picayunish management of the Red Sox, Kid Taylor will grab some of the best of the players from several of the teams that have made up that derelict league.

Earlier in the season, or rather before the season in this league started, the leader of the Superior aggregation wanted to grab some of the best players of last year's Minny league. But the pennywise rulers across the bay said nay nay with emphasis and adjectives, and the result has been dum attendance and worse baseball across the bay.

It is believed that both cities will turn out today and give the best attendance of the season. Duluth certainly should come through for the Sox, their splendid playing deserving a swell gate. Superior is normally one of the best baseball towns of its size in the country, and it is unfortunate that the present policy has been followed over there the present season.

MANY WILL SEE FIGHT

Thousands Are Pouring Into Las Vegas for Johnson-Flynn Bout.

Betting Remains at 2 to 1; Many Freak Bets Being Offered.

East Las Vegas, N. Mex., July 3.—A just-before-the-fight spirit became evident about Las Vegas, several special trains bringing in companies of sport followers. The streets were well filled and a solid jam of the curious idled away the hours about Promoter Jack Curley's office, which was decorated with a big sign, "Johnson-Flynn Fight Headquarters."

Another group lounged about the betting commissioner's board across the square. Little change in the prevailing odds, 2 to 1 on Johnson to win, was recorded, although a variety of freak bets were offered. These dealt for the most part with knockdowns. Several offers at long odds that Flynn would not knock Johnson down at all during the fight, were posted, but they did not seem to be popular. No notices of "taken" followed the propositions.

The regular betting on the board is headed by the inscription "$10,000 to $5,000 Johnson wins." This is said to be the champion's own opinion of the probabilities, backed by his own money. Johnson added another chapter to his declaration of confidence today, according to his own statement, by telegraphing $5,000 to San Francisco to be placed on himself to win in fifteen rounds.

The fighters devoted the time to the usual relaxation in preparation for the time when they will enter the ring at 2 o'clock. Flynn was not in evidence about town, his quarters being located six miles away. Many of the Colorado Springs supporters were aboard the special trains which got in from Denver, Pueblo and other Colorado points. These new arrivals started at once toward Flynn's camp, and the fighter was the object of much attention.

Johnson gathered up his staff in the morning and was off across the country on a long motor trip. He whirled into town at the end of his ride, and was on view for some time to the admiring groups on the hotel porches.

While at the hotel, Johnson encountered Referee Ed Smith. A brief conference as to the gloves to be used followed. Johnson desired to use gloves manufactured by a firm in which he is interested, and no objection was offered.

The ticket office did a tremendous business, few of those coming on specials having supplied themselves in advance. The line of ticket buyers kept Curley's force busy most of the day. The promoter declared himself well pleased with the prospect as to attendance. He said that a good number of spectators are still to come from nearby ranches and mining camps.

Curley said he had made a reservation for one detachment from the cattle country from the South which would come on horseback 100 strong.

Las Vegas made elaborate preparations to care for the incoming crowds. Every private house everywhere within hailing distance of the town's center was placarded with signs announcing that beds and meals might be obtained inside.

The Unholz-Yoakum fight furnished diversion for the fight fans last night, and most of those in town tramped out to Curley's arena to see the match.

Baseball Decisions.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 4.—The National baseball commission decided that the Omaha club had purchased Player Davidson from Brooklyn and allowed the latter's claim of $750. In the case of Pitcher Priester, who failed to report to the Milwaukee club for two months after he had been sold by Chicago, the commission held that Milwaukee was not liable for the purchase price and they gave Chicago five days in which to dispose of him, without incurring liability to him for salary. For every day that he is retained thereafter, the Chicago club will be required to pay him at the rate of his 1912 contract.

Fight Was Very Slow.

East Las Vegas, N. Mex., July 4.—Rudolph "Boer" Unholz of Denver and Stanley Yoakum of Albuquerque fought twenty tame rounds to a draw last night in the arena where Johnson and Flynn will meet today. Tom Flanagan, manager for Jack Johnson, refereed. Champion Johnson was a spectator.

BOTH MEN ARE CONFIDENT

Rivers Says He Will Be Champion in a Few Hours.

Wolgast Says He Is in Splendid Form—Odds Come Down.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—With a skin several degrees browner than nature gave him, the effects of weeks of outdoor work in the mountains and on the roads, Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight of the world, shows that he is in the prime of physical condition and ready to defend his title when he meets the Los Angeles Mexican, Joe Rivers, in the Vernon arena this afternoon in a scheduled 20-round battle.

Rivers, too, was in superb form, and declared he is confident that this afternoon he will be the world's lightweight champion.

Wolgast retorted in kind in one of the usual ante-bellum statements, and asserted he had no fear of the outcome of this, his first battle of consequence since he was stricken with appendicitis last fall. His confidence seemed to be shared by a large number of Wolgast's admirers, who eagerly put down bets, not only that he would win, but would win in less than twenty rounds. The round betters generally guessed that the fight would end between the twelfth and fifteenth rounds.

Wolgast's last day before the work was spent in attending theaters, while Rivers did a little road and "gym" work in the morning to keep his weight down. He weighed 132½ pounds and said he would enter the ring at 132. Wolgast declared he would weigh exactly 130 ringside.

Referee Jack Welch said he would allow hitting with one arm free by the boy who was not holding on. If both were holding in clinches, neither would be allowed to send in any short-arm jabs.

The 11,000 seats in the arena have all been sold with the exception of the galleries, which were not reserved. Manager McCarey of the club stated the "house" would amount to about $51,000. Ad Wolgast is guaranteed $15,000 with a half interest in the moving pictures, and Rivers gets $8,009 for his share, with no picture interest.

Two preliminaries will precede the main event. The first will be between Tommy Maloney, and English middleweight, and Bob Braham of Los Angeles, for ten rounds. Peter McVey, one of Wolgast's sparring partners, and Dan Cullen of Los Angeles, will meet in the second ten-round preliminary at 103 pounds.

The first bout will be called promptly at 1 o'clock, coast time.

Betting on the championship battle was brisk with Wolgast the public choice at 10 to 6. Earlier, the odds were 2 to 1 and several large bets were placed at these figures. Rivers men are still demanding these odds, but were unsuccessful in finding takers. Even money at the ringside is freely predicted.

Athletes Entertained.

Stockholm, July 4.—Yesterday was devoted to training by the athletes and to social events by the Olympic representatives from the various countries. Col. Robert M. Thompson of the New York Athletic club gave a dinner on the yacht Katrina to the Olympian committee composed of the representatives of all nationalities. The dinner was served on deck and Crown Prince Gustave Adolph, Baron Coubertin, the American and British ministers, James E. Sullivan, the United States special commissioner and other prominent Americans attended.

Ross Wins at Golf.

Watertown, Mass., July 4.—Alex Ross, the Braeburn Country club professional, won the Massachusetts open golf championship for the sixth time. His score for the 72 holes was 295. Alex Campbell of the Country club finished second, six strokes behind Ross.

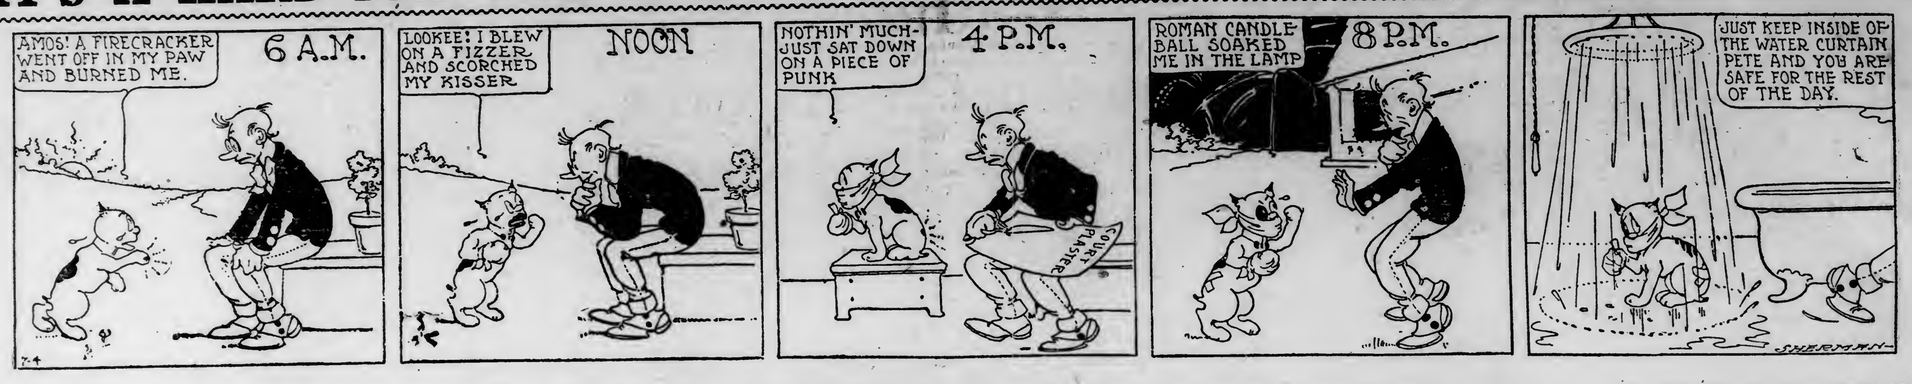

Duffy Defeats Brown.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 4.—Jimmy Duffy of Lockport had the better of Knockout Brown of New York in all but one round of a 10-round bout here last night. In the fifth Duffy closed Brown's left eye, and in the sixth opened a two-inch gash in his cheek.

Abe and Ad.

Tacoma, Wash., July 4.—Abe Attel said today that immediately after the contest with Eddie Marino tonight he would issue a challenge to box Ad Wolgast for the lightweight championship of the world. Abe said he would wager $10,000 on himself.

IT'S A HARD DAY FOR DOGS —By C. L. SHERMAN

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JULY 7.

Mark 10, 20-35: Malignant Unbelief.

THE CONNECTION.

It was probably in the autumn of A. D. 28, about the middle of the Period of Popularity, and His enemies were growing more active and ingenious in their pursuit of Him. His exposures of them had made them more furious and determined, because He was lessening their hold on their dupes, the masses, lessening their "special privileges." Since that first Passover, when He drove the officials out of the temple and exposed them for getting a "corner" on the animals for sacrifice and the banking privileges with visitors, their hatred of Him had grown. They began with secret mutterings and went on plotting and accusing Him of all sorts of things, such as blasphemy, in claiming to forgive sins, violating the Sabbath laws, despising fast days, associating with publicans and sinners and dissipating, in gluttony and drunkenness. Now they go further, as we learn in the lesson.

LESSON.

I.

The Charge of Blasphemy. 20-29.

"And the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread. And when His friends heard it, they went out to lay hold on Him; for they said, He is beside himself. And the scribes that came down from Jerusalem said, He hath Beelzebub, and, By the prince of the demons casteth He out the Demons. And He called them unto Him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan? And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house be divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. And if Satan hath risen up against himself, and is divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end. But no one can enter into the house of the strong man, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house. Verily I say unto you, All their sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and their blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme; but whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin; because they said, He hath an unclean spirit."

1. BLACK ART.—They came, at last, to charge Him with practicing the black art. The ground for this was found in His having power that the men of His times didn't have, and in His teaching truths that were so far beyond them. It simply gave His enemies their chance to say He was beside Himself and was in league with the prince of evil spirits, who bore different national names—Beelzebub, the Fly-god, among some, because the fly is such a pest that they appealed to the god that presided over the destiny of the pest; Satan among the Hebrews; Diabolus among the Latins, shortened to "devil" in English.

The idea was that one who could cast out demons must get the assistance of the head demon. The rabbis practiced exorcism and it was a source of income to them. For that reason they were jealous of Jesus. They had created a system of magic. By knowing the secret names of God and the angels, and by uttering the right cipher or name, or combining numbers of lines and letters based on them, or uttering mystic texts, or using talismans, amulets and curses, they could bring the unseen powers to bear on diseases and demons and all evils. So they claimed. But they said that Jesus did what He did, not by such good assistance, but by the aid of God's enemy, the head of the demons. That itself was the cause, or the necessary result, of an unbalanced mind. Thus they had their case made out.

2. EXPOSURE.—As usual, He completely routed them by showing the impossibility of it. He does that first with a direct argument, then with a parable to clinch it. The argument is this: Satan would never do what would defeat his purpose in doing that very thing. If he assists a man in defeating the demon whom he has sent to accomplish his purpose, he is no longer Satan. The one who defeats one of Satan's servants must first defeat Satan himself. The illustration is equally conclusive. One who robs a house when its owner is awake and on the defensive, can do it only on condition that he is mightier than the owner of the house. When Jesus casts out a demon, He shows that He is mightier than Satan, therefore Satan's enemy and not in collusion with him. This charge of blasphemy was worse than blasphemy. One who knows good is good and calls it evil, practices evil and calls it good, is in a hopeless fix. To say Jesus' work is due to Satan is to be guilty of sin against the Holy Spirit, who gave Him power to do such works.

II.

The Charge of Insanity. 30-35.

"And there came His mother and His brethren; and, standing without, they sent unto Him, calling Him. And a multitude was standing about Him; and they say unto Him, Behold, Thy mother and Thy brethren without seek for Thee. And He answereth them, and saith, Who is My mother and My brethren? And looking round on them that sat round about Him, He saith, Behold My mother and My brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My brother, and sister, and mother."

1. CUNNING.—There never was a more satanic and cunning piece of work than their attempt to reach Him through His mother. They had evidently gone to her and told her He was out of His mind. They had His unusual course and His teachings to give color to the charge. She knew He was not like other men and she felt all the disparity between His teachings and those of the rabbis. She thought perhaps it was true. No one can measure the agony of that mother, when she reached the conclusion that probably He, whom she loved, the finely organized, sympathetic soul, had gone too far. No one can measure the infamy of that method of assassination. Now the mother and her children have decided to come and take Him away. She and the four brothers seem to have lived in Capernaum, while the sisters appear to have married and settled in their old home at Nazareth. No one can tell the sorrow with which they talked it over and decided to take Him away.

2. DEFEAT.—As usual, He sent them away limping from the encounter with Him. It was a defeat in which He, as usual, released a great truth to the world. He made no attempt to assure them that He was sane. He simply defined the deep spiritual relation between Him and His disciples in terms of His relation to His mother and sisters and brothers. One who unites with Him in loving and doing the Father's will sustains a relation to Him, centering in the Father, which has in it all the potencies of all the human relations. In fact, all these human relationships seem only the shadows of what exist in the relations between Him and us. He is "all in all." Spiritual kinship is more powerful than physical. Those who enter into His state of mind as to God's will are nearer to Him than any human tie can bring them.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

When Jesus Christ came among men He found them nearly all revolving in one circle. There was but one center to human life—self. Man's chief end was to glorify himself and enjoy himself forever. By the whole gravitation of society, Jesus—as a man—must have been drawn to the very verge of this vast vortex of self-indulgence. But He stepped back. He refused absolutely to be attracted. He put everything out of His life that had even a temptation in it to the world's center. He humbled himself—there is no place in the world's vortex for humbleness. He became of no reputation, nor for namelessness. He emptied Himself—gravitation cannot act on emptiness. So the prince of this world came, but found nothing in Him. He found nothing, because He was the center of that life was not to be seen. It was with God. The unseen and the eternal moved Him. He did not seek His own happiness but that of others. He went about doing good. His object in going about was not gain, but to do good.—Drummond.

Remember that charges like these, in all the various keys of contempt or of pity, or of fierce hostility, have been cast against all innovators, against every man that has broken a new path; against all teachers that have cut themselves apart from tradition and encrusted formulas; against every man that has waged war with the conventionalisms of society; against all idealists who have dreamed dreams and seen visions; against every man that has been touched with a lofty enthusiasm of any sort; and most of all, against all to whom God and their relations to Him, the spiritual world and their relations to it, the further life and their relations to that, have become dominant forces and motives in their lives.—Maclaran.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1.—What is the best course to pursue when false charges are brought against you?

2.—Can you ever argue evil out of men's hearts?

3.—Does this story assume the existence of a real personal devil?

4.—Does persistent sin exhaust God's patience or one's power to repent?

5.—What is your personal relation to Christ?

DEFECTIVE RAIL CAUSE OF WRECK

Great Northern Accident Near Sharon Due to Broken Rail.

Washington, July 4.—A broken 80-pound Bessemer steel rail, primarily defective and seriously spit, was found to have been the cause of an accident on the Great Northern railroad near Sharon, N. D., Dec. 30, last, which resulted in the killing of five persons and the injury of eighteen others.

H. W. Belknap, chief inspector of safety appliances of the interstate commerce commission, in his report, after calling attention to the constantly increasing number of rail failures on railways, due generally to structural defects, says:

"Present specifications and tests, in so far as the detection of longitudinal seams is concerned, appear to be inadequate It would seem to be time that some definite action be taken toward eliminating this source of danger and securing structurally sound rails."

ARGENTINE MAY SEND ITS CADETS

Efforts to Bring Them on a Visit to West Point.

New York, July 4.—Gen. A. Drain, president of the National Rifle Association of America, and Col. J. H. Ewing, who arrived last night with the American team which competed successfully in the Pan-American rifle tournament at Buenos Ayres last May, said that efforts were being made to bring the entire membership of the Argentine military school to this country next year for a visit to West Point. Plans were also laid for a match in the United States in 1913. Gen. Drain was operated upon for appendicitis while away, but he returned in fair health. The returning team included Capt. J. A. Moss of the general staff, U. S. A.; Capt. W P. Hyde of the Tennessee National Guard, and Lieut. William C. Stoll of the Twenty-ninth U. S. infantry.

COL. McINTYRE MAY SUCCEED EDWARDS.

Washington, July 4.—It was stated at the war department yesterday that Col. Frank McIntyre, assistant chief of the bureau of insular affairs of the war department, will be nominated as head of that bureau, to succeed Brig. Gen. Clarence Edwards, appointed a brigadier general of the line.

BUSY WEEK FOR EDITORS

Association's Coming Visit to Duluth and Ranges Planned For.

Solid Week of Sight-Seeing and Being Entertained—Good Program.

The Minnesota Editorial association members who will take in the annual pilgrimage or whatever they care to term it, which will be to Duluth and hereabouts beginning a week from tomorrow, will have a busy time of it. Their scheduled itinerary shows that. They will be surfeited with sights, gorged with meals, smothered with attention and have other similarly agreeable things happen to them at the hands of Duluth and range people. The editors of the state have always had a hankering to head this way in their annual trips for they have always had a good time here and have seen things which give them new inspiration to boom their state.

The initial gathering of the association members will be at St. Paul which city they will leave at 9 o'clock on the morning of Friday, July 12, for Duluth, arriving here that afternoon at 2 o'clock. Half an hour later they will embark on the steamer America for Isle Royale, making the round trip in a day and a half, returning to Duluth at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening. Saturday evening and Sunday they will spend in visiting points of interest in Duluth, making the Commercial club their headquarters during their stay.

Sunday night they will entrain, as they say in military circles, their berths being ready for them at 9 o'clock, and they will sleep on the train for it will pull out at 5 o'clock in the morning for points on the Duluth & Iron Range road. It will arrive at Two Harbors Monday morning at 6 o'clock and there breakfast will be served, after which a visit will be paid to the ore docks and the railroad shops. Proceeding, the train is scheduled to reach Ely at noon, where, after luncheon the excursionists will visit the Chandler, Sibley and Savoy mines. Then the trip to Eveleth will take place the train being slated to arrive there at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, where before supper visits to the Adams and Spruce mines will be made.

At 7:45 that evening they expect to reach Virginia, where a meeting in honor of the editors will be held. The night will be spent in that city and after breakfast Tuesday morning the various mines and lumber yards in and around Virginia will be visited, after which the excursionists will leave for Chisholm, arriving there at noon and leaving for Hibbing at 1:30 where they will be shown the Hull-Rust and Mahoning mines and the Oliver Iron Mining company's shops. A meeting in their honor will be held at Hibbing and the night will be spent in the cars there.

Early on Wednesday morning the train will pull out for Coleraine where a visit to the mines at Coleraine and to the ore concentrating plant at Trout Lake will be paid; then they will go to Meadowlands, where a basket luncheon will be served and a visit enjoyed to the Duluth & Iron Range road's experimental farm. At 3 o'clock that afternoon the return trip will be made to Duluth, arriving here at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Wednesday evening the editors will be tendered a banquet at the Commercial club and on Thursday will be taken up the St. Louis river for a sight-seeing trip, being shown, among other things, the big steel plant now in process of construction. That evening a dance and open house will be held at the boat club in their honor and on Friday they will be given a chance to rest up and see the Head of the Lakes as they desire. They will leave for their homes on Friday evening.

LOSS OF LIFE MAY BE GREATER

Expected More Bodies Will Be Found in Regina Debris.

Regina, Sask., July 4.—Although the loss of life in the recent tornado was placed at twenty-eight, it is believed more bodies will be dug out of the debris on which thousands of men and teams are laboring.

Available cash for relief purposes has reached $75,000.

The centralization camp, which had 3,000 patrons on Monday, is rapidly diminishing in importance as families secure temporary shelter elsewhere.

The total property loss is now placed at $2,000,000.

JUDGE HANFORD'S BIBULOUS HABITS

Painter and Reporter Say He Was Apparently Intoxicated.

Seattle, Wash., July 4.—United States Judge Cornelius H. Hanford's alleged bibulous habits were further inquired into by the house judiciary sub-committee yesterday.

Dalton G. Wesley, a contracting painter, testified that one night about four years ago he observed Judge Hanford apparently intoxicated on the street near the federal building. The judge swayed from side to side, he said, and stopped every little while to steady himself. "I think he was intoxicated," declared the witness.

Fred Hildebrand testified he had seen Judge Hanford on half a dozen occasions when he appeared under the influence of liquor.

Robert E. Jones, a former newspaper reporter, said that on one occasion during the Holt murder trial several years ago he had seen Judge Hanford on the bench in what seemed to him to be a state of intoxication.

The judge sat with his head resting on his chest and an attorney entering an objection waited 15 seconds for the judge to arouse himself and rule on the motion. The witness said he had seen Judge Hanford apparently intoxicated on a downtown street one morning between midnight and 1 o'clock.

"The judge required about the whole width of the fifteen foot walk to navigate in," Jones testified. He described how the judge staggered on the sidewalk, "always making progress, but tacking frequently."

Damaging Testimony.

One of the witnesses who appeared unwillingly gave damaging testimony. He was Dr. Herman F. Titus, a graduate of the Harvard medical school and widely known as a Socialist lecturer and writer. Dr. Titus was asked if he had ever seen Judge Hanford under the influence of intoxicants, and said that one night last January he saw the judge in a street car. The judge, he said, was not in normal condition; his head fell over to one side and then to the other. On waking he stared ahead as though in a stupor.

"My judgment was then, and has always been, that he was drunk," said Dr. Titus.

Charles Zimmerman, bartender in a local hotel, testified that he had served Judge Hanford with liquor three times a week up to six months ago.

Judge Thomas Burke, Rev. Thomas A. Mathews, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, and Dr. Park Weed Willis testified that Hanford was sober when he attended a public lecture where detectives swore he was apparently intoxicated. Judge Burke, Hanford's closest friend for many years, testified that he had never seen him intoxicated, and that Hanford's manner had been mistaken for symptoms of intoxication.

MILL CITY GETS ROAST

Public Examiner Andrew Fritz Scores Municipal Management in Report.

Says Charter Is Violated and Finances Not Properly Managed.

St. Paul, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With departments overdrawn in their accounts, $47,794.24, the city's bonded debt increased more than $1,000,000 within a year and the mayor refusing to allow an examination of the vouchers for his personal expenditures, the city of Minneapolis is given a scathing by Andrew Fritz, public examiner, in a report just made to the governor.

According to statements made by the state official, the city charter of Minneapolis is being violated, and some practices being tolerated which are "vicious, unbusinesslike and should be discontinued."

The report of the public examiner, consisting of more than 100 pages, delves deep into the Mill City's financial condition, and while it finds accounts overdrawn and illegal warrants issued, he attributes the condition more to bad management rather than dishonesty. For instance, the system of sidewalk assessments where by assessments are made in advance of construction, is held to be exceedingly costly, from the city's standpoint. Mr. Fritz found a total of $31,804.52 due in 1911, which the city had failed to collect. "Aldermen of the various wards," he said, "secured cancellations of these assessments, without authority of law after the assessment had been extended on the tax lists."

The deficit in the permanent improvement revolving fund was found, amounting to $495,611.49. The public examiner advises the city to sell bonds to pay this deficit.

Had Deficit in 1911.

The total appropriation to the city council for 1911 for the current expense fund, was $1,745,824. A deficit hung over from 1910 of $122,374.64. The amount really available in 1911 was $1,623,459.36, and the total expenditures $1,697,389.56, leaving another deficit.

The mayor and council overdrew their appropriation in 1911, according to the examiner's report, $7,142.16. The fire department overdrew $39,798.29; the police department $553.17, and the health department, $13,975.76. A clause in the city charter prohibits any department overdrawing its account.

Referring to the $5,000 appropriated to Mayor Haynes, Mr. Fritz says: "This appropriation has been made annually, but the present mayor has declined to allow the examiner to inspect the vouchers therefor, in his possession. He, however, stated that he would make a report of the disbursements to the city council, before his term expires, which is accepted because I deem the fund a confidential one."

ST. CLOUD WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Husband and Daughter Badly Injured When Engine Hit Their Auto.

Baden, N. D., July 4.—Mrs. H. H. Dwyer was killed instantly and her husband and daughter, all of St. Cloud, Minn., critically injured near here yesterday afternoon when a Soo Line passenger train struck the automobile in which they were riding.

A curve on the track prevented Mr. Dwyer from seeing the train until it almost was upon them. He attempted to cross ahead, but was caught by the engine, the automobile being carried several hundred feet on the pilot. Mr. Dwyer and his daughter are in a hospital at Kenmare and may recover.

Lake Nebagamon, Wis., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A permanent organization has been established here known as the Lake Nebagamon Rod and Gun club. The officers elected are: S. P. Redling, chairman; D. H. Persons, secretary; and Gilbert Gunderson, treasurer.

The object of this organization is to protect the fish and game and improvements in general at Lake Nebagamon, stocking the waters, etc., and will have periodical target practice and trap shooting.

IRONWOOD BANKER IS HAVING HEARING

Probe of Charges Against Cashier Fitzsimmons Is Started.

Ironwood, Mich., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before a packed city council room with many unable to obtain admission, Justice of the Peace Shea yesterday began to hear evidence in the charges against Cashier Matt Fitzsimmons of the suspended Bank of Ironwood, charged with embezzling $123,000 of the bank's funds. There are many witnesses and the case will last several days. Only two witnesses were heard yesterday when adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

Prosecution Conducts Case.

Prosecuting Attorney Neill is conthe case. Otto Karste, son of the late owner of the institution, testified briefly and was excused that he might refresh his memory to furnish testimony later. Charles F. Thompson, a bookkeeper in the bank, gave rather sensational evidence bearing out charges that had been bruited about that the bank was improperly managed. The case is one of intense interest here and there is no little feeling against the accused, who is out on $10,000 bail.

IRONWOOD MAN DIES SUDDENLY

James Rowe, Old Citizen, Drops Dead After Band Practice.

Ironwood, Mich., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Rowe dropped dead last night as he was leaving the bandroom on Ayer street, of heart failure. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Sons of St. George lodges, and leaves one sister in England.

DULUTH MAN SPEAKER OF DAY

Akeley, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The feature of the Fourth of July celebration here was the oration in the afternoon at the picnic grounds of George D. McCarthy of Duluth, a member of the summer colony here.

Mr. McCarthy's speech was fiery, patriotic and full of enthusiasm. He told of the first Independence day and took his hearers back to the revolutionary period, telling many incidents of bravery and patriotism by the colonists of that day.

The speaker traced the progress of the country from the time of the Boston tea party to the present.

"Patrick Henry's statement is often laughed at and often burlesqued, but he voiced the sentiment of the colonists when he said it," stated the speaker.

"There's just as much patriotism today as there was then. The only difference is that we don't have the opportunity to display it. Uncle Sam is respected and feared among the other nations of the world and there is no opportunity to show the spirit of '76 or '61. If there were, thousands of men, young and old, would quickly prove that the sentiment is there, but is sleeping in time of peace."

WHEAT HEADING OUT.

Missing the children on her return, a search was started, their bodies being found in the water near the empty boat.

BLUEGRASS, N. D., BUTTER IS BEST

In Scoring Contest Conducted By State Dairy Department.

Bismarck, N. D., July 4.—The second scoring in the six months' creamery butter educational contest conducted by the state dairy department has been completed. There were more entries than in the May contest. The butter showed some effects from the heat, especially on raw material, and as some of the cream had been stored in cellars it imparted to the finished product a cellar odor. Some of the cleanest flavored goods was churned before the cream had developed a high butter flavor, but it resulted in a mild-flavored piece of butter.

Nineteen competitors scored 90 or better, as follows:

O. K. Wildgrube, Bluegrass, 93.50.
George Mieseler, Burnstad, 93.
L. A. Graunke, Youngtown, 93.
Gust Wahlin, White Earth, 92.50.
Henry Swenson, Carpio, 92.50.
Charles Tellman, Hanover, 92.
H. H. Hubbard, Dickinson, 92.
Iver Lovaas, Driscoll, 91.50.
H. R. Gieske, Medina, 91.50.
E. R. Herrington, Hensler, 91.50.
J. M. Hein, New Salem, 91.50.
William Engel, Bay, 91.50.
E. S. Freeburg, Kenmare, 91.50.
Walter Irgens, Powers Lake, 91.
John W. Huro, Gackle, 91.
E. J. Ehlert, Nesbit, 91.
Edward Lewis, Dawson, 90.

Young Mothers

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both she and her coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, involved, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby too is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

STOCK MARKETS CLOSED FOR DAY

All kinds of exchanges, copper, stock, and grain, as well as the brokerage offices in connection with them, were patriotically closed today in all parts of the country. They will be open for business as usual tomorrow, however. Had the Fourth fallen on Friday, instead of Thursday, there would probably have been two holidays, instead of one, as a single day of trading, between Sunday and a holiday amounts to little. Last year, when the Fourth fell on Tuesday, the exchanges and brokerage offices were closed over both Monday and Tuesday.

A BUSHMAN'S WITS SAVES HIS LIFE.

Harper's Weekly: The little Bushman of South Africa is not only small in size, but feeble in mind. Yet there is on record an encounter between a Bushman and a lion which shows the man as cool in danger and fertile in resource.

This Bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had his victim completely in his power, began to sport and daily with him with a feline jocosity which the poor little Bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road, leap back again into the jungle, to reappear a little further on.

The Bushman, however, did not lose his presenre of mind, and presently hit upon a device whereby he might outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct.

Aware that the beast was ahead of him, the Bushman dodged to the right, and, feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements.

When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification. Then he espied the Bushman peeping at him over the grass.

The Bushman at once changed his position, while the lion stood irresolute in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, vanished and showed himself at another point.

The great brute was first confused and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the position of matters, and that he was the hunted party.

The Bushman, who clearly recognized the situation, did not pause to permit the lion to recover his startled wits. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who now, in a complete state of doubt and fear, turned tail and decamped, leaving the plucky and ingenious little Bushman master of the situation.

THEATERS HELP THE POOR.

Daily Consular Report: There are in Paris theaters (the Comedie Francaise, Odeon, the Opera and Opera Comique) which received subsidies from the government, and forty regular theaters, among which are included the Chatelet, Gymnase, Gaite and Palais Royal, which receive no subsidies.

There are besides twelve large cinematograph theaters, thirty-eight cafe concerts, eight music halls, ten skating rinks, velodromes and circuses, among which are included the Magic City and Luna Park, both originally American enterprises; six permanent halls or dancing places, including the Bal Tabarin, Bullier and Moulin Rouge, and finally three classical concerts, viz., the Concert Lamoureaux, Colonne and the Conservatorie; in all 121 regular places of amusement.

From the report of the municipal administration for 1911 it appears that the total receipts collected during that year by these theaters, etc., were $11,341,159.

For the support of the poor the municipality collects a uniform tax of 10 per cent of the gross receipts of regular theaters and daily concerts, 5 per cent of the receipts from casual concerts given by artists or musical associations, and 25 per cent of the receipts of balls, races and certain other amusements. The total revenue thus derived for the poor fund in 1911 was $1,225,013.

The steady growth of Paris and the devotion of its people and foreign visitors to theatrical and musical entertainments are shown by the fact that the receipts of 1911 from these sources exceeded those of any previous year, not excepting even the years 1878, 1889 and 1900, when international expositions of world-wide interest were held in Paris.

HIS MAJESTY, KING OF SPAIN.

Oscar Frichet in Joe Chapple's News Letter: King Alfonso was a self-willed youngster, and even as a mere child he never allowed anyone to forget his rank.

Just after he had reached his 5th year he wandered proudly through the corridors of the palace of Madrid, having given his governess the "slip." A courtier who caught sigh of him called "Baby, come here." The boy monarch marched up to the courtier and looking him up and down with mingled infantile pity and scorn, piped out in a dignified tone, "Senor, I'm baby only to mother; to you I am the king."

On another occasion young Alfonso was found by an equerry climbing upstairs on his hands and knees. The equerry informed the lad that there was a guard of honor at the top, and if he (Alfonso) continued his climbing, that gentleman would be astonished and horrified. "Can't help that," said Alfonso. "I'm the king of this country, and if the guard doesn't like it, well—the king dismisses the guard." And the next moment the royal boy turned right round and began to progress backwards up the stairs like a crab.

Once a soldier found Alfonso playing in a mud puddle in the palace yard. "Sire, kings don't play with mud," said the man in uniform. "Come out of that puddle or I shall have to pull you out."

"This king plays with anything he likes," was the reply, "and you daren't touch me because people not of noble birth are forbidden to lay even a finger on his majesty, the king of Spain."

ON THE IRON RANGES

GREAT DAY ON RANGES

Virginia, Hibbing, Eveleth and Other Towns Make Eagle Scream.

Keewatin Is Having Most Successful Celebration Ever Held There.

The Fourth is being celebrated in old time style in the leading centers on the Mesaba range today, while Tower, Winton and other points on the Vermilion range are paying tribute to independence day heroes. The celebrations in Hibbing and Virginia are in the record breaking class.

Hibbing, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beginning with anvil salutes at sunrise today and continuing with the industrial parade and the patriotic exercises, at which Comptroller McCormick of Duluth was the orator, today's celebration of the Fourth has been a big success. Hibbing and Virginia will play ball at 3 o'clock, while tonight there will be a big display of fireworks and a dance in the armory.

Great Virginia Parade.

Virginia, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patriotism certainly was let loose here today in a manner that speaks volumes for the young and old's pride in the country.

The parade, with four bands in line, was a fine one. W. H. Eaton was marshal of the day and rode a prancing charger. There were many fine displays in the parade, for which prizes were offered. The parade was over a mile long and astonished both residents and visitors. The float that won great applause was that of the schools. It was on a big dray drawn by three teams and on it were thirty or forty boys and girls, giving exhibitions of domestic science and manual training. At the patriotic exercises W. H. McMahon was the speaker.

This afternoon there will be the athletic contests for the prizes printed in The Herald.

The grand Mardi gras festival will commence with the illuminated parade at 9:30 p. m. and when the parade has marched through Chestnut street and on Central avenue to the courthouse and back again the revelry commences. There will be hundreds masked and prizes are given for the best costumes and disguises by the maskers, both singly and in parties.

Keewatin Has Fine Time.

Keewatin, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most successful celebrations ever held in Keewatin was participated in by over 2,000 people today. The calithumpian parade was a feature that took the crowd by storm. The various athletic stunts were the best ever and the crowd at the ball game in the afternoon between the Keewatin and the Marble teams will be large. The fireworks display this evening on the school grounds will be elaborate, the latest noise makers and most unique sky rockets and roman candles being in the collection of explosives. After the fireworks display the dance in the village hall will attract the crowd. Hundreds of visitors from nearby towns attended the celebration and were loud in their praise of the genuine welcome they were accorded.

RUSSELL AGAIN LOSES SAWMILL

Trout Lake Plant Destroyed By Fire Along With Lot of Lumber.

Coleraine, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Russell sawmill on Trout lake was destroyed early yesterday by fire with a large quantity of lumber. There was no insurance and the property is a complete loss. It is not known how the fire originated. This is the second fire that D. D. Russell has had in the last two years. He lost his lumber yard at Bovey. These are severe losses for him. He will rebuild his sawmill at Warba, or Goodland, Itasca county.

Pioneer Woman Buried.

The body of Mrs. Henry Tinkey was brought here for burial. The interment took place at Lake View cemetery yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The services were conducted at the grove side by Rev. Thomas Grice. The Tinkey family was the first family in Coleraine. Two years ago they removed to a homestead near Hibbing.

NASHWAUK LETS $6,000 CONTRACT

Closes Deal to Lay Cement Walks With Combination Curb.

At a special meeting of the village council Tuesday evening the contract for the construction of cement sidewalks with combination concrete curb and gutters was let to Tweed & Latvala, local contractors.

The walks will be put in on Second and Third streets and the approximate cost of the job is $6,000. On the corner of Central avenue and Third street a cement retaining wall will be put in. The wall will be about eight feet high and 300 feet long. The council also let the contract for the opening of two streets in the Southern addition to Nashwauk to Frank Saccoman, although A. McWilliams was the lowest bidder for this work.

OPENING STREET TO NASHWAUK ADDITION.

Nashwauk, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Verity & Johnson, the contractors, have a crew of men and teams at work opening a street in the Hayes addition to Nashwauk. The contract for this work was secured by Verity & Johnson under peculiar conditions. When the bids were opened by Henry Breen of Hibbing, one of the owners of the addition, only one bid was received, and after opening the bid of Verity & Johnson other bids were asked for, with the result that the next bid was a trifle lower.

DISTRICT IS MADE INDEPENDENT ONE

Nashwauk and Keewatin School Management to Change Its Form.

Nashwauk, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a special school election held Monday evening in the high school building for the purpose of deciding whether the district would remain a common or an independent district, the vote cast was 49; 4 against and 45 for an independent district.

As no opposition was expected against an independent district by Nashwauk or Keewatin citizens, the vote was therefore light. The annual school election will be held July 20, when six directors will be elected, three representing Keewatin and three representing Nashwauk.

The six directors chosen at the annual election will then elect a treasurer and a clerk and decide on compensation, the treasurer will receive a monthly salary. The candidates for directors in Nashwauk are: Charles Latvala, Max H. Barber and P. H. Tvedt. The candidates representing Keewatin have not been definitely decided upon as yet, but Judge McEachin, F. V. Wakkinen and E. L. Cochran have been mentioned as possible candidates.

COW MOOSE DROWNS IN BARTLETT LAKE

Pestered By Flies, Monarch of Forest Deliberately Commits Suicide.

Northome, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A 2-year-old cow moose drowned itself in Bartlett lake a few days ago. Some boys playing about the island saw the animal on the north side of the lake with all but its head submerged in the water.

Later in the day they saw it take to the water and start swimming in an easterly direction, and as they watched it they saw it lower its head in the water and not raise it again. The boys secured a boat and went out and found the moose drowned. An investigation showed that its shoulders were raw from the war made by the army of moose flies.

It is probable that the moose, which evidently had a little one hid away in the woods, was completely exhausted by its effort to fight the flies and that its strength gave out as it attempted to swim across the lake. Forest Patrolman Ward hauled the carcass to shore and destroyed it by fire.

TO STOP AT NORTHOME.

Duluth Excursionists Expected There July 15.

Northome, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—An excursion train bearing Duluth business men will stop here fifteen minutes—arriveing at 3:24 p. m. and depart at 3:39 on Tuesday afternoon, July 15. The visitors will get the glad-hand of the people of the village at the railway station.

GAME PLENTIFUL.

Hunting Around Northome Is Expected to Be Good.

Northome, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Indications are that wild game hereabouts will be more plentiful this season than it has been for many years, and this is particularly true of feathered game. There will be partridges in abundance—it seems that every hen brought forth a brood of from nine to sixteen chicks and the young birds are thriving. Young ducks, too, are numerous and thrifty, while moose and deer are present in increased numbers. An effort is to be made this year to prevent the unlawful killing of game, and it is rumored that Game Warden Wood of the Hibbing district, has an eye on this locality.

REPAIRING SCHOOLS.

Buildings of District Around Midway Being Fixed Up.

Midway, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board is having the schoolhouse of the district repaired and otherwise improved. The Pine Hill school is to be replastered. The Maple Grove school will get a new floor and a new coat of paint, and the Midway school will get a new roof and other repairs.

L. P. Thorberg, has purchased a thrashing machine and a gasoline engine.

FORM WILSON CLUB.

Itasca County Democrats Lining Up for Governor.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Democrats have organized a Wilson-Marshall club with many local members and will take in members from all over Itasca county. They claim to be the pioneer Wilson club. E. C. Kiley, Fred Kling and other Democratic wheelhorses are behind the movement and expect to secure a large membership for the club.

Reports from all over Itasca county are that the nomination of the governors of New Jersey and Indiana by the Baltimore convention gives eminent satisfaction especially among the Progressive Republicans.

Hibbing Getting Into Line.

Hibbing, Minn., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local Democrats are overjoyed by the work of the Baltimore convention and propose to get into line for the candidates at once. J. B. Conners and other local Democrats are behind a movement for the organization of a Wilson-Marshall club here and a meeting to that end has been called for next Tuesday night.

KILLS HIMSELF TO ESCAPE PROSECUTION.

Stanton, N. D., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fearful of arrest for an alleged offense, John Simmons shot and killed himself at Golden Valley. The offense which he is alleged to have committed, had become known to his employer only a few minutes before the man gained possession of a rifle, and he discharged its contents into his head, death being instantaneous.

Killed By Gasoline.

Ashley, N. D., July 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Carl Zenker of Long Lake, this county, was killed by the explosion of a can of gasoline while she was endeavoring to fill the tank of a lighted gasoline stove.

GIRLS BATHE IN PAPER SUITS.

Boston Post: Gloucester—Two little girls, about 8, went bathing at Pavilion Beach, creating amusement by the novelty of their improvised bathing suits, when they went in, and even more by their lack of suits when they came out.

For a long time they withstood their longing to get into the water. Finally one got an idea, and together they rambled off to a sheltered spot, gathering up all the available newspapers and wrapping paper on the way.

Finally they appears. They were bathing suits, too. The suits might not have stalked with the styles from Ostend, but they would have won prizes for ingenuity and oddity.

They had managed to fasten together suits of paper, one even wore a cap over her curls, fashioned from a paper bag. Waists, trouserettes and skirts, gathered together in plaits and fastened with pins and splinters of wood, made up their costumes.

They received an ovation from the bathers gathered in the surf. In they plunged, frolicking about, splashing away to their heart's content.

But suddenly the look of delight on their faces deepened to gloom. Then, to the amusement of those who had watched the children, they scrambled for the rocks where they had hidden their clothes, frantically trying to cover themselves with the wisps of limp paper—all that the waves had left of their bathing suits.

But when they were arrayed again in their street clothes the look of satisfaction had returned to their faces. They were happy—they had been swimming.

MISSIONARIES MUST STUDY HARD.

London Daily News and Leader: The time is long past when the public view of the missionary was of a monument of misdirected zeal and incapacity. The modern missionary is quite a different person. He is usually a highly trained man of intellect and character, who, when he goes abroad, distinguishes himself by his courage and initiative.

Missionaries must be exceedingly adaptable. To go out with cast iron ideas on any subject, whether of church orgsnization or education or medicine, is only to court failure. Many people have broken their hearts because they have failed to carry out in every detail the systems they found so successful at home.

There should also be adaptability to customs, language and climate. For this reason they ought not to begin the work too late in life. Between 25 and 35 years are the best ages, though some who have gone out later have been very successful. The English as a nation, are not noted for our adaptability. They expect everyone to conform to their ways, but no mistake is more serious when dealing with uncivilized races.

A MARRIAGE BY PROXY

New York World: Her home was The Hague, his Boston. They fell in love by correspondence and exchange of photographs. From his cigar store in Boston Moses T. Timentel wrote to her to come to him that they might be married.

Her parents objected and insisted he should cross the great waters if he wanted to claim his bride. He pleaded the great rush in the cigar business, and the upshot was a marriage by proxy, the bridegroom's brother officiating. Then the fraulein hurried on board the steamship Rotterdam, which landed her at this port and in the arms of the husband she had never seen.

Passed July 1, 1912.
Approved July 3, 1912:

Your committee on light and water, to which was referred the following communication of Duluth-Edison Electric company:

"Duluth, April 29, 1912.
"To the Honorable Members of the Common Council of the City of Duluth:
"Gentlemen:
"In response to your resolution of March 25, 1912, I have taken up with the directors of the company the matter of making the city a price for the plant and property of Duluth-Edison Electric company.
"Recognizing the desire of your honorable body to treat this matter fairly and as a business proposition, and believing that there would be a great waste of money and consequent loss to the taxpayers of the city and to the stockholders of this company by an unnecessary duplication of our plant, and desiring as far as possible, consistent with the interest of our stockholders, to assist you in meeting the desire of those citizens who wish the city to own and operate a municipal lighting plant, I suggest that the city of Duluth and the Duluth-Edison Electric company enter into a contract by which the company will agree to sell and the city agree to buy the entire plant and property of the company at Duluth upon an appraised valuation to be fixed by three competent and disinterested appraisers.
"If this proposition meets with the approval of your honorable body a form of contract can be agreed upon and the officers and directors of this company will ask its stockholders for authority to execute the same at the next stockholders' meeting of the company which will be held not later than the annual meeting in July.
"Such a contract, if ratified by the people, would give to the city the entire plant and property of this company at its fair value and avoid the needless duplication of investment and the unnecessary waste of money of the taxpayers and our stockholders.
"Respectfully yours,
"A. W. HARTMAN,
"President, Duluth-Edison Electric Company."

Beg to report that it has had several conferences with the representatives of the company, at all of which your committee urged the making of a definite proposition of sale by the company. The representatives of the company, on the other hand, have seemed inclined to avoid the issue tendered in said communication and to divert negotiations to proposed contracts which were not contemplated in the communication to this council.
Your committee is of the opinion that no real progress can be made until the real value of the tangible physical property is known; that this value can be easily and accurately determined by any unprejudiced board of appraisers; that this value must be determined as a preliminary basis of definite negotiation and that practically the only question as to which there can be any bona fide controversy is the value of the intangible property of the company.
Your committee therefore recommends the adoption of the following resolution:

Z. D. SCOTT,
WILLIAM L. BERNARD,
FRANK JORDAN,
Committee.

Whereas, Under the date of April 29, 1912, the Duluth-Edison company offered to enter into a contract with the city to sell its plant and property to the city at an appraised valuation to be fixed by three competent and disinterested appraisers; and
Whereas, This council is of the opinion that as a preliminary to ascertaining the value of the entire plant and property, it is necessary to ascertain the actual value of the tangible physical property of the company, and that same can be easily and accurately ascertained by any board of competent and disinterested appraisers;
Now, Therefore, Be it Resolved, That the committee on light and water is hereby authorized and directed to make all necessary arrangements and take all necessary steps to accomplish the following:
That the said committee shall within ten days after the passage of this resolution, appoint one appraiser on behalf of the city of Duluth; that within ten days after notification of said appointment by said committee the Duluth-Edison Electric company shall appoint one appraiser; that within ten days after said appointment by the said company said two appraisers shall appoint a third appraiser; and in case they are unable to agree upon said third appraiser within ten days, the judges of the district court of St. Louis county, Minnesota, shall within five days after the expiration of said ten-day period, appoint said third appraiser; that said three appraisers shall fix and determine the actual value of the tangible physical property of the Duluth-Edison Electric company, omitting entirely all consideration of, and reference to intangible values.
Alderman Scott moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted upon the following vote:
Yeas—Aldermen Bernard, Curren, Gibson, Hector, Hicken, Hogan, Jordan, Krueger, MacDonell, Makowski, Miller, Neff, Phillips, Sandberg, Scott and President Hoar.—16.
Nays—None.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

FIGHT FANS AWAIT THE RESULT OF TWO BATTLES

(BY BRUCE.)

In various plaecs around the town there will be fight returns from the quarrels at Las Vegas and Los Angeles. In Duluth there is a great deal of interest in the outcome of the scrap between Wolgast and Jose Rivers, the Mexican. While there is a great deal of curiosity regarding the disposition of Mister Johnson in the affair with Mr. Flynn, it cannot be said that there is one-tenth part of the all absorbing interest that possessed the populace when Jeffries and Johnson fought, just two years ago today.

There never has been a world's championship heavyweight contest that did not arouse some degree of interest. But it is safe to say that the present battle is one of the least attractive of the many fights that have been fought among big men for the title of the heavy poundage class.

Those who are personally acquainted with Jack Curley hope that the gate will be large enough to defray the expenses of the nervy promoter. Personally Jack is a good fellow and his commendable nerve deserves some reward. It is only his ability that has brought the thing to the present stage, for there has been absolutely no demand upon the part of the public for the fight.

If Wolgast and McFarland would sign, just to show the difference, the public would be on tip toes to learn of every movement of the two fighters. That is just the difference. The general public is of the opinion that today's fight is going to be of an uneven nature, so that in the event of Flynn winning there will be the greatest upset of dope since the night that Jeffries, a novice comparatively speaking, a young Lochinvar out of the West, wrested the title from the freckled demon of the ring, Robert J. Fitzsimmons.

In the case of Wolgast and Rivers the interest is more pronounced. Rivers has made some creditable fights and then too he is as big as the champion—bigger, for that matter.

Personally, the writer will not forget the shock at seeing Flynn for the first time. It was when he was here this spring. It was in his room at the St. Louis. Jack Curley called to him and he came through into the sitting room, minus coat and sans an impression. He loked like a plump middleweight.

That is just about the way the public has taken the Pueblo fireman. If he wins—if he wins—there will be a long breath and a lot of hurried explanations.

In both of today's fights it would seem that the outcome depended largely upon the condition of the two champions. The "if" can be played for place show, straight across the board. If the doctors have not stolen the vitality of Wolgast, he should win. But operations are terrible things as well as expensive. In the case of Johnson, it may be that he is gone too far. In the opinion of the penner of these words, he has plenty on tap to lick the whey out of Jimmy Flynn.

Advices of the A. P. wire indicate that there is not much betting at Las Vegas. The same authority comes through with the statement that Rivers' money is rather timid at Los Angeles. This is the home of the Mexican, and if they won't bet on him there, where money is impulsive, where in the world will they cash on him if he wins?

There will be a lot of fellows around the wires today, but in the case of the Las Vegas affray, there will not be the interest of old.

Eight-Round Fight.

Memphis, Tenn., July 4.—Ray Temple of Milwaukee and Joe Mandol of New Orleans, lightweights, engaged in an eight-round fight before the National Athletic club here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Temple beat Mandol several weeks ago.

MANY SPORT FEATURES ARE PLANNED FOR TODAY.

Today's sport program is varied. There will be a multitude of amateur baseball games and there will be a number of golf matches at the Northland club. There will be a short-stop tournament during the afternoon, while this evening Mrs. T. F. Cole will give a flag contest for the women players.

There are a number of picnics planned for Duluth and at these festive gatherings there will be a variety of sports and athletic games on the program. Many of the young athletes of the city have been training assiduously for the past few weeks for some of the running races and other forms of athletic excursions.

Many of the local teams have out-of-town games for today, most of the small towns around the head of the Lakes having special programs of celebration.

FAVORITES ARE THE WINNERS

A Spectacular Drive Is Made By Geers With Bergen.

Lansing, Mich., July 4.—The favorites had an easy time winning two races in the second day of the Grand Circuit preliminary meet here. In the 2:19 pace, the sudden illness of Driver T. W. Murray, after his horse, Chimes Hal, had won two heats, made six heats necessary. Rodney, whom the official put up, could not keep the horse in his stride and Chimes Hal finished in the rear. Princess Patch won the last three heats and the race.

One spectacular feature of the day was a drive made by Geers with Bergen in the second heat of the 2:19 trot. The horse left his feet at the half and dropped from the lead into the ruck. Coming home, Geers sent Bergen through next to the pole, and in a fine burst of speed, the big horse in a fine burst of speed, the big horse went under the wire half a length in the lead.

It was simply a procession in the 2:12 pace. Murphy tried twice with Susie Bell, but Hanberry easily had the speed of the field.

Driver Murphy fell over unconscious at his stable just before the third heat of the 2:19 pace was called. Doctors were summoned from the stand and revived him. It was said he had suffered a bad nervous breakdown

Randall Outclassed.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 4.—Packy McFarland of Chicago knocked out Eddie Randall of St. Louis in the third round of a scheduled 10-round boxing contest at the Hippodrome park here last night. McFarland far outclassed the St. Louis boy.

Must Defend Licenses.

Boston, Mass., July 4.—Several of the aviators at the aviation meet at Squantum were served with notices yesterday to appear in New York on July 16 before the contest committee of the Aero club of America and show cause why they should not have their licenses suspended or revoked for flying at an unsanctioned meeting.

Railroaders Want Game.

The Northern Pacific baseball team of Minneapolis is after a game with the team here and in a letter to The Herald asks that the local railroad team be communicated with. The manager of the Duluth N. P. team is asked to communicate with William Hawk, manager of the Minneapolis team, care of the N. P. railway, Minneapolis.

AWAITING THE FIGHT

on the street corners. Everybody seemed willing to talk over the probabilities in a dispassionate and purely philosophical way.

There was a marked difference in the way the fighters spent the last hours before the battle. Johnson devoted last evening to the Unholz-Yoakum fight in the arena in which he was to meet Flynn. He occupied a front seat at the ringside and sat in bored silence while the little fighters pulled and hauled about through twenty rounds. From the ringside Johnson drove his training staff back to his camp in his automobile and went straight to bed. Today's fight apparently was not in his mind.

Flynn paid his first visit in several days to the town last night. He came clad in a brilliant red sweater which showed to advantage the lines of his huge chest and powerful shoulders. As he marched about the hotel porch, his ruddy, sunburned face and springy step indicating perfect health, he was followed by a mob of fight fans. His stay was short, however, and before darkness he was back in his quarters six miles away and visitors were discouraged.

While the exact weight of the men will not be recorded until just before the fight, Johnson probably will tip the beam at 212 pounds, and Flynn at 190 or thereabouts.

Dressed at Their Quarters.

The fighters did not enter the arena today until just before 2 o'clock, the time set for the fight to start. They dressed at their quarters and came to the ringside in automobiles. At the camps this morning everything was quiet and neither the fighters nor their various spokesmen put in an appearance until the day was well advanced. Neither man had anything to add to the statements of entire confidence they have made repeatedly.

A final "drying out" process was the order of business in the morning at both camps.

The men expected to rid themselves of a pound of excess weight and to prevent undue perspiration.

Indications this morning were for perfect weather with clear skies and a light, cool breeze sweeping the mesa, just out of town, where the arena stood within its canvas walls, strongly resembling a circus enclosure.

The canvas, which was placed in double walls, some ten feet apart to shut off the view of those not provided with box office credentials, stood about ten feet high, leaving plenty of space for the breeze to dip into the enclosure itself. The seats range back from the ring on a gradual slope, the last row of bleachers being about on a level with the ring, while the first row is all but on the ground behind "newspaper row."

Promotor Jack Curley had lost the strained look of the last few days when he appeared this morning. He wore a broad smile, probably induced by reports from the box office which kept open until midnight to accommodate late comers. It seemed certain early today he would have a good attendance when the men were started on their 45-round journey.

Probable Length of Fight.

The question of the length of the fight appeared to be the most absorbing one in the minds of the fight fans. Nobody apparently looked for a long contest. Only one bold plunger hazarded a guess that it would pass the 25-round mark and he selected the twenty-fifth as the last round. The others clustered their best bets on the twelfth and thirteenth rounds.

Johnson himself reiterated today his statement that he would win in fifteen rounds, and rumor had it that he actually expected the fight to end in the tenth.

Flynn had no remarks to make as to the length of the fight. "I am going to win," was all he would say.

As the noon hour approached, the sidewalk groups about town began to get into motion toward the arena. The drift of traffic that way steadily increased for the next hour, and thirty minutes before the fighters appeared the bulk of the audience had seated itself, removed its coat, lighted its favorite pipe, cigar or cigarette and settled down to gossip of fights and fighters.

Referee Ed W. Smith of Chicago was among the first of the ringside officials to appear. He said there were no pending questions of ring procedure to be settled and that the men understood fully the rules under which they would fight.

It was to be first served as to corners when the fighters arrive and the crowd waited patiently to see who would get his pick.

THE CONTENDER AT WORK

JIM FLYNN AND TOMMY RYAN BEFORE THE SPLIT WITH "TONSOLITIS" TOMMY.

WOLGAST IS IN GOOD CONDITION

Wound Where He Was Operated Not Likely to Cause Trouble.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight pugilist, spent the morning hours today at ease in his training camp within sight of the big Vernon arena, where nearly 12,000 men struggled for the privilege of seeing him defend his title this afternoon against Joe Rivers, the young Los Angeles Mexican.

Rivers, his eyes aglow with anticipation, remained at his quarters at Venice until an hour before the gong was scheduled to sound shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon.

If he won, he said, he would be the first of the Latin race to achieve the championship.

The formality of weighing, it was said, was delayed until the little fighters arrived at the arena after the last preliminary. Each came in an automobile crowded with seconds, pail-holders, towel-swingers and other camp followers.

Wolgast was examined this morning by several doctors and surgeons, all of whom stated that the wound made when he was operated on last September would cause no trouble.

The champion said he expected Rivers to play for this supposedly weak spot, and both he and Tom Jones, his manager, told Referee Jack Welch of San Francisco to watch the Mexican closely and see that he did not hit foul in his anxiety to reach "the tender spot."

"This is the first fight of any consequence I have had since the night I went to the hospital, the night before the scheduled battle with Freddy Welch last September," said Wolgast. "This Mexican would not have dared to fight me if it was not for the fact that he believed the operation weakened me. But I want to say now that this fight won't go twelve rounds and that they will take this young 'Greaser' out of the ring a busted phenomenon."

Many evidently held the same belief, as the odds shortly before the ring time still were quoted at 10 to 6.

Today's battle is the first Rivers has found in the lightweight division. A few months ago he mulled twice with the Spidery Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight title holder at less than 122 pounds. A short time after breakfast he weighed only a few ounces less than the lightweight limit.

A BIBLE TO UNDERSTAND THEM.

Boston Globe: One of the minor effects of Mr. Roosevelt's speeches and of Mr. Bryan's writings is to send some folks scurrying to the Bible. Both of these distinguished men frequently draw on the King James version of the Scriptures to point a moral or adorn a tale, and both find in the English Bible an inexhaustible storehouse of illustration.

At Chicago Mr. Roosevelt declared, "with unflinching heart and undimmed eye we stand at Armageddon and we battle for the Lord." Nobody today is absolutely sure what or where Armageddon is or was, for the only reference to it is in the mythical book of revelation, where in the sixteenth chapter it says:

"And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying: It is done. And there were voices and thunders and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great."

And the account goes on to narrate other dreadful things that happened at Armageddon—mouth filling and terrifying word—where Mr. Roosevelt says we stand today.

Not to let Mr. Roosevelt have a monopoly of Biblical references, Mr. Bryan remarks that he should have mentioned the parable of the workers in the vineyard (Matthew xx), which tells about the men geting as much for one hour as for a whole day's work. There was no wage scale, but a uniform minimum wage. That is, Mr. Bryan intimates, that Mr. Roosevelt is entitled to a full day's pay, although he has begun work on the progressive vineyard only at the eleventh hour.

Even if a house is not wired for electricity a woman may use a motor to drive her sewing machine, for a storage battery driven motor for the purpose has been invented.

NO FEAR AS TO POLITICS

Eastern Advertising Magnate Says Business Is Increasing.

Interests Tired Waiting for November and Go Ahead Regardless.

That business interests of the East are tired of waiting to see which way the cat will jump in politics and are going ahead with business regardless of the outcome in November, is the assertion made by "Sam" Pratt, one of the big advertising men of New York city, who arrived here this morning. Mr. Pratt and wife and their daughter, Miss Marion, together with Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Van Buren of New Haven, Conn., and T. F. J. Kelly of Newark, N. J., came up on the Anchor line steamer Tionesta and left this afternoon for Minneapolis, where they will attend the annual meeting of the Poster Advertising association of the United States and Canada, which will meet in Minneapolis at the Hotel Radisson during the first three days of next week. Mr. Pratt is a member of the directorate, which will meet on Saturday, and for that reason a longer stay in Duluth was not made. The visitors were the guests this morning of C. A. Marshall of the Lyceum theater, who conducted a quick auto tour of the city that they might see as much of it as possible during their stay.

Mr. Pratt, in speaking of business, talked with enthusiasm of conditions.

"Our business is always indicative of the feeling in the business world," said he this morning, "and I am glad to say that our business is excellent and everything points to a brisk resumption in all lines. It is a peculiar thing that business men in general curtail their advertising when business is dull and blow their money when it is good. This merely goes to show that the knowledge of advertising science has not yet been fully acquired by business houses, for if there is ever a time that they should advertise in an effort to get purchasers it is when business is slow. But only a very few can see the philosophy of this, or if they do, they lack the nerve.

"However, with us business has been growing steadily ever since about March 1, and has shown that in every line in the East and in fact in all parts of the country it is going ahead. I have been over a large part of the continent this year and I find similar conditions everywhere. In the South I was actually told that the only fear some of the farmers have is that the heads of oats stalks will be too heavy and will break down. Crop conditions all over were never better."

Asked as to the effect of political conditions, Mr. Pratt said that business men of the East cast about for a while to try to find where they were at, but failing in that, gave up the quest in disgust and determined to recuperate from the dull spell without further waiting for the political results. He says that but very little attention is paid to politics so far as the effect on the financial world is concerned, the only interest taken being as to the favorite candidate of the various individuals.

Mr. Pratt is interested in the Van Buren-New York Bill Posting company of New York, the New Haven Poster Advertising company of New Haven, Conn., the New Haven Sign company, the Newark Advertising company, the Newark Sign company, the Standard Poster Advertising company of Louisville, Ky., the American Poster Advertising company of Chicago, the Dallas Poster Advertising company of Dallas, Texas, the Waco Poster Advertising company of Waco, Texas, and a number of smaller concerns. Mr. Kelly is connected with the Newark companies and Mr. Van Buren with the New Haven companies.

SUPERIOR

Monthly Report.

A total of $106,044.81 was on deposit in Superior banks to the credit of the various municipal funds at the beginning of July 1, according to the schedule of City Comptroller W. J. Patterson for the past month, completed yesterday. The actual expenditures during June amounted to $31,226.50.

Drugs Resolution Passed.

The drugs and narcotics resolution adopted by Health Commissioner Gould several weeks ago was adopted at the weekly meeting of the commission last evening. The resolution gives the right of access to the record of any pharmacist's sales and a penalty of a fine for illegal sale of drugs.

Consider Roads' Offer.

The city in all probability will not accept the counter proposition from the railroads for the settlement of the street-ends case, which was presented to the commission yesterday. The members of the commission would not state the contents of the offer, but admit that the roads have changed the city's original proposition considerably.

Mystery Cleared.

The mystery attending the disappearance on last Saturday night of Adam Malczwk, a Polish laborer, was cleared up last evening when his body was found floating in the water near the Northern Pacific tracks at the Nemadjo river bridge. The man was last seen at 8 o'clock Saturday evening and it is believed that he fell off the bridge.

Young Italian Killed.

Antonio Barberie, 24 years old, died two hours after having been caught beneath the wheels of a Soo passenger train at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His skull was fractured and internal injuries hastened the young man's end. The young man was enjoying a day off and it is believed that he was hit by the train while attempting to cross the tracks. He died without regaining consciousness.

Noiseless Fourth.

Superior is enjoying a noiseless Fourth of July today for the first time in its history. Several picnics are being held at the various parks and this evening a fireworks display will be featured at one of the parks.

HIS PREFERENCE.

"On a bright, cold, sunny morning in the holidays," he said, "as old Uncle Cicero hobbled down the main street on his stick, a gentleman stopped him and said:

"'Now, Uncle Cicero, what would you rather have for a New Year's gift—a bottle of apple-jack or a pair of shoes?'

"'Well, sah,' said Uncle Cicero, 'you see, sah, it's dis way—Ah wears boots.'"

QUEER VISITORS IN MAINE CAMPS.

Philadelphia Ledger: If the stories told by Maine woodsmen are to be believed they entertain many queer visitors in camp during the winter. Among the most familiar guests may be mentioned the chickadees and bluejays, but these are by no means the most interesting callers.

One woodsman, it appears, leaving camp on Saturday afternoon, left his shack door open, as was his custom, so that the hedgehogs might come in and clean up the floor. Inasmuch as the principal items of the camp menu are baked beans, pork and other dishes rich in fats, considerable grease is spilled upon the floor in the course of a week, and the average hedgehog will at any time risk his neck for a bit of fat.

Just as soon, therefore, as this particular camp was deserted by the humans for a while the spiny gluttons would hasten in and plane off the surface of the floor with their chisel-shaped teeth, eating away all the wood that held a trace of grease. So on returning to camp Monday morning, the owner was enabled to sweep up and enjoy the luxury of a clean house for another week. About the only objection to this system lay in the fact that the camp must have a new floor each year.

The same woodsman tells how, late in February, a pair of white footed wood mice stole into his camp from their home in the forest and made a nest in acorns under the bunk. The first thing the little fellows did was to eat a hole in a bag of cracked corn and carry away more than a quart of the contents. The whole bag was sorted for the largest fragments, every one of which was denuded of its covering and freed from all grains of meal. The pilferings were put in a heap near the nest and covered over with strips of newspapers.

When these mice had been installed in their new quarters for about a week, they began to construct a luxurious couch. The outside was made of shredded newspapers and ribbons of birch bark. The lining was of horse hair taken from an old chair.

A NEW MAP OF THE WORLD.

Current Literature: Publication of the first sheets of the international map of the world, on the scale of one in a million, marks the beginning of a new epoch in cartography.

For the first time we are to have a map of the world on a uniform system, in which all the sheets are arranged to fit together along the margins—uniform in their manner of reckoning longitudes from the meridian of Greenwich; uniform in their manner of reckoning heights in meters above the mean level of the sea.

They will have the same method of indicating the relief of the land, the same conventional signs for towns and roads, the same styles of lettering to distinguish between physical and political features. In a word, the whole map will be written in the same language, without difference even to idiom, and he who learns to read one sheet may read them all.

Few realize the fresh importance acquired by the art of map-making within the last ten years. The beneficiaries on a large scale are the owners and users of motor cars. Only second to them as users of the products of cartographical science are the aviators. The flying machine is curiously dependent upon the map. An aviator must learn to read maps as he must learn to humor a petroleum motor or gasoline engine.

CREATING GOOD WILL!

ADVERTISING creates the asset of good will for any business, whether it be a huge corporation or the individual manufacturing plant.

Good advertising might be summarized as telling people what you have for them and what you do for them. The more you convince them that you are doing something for them—giving them service—in connection with selling them your wares, the more firmly you intrench yourself in their good will.

Good will is friendship. Advertising properly organized and executed creates a business friendship that not only lasts, but works for the advertiser in turn.—The Mahin Messenger.

TWENTY-FIVE VICTIMS OF THE LACKAWANNA WRECK IDENTIFIED

Total of Forty-One Persons Killed and Fifty-One Injured.

Entire Family of Buffalo Man Wiped Out By the Disaster.

Interstate Commerce Commission Orders an Inquiry Into the Wreck.

Corning, N. Y., July 5.—Twenty-five of the dead victims of the wreck yesterday on the Lackawanna railroad have been identified and sixteen still awaited identification today, eight in Elmira and eight in Corning. Forty-one persons were killed and fifty-one injured in the disaster.

But one additional identification was made in the early hours of the morning. Mrs. Louis Freidman of New York, whose body was taken to Elmira, was recognized there by her brother.

Of the injured but four, Miss Mary Brennan, James Griffith, Nellie Schandel, all of Newark, and Max Eismann of Jersey City are considered seriously hurt.

A pathetic case was that of William R. Laird of Buffalo, whose entire family, consisting of his wife, 5-year-old daughter and 2-year-old son, was wiped out by the catastrophe. His father also was killed. Mr. Laird, who is employed in a Buffalo printing establishment, left that city last night, knowing only that his father, George Laird, had been killed. He had received no information of the fate of the others and visited the local morgues searching for the missing ones. At the first place visited he found his lit-

IS DEPRIVED OF ELECTRIC POWER

Eau Claire Street Cars Also Tied Up By Storm's Effect.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 5.—Eau Claire is entirely deprived of electric power of any kind today, the result of a storm which wrecked about twenty poles carrying transmission wires from the power house of the Chippewa Valley railway to the Light & Power company yesterday. Local street cars and the Eau Claire-Chippewa Falls interurban service also are tied up.

The heavy rains, which lasted several hours, proved of inestimable benefit to growing crops.

IS CONVICTED OF ESPIONAGE

Former Resident of America Is in Trouble in Heligoland.

Leipsic, Germany, July 5.—Leopold Ellers, a native of the German island of Helgoland, but a naturalized citizen of the United States, was sentenced today by the imperial supreme court to four years in a penitentiary and six years' loss of civil rights on a charge of espionage.

Leipsic, Germany, July 5. — The trial of Leopold Ellers, a native of the island of Helgoland, began today before the imperial supreme court here. The president of the court decides, behind closed doors, the charge against Ellers, which is one of espionage in the Rhine district. Only the reading of the verdict will occur in public sessions.

Ellers is 32 years and a farmhand. He resided in America from 1902 to 1909, the latter part of the time in New Orleans, where he married an American wife, Mathilda Dittmar, who has since died.

He is accused of attempting to obtain secret documents and also the plans of the defense of Heligoland for delivery to the British government. A waitress named Olga Kling also is charged as an accessory.

DARROW CASE IS MAKING PROGRESS

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—The prosecution in the trial of C. S. Darrow for jury bribery expected to rest sometime today. Mrs. Robert F. Bain, wife of the first sworn juror in the McNamara trial, was expected to have a brief cross-examination when the trial was resumed. Her husband was scheduled to follow her on the stand to tell the story of his corruption by Bert H. Franklin. According to the plans of the defense, the case in Darrow's behalf will be opened with the reading of a half hundred depositions testifying to the high reputation of the defendant. Among them are depositions from several United States senators and numerous jurists and lawyers of prominence. The reading of the depositions is expected to consume about two days.

HEADS THE SOCIALIST TICKET IN NEW YORK

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL, Who Has Been Named by the Socialists as Their Candidate for Governor of New York.

STRIKE IS SPREADING

Rioting at Havre and Bordeaux By Seamen and Dock Laborers.

Several Excited Women Wearing Red Sashes Among the Ringleaders.

Havre, France, July 5.—The strike of seamen and dock laborers, which rapidly is spreading throughout France, was accompanied late last night by serious rioting here. A number of strikers took possession of a lock steamer and, when expelled and driven off by the police, gathered again at the docks and met the police and a detachment of infantry with showers of missiles.

Many of the soldiers and police were injured by bricks hurled from windows of houses in adjacent streets.

The strikers finally were forced to retire but retreated slowly, erecting barricades in many of the streets. They broke all the windows in the two principal police stations of the city.

Among the ringleaders of the strikers were several excited women wearing red sashes.

Fight at Bordeaux.

Bordeaux, July 5.—The strike of the dockers here in sympathy with the seamen of other ports has been only partially effective. A serious fight took place today between strikers and policemen on the arrival of the steamship Magellan from South America. Several policemen were hurt.

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN IS GIVEN THE SLIP

Clever Move By Former Premier in Chinese Republican Cabinet.

Tien Tsin, July 5.—Tang Shao Yi, the former premier in the Chinese Republican cabinet, cleverly gave an alleged would-be assassin the slip today and remains here for the moment in temporary safety, while his would-be slayer is on board ship on the way to Shanghai.

Tang Shao Yi with his family already were on board the steamer when the former, Taotai Ching Chun, approached and introduced to the ex-premier a friend named Wang Cheng Hsiang. The latter promptly demanded to know why Tang Shao Yi had run away from Panking at the same time presenting two pistols. Tang Shao Yi's explanation outwardly was well received by Wang Cheng Hsiang, who, however, announced that he intended to accompany Tang Shao Yi to Shanghai.

Wang Cheng Hsiang then retired to his berth, and as soon as his back was turned, Tang Shao Yi and his family sought safety by slipping off the steamer and returning to land. The steamer departed almost immediately afterwards for Shangha.

PRESIDENT TAFT IS ENJOYING HIS VACATION.

Beverly, Mass., July 5.—President Taft adhered today to his determination to attend strictly to the business of vacation. The president was out early on the links at Myopia with Johns Hays Hammond.

President Taft said he had called to see Secretary of the Navy Meyer, who is ill with a slight attack of typhoid fever at his home at Hamilton, Mass., and was glad to find him improved.

Miss Helen Taft and Robert Taft have joined the president and Mrs. Taft at Uarramatta and expect to remain most of the summer.

RAINS MONEY FOR FARMERS OF THREE WESTERN STATES

WHENCE CAME THE MONEY?

La Follette Again Asks Roosevelt to Publish His Expense Account.

Says Campaign Was Marked By Riotous Expenditure of Money.

Madison, Wis., July 5.—United States Senator La Follette, in a printed article today, asks Col. Roosevelt for the second time to publish his expense account or else "a candid statement of his reasons for thus spurning one of the basic principles of public morality and political decency."

When La Follette made public a statement of his campaign receipts during the Ohio primary contest, he called upon Roosevelt to do likewise. There has been no response.

La Follette says in part:

"Big business, with big money derived from unfair privileges, is ever in politics and is ever ready to place its funds back of a likely winner, who is either subservient in the sense that a chisel is subservient to the hand of the carpenter or serviceable to the extent that he is 'harmless' in performance. Special privilege puts money into political campaigns by way of investment. From such investments, it demands substantial rewards. It is to protect the public interests from rewards such as these, conceived in twilight and consummated in secret, that

CONVENTION OF KEYSTONE PARTY

Faction Hopes to Name State Ticket for Fusion Later.

Philadelphia, July 5.—The Keystone party, the independent political organization of Pennsylvania, will hold its state convention here this afternoon, and it is the expectation of one faction in the party to name a state ticket with a view of later forming a fusion agreement with the Democrats.

One faction of the Keystone party, known as the Flinn faction, and said to be in favor of entering the national campaign and naming presidential electors favorable to Theodore Roosevelt, will seek to have the convention postpone action until after the "third party" convention at Chicago.

Showers in Dakotas and Minnesota Are Worth Millions.

Came Just at the Time That They Were Most Needed.

Will Mean Greater Prosperity for Duluth During Coming Fall.

It rained money in the Dakotas and Minnesota yesterday and today.

The area of rainy weather conditions that has been moving eastward from the Rocky mountain region up the drouth-threatened spring wheat fields of the American Northwest and the Canadian West has been worth untold millions of dollars to both countries. To Duluth, as one of the main business centers of the Northwest, this weather has been a blessing that is well-nigh invaluable. If the rain saved only 1,000,000 bushels of wheat it meant $1,000,000 to the farmers. It probably saved many times that.

If the dry weather had continued for a few weeks longer, even a few days longer, the damage to the crops in both countries would have been serious indeed. It would have meant short crops, hard-up farmers, dull sales at the country stores and dull times for the Duluth jobbing houses. All this would spell nothing less than hard times. All kinds of business would have been more or less affected.

August L. Riesberg, manager of a flour mill at Elizabeth, Otter Tail county, who happened to be visiting on the Duluth board today, said the rains

TWO AVIATORS FALL TO DEATH

Capt. Loraine and Sergt. Maj. Wilson Killed in England.

Salisbury Plain, Eng., July 5.—Capt. E. B. Loraine and Sergt. Maj. Wilson of the army flying corps were killed this morning while flying over the great military encampment here. They were taking their usual early morning practice, and the aeroplane had reached a height of 400 feet when the machine lost its balance, turned over and fell to the roadway.

Sergt. Maj. Wilson was killed instantly, but Capt. Loraine lived a short time, although he was unconscious when picked up.

HOW CHICAGO WAS CHOSEN

Meeting Place of Committee Changed at Wilson's Suggestion.

Governor Wants All the Members to Attend in Person.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 5.—Further details came out today of how Chicago, instead of New York, was selected as the meeting place of the Democratic national committee, July 15 at the suggestion of Governor Wilson. Although several Eastern committeemen had agreed upon New York, the governor asked that Chicago be selected after he had been advised by Southern and Western committeemen that many members would be represented by proxy at New York. These men, he was told, could and would be present at Chicago.

When Norman E. Mack, in his capacity as chairman, first announced that New York had been selected, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina and two Western committeemen went to Mr. Mack.

"It's a poor choice," they told him. "The Western members won't have time to get home and come back to New York."

"Of course," Mr. Mack replied, "I have no choice but to announce the decision as chairman. Most of the men tell me they prefer New York."

So Mr. Daniels laid the case before Governor Wilson.

"One-third of the committee will be represented by proxy if we meet in New York," he told the nominee.

"That would not be right," commented the governor. "We want them in person. Who would hold those proxies?"

"We don't know," said Mr. Daniels.

"Then it won't do," said the governor. Presently the governor sent for Mr. Mack and suggested the change.

CUYUNA NORTHERN AND SOO FIGHT

Former Steals March and Lays Its Tracks at Midnight.

Brainerd, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The struggle between the Cuyuna Northern railway and the Soo Line is becoming acute in mining territory near Deerwood from which point the Cuyuna Northern has condemned a right-of-way to the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs company's mine, six miles north.

Following the arrest of right-of-way laborers by a land owners' agent in section 10 near Crosby, the Cuyuna Northern at midnight threw its tracks across a point ten feet west of the present terminus of the road north of Ironton, thus stealing a march on its rivals.

The Soo, not to be outdone, has a corps of surveyors in the field running lines to sections 9 and 17, township 46, range 29, west of Ironton, and all indications point that the Soo will run due west from Ironton to Brainerd. Much excitement is evident at Ironton and all parts of the Cuyuna iron range.

INVASION OF SONORA BY THE REBELS MEANS RAMBLING CAMPAIGN

Guerrilla Warfare Takes Place of Organized Revolution in Mexico.

Destruction of Bridges Delays Advance of the Federal Forces.

Juarez Now Only Important Point Under Control of Rebels.

Casas Grandes, Mex., July 5.—Rebels under Gen. Salazar, commanding the vanguard of the insurrecto army, have begun to terrorize this region. Tension among Americans and foreigners was increased today with the imprisonment of C. E. Hollingsworth, manager of the general store of Kettlesen & Degetau here, when he refused to give the rebels supplies. They looted the store.

El Paso, Texas, July 5.—Organized revolution in Mexico, insofar as it simulated a military campaign of concentrated forces was by today's movement of the rebel army shown to have ended, and in its place there was substituted a guerrilla warfare, threatening widespread devastation in Northwestern Mexico.

Five troop trains bore the retreating insurrectos from the vicinity of Chihuahua City to Juarez, opposite here, and before the day was over it was expected most of the rebels would be sent southwest from Juarez, a distance of seventy-five miles to Casas Grandes, from which point it was intended to effect an entrance to the rich mining state of Sonora.

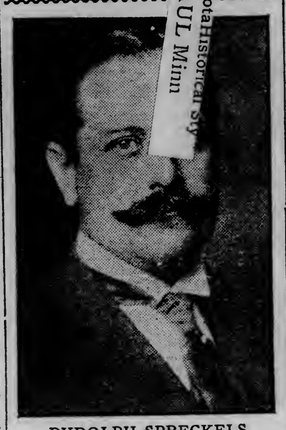

Having abandoned Chihuahua to the federals, the rebels destroyed all bridges between Bachimba, where the last battle occurred, and Sauez, thirty miles north of Chihuahua, the small station at which the rebel outposts now are gathered. The evacuation of Chihuahua means that the zone of rebel control will be great diminished, Juarez being the only important point that remains.

Gen. Pascual Orozco, the rebel chief, spent the night at Sauez, but was expected in Juarez today to direct the movements of various bands into which

GROWTH OF COMMERCE

Marked Improvement in Volume of Traffic on Great Lakes.

Increase of 24 Per Cent in Freight Shipments in May.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, July 5.—The volume of domestic commerce on the Great Lakes during May of the present year shows a marked improvement when compared with that of May, 1911, according to reports received by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The freight shipments during the month aggregated 10,891,220 short tons, an increase of 24 per cent over the shipments a year ago. This increase was due mainly to the larger iron ore shipments; the shipments of other leading articles except lumber, namely, flour, grain and coal, having declined. The volume of traffic through the Sault Ste. Marie canals and the Detroit river likewise shows a marked increase in May of the present year when compared with May, 1911. The same improvement is also shown in the vessel

ONE KILLED AND TEN WOUNDED

Panama, July 5.—The report of a serious brawl between the Panama police and a number of United States marines while the Americans were celebrating the Fourth of July last night is confirmed. A fight occurred late in the evening, with the result that one American, R. W. Davis, was killed, two American marines and six soldiers belonging to the Tenth Infantry regiment, as well as two American civilians, wounded. The wounded men are now in Ancon hospital. Two Panama policemen also were wounded.

The United States legation is investigating the affair.

Report Requested.

Washington, July 5.—Maj. Smedley D. Butler, commanding the marines at Camp Elliott, Panama City, has reported that eight soldiers of the Tenth infantry, two marines and one civilian were seriously wounded yesterday in a fight with Panama police. He reported two of the infantrymen will die. Maj. Gen. Wood, chief of staff, has sent a telegram to the commander of the Tenth infantry requesting a full report on the incident.

RAILROAD IN CHILE DESTROYED BY STORM.

Lima, July 5.—The railroad between Tacna and Arica, in Chile, has been destroyed by a storm, according to dispatches received here. A large number of people were injured.

DIED FROM EATING TORPEDO FOR CANDY.

CAMORRISTS ARE NOW VERY HUMBLE

Show Most Profound Respect for Judges and Jury.

Viterbo, Italy, July 5.—The members of the Camorra, who have been on trial here for nearly two years, have now assumed a most humble attitude and show the most profound respect for the judges and jury, placing themselves entirely in the hands of the court which shortly is to deliver its verdict.

The presiding judge today read a long list of questions for the jury to answer and then began a summing up of the case.

ESCANABA MAN KILLED ON TRACK

College Man Meets Death By Freight Engine at Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 5.—George K. Hughes, of Escanaba, Mich., said to be a college man working here for a track construction company during vacation, was killed today by a freight engine on the New York Central. Hughes was about 24 years old.

LORIMER CASE NEARING VOTE

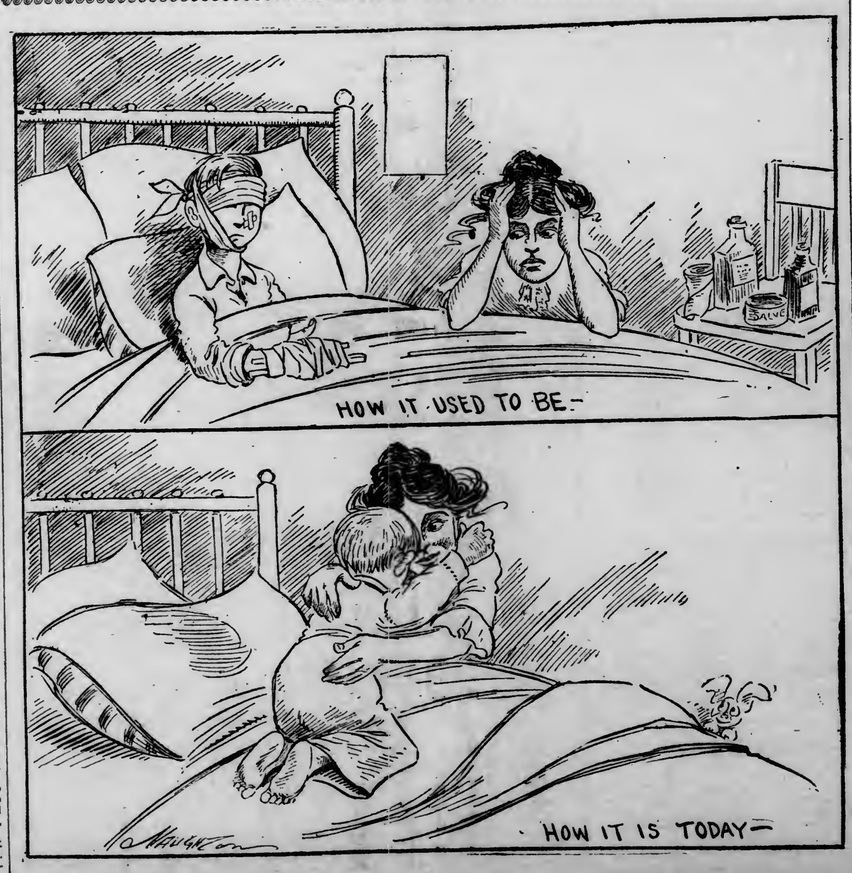

Probably Not Be Reached Before Middle of Next Week.

Washington, July 5.—With Senator Myers of Montana ready to speak on the Lorimer election case today, the contest over the junior Illinois senator's right to his seat entered its last stage.

The senate has agreed to vote on the case finally on the "legislative day of July 6," but as many speeches are to be made, including one by Senator Lorimer, the vote probably will not be reached before the middle of next week.

Soon after the senate met today, however, Senator Myers waived his right to speak that the naval appropriation naval bill might be taken up, and will speak tomorrow.

THE DAY AFTER.

OFFERED STONE FROM DU LHUT'S RESIDENCE

Duluth has been offered a small stone from the wall of the house which was occupied by Daniel Greysolon, Sieur du Lhut, in Montreal in the seventeenth century.

The wall was discovered when an excavation was made for a new building.

The offer is made by W. D. Lighthall, president of the Antiquarian Society of Montreal, who states that he has been able to get some pieces as relics. The letter was addressed to Mayor McCuen, who will probably refer it to some society or organization interested in the matter.

Duluth, the leading city of the Northwest, is named for the Sieur du Lhut, the first white man to set foot upon the site of the metropolis.

BLIND GIRL CARRIES OFF HIGH SCHOOL HONORS.

Baltimore, Md., July 5. — To have been told by every professor save one that she could not win a degree; to take the regular college course, including gymnasium work; to have stood always among the first in her class and finally to have captured a golden Phi Beta Kappa key, the symbol of scholarly work, is the record of Miss Mary Melvin, who received her degree from Goucher college.

Miss Melvin has been blind since she was 6 years old. She has plans. "One whole year I shall have to myself," she said, "just reading and doing what I please. Then I shall do graduate work in economics and sociology, probably at Johns Hopkins. Then," she admitted slowly, "I'm going to try to write."

Miss Melvin is an advocate of votes for women. She has been engaged by two leagues, the Just Government league and the Equal Suffrage league, to make open air addresses during July and August. She has spoken several times to large audiences on the eastern shore, where her mother is a suffrage organizer.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

The safe and sane Fourth proved its own best recommendation yesterday.

Many missed the roar of giant firecrackers, the booming of cannon and the sharp cracking of smaller explosives which had become characteristic of the day, but this was more than equalized by the lack of accidents. Duluth is not appearing in the dispatches today, as are scores of other cities, with accounts of heads bdown off, hands mangled or eyes blinded.

Two injured people were received at the hospitals, but neither of the accidents was due to celebration activities in the pyrotechnical line. More remarkable still, the fire department did not receive a single alarm, not a man or a team being summoned to squelch as much as a bonfire. This is the first time as far back as men on the department can recollect that Duluth has had a fireless or fire-alarmless Fourth of July. Last year the department responded to four alarms, and in previous years the number ran much higher, causing property losses running into many thousands of dollars. Practically all of them were caused by firecrackers or fireworks.

Although the homes of the city were practically deserted during most of the day and until far into the evening, but one robbery had been reported to the police up to noon today. That was the looting of the residence of E. S. Farrell, where about $200 worth of clothing and jewelry was taken.

Last evening Francis Kettler, the 5-year-old son of the steward of the steamer Chester Congdon of the Tomlinson line, had a remarkable escape from death. While playing on the top of the boiler deck of the ship he toppled off backwards, striking the steel deck on the back of his head. He sustained a concussion of the brain and was taken to St. Mary's hospital. He will recover. The boat will sail this afternoon or tomorrow, and it was expected this morning that he would be able to accompany his parents on the trip.

The other injured man received at St. Luke's hospital was Carl Johnson, who leaped head first over the Garfield avenue viaduct last night, as recounted in another column.

Many comments were heard last evening and today on the exemplary conduct of the people on the streets. No one was annoyed by drunken men; no fights were seen or reported on any of the downtown streets; there were no runaways and the big crowds were handled in all parts of the city without any serious difficulty.

The police received no reports of pockets being picked. The safe and sane Fourth does not appeal to the pickpockets as being productive of the throngs which will be liable to give him a profitable field for his operations. Consequently he seeks other stamping grounds, as do other crooks who expect to make good hauls on holidays as well as on the days the circuses come to town.

Altogether it was a model Fourth of July and the authorities were profuse in their praise of the ordinance making it so.

* * *

Mrs. Stephen Marble of Boyne City, Mich., has written the police asking them to aid her in locating Mrs. Rose Crosson, believed to be in this city. She states that she may be known as either Rose or Grace. Mrs. Marble states that a relative is very sick and that it is important that she be found. Mrs. Crosson left Boyne City last December with her two sons, Cecil and Fred, 7 and 13 years of age, respectively. With the assistance of the police they were traced to the Children's home at Owatonna, Minn., but all efforts to locate their mother at that time proved futile. During the winter Mrs. Crosson wrote a letter stating that she was down-hearted and discouraged and that unless some one came to her aid she would drown herself. Money was forwarded to her in this city, but she never received it. It was returned to Mrs. Marble by the postal authorities. Since that time nothing has been heard from her directly, but a Duluth woman visiting at Boyne City said that she had seen her on the streets in Duluth.

Julius Mezrowski was arrested this morning on a warrant charging him with having violated the employment office ordinance. It is claimed that he charged Oscar Beckley $2 for a job without having first secured an employment license from the council. Julius claims that he is working for a local employment agent as a clerk and entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned in police court this morning. He will be tried tomorrow morning. His ball was fixed at $50.

* * *

Carlo Koneciewicz pleaded guilty to trespass in police court this morning. He was arrested as he was carrying away some boards and wire from the plant of the Ouellette & Baxter company in the West end. The stuff was of small value and he was released on paying a fine of $3.

* * *

Harold Armstrong, inventor and manufacturer of a "cannon" which caused his arrest yesterday morning on a charge of violating the safe and sane Fourth ordinance, received a suspended sentence in police court this morning. The "cannon" was a lead pipe sunk in a chunk of concrete and he was letting the world know that the glorious Fourth was here when the police interfered. The court did not confiscate the affair and he carried it out of the courtroom with him. A number of toy pistols were gathered in the by the police yesterday, but their owners were not arrested.

* * *

Ben Durant, colored, was discharged in police court this morning when he appeared to answer the charge of assault preferred against him by Alphonzo Harris, colored. It appeared that Alphonzo has sought other parts and was not present to prosecute. The chances are that Alphonzo will stay away, as a bench warrant charging him with contempt has been issued for him and he will be quite likely to find himself in the tolls should be put in an appearance.

* * *

Victor Salo pleaded not guilty when he was brought into police court this morning to answer a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The police reported that he was abusing his wife while he was under the influence of whiskey. He will be tried this afternoon.

* * *

A warrant calling for the arrest of sixteen men was issued this morning by James A. Wharton, prosecuting attorney at police court. It is one of the largest batches which has been named in a single warrant which has ever been issued from the police prosecutor's office.

No, don't get nervous. Your name isn't in the bunch. They're all foreigners who can't read English and do not reside in Duluth.

They are wanted for violating the state employment laws. The sixteen were hired at the Soo by a Duluth employment agent to take jobs at Taconite, on the range. He advanced them each over $16 to pay their way to the scene of their future labors.

They came here without trouble. But when the time came for them to board the train for the range not one materialized. They had all "jumped" their contracts. It is not known whether or not they left the city, but they will be haled into police court as soon as they can be located.

* * *

Sam Opperson, who pleaded guilty in police court yesterday to having been drunk and disorderly, paid a fine of $20 and costs in police court this morning. The police reported that he was abusing a woman with whom he was boarding. An unloaded revolver was found in the room when he was arrested.

* * *

Half a dozen men were arrested in a room on West Superior street between Sixth and Seventh avenues yesterday while engaging in a little game of "draw." The limit is said to have been a nickle. All of them pleaded not guilty to gambling when they were brought into court today. Their trials were set for this afternoon. Bail in each case was fixed at $5.

Notify Health Authorities.

Health authorities have been notified of an octopus which is on exhibition at the carnival grounds, Broadway and John avenues. The animal is dead and the stench emanating from the tent is almost unbearable, according to several people who went inside to view the animal. The members of the board will investigate this report.

Jekyll-Hyde Case.

Appearing at the police station the night before well dressed and rational in every respect, Peter Lyons asked for some food, and when he awoke in the morning the policemen found an absolutely different man in the room assigned to him. Lyons' hair was disheveled and his appearance completely changed. The sudden Dr. Jekyll Mr. Hyde change resulted in an investigation. Lyons was found of unsound mind and was yesterday taken to the state asylum for the insane.

New Theory Developed.

It is now believed that Tony Barbiere, the young Italian who was killed by a Soo passenger train Wednesday afternoon, deliberately committed suicide by stepping in front of the moving cars. Developments show that Barbiebere left a wife and child in Italy when he came here and that his marriage two years ago with another woman has resulted in a separation. It is the belief of the authorities that the constant thought of his past drove Barbiere to his death. A revolver was found in his pocket at the hospital.

Annual Rifle Meet.

The annual state rifle competition will be held at the Wisconsin state military reservation at Sparta, Wis., Aug. 19-24. Company I of this city will take part in the shoot, prizes for which include special national guard trophies.

Holiday Passes Quietly.

Superior yesterday enjoyed its first safe and sane Fourth of July, the day passing without a single mishap or accident. The residents spent the day at the various parks and summer resorts near the city. At the East end a special program of addresses was featured in the afternoon.

Woman's Realm

A few garbage cans for the street corners will be furnished by the Woman's Council if the city will take care of the emptying of them when necessary.

This was decided upon at the regular meeting of that organization this morning at the clubroom of the library with Mrs. W. H. Burris presiding. The council voted for the expenditure of $25 for a few such receptacles for waste material to be placed in various parts of the city as an object lesson of the improvement in the appearance of the city which would result from their use. The provision was made, however, that the council ascertain whether the city will keep the cans emptied or not, before the money was expended.

After a report of the tuberculosis committee made at the meeting this morning it was also moved, seconded and passed that the poor commissioner be requested by the council to procure another nurse for the tuberculosis pavilion at the poor farm to help the one nurse who now has charge there, and to also ask that a kitchen be built above ground. A change in some of the food will also be asked for.

Resolution of Regret.

A resolution of regret and sympathy was voted by the members of the council on the death of Mrs. William White, who had been an active worker in the council and who was at the head of many of the important movements accomplished by the council. An appreciation of her work was also embodied in the resolution which will be sent to the members of her family.

Will Vote.

The council instructed the secretary to send cards to every member of the council and the clubs represented urging them to vote for the progressive candidates in the approaching school election and to use their influence so far as possible for their election. The council warmly indorses the dancing in public schools and social centers and they feel that this will be a big step toward making the social center work successful and beneficial.

Commend Merchants.

The Woman's Council has been working for the early closing in the stores and other places of business this year and the secretary was instructed to write letters expressing the appreciation of the council to the Retail Merchant's association to J. M. Gidding & company, Silberstein & Bondy company and George R. Gray company for their compliance with the plan.

Report Read.

A most interesting report made by Mrs. Charles W. Jerome, chairman of the Amusement committee of the Woman's Council on what work has already been done and on conditions in Duluth as the members of this committee have found them which she made in response to a request of the Public Welfare board, was read by Mrs. Harriet L. Carey.

Mrs. Jerome outlined the situation in the theaters, criticising the class of attractions at some of the houses, the lighting and ventilation in others and commending where she felt commendation due. The dance halls were also spoken of and she recommended to the public welfare board that its work for the appointment of an assistant for Mr. McKercher in his work of visiting places of amusement and their supervision. Pool room regulation and a stricter enforcement of the theater ordinance were advocated.

MEN REHEARSE.

Work on for Playgrounds Benefit Performances.

First rehearsals for the men members of the choruses of the two operas which will make up Terpsichore's Carnival, to be put on by local talent at the Orpheum theater the first week in August for the benefit of the Playground association, will be an event of this evening.

Men for the pirate chorus for "A Night in Bohemia," Bohemian gypsies, and for other song and dance numbers are needed and from the interest already manifested by the members of the sterner sex it is expected that there will probably be a large number at the meeting this evening at 8 o'clock at the new Masonic Temple hall.

A few of the other choruses which have been filled have already become almost proficient in their parts. The big Shrine girls' chorus which is well known in musical circles will carry the heavy chorus part of "A Night In Bohemia," and a Geisha chorus of some thirty younger girls will sustain the Japanese opera, "A Night In Japan."

A few of the other specialties which will be introduced between the acts of the operas are being worked out, and the young people are hard at work at their dances and songs.

THE EVENING STORY

In the School of Love

By Anna C. Quinlan.

"Jack, wouldn't it be too lovely if we were to go to the park Saturday and take books and things and have a nice quiet afternoon?" said Marjorie coaxingly, as she kissed him good night for the fiftieth time behind the hall door.

"How sweet of you to think of that, you dear little thing!" said Jack. "I've got a splendid new book, and I'll bring some magazines for you. Will that do?"

"Oh, yes, Jack—and chocolates and macaroons! Won't it be lovely? And we'll live on love for a whole afternoon—and if it rains, though!"

"It's not likely to rain just now, dearie; it's perfect weather. Mind you put on something sensible, not one of those squashable, chiffony frocks of yours!"

"If I want to look nice I just shall, Jack. I shall wear my new pink muslin, I think. Won't it look sweet with my new black hat?"

"Yes, darling, of course. But I really must go—I shall lose my train; I missed it on Monday night, you know, and didn't get home till midnight."

"Jack, shall I tell you something? I really hate time-tables and trains and offices, and all the things that keep you away from me, dear! Fancy waiting for hours in that stuffy station, and all my fault! But, you see, I had to clear up that awful misunderstanding—you know, about seeing you talk to that Smythe girl—or I should have cried all night. So let us always make up our quarrels at once, Jack! Whenever I feel upset about things I shall ask you in a straightforward way, and then you'll say, 'My darling, you know I love you only,' instead of trying to tease me, as you did on Monday. You know you did tease me, don't you?"

"Oh, I was tired, dear, and it seemed so silly of you to think I wanted to talk to that freckly girl! But, by James"—taking out his watch—"I shall miss that train again!"

"Oh, I do hope not! Can't you run all the way, or take a hansom or something? But what time shall we start on Saturday?"—as the door closed behind his retreating form. "That last kiss was a perfunctory peck! Why have men always to be catching trains and things? I wish I had lived in the days of chivalry and coaches!"

* * *

It was a happy lover and his lass who sat in a secluded spot under the trees in the park on the following Saturday.

"You know, Jack, I thought at first this afternoon when you began about my silly frock that perhaps our lovely day was going to be spoiled by your being so unreasonable."

"Never mind, dear, we've finished that discussion. You look like a sweet moss rosebud. What could be more lovely?"—and he kissed her ardently.

"Now I really feel that you love me! Sometimes I'm not quite sure, you know, Jack."

"Why on earth not, Marjorie?" he asked.

"Oh, I can't explain why exactly! Don't be mannish and ask questions. Let's forget everything but each other, and I'll look at the papers. What have you brought?"—as he cut the string. "But I don't suppose I shall read much. You don't want to read do you, precious? I shall just lean back like this and think of nice, quiet things."

Perfect peace reigned for some minutes, while Jack smoked in silence, thinking—

"Who would dream that my little butterfly cared for such simple pleasures? How sweet she looks! Now I can have a look at my book"—and he opened the book noiselessly.

Marjorie sprang up.

"Jack dear, what shall we do now? What time is it? Only a quarter past three!" Then seeing his look of disappointment—"I mean isn't it lovely to think we've got until 6 o'clock? Isn't this peaceful? What a pity you didn't bring Tennyson to read to me! Wouldn't it have been sweet? Move just a little that way, will you, dear? Yes, that's right, and then put your arm like this, so as I can rest against it. Tree-trunks are all very well in their way, but your arm is ever so much nicer. Now I am happy. Oh, where are the sweets, Jack?"

Jack produced them and almly went on reading.

"Oh, what darling lace coats at Denbam's! I must have one. Do look at them! But never mind, Jack—you're reading old thingumy, and I won't disturb you! I like reading 'Answers to Correspondents: I am so happy to have helped you about the pimple on your husband's nose.' Women are silly! Fancy asking the advice of an utter stranger about such a trifle!"

Finally Marjorie became interested in a short story, and peace reigned once more—until she finished her story and yawned.

"Oh, my dear boy, your poor arm! I am so sorry! I expect it's got pins and needles in it! How selfish of me!"

Jack, with a grim smile, moved his aching arm.

"It's all right, little girl! Hello, you've finished your magazines already! Well, look at these illustrations."

"I hate lions and things," she said to herself; but she tried to feel interested.

"Jack, how lovely! But what is that awful savage doing?"

"Well, you see, those black chaps are Matabeles, and this lion has been taking off their cattle, and so—"

"Yes, but how terrible they look! Why do men go shooting lions—white men, I mean? It seems so cruel."

There followed a discussion on the joys of stalking big game—Jack's mania.

"Oh, well, dear, you just go on with your book! I'll see if I can find something interesting in the advertisements in these magazines."

She took up one, and a few minutes later put it down and gazed at her pretty shoes.

"Jack, don't you think these shoes are perfect dears?"

"Yes, pretty little things," replied Jack, dragged reluctantly from his man-eating lions; "but women's boots are a funny shape. Your toes are not really pointed like that."

"No, of course; I stuff cotton-wool in them. These shoes are miles too big for me, but it's better to have them large. Tight shoes make me irritable."

Jack returned to his book, and Marjorie, getting bored, thought—

"This afternoon is nice, but dull. We might as well be married—I, sitting here, thinking my own thoughts, and Jack poring over that silly, idiotic book. I might have been at the Cherrington's and worn my frock. But I gave it all up for Jack. No wonder our friends are amazed at my marrying a quiet man!"

She looked at him critically.

"He is simply wrapped up in books. I am nowhere! I wonder why he sticks out his under lip when he's reading? It rather spoils him. He is good-looking in a way. Teddy Yerburgh was handsome. I wonder where his regiment is now and if he has got over his little disappointment about me? He says he will never marry now, but I don't really wish him back. But he had very thoughtful ways and I never felt neglected, as I do with Jack at times. Last night I felt sure we were twin souls, we seemed so happy. I don't know what is wrong today, but there is something. Perhaps I ought to tell him that my feelings have changed—for the time, I mean."

She twisted her ring round her finger.

"Two big diamonds and an emerald. It is a lovely ring! I suppose this engagement is going on for ever. Perhaps that is what makes me feel so miserable. It must be because Jack is always coming and going. I should feel more sure about everything if I had him in the same house. It is perfectly true what Nellie Wood says: 'Marriage may not be an ideal state, but it makes you feel more settled in your mind.'"

The silence became intolerable to her.

"Jack," in a tearful voice, "Jack!"

Jack was alarmed to see her eyes filled with tears.

"Why, my darling, what is it?"

"Nothing, Jack."

"What can I do to please you, dear? est? Are you tired or bored or what?"

"No Jack. Only terribly lonely. I feel as if you were miles and miles away!"

"Then, dearest, that is so silly when I'm here beside you!"

"Of course I am silly, I know. It breaks my heart to have that far-off feeling when I love you so. You don't even want to hold my hand when you read about lions!"

He put his arm around her.

"Marjorie, darling, how selfish I have been—spoiled all your nice afternoon!"

"You see, Jack," she explained through her tears, "you are not a bit like me. You have such a detached way. I never feel like that. I always seem to be near you; but you sometimes seem so far away; and it's killing me!"

"My precious Marjorie! Now, shall I kiss those pretty eyes? Who is it says something about 'violets under water?' Fancy a great chap like me trying to be poetical!"

"Oh, Jack!" with a hysterical little laugh. "Of course you never could be poetical, but it's rather dear of you to try when you see how dreadfully unhappy I am."

"Yes, all about nothing, darling."

"Well, Jack, I can't help it. I had a sudden, horrid feeling that you didn't love me, or that you had changed on the way down here today."

"Do I look changed? Do you think I can cease caring for you in a moment?"

"I don't know, Jack. Nellie Wood says men are such sudden and changeable creatures."

"Never mind Nellie Wood's nonsense, little girl! I can't understand how it is, Marjorie, that you don't trust me!"

"Oh, I do trust you, Jack, that is the worst of it! It would be so dreadful to be deceived and die, and things like that. But after this I will always trust you, you great big darling! We'll never have any more of these awful, spoiling misunderstandings."

"Not until next time!" thought Jack.

"But I promised you I would be frank and tell you everything," Marjorie went on.

"What is the use of pretending to be happy when you're not."

"Well, that's all right, dearest! It is all over now, isn't it?" helping her up.

"Yes," shaking out her skirts, "but it would be quite different, Jack, if you understood me better. Promise me something!"

"Yes, dear!"

She tip-toed to whisper in his ear: "Always say 'I love you,' and keep on saying it!"

* * *

For some months Jack kept on saying it. Since his marriage with unimaginative but restful Nellie Wood he has looked back with wonder to his first experience in the school of love, so fatiguing was the lesson Marjorie had made him learn, "Always say, 'I love you,' and keep on saying it!"

If you are "easily satisfied" with your boarding place, it will not be long before nothing else will matter much, either.

SOCIALISM FOR RICH PEOPLE

Society to Tell Money Class of the Coming Changes.

New York, July 5.—"To promote an intelligent interest in socialism among college men and women," is the object of the Intercollegiate Socialist society, as set forth in italics above the society's seal at the head of its official stationery. The seal bears the name of the society, the date of its foundation, 1905, a flaming torch, and an open book on which is inscribed the motto: Light: More Light. The immediate demands of the socialist party are thus described:

"The shortening of the working day, abolition of child labor, insurance of workers against sickness and old age, compensation for industrial accidents and public relief for the unemployed, woman suffrage, initiative and referendum and right of recall, progressive income and inheritance taxes, collective ownership of railways, telegraphs, mines and other great monopolies."

Harry W. Laidler, the originator of the society, said in reply to a question as to whether the society is to be regarded as one of the propaganda for the socialist idea or merely one whose purpose is to spread a knowledge of the socialist movement:

"Our object as an organization is entirely concerned with the study of socialism, and we are not pledged to support any particular form of socialism, nor to bring any pressure to bear upon anyone to embrace the socialistic creed. Our view is based upon a few simple considerations.

"College bred men and women are playing a constantly increasing part in the weightiest affairs of the nation, in industry as in politics, and in general public activities. Government, commerce, manufacture, engineering, finance, transportation and journalism are coming to depend more and more every year upon recruits from our colleges.

"What is even more important, it is from the ranks of the college-bred that are drawn in increasing numbers the legislators who frame our laws, the judges who sustain or annul them, and the lawyers who candidly interpret them or devise methods for their evasion.

"We realize that in all these varying capacities the students of today will, in a few years, find themselves dealing with the Socialist movement; and, whether they are sympathetic or antagonistic toward the movement they will not be able to escape either its presence or its pressure.

"In so far as our work will result in spreading a knowledge of socialism among the moneyed class, it should have the hearty sympathy of all those who are at present engaged in calling the attention of the public to the dangers of great wealth concentrated in a few hands.

"In fact, if you regard the aim of our society as an educational one, there are few directions in which it is likely to be more useful than in preparing the minds of our next generation of millionaires to face the changes which will follow the inevitable triumph of the socialist movement."

TREE FOOT HIGH HAS 60-FOOT BRANCHES.

Hummelstown, Pa., July 5.—Dauphin county contains the only tree of its kind in the world, a species of Greenland fir, and, although less than a foot high, the circumference of the space covered by its branches is sixty feet.

This remarkable tree is located on the Shenk farm in Bull Frog valley, about five miles from here. It is at least 200 years old, and from a short distance it appears simply to be a collection of small shrubs.

Horticulturists of the country, who have heard of the phenomenon, have made offers of substantial sums for the tree, with a view of removing it, roots and all; but these offers have been consistently refused. Aside from tree specialists and residents of the neighborhood, few persons have heard of the spreading tree. In Greenland, its original home, the species never grows high and is little more than a shrub. In its natural surrounding it does not attain anywhere near the circumference of the one near here.

TRY MOTORCYCLES FOR THE COLLECTION OF MAIL.

Washington, July 5.—If a test now being made in Washington proves to the satisfaction of the postoffice department that motorcycle collection of mail is faster and more economical than the use of horses and automobiles, those machines will most likely displace the old system in every city in the United States. One machine is being used in the experiment here. Every point either for or against is being studied.

The machine, which is the only one owned by the department, has been in operation here for three weeks. At Springfield, Mass., the postoffice department authorized the postmaster to experiment with the machine for night collection, and he is paying the cost out of his own salary.

Assistant Postmaster Robinson believes the motorcycle will be a success both from a point of speed and economy. He is watching the experiment with a great deal of interest. The department can only recommend the displacing of horses by motorcycles. It has no authority or appropriation to make the purchases.

At the present time thirty-four horses are used in the collection of mail here. The government allows $420 yearly for the use of horse and cart. Mail collectors, who would own the machines, would find the cost of the motorcycle to be approximately the same as the cost of a good horse. The cost of upkeep would be much less.

If the motorcycle experiment proves what the postoffice department thinks it will, that such a method is superior, further experiments will be made to arrive at the exact cost of the maintenance of the machine, the appropriation cut down from $420 to the amount corresponding and its adoption by every large postoffice will be recommended.

SPEEDY DRILLERS APPROACH 6,000 FEET IN OIL FIELDS.

Charleston, W. Va., July 5.—Unless the calculations of William Seymour Edwards of the local oil company which bears his name run awry, Kanawha county, famed for coal, oil, gas and a lot of other things too numerous to mention, is going to have the deepest hole in the ground in the world.

This hole is located on Slaughters creek, and is being drilled for geological purposes. The nature of the formations through which the tools pass is carefully noted, and a record of their thickness kept. The drillers had reached a depth of 5,280 feet on Dec. 20, when work was temporarily suspended. Work on the hole has now been resumed, and in a few days a depth will have been attained, equal to that of the second deepest hole in the world, which is 5,420 feet.

The deepest hole ever drilled is located in South America, and is 6,000 feet from top to bottom. The second deepest is in Pennsylvania, and when work was suspended on the Edwards hole in December it lacked only 170 feet of being as deep as the one in the adjoining state.

VISITING HOTEL MEN ARE ASSURED OF WARM RECEPTION

That the visiting national hotel men are to be given one of the greatest receptions here of any of the cities they will visit on the well advertised trip to Yellowstone National park, is assured by the preparations that are being made for their entertainment during their stop over here, next Tuesday.

All of the Duluth hotel men are cooperating for the entertainment of the distinguished guests. In addition to the work that is being done by the hotel men, there is the committee from the public affairs committee of the Commercial club and the personal interest that President Ferguson of the club is taking in the visit or the hotel men and their wives.

Chairman W. A. McGonagle of the public affairs committee is also taking a personal hand in the preparations that are being made to show the visitors the hospitality of the city, and by Monday evening the long list of preparations will be complete in every detail.

J. A. Hickey, manager of the St. Louis hotel, where the visitors will eat luncheon, stated today he was doing everything in his power to give the visitors a luncheon that would make them feel that Duluth is one of the places in the country where nature has provided kindly for the palate of man.

Mr. Hickey wants to have the kind of fish served to the guests of the city that are native to this region of the state.

The new Woodland cafe is to be decorated especially for the occasion. The floral decorations are to be artistic and carpenters and decorators are at work at the present time. Music from the Spalding and Holland will be added to the orchestra of the St. Louis, making an orchestra of ten pieces. Two vocalists, Miss Jessie Williams and Mr. Hutsell, will also be hired for the occasion.

Though the guests will done at the St. Louis and Spalding, the grand dinner being served Tuesday evening in the ball room of the Spalding, it must not be thought that the hotel men are doing all the entertaining.

The Commercial club and citizens of the city are co-operating with the hotel men.

All arrangements have been made for a long string of automobiles. Every vantage point of the city will be shown to the visitors. There will not be any of the show places unvisited. The trip around the harbor is to be thorough and complete and affording every opportunity for seeing the greatest fresh water harbor in the world.

At the present time a committee is being formed to assist in the reception of the guests of the day. A number of the women of Duluth are to be requested to assist in entertaining the wives of the hotel men. Some of the well known citizens of Duluth are also going to be present at the dinner to the guests.

QUIET DAY IN THE HARBOR

Boats Laid Up While Men Celebrate the Holiday.

Business in the Duluth-Superior harbor was practically at a standstill yesterday, the Fourth.

The arrivals and departures were the lightest of any day of the present navigation season up to this time.

Work on the ore docks at Allouez and the Missabe docks, was stopped and employes celebrated the holiday at home.

Only about eight boats arrived in the harbor and but a few more than that number departed.

The tugs of the towing companies were tied up at the docks as there was very little moving about the harbor. Only a few of the tugs were kept in service yesterday to answer emergency calls.

Mrs. Ida Switzer Relates Unhappy Story of Her Married Life.

Husband Is Sentenced to a Term in the State Reformatory.

Half-crying, lips quivering and voice broken with emotion, Mrs. Ida Switzer, a young and attractive looking housewife, in district court this morning, told Judge Dancer the unhappy story of her marriage relations with William Switzer and of the events which led up to his arrest on a charge of assaulting her. After listening to her story story, Judge Dancer sentenced Switzer to a term at the state reformatory, the prisoner having been allowed to plead guilty to a charge of assault, second degree.

Switzer was charged with having brandished a gun in his wife's face after having visited her at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, 912 Garfield avenue, a few weeks ago. He was in court for sentence on June 12, but Judge Dancer deferred action at that time because Mrs. Switzer, the complaining witness, had not been heard.

The woman's story differed from that of Switzer at the time he first came up for sentence. Switzer laid all the trouble to his brother, Frank, whom he branded as a "bad man" and one dangerous to be at large. He accused his brother of alienating his wife's affections and teaching her to drink beer and whisky at the time the Switzers lived in Ashland.

"That man's brother is too much like himself, he is too low a character. I had nothing to do with him. He did not teach me to drink liquor. I had plenty of opportunity to learn this from my husband," said Mrs. Switzer when asked by the court concerning her relations with the brother, Frank.

"Many is the whisky bottle," she said, "that I have thrown out of the house. Many has been the time in Ashland that I have plowed through the drifting snow to find work while my husband has been comfortably at home by a fire."

She told of a fight in which William had stabbed his brother Frank with a jackknife because Frank had resented an insulting remark which he had made to her; she also told of how she had defended her husband in a trial at Hurley, Wis., for stabbing a man at Saxon, Wis., although she knew him to be guilty. The jury let him off because of her story, she says.

She told of black eyes which she had carried less than one year after they were married, five years ago. Switzer drank up his earnings whenever he worked and she claims that she was unable to find work to support herself and was forced to return to her parents in Duluth.

Shortly after she left Ashland this summer, Switzer pretended suicide after writing a handful of farewell notes to his wife. Asked by Judge Dancer why he did this, Switzer said that he wanted an opportunity to find out just how he stood in his wife's estimation.

After the pretended suicide, Switzer came to Duluth and one morning about 6:30 o'clock walked into the domicile of his father-in-law, and after confronting his wife with a gun asked her if she wouldn't rather live with him for a while than to take a journey into another world.

"He pressed the gun to my temple," declared Mrs. Switzer, and said 'You will live with me or die right here.'" Mrs. Johnson, mother of the Switzer woman, took the stand and corroborated this testimony.

Switzer was then asked by the court what he had to say. He denied that he put the gun to the girl's head and then started off on a fresh tirade on the fair name of his brother, Frank, to whom he blames his troubles.

"Why, I believe that I would have been justified if I had killed my brother that time we had the scrap at Ashland," he declared. With this the court announced the sentence.

Switzer was warned by Judge Dancer to keep out of further trouble, and assured that if he ever came before the court again on a serious charge he would receive a penitentiary sentence.

Switzer's term of confinement in the state reformatory will depend largely on his behavior.

WILL GO INTO THE UNKNOWN

One Explorer to Brave Dangers of Amazon Interior Country.

Another Will Try Out Labrador in Interest of Science.

Philadelphia, July 5.—One Philadelphian has already started on an exploration tour of Labrador and another will start about August 1 to uncover the hidden mysteries of the Amazonian jungle. The first one will be gone three months, the other three years.

Henry G. Bryant, president of the Geographical society, will go into unknown parts of Labrador. He was accompanied by Russell W. Porter, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has figured in numerous other important expeditions and who will be Mr. Bryant's only white companion, except two fishermen, who will be hired as guides on the west coast of Newfoundland. The expedition will be made under the auspices of the Geographical society and will be the means of obtaining the first authentic information of the great unknown wilds of Labrador. The researches will include the collecting of topographical, geographical, geological, zoological, ornithological, entomological and botanical data which will be used in the preparation of maps and descriptive work of the country.

Trip in Canoes.

The trip will be made entirely in canoes, several Indians will be taken along to paddle the small craft and attend to the heavier work, such as carrying the canoes and stores across country at different places. The party will ascend the Saint Augustine river to its source, if possible, after which it will strike out into the plateaus on either side of its banks. The return to the sea will be made by way of Hamilton inlet, which extends into the country for about 90 miles from the southern coast.

It is believed by Mr. Bryant that an unknown river will be found which will lead them from the heart of the wilds to the waters of Hamilton inlet. The party will depend almost entirely upon the country through which they pass for their food. The land is said to be full of game birds and animals and the rivers and lakes full of fish. Very little vegetation grows in Labrador, only a few species of hardy trees and mosses and a few plants being able to thrive in the cold climate. The flora is found more especially along the river banks and lake bottoms.

The experiences through which Mr. Bryant and his colleagues will pass will not be entirely new to them, as both have participated before in Arctic exploration. Mr. Bryant visited Labrador several years ago when he made exhaustive researches along the coasts. He was the first person to measure and photograph, rediscovering, so to speak, the Grand Falls of Labrador. At that time he was accompanied only by Labrador Indians without whom, he said, it would be impossible to do much in the country.

In Interest of Science.

"I hope to be the first white man to reach the source of the St. Augustine river," he said. "The plateaus have been partly explored, but I intend to visit the unknown parts which are from 2,000 to 2,500 feet above the sea level. I do not expect to find any valuable minerals or anything else that would repay me in a monetary way for the trip. I am making it solely in the interest of science. The Canadian government is beginning to appreciate the importance of explorative work in Labrador and I am in hopes of securing for the Geographical Society of Philadelphia the honor of making the pioneer trip into the unknown portions of that country."

Algot Lange will start on his Amazonian journey about Aug. 1. He is about 28 years old and a student at the University of Pennsylvania. When he turns the prow of his steamboat up the Amazon he will not return to civilization again for three years. In that time he hopes to make known to the world all the Amazon country and its inhabitants, its natural history and customs. It is one of the few important parts of the world that remains for civilized man to map out.

The young explorer was there before, though he did not finish his investigations. He went there to invest money in a plantation and was glad to get back with his life. But he killed a 65-foot boa constrictor and shipped the skin to this country. He wrote a book about his experiences, which has but recently published. "In the Amazon Jungle." It attracted the officials of the university and arrangements were made with him to head his expedition, under the university's auspices.

He talked with enthusiasm about his coming trip. Asked his nationality, he replied:

He Is an American.

"I am an American. Some persons call me a Dane, because my parents were Danes. But I was born at sea, on the way from Newcastle, Eng., to St. Petersburg, Russia. The steamer carried an Irish cargo, had a French captain, a Portuguese crew and a Chinese cook. I want to carry the stars and stripes through this vast Amazon valley as Peary carried them to the North Pole.

"Few persons have any idea of the vastness of this country which we will explore. The river is about 4,000 miles long, and has a tributary 3,000 miles long. At Manaos, 1,000 miles from the sea, it is fourteen miles wide. The Negro river, 500 miles from Manaos, where it empties into the Amazon, and 1,600 miles from the ocean is twenty-five miles across. At Iquitos, Peru, 2,500 miles from its mouth, the Amazon is two and one-half miles wide and 250 feet deep. The area of this valley is half as extensive as the whole of the United States.

"Our principal aim will be to study the savage tribes in the unexplored regions. Some of these are cannibals, and have a habit of making a stew of their enemies killed in battle. But I do not fear them."

Mr. Lange has a good reason for not fearing them. A few years ago, while exploring alone this remote region, the cannibals found him, hundreds of miles from the nearest white settlement, sick and delirious, crawling on his hands and knees through the jungle. They had never seen a white man before, and they took him in and nursed him to health so he could travel back to civilization.

Many Other Dangers.

But there are dangers other than cannibals. The jungles and marshes are infested with wild beasts and gigantic boa constrictors. Millions of monkeys chatter among the trees, though they do no harm. But there are fevers and strange diseases to fight, and the work must be done under the blighting, scorching rays of an equatorial sun. Then there are other tribes living far back in the jungle of which he has only heard. It is his purpose to study them all, and to do so, that man might know of these aboriginal members of his family, he will boldly face every danger, and for three years live with his equally daring companions in the swamp. The party will start about the latter part of July or the first of August.

Mr. Lange will be accompanied by a commander of the United States navy, an engineer, two general assistants and two photographers, who will operate not only ordinary cameras, but moving picture apparatus as well. One of these will be a stenographer. The party will carry ample stores of all kinds.

Negotiations are now under way for a steamboat, really a yacht, about 125 or 150 feet in length and the entire trip, except when shallow water or cascades are found, will be made in this vessel.

JANITOR RETIRES WITH FORTUNE FROM STOCKS.

Boston, Mass., July 5.—Alphonso L. Sherburne, 75 years old, for the last twenty-four years janitor of the apartment house known as the Hotel Agassiz, announces his intention to retire, having accumulated $150,000 through the friendship of Maj. Henry L. Higginson, financier and owner and chief tenant of the hotel.

It was in the days when copper was beginning to boom that Maj. Higginson demonstrated his friendship for his faithful old servant and gave to him his start toward a fortune. He advised Sherburne to buy and personally guaranteed him against loss. Sherburne invested his savings of $6,000 in 1,000 shares at $6 a share. He still has those shares, their value being $126,000. In addition, he owns a home in Roslindale and a fine farm in Stoneham.

"I don't know just what I shall do," said Mr. Sherburne. "I shall have to find something to occupy my time, but just what that will be I don't know. I may settle down on the farm in Stoneham and enjoy myself for the rest of my life.

"I never drank a drop of liquor, although I have always voted for license, nor have I ever smoked a pipe or a cigar. My advice to all young men is to save their money and not to spend it foolishly, as it may be useful in their declining years."

VEGETABLES ARE CHEAPER

Fruits and Green Produce Are Rushed Upon the Local Market.

New Crop of Apples Arrive From California—Cherries Are Lower.

During the past week there has been a further decline in the general level of prices of both green vegetables and fruits. Nearly all the green vegetables that are arriving on the Duluth market now are grown in this state and some from nearby farms. Fruits, too, especially berries, are coming from nearer home. The transportation of fruits and vegetables to and from Duluth now constitutes one of the main items of the freight and express business of the railroads reaching this city. Duluth is the distributing point for such supplies for the range towns. The Northern Pacific alone last Wednesday morning brought into the city thirty cars of fruits and vegetables for Duluth and the towns whose stores are supplied by the Duluth produce dealers.

* * *

During the past week, Minnesota cauliflowers have declined from $2.50 to $2 a bushel, Minnesota peas from $2 to $1.50 a bushel, Minnesota asparagus from 75 cents to 65 cents a dozen bunches, Minnesota head lettuce from $1 to 75 cents a bushel, Minnesota leaf lettuce from 75 to 50 cents a bushel, and new beets from 60 to 65 cents a dozen bunches to 45 cents.

Cabbages are a little higher. These have for some time been fluctuating very irregularly. The Roseland cabbage, from Louisiana, commands $3.75 for a large crate, which a week ago was selling for $3.25.

Tomatoes are much cheaper. The Texas crop is still coming on the Duluth market. During the past week the price has dropped from $2 to $1 for a four-basket crate. The tomatoes are coming in large quantities, but the quality is only fair, being greatly inferior to the Florida tomatoes, which were coming a few weeks ago.

* * *

The apples of last year's crop have practically disappeared. New crop apples are now on the Duluth market from California. These are green apples, good only for cooking. They are bringing $2 per box.

Cantaloupes from California are cheaper. A pony crate, which a week ago brought $3.50, now sells at $2.75. Standard crates have declined from $4 to $3.

California cherries are also cheaper. A ten-pound box of white cherries, which a week ago sold for $1.50, now goes for $1, and black cherries have declined from $1.75 to $1.25 a box.

* * *

Fancy Valancia oranges from California are now on the Duluth market. These are much finer than the Navels and are commanding a considerably higher price, a crate now selling for $4.25.

It is expected that lemons will remain high-priced and perhaps go higher, as the demand is very great with the coming of summer weather, and the local supply is not plentiful.

* * *

The demand for watermelons is very great, and the traders are not able to supply it. The melons now on the market are from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. It is expected, however, that the supply will soon be replenished from farms farther north, and not only will the quantity on the market increase, but the quality will greatly improve.

* * *

Florida pineapples are cheaper. A crate that a week ago brought $3.50 now sells for $2.25.

* * *

Butter, eggs and cheese have been very steady, all being at the same prices they commanded a week ago. Meats are likewise unchanged and the same thing is almost true of poultry. Poultry is not coming upon the market so plentifully as it was. The price will probably remain steady for some time, and it would not be surprising to see it go up a little in the near future.

Hay has been steadily cheapening. The price is now about average for this time of the year. A few weeks ago it was extraordinarily high, like other feed. But it is expected that there will be a good hay crop this year, and farmers have been rushing their hay upon the market.

LYNCH MAY BE CHOSEN

Minnesota Man May Be Manager of Governor Wilson's Campaign.

Bryan Discusses Effect of Third Party on the Result.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 5.—Thirty-five members of the Democratic national committee called on Governor Wilson here yesterday. They came up from Baltimore on a special train and on the way they talked of the selection of a seasoned manager for chairman to run the governor's campaign. When they left Sea Girt two hours later, after friendly chats with the nominee, most of them declared that any one whom the governor might name, would be elected to the place.

As to who he will be, whether William F. McCombs, Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul, Robert S. Hudspeth, or any one of half a dozen others mentioned for the place, will have the preference, Governor Wilson had not decided last night. The governor will meet the committee in Chicago July 15, stopping off en route probably at Indianapolis to take Governor Marshall, his running mate, with him.

Chicago, July 5.—William Jennings Bryan, who stopped in Chicago yesterday on his way to Nebraska from Baltimore, declared that if a third party were formed, Col. Roosevelt might drive some reactionary Democrats over to President Taft, but with the Democratic ticket and platform Roosevelt could not expect to draw Progressive Democrats to himself.

Before leaving Baltimore, Mr. Bryan estimated that Wilson would have a plurality of 2,000,000 over Taft. When asked if he still held to that estimate, he said:

"In estimating Wilson's plurality at 2,000,000, I was not counting on a third party. That might reduce the plurality somewhat, and yet not much, because many Republicans will vote for Mr. Roosevelt who would not be willing to vote for a Democrat and that will largely reduce Mr. Taft's vote. Taft will be the contender for the Roosevelt vote, not Wilson.

Osborn's Attitude.

"What do you think of the attitude of Governor Osborn of Michigan in coming out against Mr. Roosevelt?" was the next question asked Mr. Bryan.

"I have read Governor Osborn's statement," he replied, "but I do not expect as large a proportion of support from the Progressive leaders as from the rank and file of the Republican party. This campaign will be more like the campaign of 1904, excepting that Mr. Wilson will represent the fighting force in the campaign. Mr. Roosevelt's campaign will be directed toward weakening the campaign and candidacy of Mr. Taft. He may drive some of our reactionary Democrats over to Mr. Taft, but with our platform and ticket, he cannot expect to draw many progressive Democrats to himself."

Asked what he thought of Col. Henry Watterson's prediction that Col. Roosevelt's party would succeed, Mr. Bryan said:

"Mr. Watterson's predictions have not all come true; but if such a misfortune as he predicts should overtake us, I hope that the Lord will give us strength to bear it with more cheerfulness than 'Marse' Henry bears his."

WILSON TO TAMMANY.

Congratulates Society on Its Celebration of Independence Day.

New York, July 5.—At the Tammany Hall Independence day exercises a letter was read from Governor Woodrow Wilson acknowledging the receipt of an invitation to be present. The governor wrote: "I greatly regret that engagements elsewhere bind me for that date." He continued:

"I think it must be a matter of congratulation on the part of all lovers of America that the Society of Tammany should, through so many years, have maintained its celebration of the anniversary which is crowded with so many memories of the inspiring kind, not only for the people of the United States, but for the people of the world. It is upon hearths of this kind that the flame of liberty is kept burning."

DELEGATES TO COLD WATER CONVENTION.

William C. Dean, district organizer for the Prohibition party, L. A. Simonson, chairman of the county committee and Joseph B. Dye are in Minneapolis attending the Prohibition state convention. Messrs. Simonson and Dye will return Saturday. Mr. Dean will join the "Prohibition Special" leaving Minneapolis Sunday night for the national convention at Atlantic City, which convenes July 10. He expects to visit New York city and his former home in Michigan on the return trip, and will attend the national grand lodge of Good Templars at St. Paul, July 24-25, before he returns to Duluth to continue his work.

SACRIFICE TOO GREAT

Valuable School Board Members May Be Martyrs to Dancing Question.

Urged That Other Methods Be Taken to Ascertain Sentiment.

"I am glad to see that the question as to whether or not there shall be dances allowed in the city schools under proper restrictions, is to be determined by a majority vote of the people," said a business man today, "but I must admit that I do not like the condition under which it is submitted."

The school election, particularly the point mentioned and the matter of social centers was being talked over by a group of holiday time-killers, and the observation of the men quoted seemed to receive general indorsement by the others present. Continuing on his subject he said:

"It is well to know the desires of the people on this matter, but I am very sorry to see that such men as Dr. Boyer and F. A. Brewer jeapordize their positions as members of the board in order to find out what the people want on the mooted question of dancing. The question itself is not important enough to warrant the city risking the loss of such valuable members of the board, and some other way should be taken to find out sentiment on the dance question. Personally I am in favor of permitting dances under proper supervision but I consider the question of board membership as far beyond that in importance. Dr. Boyer and Mr. Brewer have been among the most valuable members we have ever had on the board and they should be retained there at any price. There is nothing in it for them—not even glory; and they like the other members, are prompted to run for re-election entirely because of the interest they take in the educational welfare of the city's children. And, I scarcely need say, their past records show that they have looked after such welfare in the past with rare intelligence have given splendid satisfaction.

"In this election you will not hear a word against them as school commissioners nor criticism concerning their past records for all are agreed that they have aided in establishing a standard; so the whole question of their re-election hinges on the dance question—and that is not right. I am for them and my vote will be cast for them regardless of the proposition of dancing. I think the people as a whole should vote for the men and not for the determination of this question, and find some other way of expressing the desires of a majority of the people on the dance matter. The proper education of the young is of far more importance."

NELLIE GRANT SARTORIS MARRIED TO F. H. JONES.

Coburg, Ont., July 5.—Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, widow of the late Algernon Sartoris, of Warshash, Hants, Eng., and only daughter of the late U. S. Grant, president of the United States of America, was married yesterday to Frank H. Jones, formerly first assistant postmaster general of the United States, at her country home here.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Spragge, rector of St. Peter's church, Coburg.

The bride was given away by her son, Capt. Sartoris, while B. G. Jones, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The wedding was private and attended only by immediate members of the family because of the recent death of the bride's brother, Maj.-Gen. F. D. Grant, U. S. A.

Among those present were U. S. Grant, Jr., brother of the bride, Capt. Algernon Sartoris, Herbert Charles Sartoris, Mrs. Sartoris and her sister, Madame Marguerite Nouffiard of Paris and U. S. Grant, IV.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY OF $40,000 IN BONDS.

New York, July 5.—Peter J. Eliot, who was employed as assistant treasurer and secretary in the reorganization of the Southern Iron & Steel company, and who has been missing since November last, was arrested here yesterday, charged with the larceny of $40,000 in Southern Iron & Steel bonds.

He was accountant for a firm engaged in carrying out the reorganization plans, and as such handled the securities. When arrested he refused to discuss the theft.

TRAGEDY AT WALLA WALLA.

Sergeant Shoots Wife, Son and Daughter and Kills Himself.

Walla Walla, Wash., July 5.—Sergeant John Proctor of the One Hundred and Twenty-sixth company, Coast artillery, at Fort Worden, Port Townsend, Wash., yesterday shot and killed his former wife, his son and daughter and then killed himself with the same gun. The shooting occurred in a lodging house of which Mrs. Proctor had been proprietor since her divorce last December.

Proctor, a gun-fighter, procured a month's leave of absence about two weeks ago. He came to Walla Walla and put up at his former wife's lodging house, paying room rent as a regular patron.

SUMMER SUGGESTIONS FOR THE MOTHER

Seasonable Advice on the Health of Children in Hot Weather.

Mothers should be careful not to overfeed children during the hot months. No one requires as much food in summer as they do in cold weather. Serve only the lighter and more easily digested foods, and see that the milk is kept cool and the fruit ripe.

It is quite natural to expect some disturbance, such as constipation, indigestion, or summer diarrhoea, often accompanied by a cold. A mild laxative at bed time will, in most cases, carry off the congested waste from the stomach next morning and by cleaning the bowels restore normal conditions.

Cathartic remedies and purgatives should never be used for children. They are harsh and violent in their action and tend to upset the entire system. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and sold by druggists for fifty cents a bottle, is now very generally used to correct stomach and bowel trouble. It is mild and pleasant to the taste and contains no drastic drug, or narcotic, but acts naturally and easily, yet most effectively. A larger bottle, containing more than twice the quantity, is sold for one dollar. If you have never used Syrup Pepsin and would like a free trial bottle, postpaid, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 496 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

IT STARTS AS KIDNEY TROUBLE

Bright's Disease commonly starts as kidney trouble. In fact, the patient does not know when the change is effected, for it appears to be "nothing but kidney trouble" all the time. But when the Chemist finds albumen he knows the truth. Patients can begin to think of Bright's Disease when kidney trouble hangs on for six months.

But there is this important fact for the patient to consider—if the inflammation of the kidney hangs on longer than the sixth month it is declared incurable whether it becomes Bright's Disease or not. Hence the reason why it is such a dangerous thing to let kidney trouble run. The deaths are now nearly 90,000 and steadily increasing.

The appearance of any kind of kidney trouble should put the patient on guard. He should live carefully and if he does not find early signs of yielding should commence treatment.

Hence isn't it of tremendous importance to the kidney patient to know of the only thing that is getting recoveries in kidney disease after the sixth month. Ask for booklet showing the results Fulton's Renal Compound is getting in chronic and supposed incurable cases.

The receipts of iron ore, which were mainly at Lake Erie ports, show a corresponding increase from 3,422,254 to 5,079,960 long tons, or 48 per cent, this increase being shown at each of the leading ore-receiving ports on Lake Erie and at Chicago; the receipts at Gary and Indiana Harbor, on Lake Michigan, showing a considerable decline.

Grain Shipments.

The domestic grain shipments on the Great Lakes during May, 1912, 14,090,-462 bushels, were slightly less than in May, 1911, namely, 14,349,777 bushels. Of the total shipments, 6,389,684 bushels were wheat, an increase of more than 51 per cent over May 1911, the shipments proceeding mainly from Duluth-Superior and Chicago. The corn shipments 3,369,079 bushels, were less than one-half the shipments reported in May, 1911, and proceeded mainly from Chicago. The shipments of oats, 3,477,369 bushels, were slightly greater than in May, 1911, and were chiefly from Duluth-Superior, Chicago, and Manitowoc. The shipments of barley, 146,899 bushels, were less than half those of May, 1911. The flour shipments during May, 1912, 105,435 short tons, or ten barrels each, show a slight decline when compared with the shipments a year ago.

Other Shipments.

DROWNS IN MISSISSIPPI.

Boy Swimming North of Little Falls Loses Life.

Little Falls, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Abe Robbins, aged 14, son of A. Robbins, a cattleman, was drowned in the Mississippi river, about a mile north of here Wednesday afternoon.

The Robbins boy and two others were in bathing in the Mississippi when the former was taken with cramps in deep water, but only about fifteen feet from shore. The other little fellows attempted to aid him but were unsuccessful. Divers shortly were notified and after a short search found the body, but life was extinct.

ELLIOTT IN WONDERLAND.

Northern Pacific Head Spending Vacation in Yellowstone.

Livingston, Mont., July 5.—Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific railway, is in Yellowstone national park, where he will spend three or four weeks. He is accompanied by Mrs. Elliott, his two daughters and son. The party will be separated from main traveled roads in wonderland and the railroad president will not see anyone during his vacation.

Mr. Elliott says business conditions in the West are improving. He said recent rains assure good crops throughout the Northwest, and consequently business on Northwestern railroads will be good.

MINNESOTA TWICE CAME TO AID OF WOODROW WILSON

Gopher State Cut Large Figure in His Nomination.

Duluth Men Return From Thrilling Convention at Baltimore.

Minnesota twice came to the rescue of Governor Woodrow Wilson in what were probably the most critical moments of his career to date, and nobody realizes this better than Governor Wilson himself.

A. C. Weiss, who was one of the delegates-at-large from Minnesota and chairman of the Minnesota delegation, and Harris Bennett, who attended as a spectator and was later seated as an alternate, returned to Duluth today. Judge Alfred Jaques, one of the district delegates, came back by way of St. Paul and will not arrive in Duluth until tomorrow. C. M. King of Deer River, the other delegate from the Eighth district, is still in the East.

"Governor Wilson told me over the long-distance telephone," said Mr. Weiss this morning, "that words could not express his gratitude to Minnesota and the Minnesota delegation. Mr. Wilson's manager also told me that after March 4 next, when President Wilson is inaugurated, if any Minnesota man sends his card in to the president, he may feel assured that the president will say to whomever he may be with, 'Excuse me, but I have to go. There is a man from Minnesota outside.'

Two Critical Periods.

"Governor Wilson feels that Minnesota came to his rescue at two most critical times. The first was on June 6 last, when the Minnesota state convention here instructed its twenty-four delegates for him. Things were looking pretty dark then. The tide seemed to be turning against him, and he was seriously thinking of abandoning the fight. Minnesota instructed for him, and it seemed to turn the tide.

"The second time was when Minnesota stood pat in the convention and cast its solid vote forty-six times for Woodrow Wilson. It looked dark many times, and if one Minnesota delegate had faltered, the tide would have turned the other way. But they hung on when there seemed to be no hope, and gradually, very gradually, the opposition began to waver.

The Solid Six.

"It shows what persistency, and just blind, dogged hanging on will do. In the beginning there were only six states that were unanimous for Wilson. They were Minnesota, Delaware, North and South Dakota, Texas and South Carolina. Of course he had other delegates, but no other solid delegation. These six states bore the brunt of the Wilson fight, and a hopeless fight it seemed at times. But there was no doubt of the sentiment of the country. We got thousands of encouraging telegrams from all parts of the country. I received more than 150 telegrams myself, not alone from Minnesota, but from other states as well, telling us to stick. We even had offers to help defray the expense of any delegates who might not have the funds to keep them such a length of time in Baltimore at convention prices. It reminded me of the famous tonnage tax fight on a larger scale.

"No man ever had a more loyal following than Governor Wilson. On the tenth ballot when New York swung to Clark, it looked very dark, but other delegates swung to us on account of it, and we gained three or four at a time. We found we had one third of the delegates, and they said they would stand firm if it took all summer. The Clark men realized that they meant it, too.

"There were about fifty Minnesota people there, including delegates, alternates and spectators, and they were the center of the Wilson fight. The sentiment in Baltimore was overwhelmingly for Wilson and Minnesota was looked upon as one of the saviours of the day. Governor Wilson thoroughly appreciated our efforts. Incidentally he also had some very kind words for The Herald and he spoke of it as being one of the first papers in the country to take up his candidacy. His general press representative told me that he had used 122 different articles from The Herald in his campaign.

Prominent in Convention.

"The members of the Minnesota delegation took a very prominent part in the convention proceedings. Judge Jaques seconded the nomination of Governor Wilson in an excellent speech, and he was most enthusiastically received. Senator S. E. Stockwell seconded the nomination of Governor John Burke for the vice presidency, and made a strong, able talk. T. J. Knox was on the committee on credentials and spoke on the South Dakota contest. Following his speech the South Dakota Wilson delegates were seated by the convention after an adverse report had been submitted by a majority of the credentials committee. Martin O'Brien was on the committee on resolutions and an important factor on it, too. He succeeded in incorporating in the platform a recommendation that the government build roads through the Indian reservations. The settlers in the Northwest know how important a matter this is, for these reservations at present, with their lack of roads, act as a bar to development.

Governor Burke.

"Governor Burke's candidacy was left largely to the Minnesota delegation and he made a most creditable showing and one he may well feel proud of. Early in the evening when the nomination was made, he had assurances of enough votes to nominate him on the first ballot. Then some complication arose. Indiana had come over to the Wilson camp rather early in the balloting, after having some assurances from the Wilson managers that Governor Marshall would have the support for the vice presidency. This made it rather embarrassing and at the last moment many switched to Governor Marshall in the interests of harmony and good politics. In spite of this fact, Governor Burke had 387½ votes, or more than a third of the delegates, on the second ballot. Burke got nearly all of the votes in the six solid Wilson states, out of compliment to Minnesota and North Dakota. The fact that Indiana had fifteen electoral votes and North Dakota but five, also cut a big figure.

"On the whole I was never prouder of my home state than I was in Baltimore, and never more glad that I was a Minnesotan.

"Minnesota stood for an ideal in that convention and stuck to it through thick and thin, when there seemed to be not even hope left. I was proud of the state, and proud to be associated with such a delegation."

* * *

Harris Bennett, who was placed in the delegation by the failure of a regular to make an appearance, came back this morning enthused to the point of exuberance over the result of the convention and over the prospects of the party's success at the polls in November. Mr. Bennett declares that there is "nothing to it."

"I attended the Chicago convention before going to Baltimore," said Mr. Bennett, "and I talked with a lot of Republicans as well as a lot of Democrats. The concensus of opinion is that the Republican party has but a forlorn hope, and while they will fight desperately as they will need to do in the situation they are in, it is conceded that the majority of chances are all against them.

No Need of Third Party.

"It is generally expressed as the opinion of all that with the nomination of Governor Wilson there is no need of a third party and it is asserted by almost all, regardless of party, that if Mr. Roosevelt is a true progressive instead of merely being a Rooseveltite, he would indorse the Democratic ticket either openly or tacitly and let the principles win. But nobody who knows anything about him expects that he will do so, for it is realized that he is for Roosevelt first, last and all the time.

"Minnesota stands high as the result of her fight for Governor Wilson. There never was a waver in the ranks, and in fact that can be said of all of the delegations pledged originally for Wilson. But with Minnesota it became known in the convention that there was no use suggesting to the delegation from this state anything like compromise; or that if compromise was suggested it must bear something for the benefit of the New Jersey governor to be even listened to. The Minnesota delegation was the standard-bearing delegation around which all the other Wilson men clustered and to which they looked for pattern.

"I want to tell you that A. C. Weiss stands high with the victorious forces and with the nominee. When Wilson is president, A. C. Weiss will not need to send in a card to see him at the White House.

"There is no question but that Fred B. Lynch, the national committeeman from this state will be at least on the campaign committee of the national committee, and is very likely to be chairman of the national committee.

"The heat in Baltimore and everywhere along the route can be expressed by just one word—'awful'—and I tell you it feels good to get back to Duluth."

WHENCE CAME THE MONEY?

the people demand publicity of campaign contributions. Roses do not grow from thistles. The plant from which it is claimed the flower was picked, must be known.

"Theodore Roosevelt entered the contest for the presidential nomination as a 'progressive.' He made a strenuous campaign for votes and a noisy scramble for Southern delegates, on the ground that he represented progressive doctrines. In this fight he had the backing of the 'Steel trust,' and the 'Harvester trust.' Financial giants like Perkins, Hanna and Munsey contributed to his cause. His campaign was characterized by a riotous expenditure of money. Yet he has made no public accounting. He has not taken the American people into his confidence. He has ignored the progressive principle of publicity."

"Had there been much of such hot, dry weather as preceded these rains," he said, "we should have short crops this year in the American Northwest without a question. Wheat and other grains have just begun to head in this part of the country, and they need plenty of moisture to enable them to head as they should. Even now, if hot winds should come, the grains would be materially damaged. That very thing happened last year. Early in June the crops gave splendid promise. Late in June came hot winds, which dried up the developing heads and seriously interfered with the formation of the seed. Between now and July 15 we shall see the critical period for the grain crop of the American Northwest, especially wheat. The crops are now about two weeks later than they were last year and for that reason the critical period, the time of the forming of the grain head, is two weeks later. I hope this showery weather will continue so as to allow the grain-heads to form properly, and then we shall have bumper crops."

Duluth is interested not only in the crop of the American Northwest, a large part of which is traded on the Duluth exchange and handled in the Duluth elevators, but also in the Canadian crop, for under certain conditions vast quantities of that country's grain is likely to be brought to Duluth to be cared for, before being shipped on its way to its destination in Eastern Canada or to lands beyond the Atlantic ocean. This year the elevators at the American Head of the Lakes have thus cared for about 20,000,000 bu of Canadian grain, and this of course has been a great business advantage.

tle boy and girl, laid out side by side on a single stretcher. At the second morgue he found the body of his wife beside that of his aged father. The family had taken advantage of holiday excursion rates for a reunion in Buffalo. It was George Laird's first railroad trip in sixty years.

Coroner Smith announced that it was impossible to have the train crews on hand for several days and the inquest opened last night will not be resumed before Tuesday. The coroner promises a searching investigation.

An investigation of the accident was begun by the state railroad commission. The formal state inquiry probably will be held at Buffalo. The Lackawanna railroad will hold its formal investigation at Scranton tomorrow.

Cause of the Accident.

A statement concerning the wreck was given out by General Superintendent E. M. Rine of the Lackawanna as follows:

"I believe the cause of the accident was undoubtedly due to the fact that Engineer Schroeder, in charge of the express train, ran through the block and past the flagman, who had been sent to the rear of No. 9."

Mr. Rine said he had a statement from the flagman and had evidence to sustain the flagman's story.

Other officials declared later that Patrick Lane, the flagman, was half a mile back of No. 9. They also assert that a mile back of the ill-fated train was an automatic danger signal thrown against Schroeder's train. Lane declares that he waved the flag to stop Schroeder, but that the engineer went right on.

Another body was identified today. It was that of Mrs. Bemar Catto, Morristown, N. J.

William Schroeder, engineer of the express train, which crashed into the passenger train, is at his home at Elmira, under the care of physicians.

Federal Inquiry.

Washington, July 5.—The interstate commerce commission today ordered a corps of inspectors to Corning, N. Y., to make an investigation of the Lackawanna wreck.

The committee again was canvassed and Chicago chosen.

Chairman Not Selected.

Governor Wilson's mind still is like "an open book" to quote him exactly on his choice for chairman of the Democratic national committee. He said today he would not decide until the last minute.

"With regard to things of that sort," he said, "I never make up my mind until I announce my decision. When there is a question like this to decide I listen to all arguments and then argue it in my own mind. At present my mind is in the midst of the argument."

William G. McAdoo of New York, who has been mentioned as a possible choice of Governor Wilson for treasurer of the committee, had a long conference with the governor during the forenoon. At its conclusion the governor said Mr. McAdoo's name had not been suggested to him in that connection and that he had no choice at present for the place.

Later in the day Governor Wilson had a talk with Josephus Daniels and Robert S. Hudspeth, national committeemen from North Carolina and New Jersey, respectively.

Governor Wilson said today he had asked Judge Grosscup, chairman of the Democratic committee of New Jersey, to invite Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., and James B. Nugent to visit him here next Monday.

Wilson to Underwood.

Washington, July 5. — Democratic Leader Underwood of the house has received the following telegram from Governor Wilson:

"Your message of congratulation has given me deep pleasure. It cheers me as much as it strengthens me to have the support of a man whose character and leadership in congress all the country admires. Please accept my assurances of warm personal regard.

"WOODROW WILSON."

Speaker Clark has received the following message from Governor Wilson:

"Your message of congratulation has given me deep pleasure and your generous offer to do all you can to aid in my election is characteristic of your readiness to undertake every task the party imposes upon you. Pray accept my warmest assurance of personal regard and of pleasure in the anticipation of working with you.

"WOODROW WILSON."

the rebel army is now disintegrating. Juarez at present is the rebel capital, trainloads of archives having been sent there within the last three days.

Though the invasion of Sonora means a rambling campaign in the mountains the rebels, most of them mountaineers, believe themselves equal to it. The revolution in that form, they say, will prove more vexatious to the government than an ordinary campaign. To check the rebel invasion of Sonora, the Mexican government is moving forces from Agua Prieta and Western Sonora. Fully 4,000 men are believed to be under way to intercept the rebels.

Gen. Sanjines left Agua Prieta today for Frontera, Sonora, to take command of the main column, and while the forces of Gen. Sanjines are engaging the rebels on the state line between Sonora and Chihuahua, the army of Gen. Huerta is to move up from the city of Chihuahua along the Mexican Northwestern railroad toward Casas Grandes and attack the rebels from the rear.

The next battle, if any occurs, should be at Casas Grandes. At Juarez there is little likelihood of a fight, as the rebels plan to withdraw most of their forces toward Sonora.

Reports early were to the effect that no federals had as yet entered the city of Chihuahua, though a detachment of cavalry under Gen. Rabaga was said to be nearing the town.

Federal Advance Delayed.

At Gen. Huerta's Headquarters, Bachimba, July 5.—The brief resistance of the rebels which preceded their retreat caused comparatively little loss of life, but the destruction of the railroad for forty miles to Chihuahua is so extensive as to prevent the arrival of the main federal columns at the former rebel capital for at least three days.

STARS AND STRIPES OVER CONFEDERATE HOME.

New Orleans, July 5.—For the first time in history the Stars and Stripes fluttered over the Confederate Veterans' home here yesterday. The flag raising marked the celebration of the Fourth and was intended to reciprocate a sentiment expressed by the Kingsley post, G. A. R., of Boston, donor of the flag.

Fatality From Riot.

Fayette City, Pa., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Barnock, wounded last night when Policeman Johnston Hutchcroft fired into a crowd of foreigners to prevent a rescue of prisoners at the jail here, died today. This was the second death which resulted from the riot.

Col. McIntyre Promoted.

Washington, July 5. — The president today sent the following nomination to the senate: To be chief of the bureau of insular affairs, with rank of brigadier-general—Col. Frank McIntyre, U. S. A.

National Guard Inspection.

Washington, July 5. — The National Guard of the Pacific coast which is to go into encampment with troops of the regular army, at Gray's Harbor, Wash., and Monterey, Cal., will be inspected by Brig.-Gen. Robert K. Evans.

TWO AND ONE-HALF POUND BABY

"When our baby was born he weighed only two and one-half lbs. and was so delicate we were afraid to handle him. A neighbor advised me to give him Mellin's Food, which I did, and it has done baby so much good that I cannot speak too highly of it. He gained one-half pound a week and is now a bright, happy baby. I can recommend Mellin's Food to all mothers who have delicate babies and know that they will find it the best infant food."

WOMAN MINER SAYS SHE DOES NOT WANT VOTE.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 5.—Far back in the coke region of Southwestern Pennsylvania has been found a woman, now 60 years old, who, since her bridal day some thirty years ago, has worked side by side with her husband in a coal mine, doing the same labor as he.

Local suffragettes heard of this woman, Mrs. John Snyder, and went to see her.

At Kaylor, a small hamlet, itself in the wildest part of the coke country, they heard of her. Her home, the suffragettes were told, was at Blue Ridge, a small settlement several miles back. There they found her.

Simply, and in the dialect of her people, the woman told her story. She had been a coal miner's daughter. John Snyder and she were married. No children came—it was a great sorrow. She had gone to work in the mines and was being paid a man's wages.

"Would I like to vote, just like my husband?" The woman pondered, finally she spoke. "My husband may do that—I do not care to."

LEADERS IN MEN'S WORK

Conference on Lessons of the Men and Religion Movement.

Too Many Kindred Organizations Now Appealing for Money.

New York, July 5.—There was held recently at Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., the widely heralded and long-anticipated conference of interdenominational organizations to consider their status and work in the light of the men and religion movement. Arrangements were made for this conference at a meeting held during the men and religion congress in New York city in April, the initiative being taken by the federal council of churches. Now the results show that the gathering was warranted, for all the important national movements of laymen got together for self-examination and co-operation. This meeting may fairly be classed as among the notable results of the men and religion movement.

The Silver Bay conference was an official gathering of representatives of many great bodies. There was frank speech on all hands, and a fine spirit of brotherliness and co-operation. The men did not hesitate to face the fact that there has been too much competition and too much costly waste and too much of each organization's going its own gait in the religious work of America. The need for radical new co-operation and, perchance, some consolidations, was made apparent.

Great Forces Line Up.

The inevitable character of this meeting, of which this article is the first report, is shown by the list of organizations that actually participated in the conference, which continued for two days. The Federal Council of the Churches of America, which represents the entire Protestanism of the continent; the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, the Presbyterian Brotherhood, the Congregational Brotherhood, the Otterbein or United Presbyterian Brotherhood, the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, the International Sunday School association, the United Society of Christian Endeavor, the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and several of the denominational laymen's missionary movements, and the missionary education movement all participated in the conference.

That it was possible for so many of the religious organizations to come together in friendly conference registers an advance in Christian co-operation for which the spirit of the times and the teachings of the men and religion movement are responsible. Over and over again during the past winter the men and religion movement insisted that waste in Christian work must be eliminated. This Silver Bay conference was the first practical step following the congress of last April looking toward that end. The outcome cannot yet be determined, but it is hopeful.

Time of Self-Examination.

The battle for efficiency is half won when the heads of these big organizations—each so great that it is fully competent to go ahead regardless of the others, securing all the money it can raise and branching out in all the directions possible—realize the need of co-operation.

Animated by a markedly devotional spirit, these leaders went at the problem in the spirit of self-examination. There was no attempt to gloss over the fact that conditions of which the churches are complaining exist. It is true that most of these organizations are making their appeal regardless of the claims of the other bodies. In some cities the same men are asked to undertake committee work for half a dozen different movements within a year, and to make contributions for the same. Expensive campaigns are duplicated, and the local church activities suffer in consequence.

Good Resolutions.

This general conference was preceded by a meeting of the representatives of the International Young Men's Christian association, secretaries from all parts of the country attending. It, too, met primarily to take counsel with itself concerning the lessons of the men and religion movement. Whether, as some have advised, there should be a continuation of the campaign idea, with great mass meetings and a general stir-up of the cities throughout the country, or whether there should now be a season of quiet local work, was debated vigorously. The sentiment of the secretaries was decidedly that the churches of the country now favor a let-us-alone policy for a time. Each association should stick to its own particular field. It was agreed that particular stress should be laid upon the church rather than upon the association. As one secretary put it: "We feel that there should be less of the institutional work of the Y. M. C. A. and its mass features and more of its mission work as an agency of the churches."

So pronounced was the sentiment against any further movements that it was declared by the representative of one Western city that if any agent of another movement came to his community proposing another campaign he would be ridden out of town on a rail!

Committee on Efficiency.

The upshot of the conference was the appointment of a commission to make full and more definite investigation of the whole subject looking to an increase of the efficiency of these interdenominational organizations and to an elimination of the overlapping and duplications which have characterized much of the work of the past. This commission will consist of one representative from each of the participating organizations, and it will report its findings to a subsequent conference which will be called by the federal council of churches.

Resolutions adopted by the conference frankly stated the need for greater co-operation and correlation of the forces and the need of unity in utilizing the activities of the local churches as related to these general movements and appeals.

It was felt by those taking part that if the present business-like attitude of the representatives who took part in this discussion continues the effect will be far-reaching and permanent.

Church Federation.

It is worthy of the remark that the leadership in this conference, both in its organization and in its conduct, was with the federal council of churches, Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, the acting secretary, leading off. Some are hailing this as a sign of the possibility of the church federation really assuming its place of leadership in the church life of America. By its constitution, which is the most official thing of an interdenominational character in the country, it is entitled to do just this sort of work, even passing in review the activities of all other organizations. It is within the power of the federal council alone to investigate the efficiency of any one of the bodies that appeal for support to the churches and to render a decision favorable or adverse, as the facts may warrant.

The Silver Bay conference was a sign of still more radical action looking to increased efficiency in religion to be taken next December at the quadrennial conference of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

NERVES IN A QUIVER

The Treatment of This Case of St. Vitus' Dance is of Vital Interest to the Parents of Every Nervous Child.

Mr. James F. Thompson, a well-known printer, of No. 301 West Iowa street, Memphis, Tenn., has recently told of a cure in his family that will interest every nervous sufferer. Parents of pale, weak, nervous school children will be especially interested in what he says. Mr. Thompson said:

'I have a son, Ray, who at the age of five years was scared by some boys. In about two weeks' time he broke down or gave away completely. He had to go to bed and the doctors said that he had St. Vitus' dance. During the entire night and for many nights he would lie awake and cry. He could not sleep at all, but would roll and toss all night long. His arms and head jerked and twitched and he became so nervous that he could not feed himself. He got so that he couldn't even speak. He had particularly bad spells, which came on about every three months. He was confined to bed for two months when he was first taken sick.

"I had a nerve specialist and two of the best physicians in Memphis with him during the first year of the disease. They couldn't do anything for him and didn't help him a bit. Finally the last physician said that he would have to outgrow it. I then bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They helped him right away and, although he had been sick for a year and a half, he began to eat and gain strength. I gave him the pills until he entirely recovered his health. He has never had an attack of St. Vitus' dance since. He is attending school and is in perfect health."

St. Vitus' dance, nervous debility or neurasthenia, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous headaches and nervous dyspepsia are due to tired, weak, exhausted nerves. The correct treatment in each case is to build up and purify the blood, which alone can give the nerves nourishment. Unless you build up the blood, it is useless to try to reach the nerves with medicine or nourishment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain the very elements which make the blood pure and red. They enable the blood to nourish the nerves until they become strong.

With two booklets, "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "Building Up the Blood", which are sent free upon request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills you can intelligently and safely treat yourself.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, or will be sent by mail, postpaid, upon receipt of price, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

GETTYSBURG BATTLE FETE

Big Observance of the Fiftieth Anniversary Next Year.

Carlisle, Pa., July 5. — The towns in Southern Pennsylvania that lie close to Gettysburg are awakening to the urgent need of early preparation for the enormous crowds which are expected to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, which will be held on the famous battlefield on the first three days of July, 1913.

It has been estimated that this reunion of Civil war veterans which will include a gathering of no fewer than 40,000 former Union and Confederate soldiers on the scene of one of the greatest conflicts the world has witnessed, will have an intense sentimental drawing power, and will attract during the celebration well over 250,000 visitors. Twenty-five thousand automobiles, driven from points as far away as the Middle West, are expected to take part in this midsummer reunion.

Not only have the authorities in Pennsylvania made a general appropriation, so far as the Keystone state is concerned, of $250,000, but every state in the Union is making a large appropriation as a contribution to the expenses of the enormous gathering. Congress will alone give $150,000, while states like New Jersey and New York have already set aside $150,000 and $275,000 respectively.

The problem of railroad transportation has been solved by the railroad authorities who for the last few months have held frequent conferences at Gettysburg.

It is expected through co-operation with the Pennsylvania committee which will have charge of the anniversary that Carlisle will have on days possibly just before and just after the first three days of July, next year, historic celebrations of great interest to all Americans. One will be the celebration of the 160th anniversary of the signing of the early Indian treaty with the whites, which was known in early American history as the League of Amity.

BLIND WOMAN WHO IS A FAMOUS HOUSEKEEPER.

Ravenna, Ohio, July 5.—"I will!"

To have the courage to declare these two words and the determination to execute them has made Mrs. Matilda Ann Douthitt one of Ohio's most remarkable women.

Fifty years ago her sight began to fail. For thirty years she has been totally blind. Yet she has fulfilled every duty that could be expected of the wife of a farmer and the mother of his children. And with her 81st birthday on July 1 she has the reputation of equaling the best housekeepers in Portage county.

All her neighbors in Atwater love her—not with the love born of sympathy, but the love sprung from respect and veneration.

Today she cooks, sews, washes and sweeps, and they say that not a speck of dust can one find in her house, nor is ever a thing out of place.

"If they were out of place I couldn't find them," she says simply. "That's why everything must be in order."

Mrs. Douthitt was born on the Ohio river. She became the wife of Thornton Douthitt sixty-one years ago. After a few years her eyes began to fail.

"Friends pitied me as helpless," she says. "I told them that I didn't want their pity, but their confidence."

She reared her children as carefully as if she had perfect vision. Before her husband died, two years ago, he said she owed him nothing, but he owed her everything.

Besides doing all the things that are done by housewives today she is mistress of the older arts of weaving, spinning and quilt-making.

IT'LL SOON BE HOT ENOUGH FOR PETE —By C. L. SHERMAN

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

LIKE TALK BY IVERSON

Big Crookston Audience Is Pleased With State Auditor's Address.

Parade in Red River Metropolis Is Largest Ever Seen There.

Crookston, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crookston yesterday had the biggest Fourth of July celebration in the history of the city strictly along safe and sane lines. Not an accident marred the entire day. About 5,000 visitors were here, a big percentage farmers, with a big delegation from Grand Forks and all surrounding towns.

State Auditor Samuel G. Iverson made one of the best Fourth of July orations the people have heard in many years. Taking the Boston tea party and the events leading up to its historic action as a basis, he vividly pictured the patriotism which made this republic possible, the loyalty to principle and the devotion later to the flag. He then referred to present problems to be settled and said that the American people were able to settle them all, and settle them right, but urged the same unselfish partiotism as was displayed by our forefathers, and the dispassionate consideration of all questions as they presented themselves.

He was repeatedly applauded and his talk was full of good sound judgment with the true patriotic ring with spread eagle attachments omitted. It was a splendid appeal for loyalty and patriotism, which he believed was as much needed now as ever. No reference was made to politics in any way. Not less than 15,000 people were jammed on the streets where he spoke.

Parade Two Miles Long.

The industrial parade was the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in this part of the Northwest. It was over two miles long. The first prize was awarded to R. T. Buckler, a farmer living near the city, who had four big floats headed by a single rig carrying his two little daughters under a banner, "These Grow on the Buckler Farm." Then came a basket rack load of prize sheep with a banner: "We Make Money From Waste"; next came a rack of thoroughbred pigs with a banner: "We Make Money While the Farmer Sleeps"; then a load of potatoes under a banner: "After Raising Us You can Raise Fifty Bushels per Acre"; then came a load of dirt bearing a banner: "If I Can Do All This I am Worth $100 per Acre." It was a great object lesson from a farmer who has done just what his floats represented. Many were very elaborate and beautiful, the Canadian government agent, W. E. Black, having a magnificent agricultural float, as did Supt. C. C. Selvig for the Crookston state experimental farm, with scores of farmers with prize horses.

RICH LOOT FOUND.

Hankinson, N. D., Officials Empty Starch Factory Robbers' Cache.

Hawkinson, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over $1,500 worth of booty stolen by box car thieves from the Soo Line during the last few months was found in the vacant starch factory here. Sixty casks of whiskey, whole bolts of cloth, quantities of food in cans and boxes, firecrackers and goods of almost every description, were found in the plant, but the men who did the job have not been located.

Officials made the find through the actions of a tramp near by, but he had no connection with the deal.

POISON CAUSED TAILOR'S DEATH

Strychnine Held Responsible for Lidgerwood, N. D., Tragedy.

Ligerwood, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jacob Wieber, the tailor who was found dead in his place of business here, killed himself with a dose of strychnine, the investigation by Coroner Wilder revealed. The death probably was accidental, as he had been accustomed to taking strychnine for heart trouble, and he may have taken an overdose. On the body where his body was found traces of the strychnine were found, while an empty bottle was concealed near by.

Kicked By Blind Horse.

La Moure, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fractured skull, a broken nose and the imbedding of a piece of the horse's hoof in his eye, resulted when Max Heiden was kicked by a blind horse. Heiden was doing chores about the barn when the blind animal took fright, and he received the full effect of a terrific blow on the head. There is very little hope for recovery.

HOUGHTON MAN'S HEAD BLOWN OFF

Companion Injured When They Look Into Pipe Containing Dynamite.

Houghton, Mich., July 5.—Frank Beaucaine was instantly killed and Frank Sweet probably fatally injured yesterday by an explosion of dynamite, bursting an iron pipe with which they were celebrating the Fourth at the Atlantic mine location, four miles west of here. The dynamite failing to explode when expected, they looked into the pipe to locate the trouble. The top of Beaucaine's head was blown off.

Mistakes Torpedo for Caromel.

Appleton, Wis., July 5.—As the result of mistaking a torpedo for a caromel, Andrew Hoffman, aged 52, is in a hospital here and will die. Hoffman had bought caromels and torpedoes and had them in a pocket and by mistake bit into a torpelo, which exploded, frightfully mangling him.

"Unloaded" Gun Kills Boy.

Mellen, Wis., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Gorash, aged 9, was shot and killed Wednesday by a companion some older, with a shotgun. The older boy, by the name of Pellott, aimed at the Gorash bay what was supposed to be an unloaded shotgun and pulled the trigger. The weapon went off, blowing the Gorash boy's head almost from the body, causing instant death.

TYPHOID IS CHECKED.

Marquette Epidemic Is Believed to Be on Wane.

Marquette, Mich., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are only sixty-four cases of typhoid in the city, according to Thomas C. Perkins, the clerk of the health board. There have been no more cases and no more deaths for some time, and the reports of recoveries are coming in rapidly. Of the 104 persons who have had the disease this spring, thirty have recovered and ten have died. It is not believed any of the remaining cases will prove fatal.

STANTON, N. D., HAS BIG CELEBRATION

Indians Take Part in Fourth Doings and Railroad Blowout.

Stanton, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The completion of the Mandan to Mercer county extension of the Northern Pacific railroad, was the occasion of a big celebration here yesterday. One of the features of which was the arrival of a special train over the new line from Bismarck and Mandan.

Indians took a big part in the celebration, and in the morning a sham battle was carried out. The Redskins established regular camps, and about 1,000 of them were here for the event. In the afternoon there was a buffalo chase, Indian war dances, and Indian games, while in the evenig there was a squaw dance and other features.

Justice A. A. Bruce of the supreme court was the principal speaker of the day.

CHIPPEWAS NOW HAVING WAR DANCE

Redskins on Couderay Reservation Going Through Annual Pow-wow.

Couderay, Wis., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chippewa Indians on the Couderay Indian reservation near here are holding their annual war dances at Whitefish Lake on the reservation. Hundreds of Indians are in attendance at the pow-wow including representatives from the other reservations in the state. During the dancing the old Indians put on the old time war paint and otherwise represent the real Indian before the advent of the white man. Many of them strongly object to being photographed. Dog soup is a favorite dish during the celebration which will last for several days. It is an interesting sight for the summer tourists from the nearby lakes and they are enjoying it.

PRISON BOX FACTORY

Is Being Built at Marquette, Mich.

Marquette, Mich., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ground has been broken for a new box factory at the Marquette branch prison.

The building will be a very large structure compared to the one now in use. The outside dimensions will be 96x110, and it will be two stories in height. It is supported by concrete piles and the lower floor is entirely of concrete. It is said that the new plant will be twice the size of the former one, and that the output will be in the same proportion. John M. Byers of Chicago has the contract for constructing the factory. The building is of mill construction.

Eberhart has written to the petitioners that he will offer a reward of $250 when a request is made by the sheriff or county attorney. POLICEMAN'S WILD SHOT.

Shoots "in Air" to Scare Fugitive and Kills Him.

Mankato, Minn., July 5.—Policeman Charles Pollel fatally shot Herbert Hauck, a laborer, about 25 years of age, on the main street of this city Wednesday night. It had been reported to the police that Hauck had insulted some women. Pollel was sent to investigate. He says Hauck started to run when he approached and he fired in the air with the intention of intimidating the fleeing man. The bullet took effect in Hauck's back and he died after being removed to a hospital. Hauck was unmarried.

The whereabouts of Pollel, who was spirited away after the shooting, when it was seen Houck's friends were growing threatening, is being concealed. It is not likely Pollel will be prosecuted for the shooting. At any rate no action will be taken until after the inquest today.

STOLE FROM A BURGLAR

Not "Original Thief"—Gets Ninety-Day Jail Sentence.

Strong circumstantial evidence forced John B. Lessard to plead guilty to a crime of which he was innocent.

At least this is the claim of the prisoner who was up for sentence before Judge Dancer of the district court this morning.

Lessard was indicted for stealing a quantity of revolvers and ammunition from the hardware store of E. M. McEwen at Proctor in March.

Lessard admitted to the court that he was in Proctor a short time before the date of the alleged burglary. He also admitted that when he was arrested, he had some of the stolen property in his possession.

His explanation is a peculiar one. He claims that he stole the goods from the real thief, whose identity was not disclosed to the court.

The goods were taken by Lessard from a saloon in the West end, where a stranger had left them in a bag. Lessard made off with the bag and afterwards ascertained that it contained stolen property.

The court saw no excuse why he should not be punished for stealing and sentenced him to ninety days at hard labor in the county jail. Lessard has been in jail awaiting sentence for four months.

He is 23 years old and has been employed as a railroad man for the past few years. His last job was at the Omaha yards in Itasca. Two years ago he worked at Proctor.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY BILL

Norris Introduces Measure to Remedy the Existing Evils.

Washington, July 5.—Representative Norris of Nebraska, Progressive Republican, today introduced a bill which he declared would remedy the evils of presidential primaries.

In a prepared statement he declared that "recent events clearly have demonstrated how it is possible for a well-regulated and well-oiled political machine to trample underfoot the wishes of the rank and file of any political party."

The Norris bill provides for primaries on the first Tuesday of May in the year a president is to be elected; and for a national convention on the fourth Monday in June of that year, in which the representation would be based upon the strength of the different political parties in the different states.

The Norris bill would provide for the election of delegates to the convention at the primaries and would permit voters to express a first and second choice for presidential candidates. The result of the elections would be certified by state officials to the secretary of the interior who would canvass the votes.

The candidate having a majority of the presidential votes would become the nominee of his party and no action of the convention would be necessary. If no candidate received a majority the convention would nominate.

The bill would not go into effect until its provisions had been accepted and laws in conformity with it passed by at least twenty states.

LAUNDERING OF THE BANK NOTES

Treasury Washing Machine in Operation and Does Good Job.

Washington, July 5.—A washing machine which takes United States bank notes of any denomination, washes, starches, and irons them as clean and smooth as White House linen, is the latest money-saving adjunct of the treasury department. It is the invention of Burgess Smith of the bureau of engraving and printing, and has been in operation for a week. More than 1,000 $1 notes were put through within a half hour, and each at the conclusion of the process looked like new.

The machine is still in an experimental stage, and has not formally been adopted by the department. It has, however, been set up in the basement of the treasury building, near the money vaults, and will be given a severe testing. The machine will be run seven hours each day, during which time it is expected by the mechanics working on it, that 25,000 of Uncle Sam's cast-off bills will be rejuvenated, and will be turned back into circulation again as clean, bright, stiff, and as free from germs as when they were new.

As a money-saver, the treasury department has great hopes. It costs $13.30 to make 1,000 bank notes. It costs but about 50 cents to rejuvenate the same number. Every day there are more than 35,000 bills withdrawn from circulation and destroyed; the cost of replacing these is $465.50, but the cost of washing them and making them as good as new will be but $15.

The machine is fifteen feet and five inches wide, and looks something like a newspaper printing press. It has dozens of rolls, many gears, and operates with the same clash and clang. The money is placed between two canvas belts at one end of the machine. It runs through a solution of laundry soap and boiling hot water, where it is thoroughly cleansed. It then enters another vat in which there is a solution of stiffening material and germ-killing solution. From this vat it is drawn between a gas-heated mangle, where it is ironed as stiff as new bills.

It emerges from the machine two minutes and fifteen seconds after it had started on its 64-foot trip, and is to all intent and purposes a perfect bill. When running at full speed the washing machine can clean about 4,000 bills an hour. The motive power is electricity.

The treasury department is immensely pleased with the new machine, and if the severe tests to which it will be subjected fail to show any flaws in its working several more will probably be placed in the building.

Pugilist Recovering.

Peoria, Ill., July 5.—Despite rumors that he was in a dying condition, Phil Harrison of Chicago, who fought Harry Donahue here yesterday, is not in imminent danger. The attending physician this morning declared the pugilist improving.

Waddell Is Ill.

Minneapolis, July 5.—George Edward Waddell, pitcher, known in the baseball world as "the eccentric Rube," and for many years a member of various major league teams, is seriously ill at his home here, suffering with acute indigestion and gall stones. Waddell, who is a member of the Minneapolis American assocation team, fainted at the close of the game with St. Paul yesterday and was taken to his home, where a physician ordered him out of the game for some time.

Waddell has not been in form for some time.

ISLAND IN SEA THAT IS MYSTERY

Little Spot in the Wastes of the Great Pacific.

London, July 5.—The Mana, a motor auxiliary yacht just launched at Whitstable, is to carry an expedition to the South Seas to investigate the origin of the gigantic prehistoric remains on Easter island. This island, the most easterly of the Polynesian group, is a lonely dot of land, forty-five miles in area, 2,000 miles from the South American coast.

Facing the sea on the island are enormous platforms made of uncemented stones, some of which weigh five tons. Some of the sea walls are thirty feet high and 200 feet long. On the land side are broad terraces, also of stone, bearing pedestals on which formerly stood huge figures carved from lava.

Most of these images have been thrown down, but there are 555 of them on the island. One of them is sixty-five feet high, with a nose eleven feet long. The figures all extend from head to hips, with receding foreheads, broad noses, thin lips and powerful chins.

There is no metal on the island, and the only tool found was a prehistoric chisel, with which it would seem impossible to execute such colossal works. Moreover, the island with its scanty water supply could not have supported enough people to drag the figures from the quarry where they were made to the platforms. Some of the statues weigh 250 tons.

There is every evidence that some great calamity overtook the island and its inhabitants, for most of the figures are unfinished, some of them never even having been removed from the quarry. A popular theory is that Easter island is the sole remains of a continent which was overwhelmed by the sea after a great seismic disturbance. The designs of the stonework bear out this theory, for they are strikingly like some of the ancient Peruvian ruins.

The Mana expedition, led by W. Scoresby Routledge and accompanied by geologists and other scientists from the British museum, will make excavations in an effort to solve the mystery.

SOME FREAKS OF THE RAIL.

Railroad Man's Magazine: Quaint and curious are many of the mishaps of the rail. When signals are not seen or orders go wrong and the engine finds itself either atop of some pieces of rolling stock or lying on its back in a ditch, there may be more than the disaster itself to cause wonderment.

Many old-time Western railroad men will remember a trainload of wheat that broke in two on the old California Pacific railroad between Sulsuin and Summit, Cal. There were fourteen flats loaded with the grain, bound for Vallejo. Two hogs were pulling their sides out getting the drag up the hill, when the link and pin between the sixth and seventh cars parted and the tail started down the grade.

The hind shack had gone up ahead, believing all was safe, and there was no one to apply the brakes. The eight cars gained a pretty lively momentum as they dashed down the grade. The crew of the mixed regular which happened to be approaching the old town of Bridgeport saw them coming.

Both trains were on the same track, but the mixed was nearing a switch. Old Jim Ireland, the eagle-eye of the mixed, hustled up to the switch, let his fireman down to open it and backed into the clear.

The eight runaways took the switch clean, but went off the embankment and into the soft tule land of the vicinity. Every car remained right side up, and not a sack of wheat was lost.

Onto a Weakened Bridge.

In Southern Colorado, several years ago, heavy rains caused a washout and carried away a bridge. Over a span of some fifty feet nothing was left but rails and crossties. A freight came along in the night. The engineer felt the rails sag and applied the air. The locomotive ran onto the hanging rails, but the fishplates held and further disaster was averted. The engine remained for hours in this position and was pulled back onto sound track with only a damaged pilot.

What is supposed to be one of the greatest freaks in railroad accidents happened to a Cumberland Valley drag near Harrisburg, Pa. The drag was standing on the main westbound track, and the hind end was unprotected. A passenger engine left the depot about 11 o'clock at night and leaped onto the car. The car was loaded with pigiron ore. Early the next morning the wrecker lifted the engine out of the car. Only the brake rigging was deranged, and the engine went out on her regular run that night.

One Engine Straddled Another.

In a headon collision on a Northwestern road, one of the locomotives landed directly on top of the other and held fast. The engine that was straddled kept the rails, although the tender and cars behind the acrobatic locomotive left the track and rolled into the ditch. Fortunately, the accident resulted without loss of life.

It is seldom that one washout contrives to wreck two trains on two different roads at the same time, but just such an accident occurred five miles east of Kansas City.

A creek forty feet wide and twenty feet deep was crossed by the Wabash and by the Hannibal & St. Joe railroads on parallel steel bridges and so near to one another that they were bracked against each other.

When an east-bound freight on the Rock Island using the Hannibal & St. Joe track was approaching the bridge at 3 o'clock in the morning, the engineer saw that the creek was flooded and that the bridge was in danger.

Engineer and Fireman Jumped.

He called to the fireman and both men jumped.

So narrow was their escape that both landed in the creek, though they escaped with slight injuries.

The engine crossed the span, but was pulled back by the tender, and stood upon its end in the creek. Five loaded box cars piled into the gap. They burst open. Their contents were scattered. The head brakeman was killed.

The rear brakeman hurried back to flag a Hannibal freight, but in his excitement he got upon the wrong track and was killed by a Wabash train, the engineer of which did not see the wreck in time to stop. He jumped and was dangerously injured. The head brakeman and fireman escaped with slight injuries, but the rear brakeman was badly injured. The Wabash bridge turned sidewise when the train struck. The engine and eleven cars went into the creek.

Three tramps were the only persons killed on this train.

Train Swept Into the Sea.

Some years ago a train was bound from Osaka to Kobe, Japan. It was 1 o'clock in the morning. The train, made up of twenty-three cars laden with 400 soldiers, returning from service in China, was creeping into Kobe on a track laid along the sea wall which skirts the harbor. A storm was raging. Huge waves battered the sea wall and drenched the train. Suddenly a mountain of water dashed over the sea wall. It struck the train with such force that the engine and eleven cars were thrown from the track. The weight of the engine held it where it lay, but the backwash swept the eleven cars into the sea. One hundred and forty-nine soldiers were drowned.

FASHION IN NATION'S TRIBUNAL.

The News-Letter: Only four times has the supreme court responded to the outward voice of fashion. The first occasion was when it was decided to elevate the bench from the floor, for in the old days the judges occupied the same level as the lawyers and audience.

At another time, the carpet on the floor was changed after forty years of service. The next revolution occurred when reporters were allowed to take notes within the supreme court room. Twenty years ago the attorneys in the supreme court had to depend entirely on their memories to answer arguments of opponents who cited previous decisions.

Another important change occurred when it was decided that the jurists of the highest tribunal should not, by reason of the short recess, suffer the pangs of hunger or tide themselves over with a snatched luncheon of sandwiches. Therefore the court now adjourns in state for a mid-day meal.

A SERMONETTE.

Osborne, Kan., Farmer: When I was a kid they used to tell me that if I would go to the end of the rainbow I would find a bag of gold. I believed it, and used to always be on the lookout for the path that would take me there. After a while I learned that the rainbow story was only a pretty fairy tale. But as I wander about the town now I frequently run across men who are still looking for that magical path. They go about day after day with no other thought in their mind that eventually that path would be revealed to them and they will get the promised bag of gold. They refuse to get down to hard pan of fact and see that they must take the path themselves. They must grub out the stumps and lay the bricks with their own hands. Their neighbors about them plod on faithfully in their humble ways, making a path instead of looking for one. But the man with the vision sits throughout the long day anxiously peering into the mists to catch a glimpse of the shining way. He fails to find it today, but goes to sleep confident that the morrow will reveal it. So the years of his natural life flit by, and in the end the neighbors find him not as "a failure."

RAILWAY DOES AWAY WITH SIGNAL FLAGS.

Los Angeles Examiner: The signal flags which almost from the time that railroading became a commercial factor in the world have fluttered from the sides of the rear coaches of a train, to denote whether it was a regular train, a special, a second section or an extra, are to be abolished after Jan. 1 by the Santa Fe railroad. In their stead will be used the signal lamps which are used at night, except that they will be of such color as to denote the class of the train and will be unlighted dcring the day.

Doing away with signal flags during the day will save to the railroad company a great many thousand dollars annually in the purchase of material for them and in the making, as it requires the best class of bunting to keep them from soon being whipped to ribbons in the wind.

GREAT CONSOLATION.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The patient opened his eyes and wondered where he was. He knew he wasn't in heaven because of the smell; he knew he was not in the other place because of the nurse. So he decided that he must be still on this better-or-worse old world. He tried to yell, and he succeeded so well that he got the attention of a doctor.

"Conscious?" cried the doctor. "Let me congratulate you!"

"Shall I recover?"

"I don't know."

"Why do you congratulate me?"

"You have a disease we have never seen before. It is a new thing in ailments. Reports are being sent out over all the land, and—"

"But why are you congratulating me if you don't know whether I am going to get well or not?"

"Why, you chump! The new disease will be christened after you! Why should you care about a minor detail like recovery?"

The young housewife need not fear losing her girlish figure lines — she can do anything in a Warner's Corset and look as "fresh as a daisy" when through. The right corset makes work easy, too. A sense of support is given, but the chief thing is that the figure beauty is preserved. The young matron may always keep her figure if she is just a little careful, selecting her corset with a view to shaping and holding the flesh firmly.

Warner's are economical, too —they can be tubbed, as they are rust-proof—and there is never the necessity for repairing, as they are guaranteed not to break, the fabric tear, or the bones rust. The best Hose Supporter is attached—the SECURITY Rubber Button.

CONTRASTS.

Just to show how refreshing a condition the Baltimore result has brought about, consider a few interesting contrasts:

Contrast Bryan, fighting without fear and without compromise for a principle and for another man who best embodies that principle, with Roosevelt, fighting as bravely, but with undue attention to the spotlight, for himself.

Contrast Woodrow Wilson, going about his business as governor of New Jersey, sitting quietly and in good-humored dignity in his official summer residence while the battle in his behalf was going on at Baltimore and in the primaries and conventions that preceded Baltimore, with Roosevelt, blustering here, there and everywhere, even at the convention itself, in his mission of bulldozing a nomination out of his party, or with Taft, descending from the president's high place to defend himself and attack his former friend on the stump.

Contrast Woodrow Wilson, the nominee by acclamation after a fair fight in a convention dominated by the people's true representatives, with Taft, the nominee by a bare majority—and that brutally stolen—of a convention in which more than a third of the delegates administered the most stinging rebuke ever given a successful candidate by sitting mute while the roll was called.

Contrast the Baltimore convention, where the bosses and the special interests behind them fought and were disastrously routed, with the Chicago convention, where the bosses and the special interests behind them won shamefully by the use of brute force and ruthless burglary.

Contrast the Democratic party, with a clean, human, brilliant statesman as its candidate on a nomination honestly won in a convention which had hurled its defiance in the teeth of Special Privilege, with its glorious youth of Jefferson and Jackson renewed in the fire of popular rule—contrast this party with the Republican party—boss-ridden, chained fast to the chariot wheel of Special Privilege, with its candidate a man whose answer to the fundamental question of the right of a man to work for his living is "God knows!" and whose answer to the demand for the rule of the people is "government of the people by a 'representative' part of the people."

The contrast is between darkness and light—between a party that is dragged back to the feet of the god of money, and a party that deliberately has declared its fealty to the cause of humanity as against the rule of the dollar.

THE SANE FOURTH OF JULY.

Duluth celebrated its Fourth sanely yesterday. The results: no fires, no lives lost, no small boys lacking fingers, noses or limbs.

Really, now, when you get used to the quietness, isn't it vastly better than the old way? Everybody seems to have had a good time. Maybe some of the boys who remember the racket of other Fourths found it a little dull, but that is because no special attempt was made to substitute other entertainment for that which has been abolished. There was some talk of a formal celebration, but that's all that came of it. Perhaps another year we can have a good one.

Compare the reports from cities that have put their feet down on the noisy and destructive Fourth with those from cities that cling to the old Fourth—Pittsburg, for instance.

In Pittsburg yesterday there were one person dead, one back broken, one eye lost, two others badly injured, seven fingers missing, four amputations, three seriously burned by powder explosions, and one in a critical condition from a powder explosion that ripped open his neck. In all, thirty-six accidents up to midnight, and a large fire loss, in just one town.

And they didn't have a better time than Duluth had yesterday.

AUTOMOBILING.

Automobile accidents, such as that which recently shocked this community profoundly, always make people reflect seriously—for a few days.

Automobiles are good things, and they have come to stay. But they have a bad side, though this is not the fault of the automobile but of those who own and run them.

It is a common comment, these days in Duluth, that too many boys and girls are operating automobiles. They do it very well indeed, but occasions often arise where the operator of an automobile has to use quick and sure judgment, of a sort that comes only with maturity. It is asking too much of youth to expect it to have the ripened judgment which responds automatically in a crisis, and this is the sort of judgment that often averts serious accidents. The lack of it often causes serious accidents.

Another comment, not only by those who walk but by many who ride in automobiles of their own, is that the average chauffeur likes speed too much. We suspect that the fault is not wholly his, and that his employers are at least partly responsible. There is little excitement in automobiling without speed, and speed in an automobile is real speed. A pace which is breath-taking in a carriage is a mere crawl in an automobile. A pace which seems fast to those who watch from the sidewalk seems tamely slow to those who ride. Ten, fifteen or twenty miles an hour, manifestly safe rates of travel, are ridiculously flat to those who ride in automobiles.

And those who ride in automobiles probably get too little physical exercise, as a rule. They get the open air, which is a big gain; but while they get tired, it is no such wholesome, healthful weariness as they would get if they walked an equal length of time.

Nevertheless, the automobile is good, though not an unmixed good, and it has come to stay.

A QUEER PROCEEDING.

The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission seems strangely disturbed by the recent decision of the interstate commerce commission, rendered in response to a complaint by the Duluth Board of Trade and the traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club, readjusting grain freights in the Northwest.

The commission has issued a formal statement calling attention to this ruling, pointing out that it changes the longstanding relationship of a large grain-producing area to the market centers, and suggesting that the railroads ought to ask for a modification of the order.

Of course this ruling changes the relationship of the grain-producing sections to the markets. The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission is right. Bless its little soul, that was precisely what the proceedings were begun for!

It makes available to a large and important area the rich market of Duluth, and opens up that market to sections that have hitherto been confined by railroad favoritism to the Minneapolis market.

But why should the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission be agitated about this? Does it object to giving as many points in Minnesota as possible a choice of markets? Does it object to having the Minneapolis market monopoly disturbed? Does it object to having the Duluth market given its fair standing in the grain-producing sections?

It's a queer piece of business. If the Minnesota commission has nothing left to do but to rally to the defense of the railroads and of the Minneapolis market monopoly, it would better be abolished. If it has nothing left to do but to criticize the rulings of the interstate commerce commission, it might as well be dispensed with.

If this act illustrates their conception of their public duties, it would be a good idea, at any rate, if the present members of the commission were dispensed with.

Also, it would be interesting to know what railroad or Twin City special interests put the commission up to this trick, and whether the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission believes that its duty is to Minneapolis and the railroads or to the entire state and its people.

A MAGNIFICENT DRIVEWAY.

It isn't all continuous yet—some time soon, we hope, it will be—but Duluth, with the opening to traffic of the Snively boulevard Saturday will be well along toward the completion of a twenty-mile drive that cannot be excelled on this continent, if on any other.

When completed—it is already practicable for vehicles throughout the entire distance when country roads are used as connecting links—it will provide a beautiful driveway from Fairmont park on the west to Lester park on the east, including the unparalleled drive along the shoulder of the bluffs behind the city.

Scarcely less wonderful is the Snively boulevard, three miles long, which will be opened Saturday.

Years ago S. F. Snively, out of his own pocket, opened up this roadway along the west branch of Lester river, building a dozen or so pretty rustic bridges where the road crosses and recrosses the stream. It was impossible for him to stand the expense of keeping it up, and it fell into disuse. The bridges collapsed for lack of repairs, and presently the road was practicable only for pedestrians who didn't mind a little rough travel, including rock-climbing and stream wading. The city neglected its duty for a long time, but finally the park board took the road over, and its splendid work upon it has just been completed.

The fallen bridges have been replaced in stone and concrete. The roadway, for years given over to a rank growth of underbrush, has been cleared out, levelled and made ready for use. It has not yet been graveled, but that will come later.

If you want to see something pretty, go over this road. Walk it, drive it, or, if you must, go over it in an automobile; only if you take an automobile hold your chauffeur down to a pace that will give you a chance to see what you are going through.

The gap between the Snively boulevard and the Rogers boulevard across the face of the hills can be bridged by using serviceable roads between Colbyville and Chester park, going by way of Hunter's Park and Third and Fourth streets to Fifteenth avenue east.

THE ORATOR'S MISTAKE.

An eloquent citizen who delighted the natives of a Northern Minnesota village with his Fourth of July eloquence yesterday made one slip.

He said, in speaking of the sublime events which gave birth to this nation: "There's just as much patriotism today as there was then. The only difference is that we don't have the opportunity to display it. Uncle Sam is respected and feared among the other nations of the world and there is no opportunity to show the spirit of '76 or '61."

On the contrary, never in the history of the country has there been so splendid a chance to show patriotism, or so noble an opportunity to show the spirit of '76 or '61, as there is today.

The spirit of '76 was the spirit of liberty striving against regal tyranny. The spirit of '61 was the spirit of liberty fighting race slavery. The spirit of 1912 is again the spirit of liberty, fighting this time against industrial tyranny and for industrial freedom.

Just as much patriotism is needed today as the young nation needed in the dark days of Valley Forge. It is a different manifestation, but the spirit is the same. It is as noble and as beautiful as the patriotism that faces bullets, and it is more useful.

Patriotism isn't a thing to be called upon only in time of war. It is needed every day. And never is it needed more than in times of peace when Special Privilege arrogantly usurps the people's power and uses it to the end that a few shall be inordinately rich even though many are thereby made inordinately poor.

Not even an automobile muffler cut-out broke the stilly silence of Duluth's "safe and sane" Fourth.

"All this talk of a third party makes me think of a chaperone," sighed a fair young thing the other evening when her dad was talking politics to the neighbor on the front porch.

THE SHORT BALLOT MOVEMENT

By H. S. GILBERTSON.

III—The Start of the Movement

Every serious writer on the subject of American government has been properly horrified by the multitude of offices put up to the modern American voter for election. For in this matter we are unique among the nations. The English ballot, by contrast, is the size of a post card and holds, as a rule, not over two names.

But the political scientists tacitly put the long ballot in a class with death and taxes, as something inevitable, and let it go at that.

This was the case up to three years ago. By that time the story of Galveston and Des Moines, with their simple, workable, efficient and, withal, highly democratized form of government, was coming to general notice. The Galveston charter happened to restore the vital elements of a practical democracy; a simple, unified and responsible organization with only five elective offices. Politics suddenly became as simple as in colonial days, and every citizen became easily complete master of his ballot. There was none of the scattering of citizen-power characteristic of long ballot conditions. Every elective public servant was a real choice of the people rather than of the politicians. Thanks to the short ballot and the clear untangled lines of responsibility, each official was working in broad daylight under the public gaze.

This recapture of representative government by the people in Galveston was a pure accident. The plan was based upon no formulated theory—in fact, the commission was designed only as an emergency appointive government. But there were people who believe that something in Galveston's charter was "the key to the whole question of the restoration of government by the people. Governor Woodrow Wilson was one of these.

In the summer of 1909 The Outlook published a magazine article entitled "The Short Ballot," by Richard S. Childs, a thoughtful young New York business man. The article analyzed our commonest political complaints and showed how too long a ballot in lieu of extending the power, actually tended to disfranchise them and leave the politicians in control. The name of this remedy, "Short Ballot," became the trademark of the movement which that article has inspired.

On Jan. 17, 1910, Governor Wilson and other public men called a conference of some 200 persons at the Hotel Astor in New York city, at which was laid the foundation of the short ballot movement. A permanent publicity bureau called the National Short Ballot organization was established in New York, from whence ever since has been conducted a steady campaign of education directed at the public through newspapers, colleges and civic organizations.

Every one of these agencies has responded with surprising eagerness. The basic truth of the idea seemed instantly to link itself with some very concrete experiences of the voters on election day. Today there are few important newspapers which have not at one time or another published friendly short ballot editorials. Over 100 colleges are now making the short ballot principle a regular part of the course in political science. The various local civic organizations have all taken up the idea and in some instances have subordinated all other issues to it.

Governors began to advocate the short ballot in their messages, seeing in it a solution of their difficulties in bringing orderliness and harmony into their independent and unco-ordinated cabinets. Governor Hughes of New York, for example, fought year after year for constitutional amendments which would unite state administrations under the chief executive. Governor Hay in Washington, Woodrow Wilson in New Jersey, Governor Hunt in Arizona and Governor Johnson of California are among the other vigorous short ballot advocates. Legislation along short ballot lines began to receive more and more friendly attention and support. City charter commissions began to see the point and commission government charters and other short ballot plans were adopted in increasing numbers by various cities. Prominent citizens, such as Charles W. Eliot of Harvard and Theodore Roosevelt, swore allegiance and spoke frequently on behalf of the principle. In 1912 the short ballot is blossoming out spontaneously in various state party platforms.

Thus in two short years the short ballot idea has grown swiftly from a mere proposal of a student to a great nation-wide assault upon the stoutest citadel of bossism. Its development by the Progressives will be described in the next article.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

GOOD EXAMPLE SET.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The Fourth street property owners might have done well to have attended the meeting of the board of public works when the contracts for the paving of streets in West Duluth and the West end were up for consideration. They involved about $80,000, about the cost of the Fourth street job, and the property owners were divided as to the kinds of pavement to be selected. But they appeared before the board at the time specified and the whole matter was settled before the board adjourned. The council approved the awards at its next meeting, refusing to countenance any delay. In the matter of pavements it is impossible to satisfy everybody and nothing could have been gained by wrangling over the situation for weeks or months. The entire city as well as individuals along the street in question must be taken into consideration.

FOURTH STREET.

Duluth, July 5.

THE IMPOSSIBLE MAN.

Albany Times-Union: That American Woolen company at Lawrence, Mass., which recently settled a strike in its mills, triumphantly announces that it gives work to 30,000 employes and has an annual payroll of $13,000,000.

Let the reader "make believe" that he is an average one of the 30,000.

Then, you receive for a year's work $433.33. Let's see what you can do with your money, presupposing that you are really willing to get along with the cheapest things. Now the figures we are going to give are estimates based on average prices in various localities, and the quantities named will vary, according to localities, so that these figures will be most satisfactory to the reader if he compares them with what he knows about prices and quantities from his own experience.

Cost of clothes per year: Hats, $2; two suits, $25; three pairs of shoes, $9; overcoat, $10; three suits of underclothes, $4; six shirts, $5; ten pairs of stockings, $2; bed clothes and laundry, $52. Total, $109.

Cost of food per year: three loaves of bread per week at 6 cents, $9.36; four pounds of meat per week at 15 cents, $31.20; eight pounds of potatoes per week at 6 cents, $24.96. Total $65.52.

Cost of other things per year: House rent at $8 per month, $96; water rent at 50 cents per month, $6; fuel at $3 per month, $36. Total, $138.

Grand total, $312.50. Income, $433.33.

Glory hallelujah! There's $120.81 to put in the bank! "Do not spend all your income" is printed in big type on the back of the pay envelopes of the American Woolen company, and, praise be, we've just figured out how we can put $10 per month in the saving bank! But, wait a minute! Let's see what sort of a workman, what sort of a citizen of the United States we've created in this imaginary fellow.

First, he is a single man. He is ruined, if he marries, damned to everlasting retrogression and misery if he has children. Therefore, while he may be the very sort of fellow the woolen company wants, he is not the sort of fellow that the United States wants.

Secondly, our imaginary workman has no collars, neckties, handkerchiefs, raincoat, rubbers or umbrella, and never shaves or bathes, for we've not put the cost of these things in our list. Forsooth, our imagination has created an habitual slouch, a fellow without ambition or self-respect, and hence a poor citizen. He never rides on a street car, never goes to an amusement, never buys a book or a flower. He is just a working animal.

Thirdly, we have created an impossible man. We make him deny himself beer ,tobacco, coffee, milk, tea, pickles, preserves, pastry and condiments of every sort. He never has to have the services of doctor or dentist. He does his own cooking and housework.

But, the American Woollen company will say, there's the $10 he's saving monthly. He is one of our contented workmen. We like his sort. Let's see.

Living the dog's life we have pictured, he has got to save for nearly three years to be able to live one year in case accident, old age, or the wear and tear of just bread, meat and potatoes, or diseases, knocks him down. Else somebody else must support him finally.

Thirty thousand employes at Lawrence up against a proposition that is an impossibility to them and which means to the nation race suicide and impoverished old age! Some time our people will seriously and enthusiastically promote the policy of a minimum wage, under which hopelessness must give way to opportunity, to progress, through which men can rise from the condition of confirmed beasts of burden to valuable and valued citizenship.

Contentment.

If money made the birds sing any sweeter,
Or made the skies a brighter, better blue;
If money made a summer day completer,
Or added to the sunset's gorgeous view;
If money made a meadow more entrancing,
A shady lane a better place to stroll;
If gold could add one bit to my romancing,
On money then I'd strive to feed my soul.

If money made my true friends any truer;
If money could keep sorrow from the door;
If it could make her blue eyes any bluer,
Each day I'd rise to fight for more and more.
If money made my baby's fond caresses
Sweeter to me, I'd spurn all play and rest,
Face dangers grim and dare all dire distresses,
For money then I'd sacrifice my best.

But since my joys are fixed and everlasting;
Since woods and trees can never greater be;
And since a stream, where idly I am casting,
Delights the rich no more than it does me,
I sing my little song and wander gayly,
Content with what I reap along the way;
Life's richest pleasures I may gather daily,
I do not need much money to be gay.

I need not bind my soul with any fetter,
Or wait for joy till I have wealth untold;
My baby's kiss would not seem any better
Though I possessed a hoard of yellow gold.
The ones I love to me could not be dearer,
No happier could be my hours of play,
And money could not bring me one step nearer
Life's real joys—for they are mine today.

—Detroit Free Press.

Russia and Finland.

Springfield Republican: Russia has of late been showing an unusual sensitiveness to the unfavorable opinion of pretty much the whole world, and an effort is being made, plainly inspired by high officials, to destroy sympathy for Finland. To this end wide circulation is being given to a pamphlet entitled "The Finnish Revolution in Preparation (1889-1905), as Disclosed by Secret Documents." It is translated by G. Dobson, formerly newspaper correspondent in St. Petersburg, from the Russian of Eugene Feodoroff, and is largely composed of extracts from documents which are no doubt genuine, though the author only says: "How this correspondence came into the hands of the compiler is immaterial." It may be safely taken for granted that every scrap of it came straight from the files of the Russian police, along with unflattering pen portraits, such as police agents make of suspects.

The gist of this pamphlet is that the Finns are nice people and love Russia and Russian ways, or would do so but for the wicked machinations of the Swedes, who constitute a large part of the population and have been constantly intriguing with their compatriots in Sweden. So far from Russifying Finland, Russia is Finnifying it. The process began under Bobrikoff, and his assassination, we are told, was due not to his oppression of the country, but to his tender love for it, and his anxiety not to let it be oppressed by the Swedes. Admirably euphemistic is the statement: "Bobrikoff set himself the task, not of destroying the autonomy and independence of the Finns, but of developing that independence and autonomy in so far only as the condition of things implied in these terms coincided with a united and indivisible Russian state." A platform maker would hardly do better in discussing the tariff.

It may be imagined that this tardy attempt to propitiate world opinion on the question of Finland is doomed in advance to failure. It will not help greatly to show by correspondence that knots of conspirators were at work—is there a Russian province anywhere of which the same might not be said? No doubt the mixed population of Finland has made administration troublesome, and it may easily be believed that some measures were honestly well meant. But what the world sees is mainly that the one spark of liberty left under the Russian flag has been extinguished, that a people with its own traditions, its own patriotism has been put under the same iron heel that crushed Poland. It is useless for Russia to appeal for sympathy till it has reformed. Till Russians have freedom the world will be sorry for any subject people that has to share their yoke.

A Mean Man's Method.

Atchison Globe: A mean man's recipe for taming his wife is to stay out nights so blamed much she will be glad to see him come home occasionally.

WILSON.

Minneapolis Journal (Rep.): The result is the wisest nomination the Democrats could have made, everything considered. Governor Wilson is a declared progressive who is likely to have many progressives of all parties behind him. Mr. Taft, on the other hand, is a conservative Progressive—which joins the issue.

New York Times: In the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic party regains its ancient estate of worth, of dignity, of power. It escapes the thralldom of little men and ignoble leaders. It takes as its chief a man of that statesman-like quality which befits the presidential office. The nomination of Governor Wilson will unite the party. There is not a Democrat who can find a sufficient reason for withholding his vote for such a candidate.

New York World: He will be the first president of the United States in a generation to go into office owing favors to nobody except the American people and under obligations to nothing except the general welfare. • • • Governor Wilson's nomination means the rule of the boss is over.

New York American (Hearst): The New York American will support the nominee. • • • Whoever else may rise or fall in the fortunes of the last convention of the Democratic party, William J. Bryan comes out of it stained forever and stamped by his hypocrisy and his hates as a fraud and a demagogue, false in language, false in profession and false in friendship as to party.

Chicago Tribune: By the nomination of Governor Woodrow Wilson the Democratic party has placed at the head of its ticket its most promising leader and its strongest candidate. Governor Wilson represents intelligent progressiveism within his party, a progressiveism which found successful expression at Baltimore, although it failed at Chicago. He is a man of high personal character, of distinguished intellectual attainments, and brief but brilliant political record. He is, moreover, in full sympathy with the nation-wide movement to overthrow the alliance between professional politics and organized money, which is the most important factor in American public life today. Fought bitterly by plutocrats, reactionaries and bosses, and made, more recently, the victim of a campaign of misrepresentation and journalistic demagogy, he has grown steadily in public confidence and favor.

The Democratic party is to be congratulated upon the choice of Governor Wilson. He also owes a debt of thanks to Mr. Bryan, whose successful fight in the convention against reactionary plutocracy will go down to posterity as one of the most dramatic exhibitions of the moral influence of a great leader of the people our political history has shown.

Buffalo Express: The Democracy has a progressive platform and it has done the right thing in nominating a clear-headed, rational, conscientious, progressive and big man, who feels that the responsibility he assumes is even weightier than the honor he receives. Theodore Roosevelt, doubtless, is deeply disappointed by the vindication of Democratic sanity at Baltimore.

Omaha World-Herald: The candidacy of Governor Wilson will appeal to men of all parties and is a magnet that undoubtedly points to the sure triumph of Democracy. To Progressive Democrats, to Progressive Republicans, Woodrow Wilson looms as a leader of big and satisfying proportions.

Boston Globe: Woodrow Wilson fits the era. He was the logical selection. His opinions are well known, his qualifications are explicit, his character is unassailable, and his achievements such as warrant his promotion to the office of president of the United States. With Governor Wilson in the field, the Roosevelt third-party movement cannot be very formidable in the coming election.

Cleveland Plaindealer: Democracy puts forward its strongest candidate for the presidency in Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. By this nomination Democracy appeals to the progressive sentiment of all parties. It makes possible for the first time since the rise of the progressive movement a definite allignment between progressives and conservatives, using each term in its general significance. Moreover, it removes the last lingering excuse for the organization of the Roosevelt third party. It should put an end to the personal strivings of the former president.

A Lengthy Stock in Trade.

Kansas City Times: The late Will McConnell, an advance agent and a Broadway character of much renown, was standing in the baggage room of a railroad station in company with Mel Stoltz, another advance agent. They were waiting to have their trunks checked. Presently a baggage handler passed, pushing a sample trunk, which, according to Stoltz, was about 9 feet long and about 2 feet wide.

"For the love of Mike!" ejaculated Stoltz, "what do you suppose the owner of that trunk sells?"

"I don't know," said McConnell, "but from the shape of that package I'd say bowling alleys."

Bing!

Boscobel, Wis., Dial-Enterprise: Doesn't it make you weary to read the rot of those rattlebrain idiots of the Chicago press who are repeatedly ridiculing the country papers on their locals? These 2 by 4 lunch counter fiends think it awfully funny when some country newspaper says, "Hiram Slocum has sold his Holstein cow to Ed Childress." But, of course, it is just the proper caper when they say, "Mrs. Franklin Oliver Lowden has just returned from the Epsom Lorimer kennel." O, that's great! That bull pup would bring about 30 cents in the dog pound, Slocum's cow would sell for $50 in the dark.

The Man of Excuses.

Detroit Free Press: The man who is always making excuses wastes a lot of time that he might use to advantage in making progress.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

"There's a Reason."

Fairmont Sentinel: The extra session was worth a couple of million dollars to the state in railroad taxes, but for this The Duluth Herald is largely entitled to the credit. It worked up the sentiment in its favor and did so without a single word of encouragement or support from a single St. Paul or Minneapolis newspaper. We don't know, but we suppose "there's a reason."

An Amusing Creature.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth News Tribune did some mighty interesting contortion stunts in trying to get onto the Roosevelt band-wagon, and it should be far more entertaining now to watch it trying to backsomersault onto the Taft steam roller.

Right You Are.

Northome Record: The Duluth Herald had it figured out that Roosevelt would be the Republican presidential nominee, but it did its figuring without knowledge of the latest-improved devices to be added to the steam-roller.

A Remarkable Feat.

Northome Record: The Duluth News Tribune turned four double summersaults in rapid concussion and landed squarely on top of the Taft steam roller, and is hanging on like grim death to a colored man.

Good Sense.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Minneapolis Jobbers were out on a "Get Acquainted Excursion," but they passed up the range country entirely in their itinerary, which fact range merchants should not forget. The Minneapolis houses want the business from the range if they can get it, but they are not making any bid for it by passing up the towns in this section. We would rather see our money stay in St. Louis county, anyway, and by patronizing Duluth jobbers it will.

A Record for Contortion.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The Duluth News Tribune must be trying for a record in the field of contortion; having turned a double flipflap from Taft to Roosevelt and back again to Taft.

And a Gross Earnings Increase.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: The Duluth Herald says it is "proud of the legislature because it has amply justified the confidence in it on which The Herald's extra session compaign was based."

The legislature acquitted itself creditably in several ways at the extra session, but if we are not greatly mistaken the particular reason for which The Herald advocated an extra session six months ago was that it might pass a reapportionment law.

Honesty Causes Suspicion.

Virginia Virginian: Duluth has a city attorney who claims that his taxes are too low. He should tell his troubles to Judge Gilpin.

Claude Has It.

Northome Record: The Brainerd Tribune ventures the long-distance opinion that "the Duluth News Tribune is now almost, though not quite, as unfair as its notoriously unfair contemporary, the nauseating Duluth Herald." Getting closer the Brainerd man would have need of language of much greater force and penetrating power.

The Cry of the Old House.

Come back!
My little lads, come back!
My little maids, with starched frocks;
My lads, my maids, come back!
The poplar trees are black
Against the keen, lone, throbbing sky;
The tang of the old box
Flits the clear dusk from wall to wall,
And the dews fall.
Come back!
I watch, I cry:
Leave the rude wharf, the mart;
Come back!
Else I shall break my heart.

Am I forgot;
My days as they were not?—
The warm, sweet, crooning tunes;
The Sunday afternoons,
Wrought but for you;
The larkspurs growing tall.
You wreathed in pink and blue,
Within your prayer books small;
The cupboards carved both in and out,
With curious, prickly, vine,
And smelling far and fine;
The pictures in a row,
Of folk you did not know;
The toys, the games, the shrill, gay rout;
The lanterns, that hour for bed,
A charmed, but homely red,
Went flickering from shed to shed;
The fagots crumbling, spicy, good,
Brought in from the great wood;
The dark that held you all about;
The wind that would not go?—
Come back, my women and my men,
And take them all again!

Come back!
Come up the still, accustomed, wistful lands.
The poplar haunted lands.
You need not call,
For I shall know,
And light the candles tall,
Set wine and loaf a-row,
Come back!
Unlatch the door,
And fall upon my heart once more.
For I shall comfort you, oh lad;
Oh, daughter, I shall make you wholly glad!
The wreck, the wrong,
The unavailing throng,
The sting, the smart,
Shall be as they were not,
Forgot, forgot!
Come back,
And fall upon my heart!

Corking Good Stuff.

Detroit Free Press: "I want you to write a speech for me," said the politician to the newspaper man.

"About how long?"

"I don't know. I ought to talk about an hour and a half, I think."

"What do you want to discuss?"

"Nothing. I've got an old saying here: 'Money will not buy happiness.' Can't you string that out for an hour or two? It ought to make corking good stuff."

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH IS A GREAT SUCCESS

Day Singularly Free From Accidents— Gasoline Launch Is Burned.

Thousands Find They Can Enjoy Themselves Without Noise.

The Fourth of July took off its gum shoes only in spots yesterday and yet thousands of people, who had fretted under the restraint as to noise made by the city council, found to their great surprise that they were enjoying themselves immensely. Of course the character of the day helped and so did the weather. The latter was perfect, the fright caused by Weather Forecaster Richardson to the effect that there would be showers proving to be just a joke of the man on the hill to make the people at large feel more thankful for the good weather than they might have felt were it not the unexpected.

The day was singularly free from accidents and the distress which usually mars the Fourth was practically absent so far as Duluth was concerned. The city's first real try at a "safe and sane" celebration proved to be an unqualified success. The only serious accident so far recorded was the burning of the launch "Laura E." just above the Grassy Point bridge. The launch belonged to the Lake Carriers' association. It was thirty-five feet long and considered one of the best on the bay. The launch contained six people, who were marooned for a time on a sandbar where the burning boat was beached. Later they were taken ashore by boats returning from up the river, and dispersed to their homes, keeping their identity secret.

Backfire Ignites Launch.

The cause of the conflagration was a backfire from the engine, which set the boat afire. It burned so fiercely in the grease and oil in the boat that it could not be extinguished and the pilot had to head for the sandbar to save his passengers. Capt. Curry of the association says the loss through the burning of the launch, is about $2,000.

Dr. D. H. Day was stalled for a time up the river by the breaking of the shaft in his launch, and required assistance to get back to the city.

Fond du Lac and vicinity, Lester Park, Duluth Heights, the grounds of the St. Louis Orphanage and Park Point were the chief points of congestion for the crowds. Private picnic parties were too numerous for mention, and clustered in almost every shady nook in almost every park and public place of the city.

Crowds on River.

It seemed as though most of the people of Duluth and Superior had congregated up the river. The excursion steamers which carried passengers there were jammed to overflowing on every trip, the river was alive with launches, sailboats, rowboats and canoes, and the trains carried large crowds to and fro. The exodus to the up-the-river section numbered into the thousands, some estimating that as many as 10,000 people took in that part of the city.

Lester park enjoyed a large attendance, where excellent amusement was provided. Park Pointers was also liberally patronized, and before noon every craft of whatever description at the boat club was gone. About 500 people took dinner at the Spirit Lake branch of the boat club.

Duluth Heights Celebrates.

At Duluth Heights there was an old-fashioned celebration with the fireworks and explosives cut out. It was enjoyed by the residents of the Heights and by many people from the downtown districts who visited there for the day. A parade in the morning was quite a feature. It was led by a squad of mounted police, which in turn was led by Officer Norren on the famous police horse, "Old Windy." Officer Norren held on the front of his saddle a small boy decorated in the national colors, and the combination got quite a hand. Prettily decorated floats, marching groups and a bugle and drum corps made up the parade, the especial hit being a marching group designated to represent "the spirit of '76." The parade took up about three blocks in length, and the rear was covered by an old-fashioned cannon drawn by a team of horses. The cannon was frequently unlimbered and fired, much to the joy of the budding American.

Following the parade patriotic exercises took place, at which W. E. McEwen and Ralph E. Johnson made speeches. Mr. Johnson is a Duluth boy, who is attending the state university, and the excellence of his speech was not only a hit but a pleasant surprise for he displayed all of the points of an orator. Mr. McEwen is always happy in his addresses and was unusually good yesterday.

A dinner took place on the picnic grounds, after which the sports began. A baseball game between the Duluth Heights and the Oak Hall teams resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 11 to 9. Races of all kinds were indulged in, the greased pole climbing furnished a lot of fun, and then the evening program of a band concert by the Cathedral high school band and a dance completed a rarely pleasant day.

At St. James Orphanage.

It is estimated that at the celebration of the St. James Orphanage about 4,000 people were in attendance. Bishop McGolrick and H. P. Proctor were the speakers of the day, both delivering orations that aroused in their hearers the thrills of patriotic fervor. The program in general was excellent, two numbers especially meeting with much applause. They were the singing of "The Irish Lullaby," by Miss Rose Burnett, and recitation, "The Watermelon," by Bernard Eckert.

Bishop McGolrick's address, as was expected, abounded in the eloquence of which he is a recognized master and his reading of a poem, "The Flag," the author of which was Rev. Constantine Pise, the only Catholic ever chaplain of the United States senate, was most effective.

H. P. Proctor, Jr., who made an address, is a newcomer to the city, but his reputation as a public speaker of more than ordinary merit had preceded him and for this reason he was urged to give the oration of the day, and accepted. His speech was a masterpiece of eloquence. Coming as it did from a stranger, whose powers were theretofore unknown, the address, which was patriotic in the greatest degree, created an impression which will serve Mr. Proctor as a most enviable introduction to Duluth.

The big sporting event of the day was a baseball game between teams of the Knights of Columbus and of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the former winning by a score of 7 to 0. The umpires, who had a hard time of it, were John McGreevy and A. J. Powers. There were many exciting athletic contests and a lot of good-humored rivalry. A contest among young young girls for the honor of securing the most memberships for the St. James Guild was won by Miss Mary Maloney.

An interesting feature of the day was a series of folk dances by the orphanage children and it was greatly enjoyed.

Other Celebrations.

West Duluth celebrated the day all in one bunch, that being with a fine display of fireworks in the evening at the playgrounds at the Fifty-second avenue playgrounds.

The Northland Country club held open house all day for its members and in the evening fired off $1,000 worth of fireworks, which were of exceptional beauty and which could be plainly seen from various points of the city.

FORMER CASHIER UNDER ARREST

Charged With Embezzling $24,500 of Funds of Indiana Bank.

Chicago, July 5.—Howard B. Harter, 28 years old, former cashier of the Citizens bank of Akron, Ind., was arrested here yesterday on an indictment charging him with having embezzled $24,500 of the funds of the institution in 1911.

The bank was founded by Andrew P. Harter, father of the young man. The elder Harter was president of the institution. The young man is said to have speculated in grain.

After the bank closed its doors, Harter gave himself up to the sheriff. The directors of the bank paid all the depositors, and the case was not presented to the grand jury until last June. In February Harter came to Chicago, informing the sheriff of his whereabouts. He was willing to go back and "face the music," he said when he was arrested.

PRESIDENT TAFT BACK IN BEVERLY

Hundreds March Behind His Automobile to Summer White House.

Beverly, Mass., July 5.—Beverly had a joint celebration yesterday in honor of the Fourth and the return of its most distinguished summer residents, President and Mrs. Taft.

Thousands of persons stood for more than an hour at the Beverly station to greet the president when his train pulled in from Boston an hour late; crowds lined the street to watch him pass, and hundreds more marched behind his automobile to Parametta, the summer White House.

"It's good to be back to Beverly again," said the president to the reception committee that met him at the station. Mrs. Taft smilingly nodded her approval of that sentiment.

President and Mrs. Taft immediately entered one of the White House cars brought up from Washington several days ago, and, with the Beverly Taft club as an escort, were driven slowly to Parametta. A detachment of blue-jackets from the dispatch boat Dolphine, anchored in the bay, fell in behind, and the Dolphine fired the presidential salute of twenty-one guns.

Shook Hands With Marchers.

The cottage had been prepared for the president's arrival, and on the steps of its wide portico he stood for a half hour shaking hands with the marchers. Mr. Taft will return to Washington Sunday night.

The president made a short speech to the members of the Taft club. He said:

"I am glad to be here and to be received by the Taft club of Beverly. You have given me a substantial impression of your confidence in me in the late primary, and I very much appreciate it and return my thanks to you and to those of the city of Beverly who stood with you in this matter. Mrs. Taft and I, and my family are glad to be here. We are coming to get all the pleasure there is and all the health and all the energy you have up here in Massachusetts and to renew our claim of being Yankees."

ANDREW'S RESIGNATION REPEATEDLY REQUESTED

Secretary MacVeagh Says He Pleaded to Be Retained in Service.

Used Every Influence to Have Request to Resign Withdrawn.

Lancaster, Mass., July 5.—Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh, in a statement given out here, declared that the resignation of A. Platt Andrew, assistant secretary of the treasury, was not submitted until it had repeatedly been requested by both Mr. MacVeagh and President Taft. He said that Mr. Andrew pleaded to be retained in the service and brought every possible influence to bear to have the request for his resignation withdrawn. His statement says:

"I regret that it seems necessary to refer to the letters published by Mr. A. Platt Andrew and addressed to the president and to me. The virulence of the attack has probably limited effects, but apart from the attack upon me, he strangely misrepresented a number of men in the treasury department to whom I attributo a large measure of the success of the department's work, and seems to deny that anything has been accomplished by them or anybody else. I am obliged, therefore, to restore Mr. Andrew's resignation to its proper light.

"Mr Andrew said his resignation was because of the conditions in the treasury department, which he disapproves. A comparison of this statement with the facts is probably the simplest way to test the animus and veracity of his letters. He did not resign voluntarily, but was asked to resign—and asked repeatedly—and he used every effort and influence possible to get the request for his resignation withdrawn, and pleaded to be allowed to continue in his place. And it was when he had failed to have the request for his resignation withdrawn, and because of this, that he made his attack—and chose to give the impression that his resignation was a matter of his own choice and determination upon for public reasons.

Details of Resignation.

The details as to his resignation, are as follows: On June 24, when Mr. Andrew returned from Chicago, I formally asked in a note for his resignation. He called on me at once and urged me to change my mind and allow him to stay. At his wish, I explained at length my reasons and listened to all his arguments and wishes. I felt, however, obliged to tell him that the request for his resignation could not be withdrawn. I supposed Mr. Andrew would send his resignation in promptly, and as a matter of course, as I had never know of a case where such a request had not been promptly complied with.

"I waited, however, without reply, until June 28. I then wrote again, repeating the request. On the 29th Mr. Andrew sent me a brief note, treating the matter with vagueness. I replied immediately, saying I could not accept vagueness, but wished to have, that day, either his resignation, or his refusal to resign. To this he did not reply at all, and therefore, on July 2, I wrote a fourth time renewing the request, and communicating a copy of a letter addressed to me by the president authorizing and directing me to ask for his resignation. I asked for a prompt reply, stating that I was going out o ftown. I left Washington on the midnight train, without hearing from Mr. Andrew and saw in the next afternoon's papers long extracts from two scurrilous letters, one to the president and one to me, which at last conveyed his unwilling resignation.

Used Influence to Stay.

"Meanwhile, as I only learned after a week, Mr. Andrew had diligently used the interval while I was awaiting, to secure all the influence he could to aid him in keeping his place.

"Mr. Andrew did not, at any time, mention to me any objection to his treatment in the treasury department except that he thought that I did not give him as much of my time as I ought; and that I had sometimes allowed other callers to be received when he was in my room. On the other hand, some of those connected with my office—and who were impartial—thought Mr. Andrew had had at certain periods too much of my time. Certainly his curious calculation of the amount of time given him, will strike everyone with wonderment.

"No other complaint or criticism did Mr. Andrew ever offer, and it is hardly necessary to point out that a man whose grip on his place I could hardly shake loose, could scarcely have found his place undesirable or his associations unendurable.

"If Mr. Andrew could represent himself as resigning voluntarily when he was with unusual difficulty forced to resign, it causes no wonder that he should, without warrant, call as witnesses a group of inportant men of the departemnt who nearly all immediately contradicted him—and whose immediate assurances to me by telegraph and telephone, are among the pleasantest happenings of my official life. No one in the department, who has dono successful work, would, I believe, indorse any of Mr. Andrew's statements.

Was Not Efficient.

"There is nothing out of the usual in Mr. Andrew's case. The work of the treasury department has been, and still is strenuous, owing to the program adopted at the beginning of the administration, and it is necessary to have all three of the assistant secretaries efficient. It was a great disappointment to me that Mr. Andrew was not efficient enough to meet the requirements and that it was necessary to get some one else. That is all there was to it, when the change was decided upon. Subsequently, in direct disobedience to my instructions, written and then repeated in two interviews sought by him and without my knowledge, until he had left Washington, he went to the Chicago convention, when the other two assistant secretaries had already gone by previous arrangement.

"This irresponsible conduct must have led in any event to his prompt separation from the department. Mr. Andrew, I see, has made the statement that he told me he wished to go to Chicago to further monetary legislation. This is clearly an afterthought. He made no mention whatever of the monetary question. He gave only one reason for wishing to go. He says he intended to go into politics and the convention afforded a splendid opportunity to make political acquaintances."

Secretary MacVeagh will go to his summer home at Dublin, N. H., today, and will return to Washington Sunday night.

To Be Discussed at Beverly.

Washington, July 5.—The issue raised between Secretary MacVeagh and A. Platt Andrew will be discussed probably at Beverly where Mr. MacVeagh will join President Taft Sunday and return with him to Washington. It may be thoroughly aired soon in a house investigation proposed by Representative Cox of Ohio.

The officials whom Assistant Secretary Andrew, in his letter of resignation to the president, cited as being dissatisfied with Secretary MacVeagh's attitude toward them, have taken various attitudes. Commissioner Cabell of the internal revenue bureau, Auditor Kram of the postoffice department, and Director Ralph of the bureau of printing and engraving, have telegraphed Secretary MacVeagh that their relations with him always have been cordial. Lee McClung, treasurer of the United States, whose relations with Mr. MacVeagh are said to have been especially strained, declined to make any statement whatever. Comptroller of the Currency Murray, out of town, has informed treasury officials he is willing to make a public statement that there was no friction between him and Secretary MacVeagh.

Assistant Secretary Andrew's friends, however, declare that before making public the letter containing his criticisms of Secretary MacVeagh, he submitted it to practically all the officials whom he cited, and it received their approval. The others declined to discuss the features of the question today.

SPEEDING IN THE COUNTRY

Gnesen Farmer Complains of Careless Driving of Automobilists.

That the farmers of Gnesen and the surrounding country are going to see to it that a bill is presented to the next legislature greatly reducing the speed limit for automobiles, motorcycles and other vehicles in the country, or else leaving that matter for the towns to regulate, was a declaration made today by John Welch, a farmer from Gnesen.

"I am told that the greatest speed allowed by the law along country roads is twenty-five miles an hour," said he. "That is too fast, both for the people in an auto and for those who drive teams along the road. But even that limit is greatly exceeded. Nobody knows at what minute an auto will come whizzing around a turn in the road at fifty miles an hour, and run into a team of horses or scare them and cause them to run away. There have been many such accidents of late in our neighborhood.

"Some of the city folks seem to think that the lives of the country people are not so valuable as those of the city folks, for just as soon as they get their autos out in the country, they turn on the full speed. As long as only chickens, pigs and calves were killed, we did not make any great complaint, but now that we find our own lives being endangered we are going to have this break-neck speeding stopped."

Duluth Defeats Red Hose By Scores of 14 to 3 and 6 to 2.

McGloom Is Mobbed and "Bill" Sommer Plays the Baby Act.

(BY BRUCE.)

Duluth defeated Superior by the score of 6 to 2 in the evening game played last evening at Athletic park, the afternoon game go'ng the way of Duluth by the score of 14 to 3, this contest being staged at Hislop park. The first game was marred by the cowardly attack of a bunch of rube fans, the kind they have in Superior, on Umpire McGloom. "Bill" Sommers refused to play the evening game until McGloom was put in the grandstand.

Right here one might as well shoulder a musket and go to war. Sommers, Schoon and Taylor have tried by devious methods, the kind that would be spurned by decent baseball men, to cause riots, trouble and general unpleasantness in the See-Eye league. Their methods have been a stench in the nostrils of decent fans. Sommers wouldn't come through with the money to get a good baseball team, and now he tries to blame successive defeats of the present joke aggregation on the shoulders of the umpire.

That old yell might go when the score was reasonably close, but when a team is being beaten day after day by the scores that have been hung up in the wallopings that Duluth has handed to Superior, it is time that Sommers thinks of an excuse that has more evidence of head work.

Sommers has been threatening most of the season to take his team and drop out of the league. Pray do, Mister Sommers. You really should be ejected; the wa'ting is growing wearisome.

After the game of last evening bade fair to be given to Duluth by default, McGloom agreed to give way and permit Popham and Rhoades to do the umpiring. Like a child made sick on an over-indulgence on all-day suckers, little Willie Sommers sulked in his tent and pouted during the course of the game. Some magnate, that.

Duluth started the run getting in the first round. Leber walked on four wild ones from the mailed fist of Pat Cummings, the youthful progidy of the Superior aggregation, promptly stealing second, and scoring when McGraw hit back of third for two bases. McGraw came over when Menelce singled into dear old right field.

Sours mussed up Taylor's grounder in the fourth round. Donovan and Ford sacrificed the manager along. Old Bill Dunn hit a lulu to deep center, scoring Taylor. But the long-leashed ambitions of William proved his undoing. He was cut down at the plate trying to complete the circuit on the clout. Poor old Bill!

With Bluhm down in our half of the same round, Miller hit for a double and came romping home on a double by Hargrove.

McGraw hit out a homer in the fifth. In Superior's sixth the invaders garnered their second and last run of the evening. Taylor singled, and with one down went to second when Sours made an error. Dunn was hit on his humble personality and when Sours made the second error of the inning Taylor came across the pan.

With one down in the sixth Miller walked and promptly pilfered, and with O'Brien laid away Hargrove laid against one for two bases and Elmer was over.

Leber walked in the seventh, McGraw was retired but Menelce singled and Tiny Ted was on third. He scored while Sours was going out at the initial sack. So endeth the game.

About the only feature of the afternoon game was the mob scene and the general hitting of Duluth. Lyle was on the mound for the misfits and was hit for nineteen safe ones, the bombardment including a home run, two triples and four swats for two sacks. Stark was on the mound for the Sox and held the yokels in the hollow of his pitching hand.

On a decision of McGloom at first base a mob of frenzied fans rushed out of the bleachers and attacked the arbiter. The Superior police seemed rather perfunctory in their effort to protect the indicator handler, the ball players of the Duluth team coming to the rsecue of the judge of play.

Duluth scored about at will and the contest ended as other contests over there of late have ended, with the Superior aggregation taking the count for a bad beating in which it had about as much show of winning as a conservative Republican in Texas. Following are the scores of the two games:

CHAMPION NEARLY LOST TITLE TO JOSE RIVERS

AD WOLGAST.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—Ad Wolgast, with the aid of Referee Jack Welch, retained his claim to the lightweight championship yesterday in the Vernon arena, when he was given the decision over Joe Rivers of Los Angeles in the thirteenth round. Rivers had practically the better of every round, save one or two, in which Wolgast had a slight shade.

In the thirteenth round Wolgast, tired and bleeding profusely, suddenly struck Rivers a vicious left in the groin. At the same instant Rivers' right landed flush on Wolgast's jaw and the champion went down and out. Disregarding claims of foul made by Rivers' manager, Referee Welch counted the Mexican youth out, and then, turning, picked up the unconscious Wolgast and declared him the winner. At the same time he declared all bets off.

BROWN LOSES TO McGOORTY

Fast Lightweights Give Michigan Fans a Hard, Snappy Battle.

Sheriff Stops Bout Ten Seconds Before Finish, Claiming Law Violation.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 5.—Sheriff Johnson and his deputies put a stop to the Eddie McGoorty-Knockout Brown ten-round fight here ten seconds before the end of the last round, by arresting both principals and officials. All are charged with violating the Michigan boxing law. Floyd Fitzsimmons, who promoted the bout, said he would carry the case to the state supreme court.

McGoorty put Brown down for a count of eight near the opening of the fourth round. Brown was floored by an uppercut as he was pulling out of a clinch. He managed to get to his feet, however, before the gong sounded, and for the remainder of the round fought in a groggy daze.

It was McGoorty's fight, although Brown took punishment gamely. The two sparred for the first three rounds. The fourth opened with Brown boring in. They clinched and in the break, McGoorty landed a terrific uppercut which sent Brown to the floor. He rested until eight had been counted. He then rose to a crouching position and fell into another clinch. McGoorty backed away and rushed Brown, landing on wind and jaw repeatedly. The gong ended Brown's misery and he staggered to his corner. He got through the next two rounds by taking much punishment. He came back in the seventh and eighth stronger than in any of the previous rounds.

In the ninth McGoorty tried to finish the fight, but Brown was wary and kept away from his adversary's uppercuts. The fight was fast in the tenth. Once McGoorty was knocked half over the ropes. Both fighters were working hard and fast when the sheriff jumped through the ropes and made the arrests.

FIERCE FIGHT ENDS IN ROW

Wolgast Is Given Decision Over Rivers in the Thirteenth.

Crowd Bitterly Assails the Referee, Claiming Blow Was Foul.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—For twelve rounds Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers fought like catamounts in their lightweight championship battle at Vernon arena yesterday afternoon. In the thirteenth there came a blow which landed low, and both boys in an instant were sprawling and writhing upon the floor. Then bedlam broke loose—a demonstration lasting more than half an hour—by 11,000 excited fight fans, the most remarkable feature of which was that it was handled throughout by less than a dozen policemen without violence of any sort.

Tonight Referee Welch stands disputed by Rivers and by thousands of spectators, in his decision that Wolgast won by a knockout. The Mexican fighter claimed a foul, and in his dressing room he displayed a dented aluminum protector to prove his claim.

Both Claim Foul.

Wolgast said he also was fouled, but in a conference with Promoter Tom McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club, Tom Jones, his manager, said he did not believe that the foul inflicted upon the champion was intentional. Jones said Wolgast stumbled over the foot of his rival as the latter lay prostrate and fell upon his adversary's knee. Wolgast fainted and was carried to his dressing room.

As Wolgast was taken out, the spectators jeered and booed him while they struggled in frantic efforts to get into the ring where Referee Jack Welch stood for a moment in a hot altercation with manager and seconds of Rivers, and then disappeared. Welch remained only long enough to reassert that Rivers' claim of foul was unfounded; that he had counted ten seconds on Rivers and that the gong that ended the round did not intervene before he had completed the count.

Fight It Out.

McCarey maintained silence. So did Jones. But Joe Levy, the manager of Rivers, repeated his offer made in the ring to let the little men fight it out at once.

The end came suddenly. Both boys, gory from head to belt, their faces puffed and cut, were fighting near the ropes on the north side of the ring when Rivers suddenly collapsed. Wolgast, previously in the same round, and in several other rounds, had struck Rivers rather low and when Rivers went down, there was a sudden shout of foul. In an instant Wolgast was down on top of Rivers' body, his features contorted. Welch immediately began counting and was still counting when he reached down and helped Wolgast to his feet. There were shouts that the bell had ended the round, while Welch was counting. The arena by this time was in an uproar.

Time Was Up.

Al Holder, a timekeeper of the Pacific Athletic club, shouted that he had rung the gong.

At this point Rivers, his face disfigured by pain, scrambled weakly to his feet and squared away ready to renew the battle. Welch waved him back.

"That's an outrage and it won't go here," a dozen angry men who had scrambled through the ropes, exclaimed to Welch.

"It shall have to go," the referee replied. "It was fair," and he slipped out of the arena.

Welch said:

"Wolgast was clearly the winner. Just before Rivers went down Wolgast had landed a heavy left to the body just below the pit of the stomach and followed it with another smash with right almost to the same place. Neither blow was low. I did not see what happened to Wolgast.

"Rivers did not seem as if he had been fouled. The pictures will show that I was right and that there was not a foul blow struck."

Welch added that he did not declare the bets off, although a statement to that effect was shouted from the ring while the confusion was at its eight. Betting commissioners stated that the payment of bets would be according to the decision of the referee. Many contradicted the statement of Tom Jones that Wolgast had stumbled over Rivers' feet. Rivers said Wolgast went down under a terrific blow to the jaw and in this he was backed up by several reserved seat holders, although Welch declared no such blow was struck.

The gate receipts were $41,465.

Doctors' Statement.

Dr. A. M. Smith, Dr. L. W. Burt and Dr. Byington examined Rivers immediately after the Mexican had reached his dressing room. Dr. Smith stated that he saw the blow struck and that its was "a deliberate foul." Drs. Burt and Bytington agreed that the blow was foul and very painful.

Al Harder, official timekeeper for the club, said that it was just nine seconds before the round was to end when Rivers went down. Several seconds had elapsed before Referee Welch began to count.

"I don't know how many seconds Welch had counted before I rang the bell," said Harder. "But I do knew that after I had rung the bell ending the round Welch gave the decision to Wolgast."

Joe Rivers arrived at 2:15. Wolgast came in shortly afterward. Both men were put on the scales at 2:50 and failed to tip the beam at 133.

After the preliminaries, moving picture men got up their cameras in the ring and yards of films were rolled off, while the championship battlers went through a pantomime. The vast crowd filled every seat of the big arena, which was photographed. The diamond belt put up by McCarey for the winner was brought into the ring in its plsuh case. Its gleaming clasps were flourished at the crowd and a yell went up. "McCarey, McCarey," yqelled the crowd.

McCarey entered the ring and started a speech, probably the first he ever attempted in his career as a fight promotor. But the cheers drowned his voice and he stopped short in the middle of a sentence.

Rivers was the first to enter the ring, climbing through the ropes at 3:24. A great roar greeted his appearance. He was smiling as he passed around the ring shaking hands with his admirers. To all he appeared supremely confident.

Rivers Confident.

"There will be a new champion in an hour or so," he remarked.

Rivers' seconds were announced as Joe Levy, Roger Cornell and Y. Rivers, Willie Roooney and Bill Aldrich.

At 3:28 Wolgast climbed into the ring amid a great cheer. He turned, shook hands with Rivers and went to his corner. A coin was tossed for corners and Wolgast won. He chose the southwest corner with the sun at his back.

Wolgast's seconds were announced as Tom Jones, Hobo Dougherty, Pete McVey, Mickey Kenzie and Frank Brennan.

Ten minutes were devoted to introducing aspiring pugilists, whil Rivers and Wolgast wandered about the ring chatting with friends. Wolgast wore his old ring shoes and the gaudily flowered but faded old dressing gown which he wore in the ring on the day he beat Nelson.

Fight by Rounds.

Round 1—Called at 4:42: Rivers led the fighting and they clinched. Rivers landed three lefts to the face in quick succession and Wolgast covered up. Rivers was much faster and his blocking was better than the champion's. In a clinch Rivers sent in three stiff rights, jarring Wolgast. It was Rivers' round.

Round 2—Rivers opened a deep gash in Wolgast's neck. The blood spurted in a stream. Rivers pecked Wolgast ten times without a return and then put a stiff left to the stomach. Rivers put a stiff right to Wolgast's nose, starting a new flow of blood. Wolgast fell short, while Rivers never missed once. It was Rivers' round.

First Even Round.

Round 3—Wolgast took a stiff left in the stomach, and the fighters exchanged fearful rights and lefts. Wolgast missed a right swing, and Rivers put in another stiff right to the wind. They fought like tigers. Wolgast went to a clinch and covered. Both were covered with blood. In a clinch Rivers opened the wound in Wolgast's neck. Round even.

Round 4—They clinched and Rivers sent Wolgast's head back with a right. Wolgast clinched, but could not land at close quarters. Again Rivers rocked Wolgast, but the champion bored in. Wolgast found much difficulty in hitting Rivers. Wolgast was wild. Again he missed and the Mexican put in left and right to the wind. It was Rivers' round.

Rivers Leads Easily.

Round 6—They clinched. Wolgast missed and was nearly upset again. Then Rivers put a stiff left to the wind, another right to the jaw rocked Wolgast, but he bored in. His judgment of distance was poor. In a clinch Rivers put right to jaw and Wolgast went down. He was up in an instant and they fought like tigers, head to head. It was Rivers' round by a big lead.

Round 7—Both were cautious. In a clinch Rivers backed the champion to the ropes. Wolgast then sent in left and right to the wind, Rivers covering. In the break both landed light lefts. Rivers then jarred Wolgast and the champion was wild hitting low. Both seemed tired and clinched. Wolgast again hit low. It was Rivers' round.

Round 8—Wolgast tried with right and left and missed both. Wolgast suddenly rushed and put lefts and rights to the wind, chasing Rivers around the ring. Both seemed content to do it at long range. Both were very tired and slowed down considerably. The round was slightly Wolgast's.

Round 9.—After a clinch Rivers got in light left to the stomach. Wolgast began to crouch to protect his stomach. Rivers seemed to be resting as he kept away. It was the tamest round of the fight. Wolgast rushed suddenly and put a stiff left to the stomach, making Rivers wince. Wolgast had a shade.

Round 10—Wolgast rushed and Rivers blocked, making the champion miss a left. Rivers kept away, pecking Wolgast and stepping back. In a clinch Wolgast made Rivers cover up with swings to the jaw. Rivers suddenly jumped in and put a hard right over Wolgast's kidneys and clinched, taking nothing in return. Head to head they exchanged fearful body smashes and were clinched at the bell. Round Wolgast's by a shade.

Round 11—Wolgast missed left to wind and Rivers hit him three times without a return. Rivers put a hard left to the jaw. Both slipped and nearly rolled out of the ring. Rivers seemed to force the fighting. Wolgast could not hit him and clinched. Rivers then stood still and took four or five hard lefts and rights to the jaw, but never winced. He then sent in a hard left staggering the champion. Wolgast's smile had disappeared, and he seemed very tired. Round even.

Round 12—Wolgast sent in a right to the wind, rushing Rivers to the ropes. Wolgast then tried hard to land on the wind, but could not get through Rivers' blocking. Time and again the champion missed. Rivers attempting to follow up his advantage. Both rushed in head to head and it was an exchange of dreadful blows, Rivers having the better of the mixing. It was Rivers' round.

Round 13—Rivers rushed. They clinched, both holding on. Wolgast nearly went over from a right to the jaw, but bored right in, putting left to the wind. "Take your time, Joe," shouted Manager Levy to Rivers, "you got him."

Twice Wolgast missed. Rivers putting in lefts to the face. Wolgast was getting wilder than ever, but Rivers kept away. Wolgast claimed a foul, but it was Rivers who was hit by the foul blow.

Wolgast left the ring apparently in great pain. Rivers was suffering agony from the blow struck over his groin. It was a palpable foul on Wolgast's part. Manager Levy told Referee Welch he would continue, but Welch immediately disappeared, and left the house. It was impossible to learn what his decision was as both sides claim a foul.

Both boys were fighting head to head. Wolgast suddenly crouched and sent in a terrific left directly over River's groin. At the same instant Rivers put his right to Wolgasts jaw and the champion went down and was practically out. Rivers fell writhing in pain and Welch began to count. Claims of foul made in behalf of Rivers were not heeded by Welch. The referee picked Wolgast up from the floor and declared him the winner. His seconds had to carry him from the ring. Rivers was still lying on the floor, but in a moment arose unaided. The ring was constantly in an uproar. Welch, seeing the crowd coming, announced that Wolgast was the winner and immediately left the arena.

POLICE STOP FIGHT AND PREVENT KNOCKOUT

Foul Tactics Adopted By Flynn Made Continuence of Match Impossible.

Champion Had Everything His Way; Landed on Flynn at Will.

East Las Vegas, N. M., July 5.—The Jack Johnson-Jim Flynn 45-round fight for the heavyweight championship wts brought to a close in the ninth round by the state police.

Ctptain Fornoff, of the state force, personal representative at the ringside of Governor McDonald, declared that it was no longer a boxing contest; that it was a brutal exhibition, and that Flynn's foul tactics made its continuance impossible. He jumped into the ring with his deputies and drove the fighters and officials who followed him to the corners. Referee Ed Smith then announced that Johnson had won and the fight was over.

Flynn displayed no ability throughout the fight. He was cut about the face until blood ran down his breast in a stream. He was utterly helpless from the first round on, and by the sixth, was deliberately trying to butt the champion's chin with his head. Time after time, as Johnson held him powerless in the clinches, Flynn jerked his head upward. Smith warned him repeatedly, but it did no good. In the seventh he began leaping upward every time he could work his head under Johnson's chin. Flynn's feet were both off the floor time and again with the energy he put into his bounds. Sometimes he seemed to leap two feet into the air in frantic plunges at the elusive black jaw above him.

Referee Smith finally forced Flynn back toward his corner a half dozen times. "Stop that butting," he would say, shaking his finger in Flynn's face, "stop it or I will disqualify you."

"The — nigger's holding me," Flynn roared back. "He's holding me all the time. He's holding me like this," and he offered to illustrate on the referee.

Smith evaded the blood-smeared arms held toward him and waved the two men together again.

In the next clinch—it was in the eighth round—Flynn flung himself upward again. Smith jumped between them and warned him once more. "Next time you do it, I'll disqualify you," he shouteted at Flynn, but changed his mind, for it happened again and again in that round and repeatedly in the ninth before the police took a hand.

Champion Kept Smiling.

Through it all the champion was smiling. He evaded Flynn's attacks with the utmost ease whether the Pueblo man led with his hands or his head. Only once in the ninth round did he show any wish to end the fight, and ringside opinion was unanimous that he could have put Flynn out at any time he happened to fancy, whether in the first or in the ninth round. The champion opened up only once, early in the fight when Flynn landed his only good blows, right and left hooks to the jaw, delivered during a clinch. Johnson appeared nettled at his own carelessness and smashed a right uppercut through Flynn's guard which rocked the white man on his feet. Then the campion smiled again and went back to monotonous delivering of uppercuts in the clinches, which reduced Flynn's face to a bloody mass in each round.

Apparently Johnson did not attempt to hit hard. He contented himself with a slow, coldly scientific chopping, every blow finding its way through the barricade of gloves and elbows behind which Flynn crouched. It was a perfect exhibition of guarding and hitting in the clinches as far as the champion was concerned. Not a blow Flynn started reached him with any steam behind it. They were smothered or tossed aside, unless Johnson chose to allow his opponent to batter away at his stomach, smiling the while over Flynn's shoulder.

When the fight was over there was not a mark on Johnson's body, beyond a cut inside his lower lip, which bled slightly for a few minutes.

Immediately after the fight Johnson hastened to the betting counter to collect his wagers on himself. He drove there from the ringside in his automobile, and was forced to address the crowd in the big car before he could leave for his camp.

Flynn was rushed to his camp from the arena. He was not hurt, cuts and bruises on his face being the only damage.

He had nothing to say in defense of the showing he made.

The fight was utterly lacking in interest. It was like a training bout at Johnson's camps outside of the blood Flynn lost. There was not a cheer throughout the nine rounds and the crowd accepted the action of the police with apparent relief that the thing was ended. Long before the end did come, ringside opinion seemed to favor the view that Flynn was eager to be disqualified. He was as helpless as a child, and certainly made no effort to disguise his attempt to do with his skull what his gloves could not accomplish.

The fight by rounds:

Round 1.—"Will you shake hands, JJack?" querried Flynn as he opened the battle by rushing into a clinch. "No," retorted the black. Flynn kept in close, but Johnson easily avoided his attempts and flung a stiff left to the ear. The champion pushed his man across the ring and hooked his left to the ear and a moment later flung a hard short-arm jolt to the jaw. Johnson smiled constantly and fought with great care. Flynn backed the negro against the ropes, and the champion rewarded him with a right that cut a deep gash under his left eye. Round all Johnson's.

Round 2.—Flynn rushed, Johnson simply grasped him about the shoulders and held him at bay, all the while grinning like an ape. The champion pecked at the fireman's face with light lefts and as they clinched and uppercut twice heavily with rights to the jaw. The champion toyed with Flynn, twice more shooting rightuppercuts to the jaw, one of which sent the fireman's head bobbing. The champion early indicated it was to be a battle of words as well as of blows, time and again exchanging his usual rapartee with the spectators. Flynn's mouth bled as he took his seat very much worsted during the three minutes of fighting in this round.

Round 3.—Flynn cut short a remark of Johnson by twice hooking his right to the jaw. This nettled the black and he cut loose with short arm uppercuts to the jaw. Johnson bled slightly from the mouth as he emerged from a mid-ring mixup, but Flynn spat blood in a stream as the champion cut his mouth with a volley of rights and lefts.

Round 4.—Flynn rushed in close and was met with the customary rain of right and left uppercuts to the face. At that it seemed as if the champion was holding himself in check. He shook Flynn with a few stomach taps, scarcely trying to protect his body from Flynn's attacks. Johnson constantly shoved his stomach out and invited him to blaze away which convulsed the spectators. Flynn elicted a great cheer when he rushed the black to the ropes and planted a solid left to the jaw. The round ended with Flynn's face covered with blood.

Round 6—Flynn butted with his head three times, and complained that Johnson made it justifiable by holding him. Flynn was severely reprimanded for deliberately butting the champion. Flyn tried to find a loophole to stem the beating given him. Johnson dazed the fireman with his speed, landing left and right to the jaw. "He's holding me," was Flynn's cry. Johnson, maddened, landed a volley of straight left and right punches to the face, fairly bewildering Flynn, then he stopped himself, apparently with a view to prolonging the contest. Flynn's seconds also warned him to cease butting, when he sat down.

Round 7—Johnson landed fully a dozen rapid fire rights and lefts to the fireman's face, and at the same time placed himself in a position to withstand Flynn's butting tactics. "Wait a minute," cried the champion to a spectator who had shouted for him to end it. Flynn bled profusely from the nose as Johnson beat a tattoo with left and right to that organ. Flynn failed to land a glove on the champion, the black's defense proving impregnable. Johnson made the blood fairly spurt as he rained blow after blow on his bewildered opponent. There was not a drop of blood on the champion as he took his seat.

Round 8—Flynn again tried to butt and was thrice warned. Flynn was helpless in the champion's hands and for the tenth time in this round was warned by the referee, but added: "One more and I'll disqualify you." Johnson held the fireman at arm's length.

Round 9—Johnson held the fireman at arm's length in an attempt to guard himself against the fireman's constant butting. Flynn finally got in close, jumped a foot in the air and landed with the top of his head against the negro's jaw. Capt. of Police Cowles, realizing that the referee seemed loath to end the contest on a foul, jumped into the ring and brought the battle to an end. Referee Smith thereupon gave the decision to Johnson. Johnson was given a terrific cheer, while the crowd wended its way out.

BATTLE STOPS QUICKLY.

Proctor Bout Ends as Deputy Sheriff Draws Near Scene.

It was rather openly said around town yesterday morning that the afternoon of the glorious Fourth would be enlivened by two scraps. Perhaps the talk was too open, much too flagrant to be discreet. At least it was open enough to come to the ears of the sheriff, and the fight was stopped.

Nick Constantine of Eveleth and Kid Burke of St. Paul had gone through four rounds that contained not a great deal of fighting, when the tip went out that the police were about to enter the hall—the fire hall of Proctor. Fighters and spectators decamped and when Capt. Stevens and his assistants reached the hall quiet reigned and there was nothing stirring, not even the proverbial mouse.

Many Duluth fans were present and in the hurried exit there was not time to even contemplate getting their money back.

STEAMER TURNS OVER; NO ONE IS DROWNED.

PREMIER BORDEN REACHES LONDON

Is Reticent as to Canada's Contribution to Naval Defense.

London, July 5.—Robert L. Borden, Canadian premier, with his colleagues, J. D. Hazen, minister of marine, C. G. Dougherty, minister of justice, and L. P. Pelletier, postmaster general, arrived here yesterday afternoon after having received a hearty welcome at Avonmouth from the lord mayor of Bristol.

Mr. Borden is the most heralded colonial visitor to come to London for years. The press and the public are making much of his pronounciament, "I stand for a great navy," which is interpreted that Canada is prepared to make a handsome contribution to the British navy in the shape of two more dreadnoughts. Mr. Borden, however, is reticent as to the form in which Canadian assistance to the mother country is to be offered.

Among the many subjects to be discussed between the Canadian statesmen and the British government, is that regarding the proposal of the senate committee in Washington that no ship owned by a railway shall be allowed to use the Panama canal.

Before returning to Canada, Mr. Borden intends to visit Paris to discuss trade relations with the French government and the question of steamboat connection between Canada and France.

MALARIA—BLOOD POVERTY

Malaria is a species of blood poverty known as Anaemia. In the first stages of Malaria the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the appetite is affected, the system grows bilious, and there is a general feeling of weakness. As the circulation becomes more thoroughly saturated with the malarial infection, the digestion is deranged, chills and fever come and go, skin diseases, boils, sores and ulcers break out. Malaria can only be cured by removing the germs from the blood. S. S. S. destroys every particle of malarial infection and builds up the blood to a strong, nourishing condition. Then the system receives its proper amount of nutriment, sallow complexions grow ruddy and healthful, the liver and digestion are righted and every symptom of Malaria passes away. S. S. S. cures in every case because it purifies the blood. S. S. S. is a safe and pleasant remedy as well as an efficient one. Book on the blood and any medical advice free to all who write.

ON THE IRON RANGES

VIRGINIA ENJOYS BIG CELEBRATION

Most Remarkable Affair of Kind Ever Held in Range City.

Virginia, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia's Fourth was the most elaborate and most successful that has ever been held. The day passed without an arrest by the police department, without an accident and without anything of any nature to mar the pleasure of the day.

The feature of the day was the night program which was given the name "The Mardi Gras" festival. It opened with the parade of the four bands engaged for the day parading as one and all playing the same selections. This made an amalgamated band of more than eighty pieces. Then followed the fire parade, in which there were several thousand marchers, all carrying torches. This parade lasted thirty minutes. Various cash awards were made for the best individuals, the best groups, the best couples and so on, in the parade.

Some Winners of Prizes.

Cash prize awards were also made for the best exhibits in the morning parade and in the afternoon athletic games.

The Lincoln mine exhibit was given first award in the calithumpians. The awards for the best mercantile floats went to Ketola Bros., Andrew Grande and the Virginia Store company. For the best decorated vehicles these obtained prizes: Dan Coffey, Troy laundry, Shanedling Bros. The prizes for best decorated automobiles went to H. O. Johnson, C. E. Moore and Joe Rinnert. The Polish society, the Knights of Sobieski, were given the prize for the largest representation, and the Redmen for the best costumes. Each boy and girl in the school exhibit, which was a float, was awarded one dollar. This exhibit was mounted on an immense platform truck. It was a covered booth in which rode thirty or more boys and girls of the high school, the boys illustrating the manual training department and the girls the domestic science. The boys were working in wood and metal. The girls were sewing, mixing dough and performing various home duties. This exhibit was unique and greatly admired.

There apparently was no dissatisfaction from any source. The committee on arrangements was congratulated on the success of the new way of celebrating without the explosives. There was fun and nonsense without any trouble or accidents.

Hibbing Liked McCormick's Talk.

Hibbing, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The address given here yesterday by Comptroller McCormick of Duluth made a great hit, and the eloquent speaker was frequently interrupted by applause as he told the story of the making of this nation, and pointed out its historic events in glowing style.

The industrial parade was also a big feature of the day. The ball game between Hibbing and Virginia was won by the visitors, 10 to 6, and was a lively contest. The crowning event of the day was the display of fireworks at the Missabe end of Third street last night. It was the greatest display ever seen on the range, and 7,000 or more people cheered themselves hoarse at the bewildering display of pyrotechnics. The weather was fine and the day the greatest in Hibbing's history.

Chisholm's Great Day.

Chisholm, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chisholm celebrated the Fourth in great style yesterday. The parade was a big feature. The patriotic exercises were fine. R. L. Walters was the marshal of the day. Miss Agnes Alguire read the Declaration of Independence. The local ball team defeated the Jackson team of Superior, 9 to 8. Prior to the game the Finnish athletes performed. There was log-rolling, greased pole climbing and other events. The Oliver and high school bands played all day. The fireworks in the evening were fine.

Ely-Winton Celebration.

How Two Harbors Celebrated.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city enjoyed two very good ball games yesterday. In the morning the Switchmen played the Giants of the city league. In the afternoon the Young Men's Sodality team of Duluth came up and defeated thelocal Gophers by the narrow margin of 9 to 8. Some of the decisions were very close and there was extra good playing throughout the whole game. In the evening, the Socialists gave a dance at the Glen hall. TWO VERY CLOSE GAMES PULLED OFF

Virginia and Hibbing and Aurora and Mahomi Play 1 to 0.

Virginia, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Old timers showed that they could come back at least in playing ball as was proven yesterday when the Hibbing first team lined up against a picked aggregation from Virginia and they played a snappy game from the start to finish. Goose eggs decorated the score boards for six consecutive innings and then Virginia managed to slide one man over the plate with the only run of the afternoon game.

The exhibition itself was as good as the forenoon game and as the summary shows resulted with a 1 to 0 score in favor of Virginia. Although Virginia succeeded in getting nine hits through the game it was with difficulty they received their one run, as the vilstors came here with intentions of tucking away the game and played exceptionally hard throughout the performance.

Hibbing managed to get several men to second but they died on bases and none of them got close enough to third to see the bag. The two teams left for Hibbing immediately after the game to play at Hibbing commencing there at 6:30 p. m.

The lineup:

Aurora Beats Mahomi.

A sprinkling of fans witnessed the best game of the season played at Olcott park yesterday morning between the Mohami team and Aurora nine, the local winning 1 to 0.

For six innings neither side scored although both had one chance with men on bases. The baloon went up in the seventh with no one of bases, Peterson of the Aurora team braced for a swat that sent the ball high over the center field fence and he trotted around the circuit bringing in the only run of the game.

COGAN-GATES BATTLE STILL RAGING IN MINNEAPOLIS

The turmoil started in Minneapolis when John Cogan of Minneapolis and Duluth refused to make good his sale of property on the Lake of the Isles boulevard for part of a site for the proposed mansion and art gallery of Charles G. Gates, is still at fever heat. Mrs. Cogan did not sail on the liner Olympic from Cherbourg, France, as she planned to do, for she got Mr. Cogan's cable message to stay in Europe and not to sign the deed to the property.

Mr. Cogan is staying in Duluth to keep from being hounded by residents of Minneapolis to let the transfer go through, for Minneapolis is terrified over the prospect of losing the Gates residence and their millions. Perry A. Walton, representing his brother, E. G. Walton, real estate man, who is endeavoring to put through the deal, is in New York awaiting Mrs. Cogan, who is not coming. The Minneapolis city authorities are taking steps to prevent Mr. Cogan from erecting a hotel on his property, and things in general are happening. That is the situation at present.

The trouble pot is bubbling merrily and Mr. Cogan is enjoying the cooling breezes of Lake Superior, and laughing every time he thinks about what he has started.

Mrs. Cogan has written her husband and also E. G. Walton from Oberstdorf, Bavaria, which is in the Bavarian Alps, and says she will remain there for the summer. Mr. Walton gave out an interview to the Twin City papers that in her letter she told him to forward the necessary papers to that address for her signature, but Mr. Cogan says that that statement by Mr. Walton is a bluff, and that what she did ask was how much her husband was offered for the property and what the situation is. Mr. Cogan has already informed her regarding these points and has told her of the advantages of not signing. He feels assured that she will not sign.

Every pressure is being brought to bear in Minneapolis to have the deal put through. The city council, through Alderman Perry B. Walker, tried to prevent the erection of a hotel on the disputed site, but found that the park board is the body which has jurisdiction. So the park board has passed a resolution requesting the city council to refuse to issue a permit for a building on the site larger than a three-story residence. Now it is up to the city council, which is, meanwhile, taking legal advice in the matter.

ONLY TWO OF HEIRS MUST PAY

Owing to the fact that the 1905 law relating to taxes on inheritances will govern instead of the 1911 amendment, only two of the heirs of the estate of the late Jacob D. Zien, a well known Duluth liquor dealer and property owner, who died April 9, 1909, will pay an assessment for this purpose.

The 1905 law governs in all cases which arose prior to the enactment of the 1911 law. It differs from the latter enactment in that it exempted all inheritances of $10,000 or less and provided for a uniform rate of 1½ per cent as a tax. The present law makes distinctions as to exemptions and graduates the tax rate.

The Zien estate has been appraised at $66,594.95, of which, under the old law, all is exempt from inheritance taxes except $31,094.95. Mathilda Zien, the widow, will pay an inheritance tax of $282.36 upon an inheritance of $28,824, and Isaac Zien, a brother, will pay $184.06 tax on his inheritance of $22,270.95.

Other heirs who are exempt under the 1905 law but who would pay a tax under the new act are: Harry M. Levy, nephew, $3,000; Samuel Levy, nephew, $2,000; Temple Emmanuel congregation, $1,000; Denver Jewish Home for Consumptives, $1,000; Cleveland Jewish Orphan asylum, $1,000; M. L. Zien, $2,500; Joseph Zien, $500; Rose Steinman, $1,500; Sarah Zien, $600, and Hazel Zien, $2,500.

RESIDENCE RANSACKED

Prowler Deliberately Helps Himself While Family Is Away.

Packs Suitcase With Everything of Value He Can Carry.

While the family was spending the Fourth outdoors the residence of E. S. Farrell at 1832 East Third street was looted by a prowler yesterday afternoon or evening.

The thief made away with a large assortment of miscellaneous articles valued at approximately $200. The stolen goods included a dress suit, four plain razors and one safety razor, a stickpin, a lady's watch, three pairs of trousers and a brown suit.

The family left the residence about 10 o'clock in the morning with their picnic basket, to spend the day at Lester park. The prowler evidently expected that the family would not return before night as he took plenty of time for his operations. He located a suitcase in the attic and packed what he wanted.

The house was left topsy-turvy. Practically every drawer was pulled out and the contents scattered over the floors. Entrance is believed to have been gained through the back door with a skeleton key as it was found unlocked when the family returned last evening.

The matter was reported to the police this morning and an investigation is being made. There is no clew to the prowler's identity.

The church was filled with relatives and friends of the late chauffeur. Among them were about seventy-five chauffeurs who are employed in the city. Interment was at calvary cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. White took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the family residence, 1715 East Superior street. Rev. Robert Yost had charge of the funeral services. The home was thronged by those who came to pay their last tributes of respect to the memory of the deceased. Interment was at Forest Hill cemetery.

The body of Miss Gladys Richardson, who was killed in the same accident, was sent to her home at Greensburg, Pa., Wednesday night.

Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Some folks think that only "colored mammies" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K C Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dumplings

One fowl cut in joints; ¼ cup flour; ½ teaspoonful salt; black pepper; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; ¼ cup shortening; milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a baking dish. Mix the ¼ cup flour, salt and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickening. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old fowls. Veal or lamb prepared in this manner is more appetizing than when served as a stew. Try this and the 89 other delicious recipes in the K C Cook's Book, a copy of which may be secured free by sending the colored certificate packed in the 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. DIVES FROM THE VIADUCT

Carl Johnson, Believing He Killed Man, Makes Fearful Leap.

May Die as Result of Fright-Inspired Move Following Fight.

Believing that he had killed John Lynch, a switchman, in a free-for-all battle between railroad employes and dock laborers, Carl Johnson, a stevedore, dove head first from the railing of the Garfield avenue viaduct in what is believed to have been an attempt to end his life.

Johnson was picked up unconscious on the Michigan street walk below. His collar bone was broken in two places and his skull fractured at the base. He was still in a state of coma at St. Luke's hospital this morning and little hope is held out for his ultimate recovery.

Lynch was knocked out by Johnson with a brick, which struck him in the head, as nearly as could be ascertained from the spectators by the police. He sustained a scalp wound on the upper and left side of his head. The injury was slight and it was not found necessary to take him to a hospital for attention.

Information as to the battle which is claimed to have been fought on the viaduct, is meager. The combatants seem to have made themselves scarce after the arrival of the police and those of the crowd which was attracted to the scene did not appear to know much about the trouble.

From what could be ascertained it seems that Johnson must have become panic-stricken when he saw Lynch drop heavily to the walk. He is believed to have thought that he had killed his adversary and leaped headlong to the ground below with the intention of killing himself.

Johnson had been working on the docks and roomed on Garfield avenue. Lynch stated that he reached the city yesterday and that he had formerly lived with his parents on Garfield avenue.

MUST SETTLE DIFFERENCES NOW

Property Owners on East Fourth Street in Session on Paving.

The board of public works has practically completed the big task of computing the bids which were received last week for the paving of East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues. The specifications include more than a hundred combinations of various kinds of pavements and seven contractors bid on most of them.

The members of the board of public works state that the bids are low and appear to have been figured on close margins of profit. They range in price from $34,976.66 for ordinary macadam to $78,016.79 for four-inch creosote blocks.

The board has called a meeting of the property owners to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the council chambers of the city hall. The owners are divided in their opinions as to which pavement should be laid and it is stated that there are likely to be some heated arguments at the meeting on the subject. The width to which the street should be paved is also a bone of considerable contention. Some want a thirty-eight foot street, some a forty-foot roadway and others a forty-two foot highway.

The board expects to award the contract without further delay and submit it to the council for approval Monday night.

OFFICIAL COUNT TO DECIDE RACE

Fargo and Mandan Neck and Neck for Railroad Commissinn Job.

Bismarck, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—It will require the official returns from the recent primary election to determine the outcome of the contest for the third Republican railroad commission ticket, the honors lying between W. H. Stutsman of Mandan, the present head of the commission, and J. Purcell of Fargo.

With the count from seventeen counties available, Stutsman has 4,756 first choice votes, and Purcell has 4,744 first choice. Purcell shows up slightly better on the second choice votes.

The returns at hand indicate quite clearly the re-election of O. P. N. Anderson of Starkweather and W. H. Mann of New Salem. There were nine candidates for places on the board.

The count between Stutsman and Purcell includes Sargent, Ramsey, Burleigh, Grand Forks, Mountrail, Sheridan, Oliver, Dunn, Williams, Ward, Cass, Stark, Emmons, Rolette Walsh and Adams. In those counties Anderson received 5,768, and Mann, 6,146.

CANNOT HELP BUILD INTERSTATE BRIDGE.

Grafton, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walsh county will not assist in the construction of a bridge across the Red River at Oslo, Minn. After pushing the question several months, the Minnesot backers of the movement for North Dakota support on the proposition failed to gain their point, and the bridge, if constructed, will necessarily be by Minnesota money. Oslo wants the bridge to open up greater marketing possibilities in this state.

RAISE FINE ALFALFA.

Farmers Around Marmath, N. D., Have Good Crops.

Marmarth, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some fine alfalfa has been raised in this district this year, several fields of unusual quality being grown by local farmers, the stand being between four and five feet high. Slyde Sult cut twenty-five tons from ten acres, first cutting, and other farmers are doing equally well.

Crop conditions never were brighter. There was a twenty-four rain within the last week, and the outlook is fine. Oats are about a foot high, wheat ten inches, corn seventeen inches and flax about nine inches.

Winter rye has also been grown by the farmers this year in large quantities.

MRS. T. H. CARTER VISITS DULUTH

Widow of Montana's Former Senator Spends Fourth in City.

Mrs. Thomas H. Carter of Helena, Mont., wife of the late Former United States senator from that state, accompanied by her two sons, John and Hugh Carter spent the Fourth in Duluth guests of the Spalding. They arrived in the morning on a boat from the lower lakes and continued their journey westward in the evening. Since the sudden death of her distinguished husband in Washington nearly a year ago, Mrs. Carter has continued her residence at the national capital to be with her sons who are studying there. The advent of hot weather at the national capital is sending many people to mountain and seashore, Mrs. Carter said, while here, and she was pleased with the change in climate experienced since coming up the lakes. They will spend the summer at Helena where Mrs. Carter's brother, Albert J. Galen, is attorney general and where she resided prior to removing to Washington when her husband began his congressional career. She will return to Washington in September.

COLONEL'S PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

Will Appeal Largely to the Farmer and Wage Earner.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—A campaign along novel lines was sketched in bare outline last night by Colonel Roosevelt. As the candidate of the new Progressive party for the presidency, Col. Roosevelt intends to make an appeal largely to the farmer and the wage worker, on the ground that neither the Democratic nor the Republican party is attempting seriously in this campaign to deal with the fundamental economic and social conditions which confront the country. It is from the farmer and wage earner, Col. Roosevelt feels, that he has obtained his strength in the past. Col. Roosevelt said that Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, who waged his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, in all probability will be his campaign manager in his fight at the head of the new party.

Billings, Mont., July 5.—Points on the main line of the Northern Pacific, between Billings and Miles City, are still without train service and a small army of men is laboring like trojans in an endeavor to rebuild approximately two miles of track carried away by floods between Pompeys' Pillar and Waco. Reports from that section is that water from Sand Mill and other creeks south of the right of way have covered the line to a depth of four feet and that in some instances the rails were carried for fully fifteen feet from their original position. The storm was accompanied by hail which devastated crops in the vicinity of Joliet.

MAN GETS POSSESSION OF HIS OWN DOORSTEP.

Philadelphia, July 5.—For fifteen years Albert Kimes has owned a building at Sixtieth street and Larchwood avenue, knowing that part of the front steps belonged to another man. For fifteen years Kimes has tried to purchase his front doorstep, and not until Tuesday was he able to do so, when he paid Thomas Butcher $10 for a piece of land fifteen inches wide.

How Kimes has owned the ground occupied by a three-story building, except a chunk of the front doorstep, for fifteen years, is a unique story. In 1897 Kimes purchased a lot from James Kelly at the southeast corner of Sixtieth street and Larchwood avenue. Adjoining the property was some land owned by the Butcher estate. Soon after Kimes made his purchase Larchwood avenue was dedicated to th ecity, the ground for the thoroughfare coming off the Butcher estate.

In surveying his ground preparatory to the erection of a three-story building, Kimes found that the making of the avenue had left a strip of the Butcher land on his side of the road. He at once began negotiations with the four heirs of the strip. The two male heirs favored giving him the strip, Kimes says, but the woman heirs held out for a high purchase price until recently. After fifteen years of trying, Kimes was enabled to get a clear deed to his front step.

FATAL STABBING IN SUPERIOR STREET SALOON

Officer Arrests Alleged Murderer Before Hearing of the Crime.

Tom Kailleo, 28, a resident of St. Croix avenue, and a laborer, is dead and Emil Lindholm, 29, married and also a laborer, is at the central station charged with murder in the first degree, as the result of a stabbing affray which followed a dispute shortly after the noon hour today in the saloon under the Belmont hotel, 707 West Superior street.

Lindholm was arrested by Capt. Fiskett of the police force. The captain was returning to the station after lunch when he met Lindholm going up the hill on Fifth avenue west. The man was plainly drunk and not knowing that he was arresting a murderer, Capt. Fiskett took him to the police station. The man's clothing were blood-stained in places.

Kailleo was badly cut. The first blow from a long knife must have been the one which ended his life for it penetrated his heart. The man received another bad cut on the back of his neck.

Both men were probably drunk at the time. They were having a dispute at the back of the saloon and were pushing each other around, but little notice was taken of them by others in the place.

The stabbing took place at the extreme rear of the saloon. Lindholm left Kailleo's body hanging over a chair where it had fallen and he walked out of the saloon as though nothing had happened. Kailleo made no outcry and the body was not discovered for several minutes.

Lindholm was in too much of a drunken stupor to tell much about the trouble at the police station. He simply said that they had trouble.

LOWER RATE FOR MILITIA

Supreme Court Upholds the One-Cent Rate for Transportation.

Raps Legislature and Questions Civic Righteousness of Law.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Railroads in Minnesota must transport the state militia at the rate of 1 cent per mile for each person, in conformity with a law passed in 1909, according to a decison handed down by the state supreme court today. The high tribunal says "naughty! naughty!" however to the legislature that passed the bill prescribing the lower rates, and questions the civic righteousness of it.

After the passage of the 1909 law, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road refused to issue transportation to Adjt. Gen. F. B. Wood to Lake City, declaring the law was void because it contravened the state and federal Constitutions, because it provided for illegal discrimination and because "the act seeks to deprive the railway company of the right to require cash payment to be made in advance and invades the right of the company to manage its own affairs."

The district court ruled against the railroad company, and the supreme court upholds the ruling. In commenting upon it, the supreme court, in an opinion written by Associated Justice Holt, says:

The Legislature Scored.

"It is singular that a state apparently keenly sensible of the justice of compelling all railway companies to treat all persons alike, as induced by the anti-pass act, should, for itself, exact more favorable terms than the general public enjoys from these companies. For the transportation it requires, the great state of Minnesota is undoubtedly able to pay the same rate that it permits the carrier to charge its citizens, or the traveling public. But while the example of civic righteousness set by the state may be bad, the law may, nevertheless, be valid. The discrimination is not against the railway company, because, under the facts in this case, it receives all it may legally demand. It is not discrimination in favor of one class against another, for the state pays the transportation when the National Guard or any of its members travel under orders. At other times, the railway company must require the same rate of the members belonging to the state military force as is demanded of the public generally. If this be discrimination at all, it is against the traveling public generally, and in favor of the state."

Adjt. Gen. Wood said after the decision had been given by the court that the state would now probably bring suit against the St. Paul road to collect about $15,000 it has paid for transportation to Lake Coty for the militia in excess of the amount required under the 1-cent fare.

POLLEI IS TAKEN BACK TO MANKATO

Was Recently Spirited Away to Escape an Angry Mob.

St. Peter, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Spirited away from Mankato, to escape an angry mob, Officer Charles Pollei of the Mankato police force occupied a cell in the Nicolett county jail here today. Pollei on the night of July 3 shot and killed Hubert Haack when the latter attempted to escape after being arrested on the charge of insulting women on the streets.

Because of the threatening mob, which quickly formed and surrounded the jail in Mankato, Sheriff Osten of Blue Earth county spirited Pollei to this city by automobile where his presence has been kept secret until today. It is said that Pollei claims the shooting of Haack was accidental and that he intended only to fire into the air to frighten him.

Despite the feeling which is said to exist against Pollei at Mankato, he was taken there under guard late this afternoon to testify at the inquest.

NEW PRIMARY PLAN PROPOSED

Ohio Representative Has Scheme for Expression of Choice.

Washington, July 5. — Everybody ought to get acquainted with the presidential primary idea which has been presented to congress in a bill introduced by Representative Howland of Ohio.

The bill would establish a national board of five members to have general charge of all primaries of all parties throughout the country. It would create a state board of three members to have charge of the state primaries. The election officials on these boards are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the United States senate.

Representation in the national convention of each party would be provided for on the basis of one delegate and one alternate for every 16,000 votes polled for that party at the preceding presidential election in the state and one delegate and one alternate for a major fraction thereof. Each state would have at least one delegate and alternate under the apportionment.

Candidates for president would be required individually to file the declaration of their candidacy with the national committee, paying a filing fee of $1,000. Their names would be printed on their respective party tickets, which would be furnished to the state boards for transmission to the various election officers.

The voters would vote directly for the candidate of their party for president. The candidate carrying the congress district or election unit would have the right to appoint the delegates and electors from the election unit which he has carried at the primary.

"This plan gives the voter a right to vote direct for the candidate for president of his choice," said Mr. Howland. "After the voter has declared his preference he turns over to the candidate himself the power to see that his instructions are carried out.

"The bill absolutely eliminates any dispute regarding the temporary roll of the convention or the personnel of the delegates and transmits directly to the people themselves the question of deciding their choice for president.

"It preserves, however, the party conventions; it prevents the nomination of a minority candidate for the presidency, and leaves absolutely in the hands of the convention the selection of the vice president."

BIG FUSS OVER COLORADO HOG

Foolish Persons Went Into Court Over a Plain Porker.

Denver, Colo., July 5.—It has never been settled, despite four jury trials, whether a certain hog butchered by the Raines Meat company in Julesburg, Colo., was the hog that wandered from the Edgar D. Smyth ranch. Litigants have spent $518.70 in court costs so far in an endeavor to find out. Attorneys claim several hundred dollars more, and now the case has been filed in the supreme court, which will add some more hundreds in docket fees and briefs. The total expense is estimated at $1,000.

"Did David Camelin sell Edgar D. Smyth's Poland China hog to the butcher?" has become the test of citizenship in Sedgewick county.

Party lines and religious differences have gone to the discard, and ranchers and hog growers for miles around the Smyth-Camelin neighborhood have taken sides pro and con on the question.

One judge heard the controversy three times, and resigned when a fourth trial was asked.

The pet hog wandered from its domicile two years ago and never came back. A few days later David Camelin took nine hogs to the butcher at Julesburg. Smyth's mother spotted one particular hog in the butcher's pen and told the court that it answered her call very intelligently, showing acquaintance as well as filling the description.

The controversy was taken into a justice court, and after all the neighbors had told what they knew and thought about the case the jury found that the hog sold by Camelin belonged to Smyth and that Camelin should pay Smyth $30.

Camelin appealed to the county court. A jury sustained the justice court. A third trial was obtained and the jury disagreed. At the fourth hearing the last jury to hear the mighty question also found for the plaintiff, Smyth, and said he was entitled to collect $30. The court costs at that time amounted to $518.70, exclusive of attorney's fees.

All these proceedings covered two years and the big, whether Smyth's or Camelin's, had long before been consumed in chops, bacon and sausages.

Camelin has now come to the supreme court and says the court costs will be doubled before he acknowledges the hog was the one that wandered from the Smyth ranch.

POLLEI IS TAKEN BACK TO MANKATO

Was Recently Spirited Away to Escape an Angry Mob.

St. Peter, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Spirited away from Mankato, to escape an angry mob, Officer Charles Pollei of the Mankato police force occupied a cell in the Nicolett county jail here today. Pollei on the night of July 3 shot and killed Hubert Haack when the latter attempted to escape after being arrested on the charge of insulting women on the streets.

Because of the threatening mob, which quickly formed and surrounded the jail in Mankato, Sheriff Oesten of Blue Earth county spirited Pollei to this city by automobile where his presence has been kept secret until today. It is said that Pollei claims the shooting of Haack was accidental and that he intended only to fire into the air to frighten him.

Despite the feeling which is said to exist against Pollei at Mankato, he was taken there under guard late this afternoon to testify at the inquest.

NEW PRIMARY PLAN PROPOSED

Ohio Representative Has Scheme for Expression of Choice.

Washington, July 5. — Everybody ought to get acquainted with the presidential primary idea which has been presented to congress in a bill introduced by Representative Howland of Ohio.

The bill would establish a national board of five members to have general charge of all primaries of all parties throughout the country. It would create a state board of three members to have charge of the state primaries. The election officials on these boards are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the United States senate.

Representation in the national convention of each party would be provided for on the basis of one delegate and one alternate for every 10,000 votes polled for that party at the preceding presidential election in the state, and one delegate and one alternate for a major fraction thereof. Each state would have at least one delegate and alternate under the apportionment.

Candidates for president would be required individually to file the declaration of their candidacy with the national committee, paying a filing fee of $1,000. Their names would be printed on their respective party tickets, which would be furnished to the state boards for transmission to the various election officers.

The voters would vote directly for the candidate of their party for president. The candidate carrying the congress district or election unit would have the right to appoint the delegates and electors from the election unit which he has carried at the primary.

"This plan gives the voter a right to vote direct for the candidate for president of his choice," said Mr. Howland. "After the voter has declared his preference he turns over to the candidate himself the power to see that his instructions are carried out.

"The bill absolutely eliminates any dispute regarding the temporary roll of the convention or the personnel of the delegates and transmits directly to the people themselves the question of deciding their choice for president.

"It preserves, however, the party conventions; it prevents the nomination of a minority candidate for the presidency, and leaves absolutely in the hands of the convention the selection of the vice president."

BIG FUSS OVER COLORADO HOG

Denver, Colo., July 5.—It has never been settled, despite four jury trials, whether a certain hog butchered by the Haines Meat company in Julesburg, Colo., was the hog that wandered from the Edgar D. Smyth ranch. Litigants have spent $518.70 in court costs so far in an endeavor to find out. Attorneys claim several hundred dollars more, and now the case has been filed in the supreme court, which will add some more hundreds in docket fees and briefs. The total expense is estimated at $1,000.

"Did David Camelin sell Edgar D. Smyth's Poland China hog to the butcher?" has become the test of citizenship in Sedgewick county.

Party lines and religious differences have gone to the discard, and ranchers and hog growers for miles around the Smyth-Camelin neighborhood have taken sides pro and con on the question.

One judge heard the controversy three times, and resigned when a fourth trial was asked.

The pet hog wandered from its domicile two years ago and never came back. A few days later David Camelin took nine hogs to the butcher at Julesburg. Smyth's mother spotted one particular hog in the butcher's pen and told the court that it answered her call very intelligently, showing acquaintance as well as filling the description.

The controversy was taken into a justice court, and after all the neighbors had told what they knew and thought about the case the jury found that the hog sold by Camelin belonged to Smyth and that Camelin should pay Smyth $20.

Camelin appealed to the county court. A jury sustained the justice court. A third trial was obtained and the jury disagreed. At the fourth hearing the last jury to hear the mighty question also found for the plaintiff, Smyth, and said he was entitled to collect $20. The court costs at that time amounted to $518.70, exclusive of attorney's fees.

All these proceedings covered two years and the big, whether Smyth's or Camelin's, had long before been consumed in chops, bacon and sausages.

Camelin has now come to the supreme court and says the court costs will be doubled before he acknowledges the hog was the one that wandered from the Smyth ranch.

PURE FOOD.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The polished native with the shell necklace looked the missionary over with a searching eye. Then he carefully attached a fish skin label to his left cheek.

"What does this mean?" inquired the good man.

The cannibal smiled in an oily fashion.

"That all same guarantee stamp of Hokee Pokee Islands. You very good food."

"And who are you?" inquired the missionary with a sinking heart.

"Me? Oh, yes. Me all same Doc Wilkey."

And taking the visitor by the arm he gently led him toward the waiting guests.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

BOTH PARTIES ARE DECLARED WRONG

Col. Roosevelt Will Attack Both Parties on Trust Question.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—"The platforms of both the Republican and Democratic parties call for rigid enforcement of the anti-trust law. They are wrong."

So declared Theodore Roosevelt today. The former president said that in his campaign he would attack both parties upon this score. He intends to take the position which he outlined in his Ossawatomie, Kan., speech, two years ago, when he said the great business enterprises of the country had come to stay and should be controlled by means of close supervision by the national government. To attempt to abolish them, he said today, was futile.

Col. Roosevelt denied a report which declared that he had offered the nomination for the vice presidency to Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver.

"Last night it was Heney to whom I had offered the vice presidency," he said; "today it is Judge Lindsey. The fact that I have not offered the place to any human being is utterly irrelevant. If the convention nominates me for president, it certainly won't wish to have me name the vice president. That must be done by the people. The convention will decide."

HANFORD INQUIRY FAR FROM ENDED

Injunctions in Ranier Valley Fare Fight to Be Considered.

Seattle, Wash., July 5.—With all the private dtectives and bartender witnesses disposed of, the house judiciary sub-committee when it met today still was far from the end of its effort to learn whether United States District Judge Cornelius H. Hanford was suffering from intoxication or physical weariness and infirmity when, according to testimony, he dozed on street cars, nodded in court and wavered in his walk.

Witnesses who have been overheard in private conversaton to discuss Judge Hanford's habits will not be called without warning, and on the other hand witnesses whose names are handed to the committee by Hanford's counsel as competent to testify to the judge's habits will not be subpoenaed unless they have had exceptional opportunities of observatin, or unless they promise testimony relating directly to the charges.

The sub-committee next will take up the injunctions issued by Judge Hanford in the so-called Rainier Valley single-fare fight. The restraining order issued by Judge Hanford in the alleged collusive suit of the trustees of the Seattle, Renton & Southern street railroad bondholders, led to a mass meeting in Seattle Aug. 25, 1911, during the progress of which the judge was denounced by speakers, while a jeering crowd outside hanged an effigy labelled "Hanford."

The arrests which followed the mass meetings will be investigated, it is announced.

NEED NOT PAY HIGHER DUES

Decision Affecting Railway Mail Clubs of the Tenth Division.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — Members of the Railway Mail association of the Tenth division, which includes North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and part of Michigan, need not pay an increase in annual dues from 50 cents to $3, in order that a chairman of a welfare committee at a salary of $1,500 a year may be maintained. This is the order of the state supreme court.

Carl C. Vandyke of Minneapolis, who was appointed chairman of the welfare committee of this division, brought injunction proceedings against the association and Secretary Wood to prevent it from ordering the increase in this division. The insurance commissioner of New Hampshire, under which the association is incorporated, held that the increase as ordered was illegal, unwarranted and unnecessary. In passing on the case today, the Minnesota supreme court held that this state has no jurisdiction over a New Hampshire corporation and it cannot be mandamused here.

MRS. SARAH PLATT DECKER UNDERGOES OPERATION.

San Francisco, Cal., July 5. — Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Colorado, nationally known as a suffrage worker and club woman, was operated upon today for an intestinal obstruction which has caused acute inflammation since last Monday.

It was said at the sanitarium it was too early to make any predictions.

SEEKS SACRED INDIAN LORE.

New York American: Allison Skinner, a Harvard undergraduate, who has made a number of noteworthy anthropological studies among the Indians on this continent for the Museum of Natural History, is going to bring a camp of the most primitive ones from the West and place them on a farm in Reading, Conn., for close observation this coming year.

Skinner spent last summer among the enominee tribe in Michigan and Wisconsin and encountered endless difficulties with the more savage members of the tribe while trying to learn the secrets of their religion and folklore, which many hold inviolate. A large part of the tribe still practice the weird dream dance and hold the mysterious rites of the medicine lodge.

Skinner is bringing on Chief Perote, an old warrior of huge build, who is the head chief of the pagans of the tribe and leader in the "Dream Dance," where the Great Spirit is invoked through incantations, dances and the beating of a drum. This Indian, who is famous for his knowledge of the tribe's history, is also the head chief of the medicine lodge, where men are prepared for the after world. Skinner is resolved to get at the secrets of the tribe and believes that if Perote is taken away from the influences of his relatives he can do so.

"In the tribe itself," said Skinner, "there is a fierce opposition to any interference. Whenever I tried to learn certain secrets, Perote's relatives would rush up and cry out warningly to him that his knowledge was sacred and that he must not answer. But Perote likes to talk and I think he will when I get him up in Connecticut. I will also have Muskikiwinesa, 'the little medicine man' of the tribe, at the leading camp to interpret for me. I will live with them."

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

New York Evening Sun: Ever since one apple cost Adam his lease on the Garden of Eden people have complained of the high cost of living. As the original ultimate consumer Adam knew where to put the blame. He charged Eve with being responsible for the whole affair because she had failed to get supper on account of some fig leaf bargains.

Eve said it was a naked lie spun out of whole cloth, and that if Adam were a man he could have seen the snake's responsibility in the matter. Adam wasn't seeing snakes, and so the quarrel continued even after they had moved from their Central Park habitation to the Jersey flats.

But in these days everybody who attempts to place the blame for the high cost of living finds that he or she is confronted with a far more difficult question than Adam faced or than our forefathers of the less distant past puzzled with when they were asked, "How old is Ann?" What Ann's age had to do with the cost of living has never been figured out, chiefly for the reason that Ann never disclosed her age.

To the question, "Who is responsible for the high cost of living?" more answers than guesses on Ann's age have been made of late, and here are some of them:

"Taft and the trusts," yelled T. Roosevelt, waving his hat.

"The price of delegates and the public supporting Roosevelt," cried Taft's manager.

"The trusts," declared the public.

"The public," swore the trusts.

"The butcher," insisted the housewife as she took her bite of steak.

"The wholesaler," answered the butcher as meat went up 1 cent a pound.

"The man higher up," the wholesaler said as he counted his profits.

"The steer," replied the man higher up with a self satisfied smile.

The cow said nothing, but looked mournfully at the milkman.

"No; it's the iceman," said the milkman while pouring water into his cans.

"The coal dealer," coldly remarked the iceman as he added ten jounds to a nice bill.

"The land owner," was the evasive reply of the coal dealer as he short weighed a load of coal.

"The Socialist," declared the land owner.

"The man with the money," yelled the Socialist.

"The production of gold," the banker said as his clerks counted up his money.

"The manufacturer," was the miner's solution.

"The retailer," shouted the manufacturer with a mighty voice.

"The cold storage man," the retailer answered with a guilty smile.

"The housewives' leagues," unanimously voted the cold storage man.

"Anybody we can think of, for vengeance is ours," cried the housewives.

"That ain't me, it's the grocer," yelled the pushcart man.

"It's all because of the servants," came the grocer's solution of the problem.

"Aw, the increase in population is makin' the high cost of livin'," decided the servants.

"Ma-ma," cried the baby.

"I'm sure it must be your papa," the mother said.

"The suffragettes," the father scornfully told his child.

"The men with the ballot," voted the suffragettes with great glee.

"The hens," the voters declared.

"The commission merchants," insisted the egg dealers.

"The railroads," figured the commission merchants as the price of eggs went up.

"The unions." To make this remark a railroad president interrupted his calculation of the amount of the quarterly dividends.

"Down with the tariff," shouted the union men as a general strike was ordered.

"The standard of living," meekly remarked the tariff supporters.

"Not guilty," boasted the immigrant laborers.

"The undertakers, perhaps," suggested the lawyers.

"Not enough people dying," the undertakers said. "It must be the doctors who are the cause."

"Too few people getting sick these days, so it must be the advertisers who make the high cost of living," was the defense made by the medical profession.

"Possibly the moving pictures are the cause," the advertisers suggested.

"By no means," said Edison, speaking for the "new profession." "Theaters have increased the cost of living."

"Don't look to us," said the actors and actresses in chorus. "Just think how much electricity costs."

"Nothing but gas is doing it," the man who reads the meters was telling everybody.

"Get after the street car lines," advised the gas company officials, and thereupon they proceeded to raise the price of gas.

"Aren't the aviators going up all the time with the cost of living?" queried the president of a street car company.

"Ask the ministers about it," was the suggestion of the aviators.

"The saloon keepers," was the charge made by the clergy.

"The trouble is too many reformers," said the saloon keepers.

"The question isn't 'What causes the high cost of living?' declared the reformer appealed to. "It's the cost of high living, caused by thieves, fools and extravagance."

In other words, who killed cock robin?

AS A MAN EATS, SO IS HE.

Chicago Tribune: This is a story of how the street railway company of Portland, Or., "bribed" 218 housewives (among whom it is said there are not less than twenty blushing brides) into allowing the company to reap full dividends.

Portland has a fine set of conductors and motormen, and most of them are married. Recently President Josselyn decided that many of his strapping motormen and conductors looked a trifle underfed. There was solemn council held in the offices of the company and the general manager, the secretary and Mrs. Ida P. Newel, claim agent, all decided in twenty minutes that the cars were running too slow, that traffic was not as heavy as it ought to be and that the men who run the cars were not giving the service a city the size of Portland should get.

The conference was in pretty much of a quandary; it seemed as if everything had been done that could possibly be done to get better service and, consequently, fewer accidents and ultimately greater dividends without decreasing the efficiency of the service.

Woman's Intuition to the Rescue.

Then Mrs. Newel, who is a practical and sensible woman of affairs along with her job as claim agent for the road, and who had reported to the president a large increase in costly accidents along the company's lines, got her brain to working. Mrs. Newel knows women; she also knows men. She knew the Portland Street Railway company's crews—every one of them—and she knew that they were nearly all married and that the wives played an important role in the lives of their husbands as all wives do.

"I've got it," suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Newel, "let us go after the wives."

President Josselyn looked puzzled. "The wives? I don't get you," he replied.

"Why," returned Mrs. Newel, "a man with a poor or insufficient breakfast cannot run a car properly and safely. A man must eat well to work well; our men are not getting the right sort of food at home."

"Never thought of that," replied Josselyn, interested, "but how'll we do it?"

Mrs. Newel, who has pretty brown eyes and a pleasant, amiable face, as well as a good mind, began to think and she didn't have to think long. She reasoned logically. "Reach a man's heart by his stomach" was running through her mind all the time that the general manager and the president and the secretary sat there waiting for her to complete her plan.

So as a result of Mrs. Newel's thinking 218 women were given $10 each to be good cooks. But they're not thinking about this substantial reward; it's the nice way the presentation was made.

Of course the big corporation was business-like about it but the women were flattered just the same. What housewife wouldn't be if the head of a big trolley car system would say:

"Now, let's talk this over in a business way. We need you and your good cooking in order to run our lines. If John gets up early in the morning cross and ready to battle with everybody who speaks to him before the day is over he is going to make one of our old customers mad and he is going to walk oftener. At any rate we're going to lose money.

"If you give him a nice breakfast before he starts to work it works just the other way. He's going to be feeling good and please somebody and we're going to have a new customer or at any rate make more money. Get the idea?

"Well, here's what we're going to do. John is paying you good wages—a living and love—but in order to show our appreciation we're going to make you a present of $10. All right; we're going to depend upon you to keep your part of the street railway system operating."

SUBSTITUTE FOR LEATHER.

New York Sun: There is a fortune of many millions in store for the man who can discover a substitute for leather. The price of the real article is steadily rising, dealers say, and the reason is that in spite of the duty removed the growth of the world's population is faster than the increase in the number of cattle raised.

"There is a growing disproportion between the number of hides marketed and the demand for leather," said an expert. "The question is where the future supply will come from in quantities sufficient to meet the country's future needs. If some genius will only find a substitute for leather he'll be a wealthy man in a day."

Ask yourself this question: "Can I afford NOT to advertise?"

BEAR CARNIVAL IN WHEAT AND CORN

Prices Break Sharply at Chicago and Close Is Demoralized.

Chicago, July 5. — It was a bear carnival today in the wheat and corn pits on 'change. Prices broke 2¼@2¾c for wheat, and 2½@2⅝c for corn, closing demoralized at the lowest figures of the session. Greatly improved crop prospects both in the United States and in Europe turned speculators to the selling side wholesale, and caused quotations to collapse.

General rains during the last forty-eight hours in American and Canadian spring wheat fields joined with cooler weather northwest, were said to have given the crop extraordinary help at an important period. Furthermore, there was high authority for statements that winter wheat showed unexpected betterment. The harvest weather in the Southwest was reported good, and the yield in Oregon, Washington and Idaho promised to be unusually generous. On top of all this, was pressure due to favorable changes in the outlook for Western Europe and large sections of Russia as well.

A deluge of holdings flooded the wheat pit from the start, and forced prices downward clear to the end of the session.

Says All Sums Paid Came From Him Individually.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. E. Lee of Long Prairie, candidate for governor, filed his expense account with the secretary of state today, indicating that he spent $43.07 during the period from June 20 to June 29, and that his campaign committee under the management of W. C. McClure, spent $152.38.

The salary of Mr. McClure is listed at $33.33 and of Miss Edna Gibbs, stenographer, at $20. The postage bill amounted to $8.

Mr. Lee made affidavit that he had received no campaign contributions and that all sums paid out had come from him individually.

PARK RAPIDS SKI CLUB IS INCORPORATED NOW.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Park Rapids Ski club of Fergus Falls filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state today, and no charge was made for issuing the certificate of incorporation.

It was the Park Rapids Ski club that refused to pay a $50 filing fee, as ordered under an opinion given by George T. Simpson, former attorney general, that it was not exempt from payment. It fought the payment in the courts, and a few weeks ago won a decision in the state supreme court. The papers were accepted by the secretary of state today without protest.

LICENSES TO SEINE FISH

Will Be Allotted on Competitive Basis This Year.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the state game and fish commission to be held Aug. 7, licenses to seine rough fish in Minnesota lakes this fall will be issued. Customarily, these are allotted in July or August each year.

According to the state law a charge of $5 for each 500 feet of seine shall be charged. From this last year, revenue approximated $4,000 to the state. The commission has decided this year to allot the lakes on a competitive basis, the person making application for the largest amount of seine to be given license at each lake.

SENATE FAVORS TWO NEW BATTLESHIPS.

Washington, July 5.—By a vote of 43 to 12 the senate today adopted an amendment to the naval appropriation bill providing for two new battleships.

New Duluth Company.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial Security Company of Duluth, dealing in stocks and bonds, incorporated with the secretary of state today for $50,000. W. W. Fenstermacher, George Rockwell and M. N. Putnam are the incorporators.

THE EPIDEMIC OF THE DASH.

Scribner's Magazine: Have you not noticed, in your current literature, the widespread epidemic of dashes that has broken out upon the printed page? In books and in periodicals it is alike prevalent; treatise, essay and story are equally subject to it. I sometimes wonder, in picking up one of the most popular magazines, if an editorial fiat has gone forth that no tale shall be accepted unless it contains at least one dash to each sentence.

Do they pay by the dash, one wonders, as the eye follows gap and hiatus in line after line and column after column? True, these blank spaces often constitute the best part of the page, and the grateful eye sometimes rests upon them with relief, but so plentiful and so unnecessary are they that one wonders if they point to a gradual but sure elimination of the text itself, in deference to a generation whose animal energies so far outstrip the mental. Are we going back to that long howl or bark, innocent of words and of ideas, which Mr. Jesperson, in a learned essay, assures us was the origin of human speech?

The dashes are of as many kinds as are the kinds of style that they decorate. Most common, perhaps, is the dash of inexpressible emotion.

"'Real love is——,'" she broke off and returned suddenly to her light tone. * * *

"'Don't you know—haven't you seen—that—that I've always loved you?'

"'It doesn't seem as if it could be a real, grownup love——'

"Their eyes met and glanced away.

"'Can't you understand——'

"'You are sorry you said it. You would take it back if you could——'

Then there is the psychological-subtle dash.

"These words, he was well aware, left his wife—given her painful narrowness—a bristling quiver of retorts to draw from; yet it was not without a silent surprise that he saw her, with her irritated eyes on him, extract a bolt of finest point. 'The pleasure then, in her view, you make out—since you make out such wonders—is to be all for us only?'"

Space forbids further quotations; one need only turn to our most serious writers of fiction to find instances innumerable of this baldly apparent, self conscious device for obtaining piquant effects.

Closely related to the first class, the dash of inexpressible emotion, possibly also, though I should hardly care suggest this, to the second class, is the plain-lazy dash. This hardly needs illustration; it confronts us everywhere. Naturally, it is easier to draw a line upon the page than it is to write out even the very obvious words that go with the plain-lazy style.

In all these types there is a fundamental insincerity, whether the author is trying to suggest more emotion than is really there, or to hint a deeper meaning than is in his mind. By this device he imposes upon the reader, making him supply what the author lacks, suggesting, by this hiatus and that long pause, unspeakable things that he may have been, but probably was not, thinking or feeling, but which he apparently hopes the reader will take the trouble to think and to feel.

No good tailor would think of leaving an inch gap between sleeve and armhole, nor would a decent carpenter leave yawning pauses between his shingles. My chief objection to the dash is that it acts as a disintegrating force upon both form and subject matter. The integrity of the sentence is disappearing before it, and with it is disappearing that skillful adjustment of minor phrases to the main phrase which alone can achieve delicate gradations and shades of meaning. The art of modifying your idea and explaining it in a fashion that brings out the relative values of the more and the less important parts is becoming a lost art, and the mastery of conjunctions, so marvelous in Newman's closely knit and logical prose, has already largely disappeared.

Instead of a finely wrought bit of architecture, where every atom is in its rightful place, you are given, in the typical modern sentence, a heap of rolling stones, whose harsh sides grate one against another, as the meaning scatters everywhere and nowhere, the little clause that might mean so much in the right place tumbling over the larger clause and so being lost to sight and sense.

Of what use is our alleged modern development in complex, many-sided thought, if subtlety of cunning sentence structure, whereby this may be wrought out, is beyond us? Often in coming upon one of these long, meaningless dashes one feels as if, in some delicate triumph of architecture, one had discovered a sudden gap in arch or pillar. It achieves the impossible, substituting a hole where nothing but firmest substance would suffice.

My wrath is greatest when I find these marks thrust into my own writing, by dashing editor or proofreader, anxious to keep up with the times, for I have resisted temptation, have struggled to manipulate my adjectives, my participles, my conjunctions so that definite design may be visible in my sentences. To have my careful dovetailing torn asunder and wide spaces thrust between maddens me. Great also is my wrath when I find the tendency working unconsciously within me, with the subtle temptation to escape trouble. You would be distressed to know how many times, in writing down the foregoing brief remarks, I have found myself using it, and have removed it with maledictions.

Dash take the dash!

CHILD OF 3 WEARS 7½ HAT

New York American: A physical prodigy, possibly a mental one, has been discovered at the New York Nursery and Child's hospital in 3-year-old Charles Seiber.

Though his body is only slightly larger than that of the average child of his age, his head is probably the largest in the world for an infant. He wears a 7½ hat. Not only in the head of unusual lateral circumference, but it is correspondingly high, and extremely heavy.

When little Charles was brought to the hospital a year and a half ago he couldn't even raise his head, so great was its weight. After six months, during which he was given the most nourishing and upbuilding foods, he was able to stand in a framework built for him. Later, shoes three or four sizes too large for him, and weighted, were given him to assist him in learning to keep his balance and to walk. Now his body has commenced to catch up with his remarkable cranium, and he can run, though in the shambly manner of an awkward calf.

Apparently the strength of the child went toward the development of his body after he was taken to the hospital, for his mind seemed unusually lethargic. Recently, however, it has taken on an unusual alertness and he has become one of the brightest children in the nursery, considerably brighter, says Miss Hunt, the superintendent, than much older children. This sudden quickening of his intelligence progresses, according to medical opinion, a remarkable mind.

The child's mother died soon after his birth. His father is a pastry baker in this city.

RELIEF FOR INDIANS.

Aid By Government for the Mille Lacs Band.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the request of Representative Miller, the Indian bureau has directed a special agent to go to Mille Lacs lake and give relief to members of the Mille Lacs band now living around that lake. Reports reaching Mr. Miller are to the effect that the Indians have been deprived of their ordinary supplies of fish and game by the application of the state fish and game laws to Mille Lacs lake and the surrounding country. Those are the Indians who have refused to go to White Earth reservation, where they have allotments.

Texas raises more turkeys than any other state—perhaps because turkeys require plenty of room for range, and Texas surely can give them that. Little Rhode Island, however, is said to produce the largest number of big turkeys—some of them weighing forty pounds, and worth 40 cents for every pound.

CANDIDATES WILL SPEAK

Commercial Club Will Discuss Dancing in Public Schools.

An open meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club will be held this evening for the purpose of allowing the various candidates for the school board to explain their platforms and attitudes on the question of dancing in public schools, the most important issue in the present campaign. L. A. Larson, Capt. D. E. Stevens and Anton Ringsred will be the principal speakers of the evening.

M. J. Murray, secretary of the club, announced this morning that the meeting will be open to every resident of West Duluth and that anyone interested in the coming school board election is especially urged to attend the meeting this evening. The matter has aroused considerable interest among the residents of this city and it is probable that the club may take a stand on the subject following the addresses.

Dr. S. H. Boyer, one of the members of the school board who is not for re-election, is out of the city and wrote Mr. Murray that he will be unable to attend th meeting this evening. F. A. Brewer, who is also out for re-election, is unable to attend the meeting this eevning, but has arranged with Mr. Murray to speak at the meeting of the club next Friday evening. An invitation to speak today was sent to all the candidates for the board.

The meeting will open with the regular routine business of the club which will take but a few minutes as no important matters are to be taken up. The addresses will take the greater part of the evening.

SOCIALISTS WILL BE ORGANIZED

Hope to Carry West Duluth for Debs Next Fall.

"West Duluth for Debs," is the cry of the Socialists in this end of the city.

This evening all Socialists and others interested in the party will meet at the Victor hall, 5528 Grand avenue, and organize for a campaign in behalf of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for president. Following the election of officers and campaign managers in the verious precincts, the plans for work will be made. About 300 men are expected to be present at the meeting. P. G. Phillips, alderman of the Eighth ward, will probably preside at the meeting.

That West Duluth can be carried for Debs is the belief of several of the Socialists behind the campaign. They plan to work vigorously among the voters from now until fall and with the Eighth ward now having a Socialist aldermen are firm in their belief that the ward will go for Debs.

AUTOMOBILE BUS LINE TO PROCTOR

An automobile bus line from West Duluth to Proctor was started yesterday morning. A large 25-passenger automobile is to be used and will run every hour between the two points.

George Gavet and Albert Meddling are in charge of the line and have established headquarters at the corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Grand avenue, where the car will leave on the hour, until midnight. Large crowds were taken to Proctor and back yesterday and the innovation proved a success from the start. It takes the car thirty minutes to get to Proctor and about fifteen minutes to get back.

At present there are two ways to get to Proctor, by train and the incline. The former leaves West Duluth at 8 o'clock in the morning and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The incline is taken from the end of the Fifty-seventh avenue west line and a bus then takes the passengers to Proctor.

FOURTH WAS SANE AND QUIET

West Duluth People Enjoyed Picnics, Moving Pictures and Fireworks.

Devoid of any accidents and as popular as any other celebration ever held in this end of the city, Fourth of July was celebrated by the residents of West Duluth yesterday in a noiselessly and sane manner. But one arrest was reported during the entire day.

Besides the various picnics at Fairmont park, the West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union conducted a moving picture show during the afternoon and evening at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 208 Central avenue. Two shows were given in the afternoon and two in the evening, which were attended by large crowds, the small club room being filled to its capacity at each performance. Eight reels of pictures were shown, dealing with various educational and historical subjects.

Following the evening performances, the West Duluth Fourth of July association gave a grand display of fireworks at the Fifty-second avenue west playgrounds. About 5,000 people witnessed this feature during the evening, which ended the festivities for the day. About $500 worth of fireworks comprised the display, which included large Roman candles, sky rockets and numerous set pieces.

One of the most popular places in West Duluth yesterday was the Wilcox baths at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west, where at least 200 boys took advantage of the pool and its spring boards and toboggan slide. About 500 people attended the various church picnics held at the park yesterday. Games were played and field events featured the program.

Special Services.

Rev. D. W. Lynch of St. James' Catholic church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Kinnear place, will conduct services at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when eighty children will receive solemn communion. The church choir will render special music during the services.

RAT ACCIDENTALLY HANGS ITSELF

It was a good joke on the reporter, perhaps—at any rate it cost him the cigars, and he laughed about it at the time—but the hanging of even so reviled a creature as a rat under such conditions is not a laughing matter. Perhaps a more facile writer would have it that the rodent committed suicide through disappointed love or in desperation over some other untoward episode in its career; but this case is simpler, and therein lies its pathos.

Few have much sympathy for rats or mice, but almost everybody likes to see any animal have a fighting chance for existence—that is the sporting spirit. This animal did not have it—that is why the point of the joke is dulled.

J. A. McDonald runs a poolroom at 301 Central avenue, West Duluth, and when he opened his place this morning he found that a would-be marauder had hanged himself. This led Mr. McDonald to spread the news without specifying that the would-be thief was a rat, and on this basis was the reporter put into a sweat of anticipation of a "live story." As has been said, he paid for the cigars and laughed.

Then he looked over the situation. He found that the rat had entered the window at the rear of the pool hall, and in some way its head had caught between the window and a shelf, where it slowly strangled to death. The evident indication of long suffering and the emaciated condition of the animal detracted from the humorous aspect of the situation to a very large degree. No excess of tender-heartedness was necessary to cause pity for the creature.

Its body was so thin that it had apparently been sick and was starving, and its thinness permitted its body to slide through the space between the shelf and the window where its head was too large to go. It was too weak to extricate itself from its fatal situation, and it slowly died. Whatever fate governs the destiny of rodents had denied this one a fighting chance for life, providing in advance weakness of body to contribute to the final end.

RAILROADS

ELEVATOR SITES.

Will Be Considered By North Dakota Railroad Commission.

Bismarck, N. D., July 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota railroad commission will endeavor to formulate rules and regulations for the guidance of railroads leasing sites to elevator companies in the state.

Complaints have been filed with the state board, particularly by independent companies, that they have been unable to secure sites for elevators along the lines of railroads operating in the state, and it is with the object of correcting that situation that the step toward promulgating rules has been taken.

The board has granted the request of farmers residing north of Walhalla for the establishment of a grain loading station close to the international boundary. At present the farmers have to haul their grain through the Pembina mountains to Walhalla, the only loading station near by being in Canada, where they cannot market without shipping in bond.

NEW BOOKLET WILL ADVERTISE DULUTH.

"Along the Scenic Highway Through the Land of Fortune" is the engaging title of a new Northern Pacific illustrated booklet of seventy-two pages with cover illuminated in four colors and fifty inside illustrations in tints. Copies of the booklet will be circulated throughout the country and furnished to passengers on Northern Pacific through trains.

PRINCE TO BECOME AMERICAN CITIZEN

"Man Without a Country" Admitted as Citizen By Congress.

Washington, July 5.—Eugene Prince, the "man without a country," will become a citizen of the United States when the president signs a resolution the senate passed today.

Mr. Prince is the son of John Henry Prince and both father and son were born in Russia, although the grandfather was an American whose family, Senator Lodge assured the senate, had lived in Massachusetts since 1643.

The law protested the father, but not the son in his rights of citizenship. He was neither an American citizen nor a subjejct of the czar and even not in a position to be naturalized.

The house passed a joint resolution unconditionally admitting him "to the character and privileges of American citizenship," and the senate today acted favorably.

WHEAT SAGS STILL LOWER

Rainy Weather at Grain Heading Season Means Good Yield.

Fine Flax Prospects and Large Arrivals Cause Heavy Slump.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 5.—The continued fall of moderate rains on the spring wheat regions of the United States and Canada, just at the time when the head is forming, giving promise of a plentiful yield of the grain, caused another bearish movement on the wheat markets of North America today. July wheat went down in spite of a great falling off in the American primary receipts.

Duluth July wheat closed ⅞c lower and Duluth September 2⅝c lower. Cash wheat closed a cent over the July prices. Durum was 3 cents off and oats ¼c up. Rye and barley closed unchanged. Duluth flax closed 4 cents lower, September 5½c lower and October 6c off.

The continuation of rainy weather conditions over the American Northwest and the Canadian West, where rain has been greatly needed for the grains just at the time of development of the grain heads, caused quite a sagging of wheat on the North American markets today, continuing the movement that has been going on for some days.

Duluth July wheat, which closed Wednesday at $1.10⅞ asked, opened today at $1.10½ asked and at noon was quoted at $1.09¾ bid. In Duluth September the decline was even greater. That option on the Duluth market closed Wednesday at $1.04¾, opened today at $1.03¾ asked, and at noon was $1.02⅞ bid.

Liverpool wheat today closed ½@ 2d lower. Nearly all the European cables were bearish on wheat.

Flaxseed Slumps.

Flaxseed on the Duluth market took quite a down-turn today, by reason of heavy arrivals from the country and continued favorable news in regard to the prospects for the new crop. July at noon was 4c down, September 6½c down and October 6c down. There were thirty cars on the track for inspection. The Winnipeg market was bearish from similar causes. At noon today Winnipeg July was 3c off at $1.92 bid. Buenos Ayres wheat last night closed unchanged at $1.79⅝. London July today closed 4⅝c lower at $2.18⅝.

The Chicago Paint, Oil and Drug Review says: "The linseed oil market through last week remained very steady, but with the close of the flaxseed market on Monday of this week a weakness developed which was not heretofore apparent. This feeling is probably intensified by the demand for oil becoming easier. Heretofore buyers have been quite active in trying to secure stocks of oil for immediate delivery, but indications point to this demand being very largely supplied at this time. The mills are busy in making deliveries on these purchases, but new business is slackening off.

"The official quotation for strictly pure raw linseed oil in carload lots in cooperage is 75c per gallon, but 74c is being openly quoted and upon an offer from a buyer, this price, no doubt, could be shaded.

"A few days ago 60c in cooperage was being quoted for deliveries October forward, and we learn that sales were made at this price, while other crushers are not inclined to do business on this basis but have accepted business for November forward at 61c. It is believed that with the different linseed crushers in different parts of the country considered as a whole, considerable business has been accepted as a basis as indicated above.

"Jobbers are advocating to their customers that they buy on a hand-to-mouth basis for the time being. The jobbers in Chicago are quoting strictly pure oil in barrel lots at 80c per gallon, and boiled oil at 81c.

"There is practically nothing new to report in regard to linseed cake. Business is dull and $32.00 f. o. b. Chicago is accepted as the ruling figure."

It is expected that this week will show a decrease of 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bu in the American visible supply of wheat. The corresponding week of last year showed an increase of about 3,000,000 bu. This vast difference of movement is due to the comparative lateness of this year's wheat crop, and to the scarcity of yield in the soft winter wheat regions. The visible supply as reported now, about 23,000,000 bu is almost exactly what was reported as the visible supply a year ago, but it should be remembered that this year's visible supply includes the private stocks at Chicago and Omaha, amounting, it is said, to about 4,000,000 bu, whereas the private stocks in these two cities were not included in last year's total. Thus the total this year is shown to be several millions of bushels behind that of a year ago. It is thought by some Duluth brokers that this condition is apt to have a telling effect on the cash wheat market before the new crop is moving in any great volume.

World's estimated wheat shipments, exclusive of North American, 9,600,000 bu.

The Modern Miller, St. Louis, says: "Where threshing of soft winter wheat is under way, reports are conflicting, some being of full yields and others that the berry is thin, part of the grain not being fit for milling. Rains have interfered with the harvest and the localities east of the Mississippi river heavy rains are said to have damaged the wheat in the shock. Hard winter wheat is generally threshing out well. Harvesting has started in the northwest Pacific coast, Oregon, Washington and Idaho and promises unusually large yields."

Paine, Webber & Co. today received from Foster & Boston the following closing copper letter: "The local coppers opened this morning comparatively dull with a fair undertone. The buying of Shannon was aggressive and a new high price of $17.12 for this movement was made. After noon time the reaction in the New York list was felt in the local market. Buying orders were withdrawn and scattered orders came in to sell. The close showed fractional reactions all through the list but the prices have no significance for the volume was so small. The reaction may continue through the short day tomorrow but next week we look for a higher and more active market and especially in the coppers."

* * *

Gay & Sturgis today received from I. J. Sturgis at Boston the following copper closing letter: "From the standpoint of owners of stocks today's markets were very unsatisfactory. Prices opened lower and sagged all through the session, closing at the bottom. Reports of crop damage were used by the bears, but were not borne out by grain market movements. The New York Journal of Commerce printed an opinion concerning concealed stocks of metal which had as much to do with the break in prices as anything, as they broke early. A setting back of further proportions need not be surprising."

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market's Mid-Week Steadiness Dissipated and Selling Sets in.

Lowest Prices Rule in Final Hour and Close Is Weak.

New York, July 5.—An irregular tone was manifested by the stock market at today's opening. American Tobacco rose 2 points and Canadian Pacific 1 point, with strength in Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and General Electric. There were declines, however, in Union Pacific, Amalgamated, Steel and some others.

Fractional advances after the opening, in which Atchison and Reading were conspicuous, were not held, the market breaking later on active selling of Union Pacific, Steel, Reading and Amalgamated.

Much of the mid-week steadiness in the stock market was suddenly dissipated today. The selling was impartially distributed among such leaders as Union Pacific, Steel and Amalgamated, with weakness most marked in the latter. No especial cause was advanced to explain the decline.

Shares of the grain carrying roads were inclined to further improvement but fell back on the counter movement in the more active issues. Dealings dwindled as the list made feeble recovery from its low level and a repetition of last month's stagnation followed. Bonds were steady.

Some activity in the Cananea common and preferred and a slight hardening in the specialties constituted features of the late afternoon.

The market closed weak. Lowest prices ruled in the final hour, when a fairly wide selling movement set in. Various specialties fell with the leaders, some of the latter making net losses of 2 points and more.

TIME TO SHED COLD POTATO ATTITUDE TOWARD DULUTH AND GROW ENTHUSIASTIC

President of Greater Duluth Club Says Doubters' Day Is Passed and Thinks Slogan "100,000 in 1914" Will Be Achieved.

Reviews Work Already Done on the Steel Plant and Sees New Era of Prosperity Ahead for Duluth.

By P. E. DOWLING,
President of Greater Duluth Club.

A scouting party consisting of the writer and three friends visited the steel plant one day last week.

It was the second visit I had made this spring, the prior one being about the first of March. I was anxious to see what was going on. I was hopeful that I could bring back from the scene of the new plant a word of cheer to the people of the city and engage their minds and hearts with a hope and joy that passed from them about three years ago when the declaration was made that the deepening of the St. Louis river by the United States government would not be needed in the operation of the new steel plant for years to come. If this declaration had been couched in the language of a diplomat, it would not have suppressed or dampened the ardor of the citizens of Duluth, nor would it have dispelled the hope of an immediate future for Duluth's growth. But the interview came from a man who knew not politics, but who in his straightforward, business-like methods, desired not to mislead either the government or the people and simply stated the plain facts.

However, our citizens, placing a misinterpretation upon this declaration, at once began to question the intentions of the United States Steel corporation regarding the smelting and manufacturing of ore at this point for at least years to come. This questioning and doubting on the part of many of our citizens has had its serious reflections upon the growth of the whole city and in the movement of general conditions.

When the news from New York regarding the construction of the $10,000,000 steel plant reached Duluth in April, 1907, it was then expected that the plant would be completed within three years. Similar ideas have since been suggested from time to time by those semi-officially connected with the large corporation, and of course the results have been more or less disappointing to the people of this city. Apparent delays and quietness in construction have caused more or less lack of confidence on the part of the people and doubting Thomases can be found in many parts of the city. Then again a great majority of the people have felt that it was not strictly within their province to dictate to the United States Steel company, either by sug-

YOUNG MEN WERE IN FRONT AT BALTIMORE

SENATOR LUKE LEA
Of Tennessee.

The convention at Baltimore brought to the front prominently four young men. These men are Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, A. Mitchell Palmer, Mayor Baker of Cleveland and Cone Johnson of Texas. Senator Lea is perhaps the most widely known. He is the youngest member of the senate and as head of what was known as the "steering committee," which tried to keep the convention in the control of the so-called Progressives, was prominent from the day of his arrival at the convention city. His recent act of devotion to his wife, whose life he saved by transfusion, appealed to the entire world.

LA FOLLETTE MAY REMAIN PASSIVE

Report He Will Take No Part in Presidential Campaign.

Madison, Wis., July 6.—It is said that Senator La Follette may take no part in the presidential campaign. Walter L. Houser, who has been at his home at Mondovi, Wis., since the Chicago convention, has gone to Washington to confer with the senator regarding the latter's activity in the campaign, with special reference to his attitude toward Woodrow Wilson's candidacy. Whether La Follette will support Wilson is a question soon to be determined, it is understood, but the course which finds ready belief here is that La Follette will take only a passive position.

WILL SPEND MILLIONS FOR DOCKS

Coal Companies in Scramble for Duluth Water Front Property.

Review of the Transactions of the Last Few Months.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars for the Land Alone.

Few Duluthians realize the developments that have taken place in the last few months in West Duluth dock property.

John A. Stephenson of the West Duluth Land company believes that these developments constitute one of the great "talking points" for Duluth.

Within the past eight months dock property on this side of the bay has changed hands for considerations totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars, and on the property thus disposed of there will be improvements made this year amounting, in the aggregate, to several millions.

And yet, Mr. Stephenson points out

EDUCATORS ARE IN CONVENTION

Opening of the Fiftieth Annual Session at Chicago.

Chicago, July 6.—The first gathering of delegates to the National Educational asociation's fiftieth annual convention began at 2:30 o'clock today in the gold room of the Congress hotel, where the national council of education had planned three sessions morning, afternoon and evening.

David Felmley, president of the state normal university at Normal, Ill., was to make the final report of the committee on high school preparation of students for normal schools. Every member of the council has been invited to participate in the discussion of this report.

At the afternoon session the report of the committee on rural schools was to be made by E. T. Fairchild, state superintendent of public instruction of Topeka, Kan., and at the evening session J. A. Shawan, superintendent of schools, Columbus, Ohio, was expected to discuss "Educational Progress of the Year."

The council meetings were to be presided over by Charles H. Keyes of New York city, its president.

The regular sessions of the National Educational association will be held in the Auditorium theater, beginning Monday afternoon.

ATHLETES CONTEST AT STOCKHOLM

Brilliant Spectacle at Opening of the Great Olympic Games.

Display of Patriotism at Athletes' Entry Into the Arena.

March Past Before the Royal Box Is an Inspiring Sight.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 6.—The inauguration of the Olympic games today provided a spectacle which probably has never been equaled in the history of athletics from the days of ancient Greece. It was not only a beautiful and memorable scene but a solemn ceremony which moved the spectators deeply.

The day was perfect. There was a clear blue sky overhead. The great stadium was filled with 30,000 people of all nationalities. The delicate colors of the women's costumes and the bright uniforms of the army officers in themselves made a remarkable picture.

When the members of the Swedish royal family entered their gaily decorated box at 11 o'clock all present stood with bared heads and gave a cheer, while a call blown by a corps of trumpeters sounded far and wide and announced the opening of the games.

A large group of singers then started the Swedish national hymn which was joined in enthusiastically by many of the spectators.

Display of Patriotism.

The entry of the athletic teams into the arena gave the spectators an opportunity for a display of patriotism, which each national delegation among them seized and gave voice to with all the power of their lungs.

After the delegations of Sweden, Norway and Denmark the team representing the United States showed the larg-

GROSS FRAUDS ARE ALLEGED

Milling in Transit Privileges Said to Have Been Abused.

Washington, July 6.—Gross frauds and violations of law in the exercise of the "milling in transit privileges" accorded to shippers, principally in grain, grain products and lumber, have been revealed by the interstate commerce commission's extensive investigation on that subject just completed. Railroads will be required to establish drastic regulations to safeguard the operation of the privileges in the future.

STATE COMMISSION UNDERSTOOD THE GRAIN CASE DECISION

Not Likely to Interfere in Duluth's Recent Traffic Victory.

Readjustment of Rates Will Benefit Every Minnesota Farmer.

Duluth in Position to Compete With Chicago and Minneapolis.

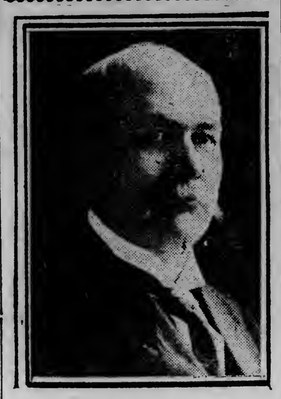

That the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission misconstrued the effect of decision No. 1929 in the grain rate case recently made by the interstate commerce commission, in which the Head of the Lakes commercial organizations won a victory, is unquestionably true.

The state commission issued a statement a few days ago in which it asserted that in its opinion the new decision would have to be modified as it would upset the entire parity of state rates on grain. However, when Julius K. Barnes, a leader in the movement for rate adjustment, and chairman of the Commercial club's traffic commission, called up the commission by long distance telephone yesterday he found that certain vital paragraphs of the decision had not been digested and that upon reading them the members of the commission expressed themselves as of the opinion that the decision was not as disturbing as it looked at first.

The victory is considered the most important one for the Head of the

New York, July 6.—George R. Malby, congressman from the Twenty-sixth congressional district of New York state, was found dead last night in a room at the Murray Hill hotel. According to the coroner's physician, death was due to heart failure and hardening of the arteries. Congressman Malby's home is in Ogdensburg, N. Y., and he was 54 years old. He was a leader among up-state Republicans.

Passenger Coach Struck By Coal Train and Twenty-One Killed.

Thirty Injured, Some Fatally, on the Ligonier Valley Railroad.

Latrobe, Pa., July 6.—Twenty-one persons were killed and thirty injured, a number fatally, as a result of a wreck yesterday afternoon on the Ligonier Valley railroad at Wilpen.

An overloaded passenger coach, pushed by an engine, was struck by a double-header freight train of coal cars, crushing the coach like paper and spreading death and injury to all but one aboard the train.

TWO MORE DEAD ARE IDENTIFIED

No Clew to Identity of Injured 12-Year-Old Boy.

Corning, N. Y., July 6.—Two more of the forty-one persons killed in the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western wreck near here were identified today. They are:

JOHN KENNEDY, Harrison, N. J.

JULES SAMPSON, 392 Central avenue, Jersey City.

This leaves eight bodies to be identified.

A blue-eyed, brown-haired boy, 12 years old, is among the unidentified injured at the Corning hospital, and his case has given much concern to the physicians. No clew to his identity is to be had. The fact has come to light that the express car next to the engine of train No. 11, which was badly damaged, contained $500,000 in currency and $400,000 in "valuable shipments." The front end of the car was demolished and the treasure exposed, although none but the express messengers knew of its existence.

DEBATE OPENS IN LORIMER CASE

Senator Myers to Open Attack and Lorimer to Close Defense.

Washington, July 6.—General debate in the Lorimer senatorial election case opening today marks the beginning of the end of this, perhaps the most sensational contest in the history of the senate. With Senator Myers of Montana ready to open the attack at the outset and Senator Lorimer planning to close for the defense, the senate was staged for the final action, which probably will come the middle of next week. In parliamentary fiction the vote is to be taken on "the legislative day of July 6."

This is the close of the second senate investigation and fight on Lorimer since Charles A. White, a representative in the Illinois legislature, sold for publication an exposure of alleged legislative corruption affecting Lorimer's election to the senate. Confessions, indictment, charges and counter-charges notch the pathway of the Lorimer case since that exposure. The present issue is Lorimer's right to a seat in the senate, which the investigating committee in its recent report to the senate sustained, 5 to 3. About ten senators have indicated that they want to make speeches before the vote.

QUARRELS WITH HIS COLLEAGUES

Higgins of Connecticut Objects to Procedure in Hanford Case.

Seattle, Wash., July 6.—Judge Hanford's personal habits were under investigation when the house judiciary sub-committee met today. Several witnesses subpoenaed by the committee to testify against the judge yesterday are to be heard. Chairman Graham intimated yesterday that the majority of the committee would scrutinize the evidence offered and exclude what was not material.

Representative Higgins of Connecticut has openly quarreled with his colleagues because of their policy of admitting all the evidence against Judge Hanford that can be obtained and permitting Hanford's counsel to introduce only rebuttal.

DARROW IS PREPARED TO CONDUCT HIS OWN CASE.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 6.—Clarence S. Darrow, on trial for jury bribing, will be prepared to take charge of his own case in the event Chief Counsel Earl Rogers has not recovered from his illness when the trial is resumed Monday. Mr. Darrow informed Judge Hutton yesterday that no further delay will be sought by the defense on account of Rogers' illness. The defense expects to begin the presentation of its case Tuesday.

DISPUTE ON HANGING OF BRYAN IN EFFIGY.

Washington, July 6.—Conflicting stories are being told of the hanging in effigy of William J. Bryan at Colonial Beach, a summer resort near here, Wednesday night.

The truth seems to be that the hanging was done by one man, disappointed over the outcome of the Baltimore convention. The residents of Colonial Beach, however, resented the act and by way of showing it cut down the effigy and threw it into the Potomac river.

REBEL ARMY DECREASING

Only 3,500 Men Comprise Remnant of Mexican Rebel Force.

Gen. Orozco Making Plans for Continuation of the Revolution.

El Paso, Tex., July 6.—Only 3,500 men are estimated as comprising the remnant of the rebel Mexican army today. Desertions because of lack of food and money and federal triumphs have greatly reduced the insurrecto columns within the last week.

Gen. Pascual Orozco today was expected at the new rebel capital—Juarez—to launch further plans for a continuation of the revolution. Though the plans of guerrilla warfare originally called for a division of the rebel forces into detachments of 150 men, Gen. Orozco now has ordered that each column shall contain not less than 500 able men to dominate the region detailed to it.

Already the rebel invasion of the state of Sonora has been begun. Nearly 1,000 men under Gen. Emilio Campa are marching from Casas Grandes on the Mexican Northwestern road toward Bavishe, one of the mountain passes, leading into Sonora. En route from Agua Prieto opposite Douglas, Ariz., to check them is the federal column of 9,000 men under Gen. Sanjines, who will make his headquarters at Colonia Molares, near the Sonora state line and fifty miles south of the international border.

Huerta, the federal general, has established headquarters at Horcasitas, twenty-five miles south of the city of Chihuahua.

Railroad and telegraph communication with the city of Chihuahua probably will be restored in five days.

Orozco at Juarez.

Washington, July 6.—Gen. Pascual Orozco, commanding the Mexican revolutionary forces, arrived in Juarez early today, according to reports received at the war department from Col. E. Z. Steever, acting commander of the department of Texas. Consul Edward at Juarez says that while there are reports of many rebels on their way to Juarez, few have arrived.

PLANS FOR THE THIRD PARTY IN NEW JERSEY.

Newark, N. J., July 6.—It was announced today that there would be a conference of the leaders of the Roosevelt league at the office of Former Governor J. Franklin Fort Monday night, at which plans for the third party movement in this state would be discussed.

Taking the recent primaries as their basis of calculation, the Roosevelt leaders predict that they can name the electors that will be placed on the regular Republican ticket in November. It is also planned to place Roosevelt tickets in the field in every county in the state.

KING AND QUEEN AT HENLEY REGATTA

Travel on Royal Barge Manned By the King's Watermen.

Henley-on-Thames, Eng., July 6.—Henley regatta, England's famous water carnival, today reached the culmination point in all the big events, and, for the first time since its inception in 1839, received the patronage of the king.

His majesty, accompanied by the queen and Princess Mary, came from London to Henley by train. On arriving there King George and Queen Mary embarked on the royal barge, which was brilliantly emblazoned with red and gold and manned by the king's watermen in their liveries of centuries ago. Their majesties then proceeded down the course to the royal stand, from which they watched the final heats of the British aquatic championships.

Beautiful weather favored the occasion in marked contrast to the days which preceded and the scene on the river was one of brilliance, with gaily decorated houseboats, more modest punts, skiffs and canoes lining the course, all their occupants in lightest of summer attire.

During the afternoon the royal party proceeded the full length of the course and received a most hearty welcome.

The barge used today was built by order of King William III for Queen Mary in 1689 and is one of the oldest vessels in England. It was used for many years to convey the English kings and queens between their royal residences at Greenwich and Westminster.

EXPLAINS CASE TO THE JURY

Viterbo, Italy, July 6.—The presiding judge in the Camorra trial today continued his summing up of the testimony given during the two years' trial as to the culpability of the accused in the murder of Gennaro Cuoccolo and Maria Cuoccolo in June, 1906. He did not omit any of the details in explaining the case to the jury and referred at some length to the flight of "Erricone" (Enrico Alfano) to America.

Erricone bit his lips until they were bleeding, but nevertheless, although evidently suffering from the most intense excitement, kept his promise not to interrupt the judge.

English Trade Returns.

London, July 6.—The board of trade returns for July show a decrease in the imports of $2,172,000, and the exports $5,704,000. During the month the imports of cotton decreased $5,000,000 but manufactured goods increased $2,500,000. The decrease in the exports was principally in manufactured goods.

FAIR PLAY TO PRISONERS

Kansas City Expert Tells How Problem Is Handled There.

Work Farm Shows Profit and Gives Petty Offenders a Chance.

Jacob Billikopf, a member of the board of public welfare of Kansas City, is in Duluth today looking over the work of the local public welfare board. While in the city Mr. Billikopf will address a meeting at the Duluth Commercial club.

The Kansas City board of public welfare was formerly the board of pardons and paroles. Under the system of the present welfare board, which has been in existence but five years, Mr. Billikopt says that vast changes have been made in the caring for the petty offenders of the city.

"We investigated and found," Mr. Billikopf stated, "that under the old order the workhouse, where prisoners were sent from a few days to a year, was run in a manner that was a disgrace to the community. It was under the control of political henchmen, and the morals of the prisoners, instead of being bettered, were actually made worse.

"Liquor was smuggled in, and some of the political heelers were flagrantly allowed to escape. Women were sent to this place, and some of the atrocities committed were shocking to the sense of decency. We have done away with the workhouse. In its stead is an industrial home where women are sent. They are taught useful occupations. No men are committed to this home.

"Taking the place of the workhouse is a farm of some 200 acres, on the outskirts of the city, where the petty male offenders are sent. Here they have sunshine, the pure air, the moral atmosphere that comes with renewed health, and they are taught to be useful to themselves and society. We believe we are making these people, or at last the majority of them, assets to the community instead of enemies of organized society.

Shows a Profit.

"The city did not go into this thing as a paying institution, but I can say that we have figured out where each of the prisoners at the farm earned a clear profit for the city—this, mind you, in the face of the fact that under the old system the care of these prisoners was a total loss to Kansas City.

"We also have the free legal aid bureau, and under the work of this department hundreds of indigents have been aided. Hundreds of dollars have been recovered and many wife deserters have been brought back to Kansas City. These cases are mostly those where the people have not the money to hire legal aid.

"Another department that has also done splendid work is the remedial loan agency. We have gone into competition with the loan sharks—that is, we have gone into competition with them to drive them out of business.

"We charge 1½ per cent interest per month. Some people may consider this high ,but when it is taken into consideration that the loan sharks charge something like 12 and 15 per cent a month, and, also, that we have to take many risks, it will be found that we are not charging a high rate of interest and really accomplishing a great deal of good to the community.

"The matter of good accomplished is, of course, an intangible problem. I am sure that we have reformed many petty offenders who, under the former system, would have gone from bad to worse. Then, too, I don't believe there is any doubt but that the work of the welfare board has resulted in pointing out to the better citizen his duty to the community.

Housing Problem.

"We have charge of the housing problem, also, and here we have been able to accomplish a great amount of good. We have improved the housing conditions and adopted sanitary conditions in many districts where filth was abominable and disease breeding. The housing problem of any city is a serious one, and we have improved the conditions of the poor in Kansas City."

An effort will be made to have the city aldermen and the mayor present when Mr Billikopf gives his talk, as it is believed that he has many facts and much general information that will be of interest and value to the city officials.

Weather—Generally fair and continued warm weather.

VIRGINIA MUST WAIT

Plan to Annex Mining Property Not Likely to Succeed.

Would Add $12,000,000 to Tax Rolls of Range City.

Indications are that the proposed annexation to the city of Virginia of 1,280 acres of valuable mining property east of the city and just outside of the corporate limits will be turned down by the county board at its regular semi-annual meeting, which will be held Monday.

Charles E. Adams, attorney for the board, has held that the petition signed by certain residents of Virginia and of the territory which is proposed to be annexed asking that the county board order an election at which the proposition may be put up to the voters, does not come within the provisions of the law.

It is probable that the advice of the board's attorney will be followed by the commissioners and that the petition will be refused. The law requires that the last state census shall govern in determining the population. In the case of Virginia, the state population of 1905 does not show enough to make law regarding annexation applicable.

Since 1905, Virginia has more than doubled in population and if the federal census could be taken for a basis the petition would be regular, it is said. The petition represents that Virginia now has a population of 10,473 and that the territory proposed for annexation has 1,021 legal residents.

The annexation is meeting with strong opposition from the Oliver Mining company and other Steel corporation subsidiaries, which own practically all of the land involved in the proposed addition. The law under which the annexation proceedings must be brought also requires that a portion of the proposed addition must be platted property.

The Oliver Mining company, which owns the plat of East Virginia, which is a part of the territory proposed for an addition, has a case now pending before Judge Dancer in district court in which the vacation of the plat is sought. If the court grants the request for the vacation of the plat of East Virginia, the petition will be further invalidated.

The petition for the addition is signed by 187 residents of the city of Virginia and is backed by the Virginia Commercial club. In view of the fact that the territory involved has an assessed valuation of about $12,000,000, which would be subject to city taxation, the proposed addition is being hard fought by the mining companies.

Nearly 150 residents or owners of summer cottages at Solon Springs yesterday afternoon presented a petition to the officials of the Omaha road, asking that the morning train, which is now run only on week days, be run out of Superior on Sundays also. They will also grant the right-of-way for sewer purposes and title to dock frontage 600 feet at the East end including Carlton and John avenues, and 552 feet between and including I and M avenues and 120 feet east. The proposition is now being considered by the commission.

The fire is being fought under the personal directions of one of the state wardens, who is pressing into service every man that is able in the hopes of checking a further spread. SHOWS NO REMORSE

Emil Lindholm, Held for Murder, Pleads Self Defense.

Says Victim of Saloon Stabbing Affray Attacked Him.

Remorse does not appear to sit heavily upon Emil Lindholm, who stabbed Tom Kallijo to death in the Belmont saloon at 705 West Superior street yesterday afternoon.

The slayer was brought to headquarters this morning and his measurements taken in the Bertillon room. He seemed calm and collected and was able to talk more coherently of the killing than he was yesterday, most of the effects of the liquor he had consumed having left him.

Lindholm maintains that he was justified in killing Kallijo. He declares that he sank the knife into his left breast in self-defense, claiming that the dead man and a friend attacked him.

This version does not coincide with that of two men who claim to have been eye witnesses. Their statement is that Lindholm, his partner and Kallijo's partner were scuffling in the back of the room when Kallijo separated them. From there the two with Lindholm went to the front of the saloon while Lindholm entered the lavatory.

Kallijo went to the rear of the saloon shortly afterwards, not knowing that Lindholm was inside. As he started to the door they claim that Lindholm attached him, sinking the knife into his body with fatal effect. Kallijo then grappled with Lindholm, who tried to slash him in the arm and side, succeeding only in putting a small gash in the back of one hand. The wound on the breast and that on the hand are the only two on the dead man's body.

When Kallijo grabbed Lindholm he dragged him about ten feet toward the front of the saloon. His strength failed him and he toppled over. Friends rushed to his assistance while others called in the police. Kallijo lived for a few minutes. The blade of the knife severed one of the large veins entering the heart, but not touching that organ itself. In the excitement Lindholm escaped, but by a remarkable trick of fate was picked up on First street by Capt. Fiskett, who was returning from his lunch. He arrested the man for drunkenness after noticing the blood on his clothes and did not know that he had a murderer in custody until the patrol wagon reached the box.

Coroner McComb was summoned and after making an investigation ordered the body removed to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan. It is not thought that a post mortem examination will be necessary, but it is expected that an inquest will be held at the morgue Monday morning.

NOT READY YET.

Duluth-Edison Company's Coming Proposal Held Until Monday.

The proposition which the Duluth-Edison Electric company will present to the city council on Monday night, providing for a semi-municipal control of the company, has not yet been formulated to a stage where it is ready for publication. The officers of the company will have it ready by Monday but it will not have reached concrete form before that time.

The city already regulates the rates of the company and gets 3 per cent of the income of the corporation, and it is proposed to offer to the city the place of one director in the company as well as other rights giving considerable control by the city.

EDICT BY MEXICAN ARCHBISHOP

Urges All Catholics to Unite and Take Active Part in Political Affairs of the Nation—Exhortation Due to Approaching Election of Senators and Deputies.

Mexico City, uly 6.—An edict issued by the archbishop of Mexico, Right Rev. Dr. Jose Mora y del Rio, exhorting all Catholics to unite and to take an active part in the political affairs of the nation, is causing much speculation and not a little uneasiness in political circles as to just what part the National Catholic party will play in future elections. Throughout the month of June, in obedience to the mandate of the archbishop, the clergy has "exhorted the faithful to offer their prayers that the electors may walk in paths of righteousness," and has counseled the people to "enter the fight with a true Christian spirit."

The exhortation was called forth by the approaching election of senators and deputies. In addition to the efforts of the priesthood, the edict has been posted on the doors of all churches and in conspicuous places throughout the capital.

The archbishop quoted Cardinal Gerari in urging his people to unite, as follows. "In cases where the worthy people are divided in their choice of candidates we must confess that it is a serious evil, which is to be lamented and done away with at all costs. Wherefore, we exhort you in the name of the Almighty, that you do not remain divided, but grouped together. Associate yourselves and unite in order that, as in the first days of the church, you may form one heart, one soul with a uniformity of ideas and a unity of purpose in the fight. Fighting thus, with closed ranks and with due attention to your leader, you will fulfill the mission of Christ and will obtain with greater ease the triumph."

The National Catholic party was a conspicuous factor in the presidential election. In their national convention they supported the candidacy of Madero for the presidency, and named Francisco L. de la Barra for vice president. Although non-Catholics profess to see in this activity on the part of the head of the church a tendency toward making the church all powerful, as in the days before the enactment of the "laws of reform" under President Juarez, they recognize a fortunate circumstance in the well-known liberality of the archbishop. This spirit of liberality found expression in the edict wherein voters were advised to select upright and honorable men without prejudice against those who were not of their own faith.

The half completed $5,000,000 national theater is sinking. After nearly a year of quiet about the magnificent marble structure, a small army of men is at work extending the foundations in an effort to check the subsidence. Nearly 400 tons of cement has been used within the month in reinforcing the foundation at the southwest corner, which appears to be the weakest point and which has sunk nearly a foot.

In the meantime work on the interior is practically abandoned. With the exception of the curtain, proscenium arch and the auditorium dome, the scheme of decoration is still undecided. Samples of flooring, columns and decorative effects are being tried from time to time.

The curtain, bearing an exquisite view of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, is complete and in place. It is done in glass mosaic and is the work of a New York house, in whose studio it was viewed and approved by many famous art critics. The auditorium dome is a costly and beautiful example of art glass work. The proscenium arch, of mosaic, made in Budapest, is being reassembled and will soon be ready to be put in place.

The stage has been equipped with the most improved machinery for moving the curtains and scenery. The theater has 600 square meters of floor space. The exterior is finished with the exception of the dome and several bronze statues which remain to be placed.

The ancient palace of the Montezumas on the heights of Chapultepec, now the home of the president and his family, is soon to be provided with the very inodern wireless telegraph equipment. Another station is to be established in Torreon. Both stations will be equipped with high power appliances, and will be in charge of the department of war. Thus President Madero will be able to keep in constant touch with the commanders in the field, regardless of interruption of the land service. The equipment for the stations has already been ordered.

The acreage available for partition among the inhabitants of the republic, in accordance with one of the provisions of Madero's "Plan of San Luis Potosi," has been computed by commissioners appointed for the purpose, at 51,870,000 acres (21,000,000 hectares). These lands are distributed throughout the various states and territories. Quintana Roo, Sonora and Chihuahua offering the largest quotas. In Quintana Roo there were found to be available 3,820 hectares, in Sonora, 5,350 hectares, and in Chihuahua, 3,103 hectares. Campeche follows with 1,600, Tepic with 1,344 and the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, 1,400 hectares. Plans for the partition of these national lands and placing them at the disposal of individuals are being studied by the department of public welfare. While the figures provided by the commission appear formidable, it is to be remembered that great tracts embraced in their calculations are arid and unfit for cultivation.

A great part of Italy's trade with Turkey consisted in selling cotton goods which were imitations of American marks and brands.

EXTENDING UP THE RIVER

Duluth's Dock System Is Gradually Outgrowing the Harbor.

Dredge Company Will Improve Site Near the Ironton Plant.

Duluth's dock system is gradually working up the river.

It was learned today that the Northern Dredge & Dock company is making preparations to improve the water front on the St. Louis river just south of the old Ironton steel plant.

The dock company owns a frontage of 600 feet at this point and is preparing to move its dredges there within a short time. Slips will be dredged and a fill will be made.

At the office of the dock company today it was stated that a small wharf would be built on the property to be used for docking purposes by the dredging company.

SEVEN MINUTE SERVICE FOR LESTER PARKERS

Club Committee Reports Street Railway's Promise of Improvements.

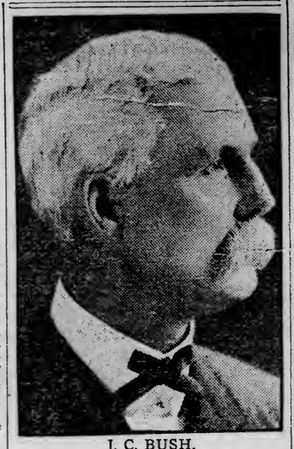

Cheerful news was received by the Lester Park club last evening in the form of a report from a committee which had interviewed Manager Warren of the street railway company.

The committee sought the agreement of Mr. Warren to give better car service, during the rush hours particularly. The result of their interview was more than gratifying to the members. Mr. Warren told them that the company is already planning to build, on the high point of rocks at Lester Park, a transformer station, giving greater power and better service by early fall. He said that the work of building will begin within the next three or four weeks, and promised that within a few months at most, a seven-minute instead of the present ten-minute service will be given during the rush periods.

To see that Lester Park is not left behind in the general running is the object of the club and its meeting of last night developed a militant spirit along that line, which, it is believed, will result in good things for the extreme east end of the city.

Storm Sewer.

One of the chief things that came up was the matter of a storm sewer to carry off accumulated water from a ravine above Oneida street, which once in a while threatens to become a menace. The board of public works recognizes that something must be done and has planned to build a temporary storm sewer from Glenwood street into Lester river to carry off this water, but the members of the club last night determined that this is not what is needed, and a committee was appointed to urge the city to build a permanent storm sewer down Fifty-eighth avenue east. The club feels, according to the general expression offered last evning, that if a imporary sewer is permitted, that is all Lester Park will get for a long time,

J. C. BUSH,
President of the Lester Park Club.

while with a little more expenditure a permanent sewer can be put in and the agony ended.

Another important matter discussed by the club last evening was that of taking steps to establish the grade of buildings to be erected hereafter at Lester Park. At present, it is claimed, right in the heart of the residence district, some people purchase lots and put up ramshackle homes of the tar-paper variety or others equally as grotesque, thus spoiling the appearance of the surrounding property and destroying the general beauty which Lester Park people as a whole are trying to establish and maintain. A committee consisting of John A. de Waard, C. R. Fenton and F. C. A. Hansen was named to confer with the city attorney to try to formulate some plan to overcome this tendency.

The club, co-operating with the school board, the Lester Park M. E. church and the Lakeside Land company, is planning the general beautifying of the grounds of the Lester Park school. It is proposed that the neighboring ravine be filled in, the grounds seeded for grass, cement sidewalks be built and other improvements be made.

DRIVEN OUT BY FLAMES

Seven Men and One Woman Escape From Burning Building.

Fire of unknown origin drove seven men and one woman down ladders and into the street from the second floor of the building at 701 West Superior street at 11 o'clock last night.

The blaze started in a shed at the rear and before the occupants of the upper floor had been aroused their escape by means of the single stairway, built on the outside, had been cut off. The men were Austrian laborers and the place conducted by Louis Kostelecky and his wife. All of them escaped without injury. The fire department was on the scene quickly and had ladders against the windows before the safety of any of them was in jeopardy.

The loss will not be heavy. The building is a cheap frame structure. The first floor is occupied by the saloon of L. De Santo, and the ground floor at 703 West Superior street houses a clothing store. Both sustained damage from water.

est and finest body of men in the procession and the Stars and Stripes called forth by far the heartiest welcome of all the flags carried by the victors. The little file of three athletes following the flag of Japan, however, got warm applause.

At the head of the delegation marched two stalwart athletes who carried the national flag and standard bearing the names of their respective countries surmounted by a Grecian laurel wreath. Committeemen in silk hats and frock coats followed. Then came the competitors, some of them in uniforms, others bare armed and bare legged.

The whole body marched around the track and then massed on the green oval facing the royal box with the standard bearers holding on high the colors of their various nations, directly opposite the king.

Inaugural Ceremonies.

For the inaugural ceremonial the international committee, which includes representatives of all nations, under the leadership of Crown Prince Gustave Adolph of Sweden, assembled on the field in front of the massed competitors. A big male choir was formed at the far end of the stadium and sang a hymn while several bands played. The court pastor, Rev. Oskar Clemens Aehfeldt, preached a short sermon in Swedish.

The Rev. Robert De Courcy Laffan, of the city of London, an old rowing man and a member of the British Olympic committee, then stepped forward in his clerical robes and offered prayer, speaking of the gathering as in the interest of peace and friendship.

While everybody stood uncovered the whole assemblage sang the Luther hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

The crown prince made a brief speech, and afterward King Gustave V rose and formally declared the Olympic games opened. His majesty laid emphasis on the great honor which had been done to Sweden in being enabled to greet her friends and welcome athletes from other nations to peaceful competitions.

He majesty expressed the hope that the noble idea of the Olympic games of old would be followed in these modern games, to the great benefit of the physical health of the nations.

The crown prince, speaking again in Swedish, eulogized physical culture, saying that the richer a country was in earnest, devoted sportsmanship, the more it was to be congratulated. He asked the foreign sportsmen present to rest assured that the Swedes who had had the great honor of organizing the fifth series of Olympic games solely were inspired by the desire that victory should go to the best men. The fifth Olympic games thus would be made worthy of its predecessors and be the greatest sporting meeting of modern times.

March of the Athletes.

A group of trumpeters in mediaeval costume stationed on the tower at the south end of the stadium sounded a blast, which was responded to by another group of trumpeters on the tower at the opposite end.

The crown prince, waving his silk hat, led three resounding cheers and the march of the athletes past the reviewing stand at once began.

As soon as this was ended, a body of 200 white-clad Swedish gymnasts ran onto the field and performed a number of spectacular evolutions.

After the men, a group of Swedish women gymnasts gave an exhibition of exercises on apparatus, including the jumping horse and the trapeze.

The culmination of the spectacle was the march past of the athletes before the royal box.

After the small Belgian contingent, whose military uniforms and swordsmen added a picturesque touch to the scene, the Danish team provided a splendid sight. Five hundred athletes and gymnasts, 200 of them women, followed the red standard with the white cross draped with crepe in memory of the late King Frederick. The women wore white sleeveless waists and short blue skirts with blue stockings and the men wore jerseys.

The United States team followed the Danes. Ralph Rose of the Olympic A. C. of San Francisco, M. J. McGrath, New York city, and Simon P. Gillis of the New York A. C., in the front rank, appeared to be giants compared with most of the men on the field. The members of the United States Olympic committee, headed by Col. Robert M. Thompson and James E. Sullivan, wore silk hats. The competitors followed in three divisions.

One Hundred Meters Flat.

The first athletic victory for the United States was won by Ira Courtney of the Seattle A. C. in the third heat of the 100 meters flat. His time was 11 seconds. H. E. H. Blakeney of England was second and a Hungarian third.

In the fourth heat of the 100 meters flat A. E. D. Anderson of England was first and Rupert P. Thomas of Princeon university second. The time was 11 seconds.

In the fifth heat of the 100 meters, Howard P. Drew of Springfield, Mass., high school won by several yards; E. Kern of Germany was second. The time was 11 seconds.

In the ninth heat of the 100 meters flat, Alvah T. Meyers, Irish-American A. C., won by three yards. Time, 11 seconds.

In the tenth heat of the 100 meters flat D. H. Jacobs of England won by a small margin, beating C. P. Wilson, Coe college, Iowa. Time, 10 4-5 seconds.

In the eleventh heat of the 100 meters flat, F. V. Belote, Chicago A. A., won. Time 11 seconds.

In the twelfth heat of the 100 meters flat, P. C. Gerhardt, Olympic A. C., San Francisco, won, beating Frank Lukeman of Quebec, Canada. Time, 11 1-10 seconds.

In the thirteenth heat of the 100 meters flat, J. A. Howard, Manitoba, won; G. H. Patchling, South Africa, second, and Harold W. Helland, Xavier A. A., New York, third. It was a close race. Time, 11 seconds.

Sixteenth heat, 100 meters—Donald F. Lippincott, University of Pennsylvania, first; W. R. Applegrath, England, second. Yahiko Mishima of Japan, the first competitor from that country, was the last of the five in the heat. Time, 10 3-5 seconds, a new Olympic record.

Seventeenth heat—Ralph C. Craig, Detroit Y. M. C., first; time, 11 1-5 seconds.

C. Luther, Sweden, won the first heat; Moller, Sweden, the second; R. Rau, Germany, sixth; W. A. Stewart, Australia, the seventh, and K. Lindberg, Sweden, the eighth heat in the 100 meters flat.

Eight Hundred Meters.

First heat, 800 meters flat—Davis S. Caldwell, Massachusetts Agricultural college, beat the famous Italian, E. Lunghi, by five yards. The Frenchman, J. Caulee, made the pace for 550 meters, but he later dropped back. Walter McClure, Olympic A. C., San Francisco, was outdistanced.

Fourth heat—Clarence S. Edmundson, Seattle A. A., first; J. L. Tait, Ontario, Can., second; C. A. C. Poulenard, France, third. The five competitors were closely bunched. R. Burton of England, was fourth. Time, 1:56 5-10 seconds.

Seventh heat—J. C. Soutter, England, first; Melvin W. Sheppard, Irish-American, second. The result was a great surprise. The Englishman sprinted 200 yards from the finish and crossed the tape six yards ahead of Sheppard, who appeared to be winded in the first 200.

Eighth heat—G. M. Brock, Ontario, Can., first; James E. Meredith, Mercerburg academy, second; J. A. Victor, South Africa, third. Time, 1 minute, 57 seconds.

Ninth heat—E. J. Henley, England, first; Hans Braun, Germany second; Thomas J. Halpin, Boston A. C., and a Swede tied for third place. Time, 1 minute, 57 3-5 seconds.

Second heat, 800 meters flat—P. E. Mann, England, first; Herbert N. Putnam, Cornell university, second. Time, 1 minute, 56 seconds.

Time of first heat, 1 minute, 58 3-5 seconds.

Third heat, 800 meters flat—John Paul Jones, Cornell university, first. A. Z. Cortesac, Portugal, made the pace for three-quarters of the distance. Jones then forged ahead, finishing easily six yards in front. Time, 2 minutes 1 4-5 seconds.

Fifth heat—Ira N. Davenport, University of Chicago, first; F. H. Hulford, England, second. The three English competitors did good team work. R. Hales made the running for 400 meters and then withdrew. Time, 1 minute 59 seconds.

Sixth heat—Harlan W. Holden, Bates college, first; E. Bjorn, Sweden, second. The Swede made a good race in the last half, but Holden finished easily in front of the six others, including a Turk who made one burst to the front with the star and crescent on his red jersey, but was outdistanced. Time, 1 minute, 58 1-10 seconds.

The firsts and seconds in the trial heats of the 800 meters flat compete in the finals. Thus America is represented by eight men and England by four, while Canada has two.

Semi-final, 100 Meters.

First heat, semi-final, 100 meters—Howard P. Drew, Springfield, Mass., high school, first; E. Kern, Germany, second; Ira Courtney, Seattle, and P. C. Gerhardt, San Francisco, were distanced. Time, 11 seconds.

Second heat—C. H. Patching, South Africa, first; C. Lindbergh, Sweden, second. There were no Americans in this heat. Time, 10 9-10 seconds.

Third heat—Alvan T. Meyers, Irish-American A. C., first; D. H. Jacobs, England, second. Time, 10 7-10 seconds.

Semi-final 100 meters: Fourth heat—Ralph C. Craig, Detroit, first; R. Rau, Germany, second. Time, 10 7-10 seconds.

Fifth heat—D. F. Lippincott, University of Pennsylvania, first; W. R. Applegrath, England, second. Time, 10 7-10.

Sixth heat—F. V. Belote, Chicago, first; W. A. Stewart, Australia, second. Time, 11 1-10.

Javelin Throwing.

In the javelin throwing E. Lemming, Sweden, was first with 60 meters and 64 centimeters; J. J. Saaristo, Finland, second, 58 meters, 66 centimeters; Miklos Kovacs, Hungary, third, 55 meters, 50 sentimeters.

STEAMSHIP HELD UP BY SEAMEN'S STRIKE.

New York, July 6.—The American line steamer Philadelphia, due to leave her pier for Southampton at 9:30 o'clock this morning, was held up through the failure of 175 oilers, coal passers and water tenders to report for duty. The men apparently deserted, in sympathy with the seamen's strike, now on wane.

There are 200 first-class passengers aboard the Philadelphia. Agents of the line announced they would have a full crew and get away early this afternoon.

REPORT ON WORK FARMS

County Board Will Hear From Kansas City and Minneapolis.

Many Routine Matters Are Scheduled for the Semi-Annual Meeting.

Impressions of the working methods and operation of the Minneapolis and Kansas City penal farms for petty prisoners visited by a special committee of the county board last month will be given in a report which the committee will make to the commissioners at the semi-annual meeting of the board Monday.

The committee which consisted of Commissioners Cumming, Ryan and Tischer was favorably impressed with both institutions and is prepared to give the board considerable information which might be used in formulating plans for the organization of a similar institution in this county. Charles E. Adams, special attorney of the board, also accompanied the committee on the trip, and may make an informal report of his impressions.

The board has little business in sight for its semi-annual meeting outside of the usual large grist of routine matters. Six road petitions will be heard, twelve old election precincts in unorganized territory and four new ones created in a territory which includes six townships.

IS CRUSHED LIKE PAPER

all, were residents of towns along the Wilpen branch. They were brought to a hospital here, or sent to hospitals at Pittsburg when it was found that they were in a critical condition.

Among them are:

Dr. J. B. Johnson, Ligonier, hurt internally, will probably die.

Dr. C. A. Camil, Ligonier, hurt internally, will probably die.

Miss Esther M. Matthews, nurse, Ligonier.

Walter Serena, McKeesport, Pa., in a precarious condition.

The injuries of the others were all severe, consisting of broken legs and arms and contusions.

The accident occurred on a branch road running from this place to Ligonier, which is owned by the Mellon interests of Pittsburg. It had been reported that the line was controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad.

It will take an investigation to determine the cause of the wreck. The passenger train, consisting of the lone coach, carried many persons who had enjoyed a holiday over the Fourth of July at Ligonier, a summer resort.

Coach Split Into Bits.

Without a moment's warning, the heavy freight ploughed into it, splitting the coach into bits. The victims, either crushed or killed instantly were thrown in all directions. A number were sent flying ahead, only to fall before the onrushing engines.

Many of the passengers were women and children. Two incidents are patetic. Miss Esther Matthews, a nurse, employed by an official of the road, was taking a party of six children to a woods near Wilpen for a picnic. Two of the girls were crushed to death and others badly hurt. Miss Matthews' condition is critical. The second incident, is the grief of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ehoddy. Their three daughters, Louise, Elizabeth and Mary, were killed.

Almost every home in Ligonier was affected by the accident. It was a case of relatives or friends either dead or injured. The railroad is an outlet for the mines of the Wilpen Coal company. The passenger train wrecked today, was the only one in operation. It made two trips a day over the line, which is ten miles in length. Up to this time not a life had been lost in any manner, and this was made the boast of the officials.

May Be Twenty-Seven Dead.

According to a statement of Passenger Agent Adams, of the Ligonier Valley railroad, the death list in the wreck near Wilpen is twenty-seven. Twenty-one have been accounted for by newspaper men, but all efforts to locate or identify any others, have failed. Just where the other six bodies are, is not known, nor does Mr. Adams himself know. It is said that several persons were taken home, where they died; it is also claimed that others are still under the wreckage.

MANKATO OFFICER HELD.

Coroner's Jury Holds Him Responsible for Killing Pollei.

Mankato, Minn., July 6.—The coroner's jury returned a verdict holding Charles Pollei, of the Mankato police force, responsible for the death of Hubert Haack, who was shot and killed late Wednesday night, while attempting to escape, after being arrested.

Pollei is still kept in hiding by the sheriff of Blue Earth county, who spirited him away after the shooting, to protect him from the mob that threatened the policeman's life. Feeling runs high among the people.

County Attorney Schmidt said after the return of the coroner's verdict that a warrant for Pollei's arrest on the charge of manslaughter, would be issued today.

Haack had been arrested Wednesday evening, accused of molesting women on the streets. He made a desperate effort to escape, when, it is alleged, Policeman Pollei shot him, the bullet passing through his heart. The sheriff took the officer to the St. Peter jail where he spent Thursday.

MAY LIMIT MUSICIANS

Employed in Mill City Playhouses as Result of Decision.

St. Paul, Minn., July 6.—The Minneapolis Musicians' association may require opera houses in the Mill City to employ a minimum number of musicians at each performance as the result of an opinion handed down by the state supreme court. The Scott-Stafford Opera House company brought suit to restrain the Musicians' union from enforcing such a rule at the varous playhouses and the supreme court in sustaining a demurrer to the suit held that it was not outside of the corporate powers of the union to make a rule of that kind.

REMINISCENCES OF DICKENS

Interesting Incidents of the Visit to American By Charles Dickens Related By Ambassador Reid at Dinner Given By the Boz Club.

London, July 6.—Whitelaw Reid, the United States ambassador, recalled some interesting incidents of the visit to America of Charles Dickens at a dinner given by the Boz club in celebration of the centenary of the birth of the great novelist: The dinner was presided over by the Bishop of London and the company included the surviving children, grandchildren and other relatives of Dickens.

As so often happens at functions of the kind in England, the United States ambassador was the chief speaker. After paying a tribute to Dickens, who he said was recognized in America almost as soon as in his own country, Mr. Reid mentioned that he was one of a small number who remembered and participated in the farewell banquet to Charles Dickens in the old Fourteenth street Delmonico's in New York at the close of his second visit to America in April, 1868.

"It was a banquet," said Mr. Reid, "not only to a great novelist, who had written many things about our people too near the truth to be popular at the time, but also to a great editor in his own country, from great editors in the country which he visited; and it was presided over by the greatest of them, an editor of immortal memory in the history of the country which he served in its gravest crisis and in its grandest achievement, Horace Greeley. At his right sat Charles Dickens, and next to the guest sat a spotless chevalier in the warfare of opinion that preceded the Civil war—George William Curtis, a man of letters worthy to be associated with Mr. Dickens, and an orator worthy to speak on the same platform. There was a long list of representative members of the profession, and all cordial and eager to make the honored guest feel welcome and at home—as eager as if Jefferson Brick had never been painted from the life from the occupant of a New York editorial office."

Referring to the disregard, in the absence of international copyright, of Dickens' moral right to the receipts from the sale of his books, Mr. Reid asked: "Does any one happen to remember the precise terms of the British copyright account with Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, for a novel that was read here almost as widely as some of Mr. Dickens' and was credited with almost as great an effect on the progress of the world—a work that was translated into all languages and sold in all lands? Can we see the settlement of the English copyright for the works of a poet named Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who sold here as widely as Alfred Tennyson; or of the similar account for the contributions to our common noble English literature by Nathaniel Hawthorne, Washington Irving, Ralph Waldo Emerson, James Russell Lowell, or John Lathrop Motley?"

The ambassador thought it wiser to forget these mutual shortcomings and recall instead the spirit in which Dickens dealt with them at that banquet at Delmonico's forty years ago, and his promise to have reproduced in every subsequent edition of Martin Chuzzlewit and of the American Notes the words he used on that occasion—"a pledge most honorably kept by his family and publishers of this day. The spirit seems to me still of good omen for both England and America:

"It would be better for this globe to be riven by an earthquake, fired by a comet, overrun by an iceberg, and abandoned to the Arctic fox and bear, than it should present the spectacle of those two great nations, each of whom has, in its own way and hour, striven so hard and successfully for freedom, ever again being arrayed the one against the other."

* * *

Cottage life, which used to be a picturesque feature of rural England, promises to become a thing of the past. The cottages are falling into ruins and no new ones are being built. This condition is also having a serious effect on marriage in the rural districts. Bridal couples of the working classes cannot find homes and the overcrowding has become so bad that slum conditions are reproduced in the country, where space should be ample for all residential requirements. It is said that the owners of the land are declining to build on the ground that the newly enacted land taxes make the future of the holdings precarious.

In Essex there are parishes where no marriages have taken place for fifteen years. In other places a rural exodus is taking place on account of the condemnation and collapse of the old cottages. In the neighborhood of a small holding district of Berkshire several couples were recently forced to take lodgings in the workhouse for want of cottage accommodation.

DULUTH MORE PROSPEROUS

Assessor's Figures Show Big Gain in Luxuries During Year.

Citizens Own 602 More Pianos and 117 More Automobiles.

Duluth's personal property valuation is $12,239,663, as compared with $11,653,958 last year, a gain of $585,705, according to the final official records on the books of the city assessor, completed today.

Duluth's moneys and credits are listed at $11,761,345, against $9,068,000, showing the big gain of $2,693,345. They are taxed at the rate of but $3 per $1,000 under a new state law, which has resulted in people showing a willingness to list them for taxation.

The total number of people assessed is 9,250, in round numbers, a gain of about 500 over last year.

An analysis of some of the figures shows that Duluth has gained remarkably in wealth and poulation since the last assessment was made. They indicate that the people are becoming more prosperous and have been investing in many new articles.

The books show that the city has 602 more pianos now than it had a year ago, giving a gain of $33,142 to this item. The number of automobiles has gone from 426 to 543, a gain of 117 machines and $71,013 in valuation. The number of cows has increased 152, with a raise of $3,990 in valuation. The number of sewing machines has increased 550, with an increase in the valuation.

Considerable increases are shown in the values of the stocks that are carried by retail and wholesale dealers, in diamonds and jewelry, stocks and bonds and household goods. The only item showing a material decrease is logs, lumber and forest products, which have a valuation of $208,984 under what it was a year ago. This is due to the fact that not as much lumber or coal was on the docks this year as the same time a year ago.

FARE, 50c ROUND TRIP

TUESDAY—Private rehearsals at new Masonic temple for Terpsichore's carnival. Mrs. W. H. Brown will give bridge party.

WEDNESDAY—Informal dance at boat club.

THURSDAY—Table d'hote dinner at Country club, with several individual dinner parties planned. Rehearsals for Terpsichore's carnival.

FRIDAY—Sofia Sterphall will give concert lecture at Memorial hall under auspices of Women's Relief corps. Mme. Labadie will give dramatic reading of Mackeye's "Tomorrow" at Orpheum theater.

SATURDAY—Baseball game between F. A. Patrick team and Board of Trade team for benefit of Children's home. Sofia Sterphall will give two concert lectures, one in afternoon and one in evening, at the Memorial hall, under auspices of W. R. C. Weekly dance at main house of boat club.

A week of many informal teas, bridge parties and "Set-a spells" has been enjoyed by the matrons and girls with one large dancing party at the boat club, given for visiting girls. Rehearsals for Terpsichore's carnival, the operatic extravaganza which will be put on at the Orpheum theater the first week in August by Duluth singers and young people, are claiming a good deal of time and proving jolly hours for those who have already been chosen to take part in the various numbers.

The carnival will be a four-nights presentation of two distinct operas, "A Night in Japan" and "A Night in Bohemia," each being put on two nights. A large chorus will sustain the operas which will be sung by popular local artists, many of whom have already been engaged and between the two acts of each opera a number of song and dance hits, taken from popular operas, will be given.

Among these specialties will be "Pictures in the Smoke," to be sung by the tenor, a beautiful review of his dream of oldtime sweethearts. "The Girl Who Came Out of the West," to be sung by a dashing girl with a chorus of eight lively dancers in chamois costumes with whip and pistol, will be a snappy number.

"The Flirtation Dance," by eight young men and eight young women will be an attractive number and the "La Carmencita" number, adapted from the opera "Carmen," will be one of the finest things on the program.

Twelve young society matrons will appear in the number, "La Tosca," in Louis the Sixteenth costumes, carrying the La Tosca cane.

The dance of the debutantes will be another number which should prove charming, eight girls in Grecian robes appearing in this graceful dance plastique.

"The Goo-goo Man" chorus from "The Isle of Spice," "The Dance of the Colleens," "Take Your Hat Off to Old Ireland," "Way Down in Colon Town," "The Rah Rah Boys" with its college dash from Ziegfeld's "Soul Kiss," and other hits will all be given.

A few of these choruses have already been filled and the young dancers have learned many of their steps exceedingly well for the short time, but many of the numbers are still open.

At a big rehearsal last evening the men and girls for the Gypsy chorus in "The Night in Bohemia" were drilled in songs and dances, which they learned with the ease of long-trained professionals, and their work will be a big feature of one of the operas. They will meet again Monday evening at a big rehearsal commencing at 8 o'clock at the new Masonic Temple hall and several new members will then be chosen from among those present and a preliminary rehearsal given.

Agatin-Abbott Wedding.

The chief event of this evening will be the wedding of Miss Marie Agatin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arcadius L. Agatin to Dr. William Pitt Abbott, which will take place at the home of the bride's parents, 2402 East Fifth street at 8 o'clock Rev. George R. Gebauer officiating.

Miss Agatin will be attended by Miss Margaret McKindley and Miss Lois Fee as bridesmaids and Miss Catherine Abbott and Miss Eulalie Chisholm will be the ribbon bearers. Dr. Abbott will be attended by George Sufrel.

Among the out-of-town guests who have arrived are: Capt. and Mrs. A. T. Abbott of Faribault, Minn., the parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. F. W. Fitzpatrick of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Chadbourn of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawkley also of Minneapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ross of Blue Earth.

Baseball for Charity.

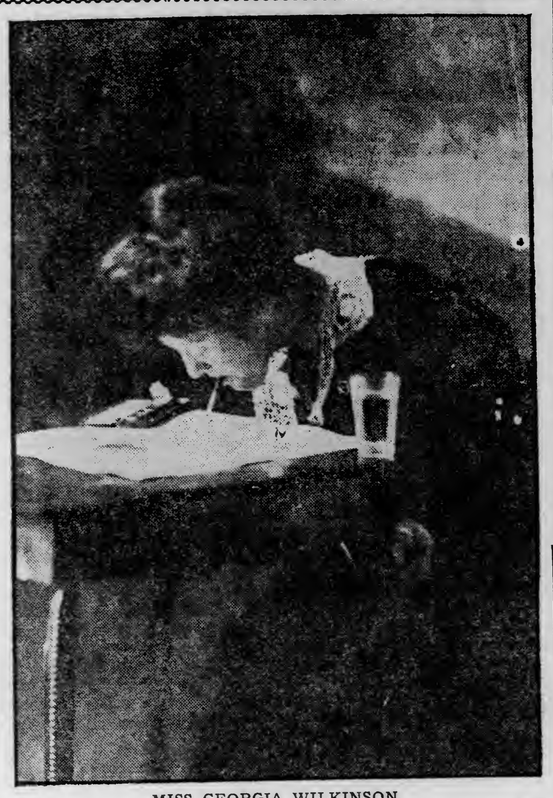

An event of interest next week in society circles will be the baseball game on Saturday afternoon between the F. A. Patrick company team and the Board of Trade team, which will be played for the benefit of the Children's home. Several parties are being made up for the event and nearly every one who owns a car will fill them with guests for the game.

The game itself promises to be of keen interest, for both of these teams have played a series of games this summer and neither has lost a game so the Saturday event will decide the awarding of the pennant.

College Day.

Plans for the college day celebration at the Boat club are being made and preparations for an interesting program have been talked over. The probable date of this event is Aug. 3.

Lack of Use of Her Hands Does Not Discourage Young Artist

MISS GEORGIA WILKINSON.

MACKAYE'S UNPUBLISHED PLAY WILL BE INTERPRETED

An interesting event of next week will be the intrepretation of Mackaye's as yet unpublished play, "Tomorrow," which will be given by Mme. Labadie, the talented interpreter of the drama, on Friday evening, June 2, at the Orpheum theater. She is using this play through special permission of the author and as it has been a much discussed play it will no doubt prove of interest to scientists and playgoers.

Following is a short comment of the play: "The much discussed subject of eugenics is the basic idea of Perry Mackaye's play 'Tomorrow.'

"Treating his theme from a new standpoint, and in a delightfully optimistic light, the author of 'Tomorrow' launches his argument in the strongest possible plea to woman to whom he directly appeals as the chief factor in the upbuilding of a better race.

"Mana Dale, the principal female character in the play, stands for the highest type of womanhood, and through this character the playwright makes his appeal to those instincts in woman which, once aroused, must surely awaken her to a sense of the wonderful responsibility she bears toward humanity."

MME. LABADIE.

"Gidding Corner"—Superior St. at First Ave. W.

The desire to sell the Best
—Plus the ability to secure it, are the fundamental principles that have promoted the success of this organization.

It is easy enough for an establishment to "desire" to sell the highest quality at a given price—and still easier to "claim" it—but in this great age of mercantile activity, when stores to right and left are aiming for the same goal—the store that can distinguish itself for the quality of its merchandise—the advancedness of its styles—and the fairness of its prices, has won a great race and accomplished a reputation that other stores envy.

This establishment has always maintained a High Standard of Quality—and every garment that bears the Gidding title shows evidence of having passed a rigid quality test.

Thus in the wearing of Gidding Apparel, one is assured of Absolute Quality—Foremost Style and Expert Workmanship—yet the price is no more than for clothes of common rank!

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

SUFFRAGE FROWNED ON.

General Federation of Women's Clubs Refuses to Indorse It.

San Francisco, July 6.—Equal suffrage was smothered as an issue in the General Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday, and cannot come up for general discussion again until the next biennial meeting in 1914. An unexpected motion, offered by Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson of Los Angeles, that the convention go on record in favor of suffrage was ruled out of order by the chair.

After a plea by Mrs. Pennybacker for more endowment funds, $675 was raised to place Mrs. William Tod Helmuth of New York on the honor roll, and the Indiana federation gave $500 to place Mrs. O. P. Kinsey, of Valparaiso, Ind., on the roll. On a further plea that histories of the federation be purchased, Mrs. Pennybacker opened bids for the books and $12,948 was soon subscribed and five hundred books sold.

The cities bidding for the convention of 1914 are: Washington, D. C., Chicago, Indianapolis, Nome, Alaska, Manila, P. I., and Jacksonville, Fla. No action will be taken on this matter at present. St. Joseph, Mo., New Orleans, Valley City, N. D., and New York are candidates for the 1913 convention.

The closing hours of the convention witnessed a final effort to obtain the federation's indorsement of suffrage. Miss Alice Henry of Illinois led the fight, but failure again was the result. A love feast followed the formal adjournment.

PARENTS DISCOVER YOUNG SON KILLED

Couple Living Near Negaunee Returning Home Find Corpse.

Negaunee, Mich., July 6. — (Special to The Herald.) — When Matt Justapaa and wife returned to their home at the Iron Cliffs location from shopping, in the city day before yesterday, they were horrified to find the dead body of their 9-year-old son, who had accidentally shot himself in the head with a 22-caliber rifle during their absence. It is thought that death was instantaneous.

None of the boy's companions nor the neighbors knew anything of the tragedy, until after the parents arrived at the house, nor had any of them heard the gun shot. It is assumed that the boy was taking the rifle with a view to going hunting, as he had done many times before, and it is thought that he was in the act of loading it when it went off.

PARK DEER KILLED.

Another Tame Animal at Marquette Is Slain.

Marquette, Mich., July 6.—The third deer from Presque Isle to be shot this season was found dead in Park cemetery this week by Fred Anthony, a boy who was driving home a herd of cows. It was a young buck, about 2 years old, and had been riddled with buckshot. It had evidently been shot Monday or Tuesday. Robert Humes, the superintendent, visited the cemetery yesterday and looked at the deer. The shooting of deer from Presque Isle is becoming a serious matter, and more deer may have been shot beside those that have been discovered. In addition to being illegal, the shooting of the deer at this time of year is nothing but slaughter.

CLOQUET'S SANE FOURTH PLEASES

For Third Time Sawmill City Has Tried Experiment With Success.

Cloquet, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the third time Cloquet has tried a "sane" Fourth and the sentiment is about unanimous that it was a great success. The program was carried out without a hitch and there were record breaking crowds at Pinehurst park and on the streets all day. In the parade the Alstad-Johnson Mercantile company's float won first prize, $15; the J. T. Richter bakery float second, and the Wilander store third. The fire department took first prize among the calithumpians with their patrol wagon and Master Randolph Sandstrom took second prize. He had a pickle keg fixed up to represent a sprinkling cart and drawn by two well trained dogs, the whole outfit being a take-off on the "second" sprinkling cart for the city, the purchase of which has hung fire for some time.

Two ball games were played between the city team and the Golden Rule of Superior, the latter winning in the morning, 6 to 1, and the home team scoring in the afternoon, 3 to 2. The Moralis Bros. gave a good vaudeville show, an attraction which has not heretofore been part of the day's program. A rival attraction was the greased pig, which was caught by Conrad Singpiel, a farmer, the reward being the pig itself.

Clarence Long won first prize in the first running race, and Charles Oswald first in the second running race, and Harry Blinn second. First prize in the trotting race was won by Mark Whitman and second by Joe Caza.

Duluth Boys Prize Winners.

Three Duluth boys, Odin Bolma, John Herron and Richard Hanson won the prizes in the motorcycle race, in the order named.

In the men's foot race, 100-yard dash, Dr. Carl Sandstrom won first, and Emil Buskala second.

Fifty dollars in nickles was distributed among the children as running prizes, this being an important feature every year to the little folks.

In the boys' logrolling match, Rollo Vibert came off first, Charles Rogers second and Fred McKenna third. The La Prairie brothers of the reservation gave an exhibition of logrolling, they being considered the best in that line in the United States The LaPraries had just returned from Minneapolis, where they had been giving exhibitions for the past two weeks. The new city band was on deck all day, dressed in their new uniforms and encomium was bestowed on them on every side.

ADDITION TO FIRST STREET

New Firm Takes Lease on Ground Floor of Elks' Building.

A few days ago, announcement was made of the sale of the piano and talking machine departments of French & Bassett to E. N. Smith and W. C. Allen of St. Paul.

Arrangements have now been completed by these men for the lease of the store room in the Elks building, 309 and 311 West First street for a term of years.

Work will be commenced at the earliest possible date in the alterations and improvements in the building, that are necessary for the accommodation of the new firm, and as soon as practicable, the business will be removed from the French & Bassett building to the new location.

The plans that are under consideration will undoubtedly result in giving Duluth a thoroughly high grade and up-to-date house dealing exclusively in musical instruments and the establishment of such a store in the Elks building will be a decided gain to West First street.

It is the intention of the new firm to devote particular attention to the pianola-piano and the victrola, the most important factors in the musical development of the day. With the opening of the new store a large line of these instruments will be carried in stock, together with a complete assortment of player rolls and Victor records.

Both members of the firm have been residents of Minnesota for years and Mr. Allen is a native son, his birthplace being Cloquet. His father Capt. Allen, who will doubtless be remembered by many older residents of Duluth, was for many years a member of the C. N. Nelson Lumber Company of Cloquet. Mr. Allen, since graduation from Bowdoin college, Maine, has been located in Boston and until recently, when he decided to return West and cast his lot with his native state, was connected with the American Woolen company.

Mr. Smith, while a native of Michigan, has resided in St. Paul about twenty-five years, coming there as a young man from Michigan university. For twenty years he has been associated with W. J. Dyer & Bros., of St. Paul, the largest musical instrument dealers in the Northwest, during which time he was for five years credit manager and for the last ten years manager of the piano department.

It will be the aim of Smith & Allen to merit the confidence of the people of Duluth and conduct their business on the high plane already established by French & Bassett in these lines.

CLOQUET ISSUES MILK LICENSES

Many Permits to Sell Beverage Have Been Taken Out.

Cloquet, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald,)—Mayor Kelly has appointed John Mattinen and J. A. Fesenbeck to succeed themselves on the library board for a term of three years, and has appointed Joseph Loisel to fill the unexpired term of J. F. O'Brien, who recently resigned.

Over thirty milk licenses have been taken out, the city council having granted eight new ones at their last meeting. The latter are to James Powell, August Gustafson, Andrew Pentala, Charles Vetanen, Ramsey Smith, John Nordquist, Oscar Johnson and August Bratloff.

A resolution has been passed by the council to once more have a volunteer fire department as an assistance to the regular firemen, and it was decided to allow the volunteer firemen the sum of $1 for the first hour's work and 25 cents an hour thereafter.

Bids for a second sprinkling wagon for Cloquet streets will be advertised for.

Considering Road Petition.

The town board of the town of Knife Falls is considering a petition for building of a road two miles long, beginning at the northeast corner of section 28, running south. The petition has been signed by most of the people in the community which it will benefit and a number of others whose farm homes are located along the road to the state experimental forestry station, as the new road will be a branch of the forestry road, tapping it at a point two miles from the city. The county board, of which John Peterson is chairman, will meet July 25 at the Sarchet corners and will make a trip over the proposed survey of the road and it is probable that the petition will be granted.

ADVERTISED AS HOMECROFT CITY

Magazine Has Two Pages Devoted to Article on Duluth.

Prominent notice is given Duluth as the new headquarters of the American Homecroft society and a city that is to be made a model in the application of the homecroft idea, in the July number of Maxwell's Talisman, published at New Orleans.

This magazine is devoted to the spread and practice of the homecroft doctrine. Two whole pages are occupied in this number in giving news of the progress of the society in its work at Duluth, most of the space being taken up with reprinted articles from the two Duluth dailies. As the magazine is a publication of nation-wide circulation, the announcement to cities in all parts of the country of the working out of the homecroft idea in Duluth will without doubt draw an uncommon amount of general interest to this city.

BALLOT IS ARRANGED

School Board Members Up for Re-Election Head List.

Study of Sex Hygiene in the Schools Is Urged.

The board of education last evening determined upon the style of ballot to be used at the election slated for July 20, arranged for the placing of the names thereon and transacted other business.

So far as the ballot for the July 20 election is concerned, the board determined upon a ballot of the size of last year and arranged the names according to custom, which gives the present incumbents, arranged alphabetically, the head of the ticket, the others, arranged alphabetically, following. Thus the ticket will be in this shape:

Dr. S. H. Boyer.
F. L. Brewer.
D. E. Stevens.
C. F Coleman
L. A. Larson.
Anton Ringsred.

Sex Hygiene.

The board was addressed by J H. Whitely, who urged the study of sex hygiene in the schools. He said that the necessity of doing something toward acquainting the youths in the schools with the awfulness of consequences for indiscretions has been brought sharply to his attention recently by the reports of the humane officer of Duluth and of talks with school authorities in Michigan, where an effort is being made to properly instruct the young in sex hygiene. Mr. Whitely was told that this is the pet measure of Dr. Boyer, a member of the board, and the board is inclined to endeavor to devise a plan whereby the subject may be taught with proper diplomacy and impressiveness. It seemed to be the general sentiment of the board, shown by the informal discussion which followed Mr. Whitely's talk, that the study should be introduced in some way, but that it would be better not to introduce it at all than to present it improperly.

* * *

The board resolved to divide one of the large rooms of the Monroe school by a lifting door, so that two separate class rooms may be available, leaving at the same time, a general assembly room when needed. The cost will be $656.

* * *

At the request of the secretary of the Oneota Improvement association, the polling booth for the school election in that part of the city was ordered moved from the Oneota school to the Merritt school.

Resignations were received from the following teachers: Anna C. Carlson, Jessie P. Rankin, F. B. V. Churchill, Clara L. Schaner, Harriet Munson, D. K. Hutchcraft, Ida M. Schief and Margaret E Godfrey.

Miss Berenice Foster of Duluth was appointed teacher of English in the industrial high school and Ward Brown was chosen as laboratory assistant in the Central high school.

IDEAL WEATHER FOR EXCURSIONS

The Herald's Cheap Outings Should Be Popular Next Week.

Never at any previous time this summer were the weather conditions more auspicious for The Herald lake and river trips, which are taken on the first three days of each week. The people have not been slow to respond to the splendid opportunities offered to obtain a delightful summer outing at small expense on any one of these three weekly excursions.

On Monday morning as usual the big steamer Columbia will leave the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west at 9 o'clock for a trip up the St. Louis river to Fond du Lac. Here at Chamber's Grove one may find splendid opportunities for fishing, swimming and boating. Families find ready accommodation here for picnics. They may either bring their lunch baskets or obtain lunches at the grove. The steamer on the return trip arrives at the Fifth avenue dock at 6 p. m.

On Tuesday afternoon the magnificent steamer America will make its regular trip down the lake to Two Harbors. The boat will leave Booth's dock at 4 p. m. Passengers may either bring their own lunch baskets or get supper at Two Harbors. On the return, which is often made by moonlight, the boat arrives at Booth's dock at 9 p. m. The round trip covers sixty miles.

The steamer Ploybow will start Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock on its weekly trip along the south shore of Lake Superior to Port Wing. This is an all-day outing, the steamer stopping at Port Wing for three hours. Lunches may be purchased on the boat, but those who prefer to bring their own lunch baskets may do so. The steamer is taken at the Fifth avenue dock, to which it returns at 7:30 in the evening. The total distance covered in the round trip is eighty miles.

The two trips on the lake are the only week-day lake excursions that are taken from Duluth. Tickets for all the excursions are obtained at The Herald office. The Fond du Lac round trip costs 25 cents, the Two Harbors trip 50 cents and the Port Wing trip $1.

BUBONIC PLAGUE IS SUSPECTED AT HAVANA.

Washington, July 6.—Reports that bubonic plague had appeared in Havana are causing serious concern. Juan Guiteras, head of the Cuban department of health, yesterday cabled Surgeon General Blue of the public health and marine hospital service that it had not been determined whether the suspected cases were bubonic plague. The United States will adopt protective measures if the disease turns out to be the plague.

The plague situation in Porto Rico is improving, no new cases having been reported for four days.

NEW HOUSING ORDINANCE

Proposed Measure Is Causing Widespread Discussion in Duluth.

Attacked in Some Quarters and Warmly Defended in Others.

Representatives of the Duluth Real Estate exchange protested at a meeting a few days ago that the requirements of the proposed housing ordinance are too drastic; that were it adopted by the city a great and unnecessary waste of property would be the result; and that it would prove a hardship on the average home builder. A committee was appointed to digest the proposed ordinance and report to the exchange at its next meeting, which will be held soon.

One assertion made at the meeting regarding the demands of the proposed ordinance does not seem to be borne out by the phraseology of the document, it is pointed out by those who favor it. That is regarding the percentage of property to be occupied in the erection of tenements or dwelling houses hereafter, or th remodeling of old ones. It was asserted at the meeting that a sweeping demand is couched in the ordinance prohibiting the use of more than 50 per cent of a lot in such construction. The section of the proposed ordinance covering this subject provides as to the percentage to be used, the following:

Pencentage of Lots Used.

"In the case of corner lots not more than 75 per centum; in the case of corner lots with streets on three sides, not more than 80 per centum; in the case of interior lots, not more than 50 per centum; the measurements shall be taken on the lot levels. Outside stairs, fire escapes, porches and platforms shall b considered a part of the lot occupied. No measurement of lot area shall include any portion of any street or alley, and unoccupied space shall not be counted to the credit of more than one lot."

So that the "sweeping restriction of 50 per cent" is strongly modified.

The ordinance is designed, its framers say, to insure to Duluth people, proper sanitation, air spaces and a standardization of beauty and safety, and to prevent crowding such as hase been the curse of older cities. These men believe that while the city of Duluth is still in its infancy, so to speak, and before its building will have spread too greatly, is the time to set a standard such as this ordinance aims at. Every particular of tenement or dwelling location and construction is gone into deeply and in detail.

Height of Buildigs.

The ordinance prescribes that no tenement house or dwelling house shall exceed in height the width of the widest street upon which it stands unless the house be set back from the street a distance equal to the excess of the house over the width of the street. It also makes compulsory to each building of the kind a yard extending across the entire width of the lot and open at every point from the ground up. In the case of tenement houses the yard shall never be less than eighteen feet deep, excepting on corner lots, where the depth must never be less than fifteen feet. For dwelling houses the yard must never be less than ten feet deep and for houses that are more than three stroies high the yard shall be increased two feet in depth for each additional story.

Demads Wide Courts.

The case of courts in these houses is dealt with in detail and abundant air space and lighting is sought. The minimum size of a court for a tenement house two stories high is ten feet wide and two feet shall be added to the width for each additional story. For a dwelling house the court shall be at least five feet wide in the case of two stories and an increase of one foot for each additional story must be made. The length of an inner court must not be less than twice its width and must be open and unobstructed at the top and be provided with a horizontal air intake at the bottom communicating with the street or yard.

In the case of a building being erected or enlarged upon the same lot with a tenement or dwelling house of more than one story in height, there must be an open, unoccupied space of at least twenty feet in case either is a tenement house, in where either or both of them are tenement houses the space shall be twenty-four feet from wall to wall, and in both instances increasing two feet for every story over two. No building shall be erected without having at least one side fronting unobstructed on a street, except where a building is erected upon a general court fronting on a street and the court being no less than thirty feet wide and no less in depth than twice its width.

The requirements of room space are interesting. In the case of tenements there shall be in each apartment of the least one room of not less than 150 feet of floor area. and each room, except toilets and bathrooms shall contain at least 100 feet of floor area. Each room shall be not less than eight and one-half feet high. The demand as to floor area does not include a room used as a kitchen in an apartment containing at least three other rooms of the minimum sizes mentioned.

As to Windows.

Then there is the provision as to windows and the space they must be given. Every room, including the alcoves, shall have at least one window not less than twelve square feet in area between the pulley stiles, opening directly on the street, yard or court, the top of the window to be at least seven feet, six inches from the floor; and the total window area of each room to be at least one-eighth of the floor area of the room. In toilet and bathrooms the minimum size of the windows will be six feet in area between the pulley stiles.

It is also provided that in every tenement house in each apartment access to every living room and bedroom and to at least one toilet shall be had without passing through any bedroom. Every public hallway shall have at least one window opening directly upon a street, yard or court, and in every tenement house of three or more stories in height there shall be in the roof directly over the stair-well a ventilating skylight having a ventilating area of forty square inches or more.

In basements and cellars no rooms can be arranged for living purposes other than for cooking or laundry work. Also in buildings where the first floor is to be occupied as a dwelling place, the floor shall be at least two feet above the ground level and the space beneath must be enclosed so as to prevent accumulation of rubbish, but must be provided with ample ventilation and adequate drainage.

Miscellaneous Requirements.

It is also provided that tenement houses of more than three stories in height shall be absolutely fireproof in construction, and that each one of more than two stories shall have in the roof a bulkhead or scuttle, covered with metal on the outside, fastened only with bolts or hooks, easily operated, and shall have a stairs or stationary ladder leading to it, easily accessible to all tenants of the building.

So far as stairs in tenements are concerned, winding stairs will be barred, and in non-fireproof buildings the stairs must be of fireproof construction and shall be shut off from all non-fireproof parts of the building by self-closing fireproof or hardwood doors. No closets will be permitted under stairways but spaces must be kept open and clear from encumbrances. Cellar entrances are required in all buildings, and where dwelling houses are built in the form of double houses or terraces or in attached or semi-detached rows, the houses shall be separated by fireproof walls without openings in them. Wooden tenements houses exceeding two stories in heighth are forbidden.

In all, the proposed ordinance proposes radical changes from the customary laws governing the erection of tenements and dwellings and it is being widely discussed by owners, prospective builders and tenants, each trying to find out what effect it will have on them respectively.

A Dainty Toilet Article.

Every lady who desires to keep up her attractive appearance, while at theater, attending receptions, when shopping, while traveling, and on all occasions, should carry in her purse a booklet of Gouraud's Oriental Beauty Leaves. This is a dainty little booklet of exquisitely perfumed powdered leaves, which are easily removed and applied to the skin. It is invaluable when the face becomes moist and flushed, and is far superior to a powder puff, as it does not spill and soil the clothes. It removes dirt, soot and grease from the face, imparting a cool, delicate bloom to the complexion. Put up in white and pink and sent anywhere on receipt of 10 cents in stamps or coin. F. T. Hopkins, 37 Great Jones street, New York.

WEST END WHITE WAY ASSURANCES

Business Interests Agreeing to Support Plan to Improve Street.

All the plans for a white way for the West end have been completed and now awaiting the sanction of the property owners on the thoroughfare. The committee in charge of the campaign will announce the result of the work within a few days, through its chairman, A. B. Anderson, who started the movement in this end of the city.

According to Mr. Anderson's plans, the white way will extend from Eighteenth to Twenty-second avenues west. There will be five lights in a block, a distance of ninety-four feet between lights. Each light will have five globes, the top one of which will be of 100 watts, while the other four will each be of sixty watts.

Mr. Anderson said yesterday afternoon that every property owner along the proposed white way has agreed to pay his share of the expense and the petition is now being circulated by the members of the committee. It is expected to have the signatures of every property owner by the middle of this month. It is probable, said Mr. Anderson, that the lights will be installed by Sept. 1.

PAVING WILL BEGIN MONDAY.

Contractor Preston Ready to Commence on Twenty-First Avenue.

Workmen will begin paving Twenty-first avenue west on Monday morning, according to an announcement made this week by James W. Preston, who was awarded the contract for the work. The street will be paved with sandstone from the railroad tracks to Third street along the new street car cut-off on the avenue. The cost of the improvement will be in the neighborhood of $28,000 and is the first one ordered for the West end under the new paving amendment adopted at the special election last winter.

NO MORE TAME FOURTHS.

West End Business Men Regret Lack of Celebration.

"It is certainly a shame that the West end did not have a celebration on the Fourth of July," said a Superior street business man yesterday afternoon, in speaking of the dull holiday spent by the residents and children in this end of the city. "Every other part of the city had a celebration of some sort, while the local business men failed to provide for any form of amusement whatever.

"West Duluth had a moving picture show during the afternoon and evening, while at night the residents were treated to a costly fireworks display. This is also true of the East end, Lakeside, Park Point, Proctor, New Duluth and the Duluth Heights. Each one of these sections of the city celebrated the day in one way or another, while the West end did not have a single patriotic feature. This was not at all fair to the children, who should be given some form of entertainment this one day of the year."

This is the sentiment of nearly all the business men here. Not a new feature was prepared for the day, while the old form of Fourth of July celebration was dropped altogether.

"This will never happen again," said one enterprising citizen yesterday afternoon. "A year hence the children will certainly be given the time of their lives. The law has deprived them of the right to celebrate with dangerous explosives, so it is now up to their elders to help them celebrate in some other way. I hope the local business men will remember this and next Fourth of July will assist in preparing a grand celebration at Lincoln park, with a display of fireworks in the evening, planned to outclass anything of its kind ever held in this city."

NOVEL PARADE IS PROMISED

RINGLING BROTHERS' FAMOUS 20-CAMEL TEAM.

Something entirely new in the way of circus parades will be seen in Duluth on Tuesday, July 16, with Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows. The peoples of a hundred nations and tribes will be observed. A large menagerie will be displayed in open dens, fifty corps of musicians from savage tom-tom players to modern brass bands, will furnish the music and teams of camels, llamas, elephants and zebras will be driven like horses. An endless panorama of world wonders will be unfolded before the eyes.

In originating and building this year's street spectacle, the Ringling Brothers have far surpassed all former records. Hundreds of Italian and French artists and property builders worked last winter in the foreign shops of the show at Stoke-on-Trent, England, to turn out this parade. Only the best of materials were used. The wagons, dens, chariots, and floats are hard-carved. The costumes were designed in France. The flags, banners, scarfs and standards are from the looms of Japan.

The parade is three miles long. It displays 650 handsome horses and two-thirds of the elephants in America. There are 1,280 men, women and children in the line. Among them are Oriental rajahs, ameers, pashas, caliphs, sheiks, barbarian chiefs and savage despots. The grandeur of empires and kingdoms is reflected by retinues in regal floats, sumptuous coaches of state, gorgeous chariots, and palanquins and richly decorated howdahs.

In the children's section there are pumpkin carriages, floating bubbles of silken netting and aerial clouds, peopled with the characters of fairyland. All the myths of Mother Goose-land are to be seen. There are golden barges, ships of war and aeroplanes. The fete-day scenes of quaint countries are reproduced.

The performance in the main tent is in keeping with the street spectacle. The acts take place in three rings, on two stages, on the race-course and in the dome of the tent. The talent of the world is there assembled. There are 375 artists. Of these 300 were selected last winter by the foreign agents of the show from the amphitheaters of Asia, England and the European continent. There are fifty clowns among them. They are as funny a band of fellows as ever cracked a merry jest.

The two performances to be given in Duluth will be exactly the same as those presented in the Coliseum at Chicago and will open with the newly added $500,000 spectacle of "Joan of Arc," with 1,200 people, 600 horses, a ballet of 300 dancing girls and a trainload of special scenery and properties. The spectacle tells a wonderful story that every man, woman and child should hear—a true story from French history with a strong appeal to the heart.

FIRE ENGINE WOULD QUICKLY DRAIN POOL.

That the city authorities are neglecting their duty in allowing the stagnant pool on the lower side of Second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues west, to exist, is the claim of the residents and property owners in this end of the city. Four cases of typhoid fever are said to have been caused by this pool.

One of the property owners near the pool said yesterday afternoon that although the lot belongs to a private individual it is up to the city to look after the health of a community. He suggested that the fire department send a steamer to pump out the water and thus do away with the stench for the present. In all probability he predicted, there will not be any more heavy rains, and a few minutes' work on the part of the firemen may do much toward preserving the health of the residents in this part of the city.

Bundle Shower.

Miss Eva Gagnon, who will be married to Adolph C. Lundberg of this city on July 15, was pleasantly surprised at a bundle shower given in her honor at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gerald Black, 1903 West Superior street. The rooms were prettily decorated in red, white and blue streamers, buntings and flags. Miss Gagnon was the recipient of many beautiful gifts from her friends. The evening was spent in music and games, after which refreshments were served to the following guests:

Mesdames Joseph Pilon, Gerald Black, Albert Olsen, Arthur Hudson, S. Brecthal, E. Charrier, Arthur Swenson; Misses Eva Gagnon, Lulu McKinnon, Linda Olsen, Mollie Peterson, Ida Wamvick, Malvina Pilon, Olive McKinno nand Gertrude Brecthal.

Missionary Society.

The Women's Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, will hold a business meeting in the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon. Following the meeting a missionary tea will be served, the hostesses for which are the Mesdames R. Gillon, J. G. Ross, A. C. Farrar, Donald Gordon and R. Hayes.

Club Takes a Hand.

The West End Commercial club at its regular meeting last evening instructed Olderman Bernard to introduce a resolution into the city council Monday evening, requiring the board of public works to do away with the stagnant pool on the lower side of Second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues west. The action of the club followed a discussion on the subject lasting the entire evening. Dr. A. J. Braden made a report for the committee, which was appointed last week to investigate the pool and the surrounding conditions.

Returns From Florida.

John Nord of 2224 West Second street, who has been in charge of some construction work at Jacksonville, Fla., has returned home for a short stay during the summer months. Mr. Nord was in Florida the entire winter, during which time he erected a number of stores, dwelling houses and cottages for the new settlers in that part of the country. Mrs. Nord, who spent several weeks with her husband at Jacksonville, returned to Duluth about three weeks ago.

At Second Presbyterian.

Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Crisis of a Soul," and in the evening on "he Victor's Reward," If the weather permits, Mr. McGaughey will conduct an open-air meeting at 7 o'clock under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society and the Servo Adult Bible class of the church.

SPOONERS ARE BARRED

Watchman to Be Appointed Special Officer to Arrest Lovers.

School Porches Must Not Be Used as Trysting Places.

One thing which will be a jar to cooing lovers and others who seek sweet seclusion in the porches of the high school building, was the action taken last night by the board of education to have the night watchman appointed by the mayor as a special police officer with power to arrest those who refuse to leave the dark corners of the high school steps.

The watchman is William Walling and he told Director D. E. Stevens that every night many lovers congregate in the deep, dark porches of the high school building and remain there for hours. Many of these, he says, return night after night, and seemed to have become possessed with the idea that they have the right of eminent domain over the corners they are wont to appropriate to their own use. They not only resent intrusion by other couples on dalliance bent, but rise up in wrath and bid the watchman to skiddoo. In short, says the watchman, these trespassers refuse to obey him when he tells them to "beat it" and as he has no police power he has to pass them up or create a disturbance by calling police headquarters.

Watchman May Arrest.

To relieve this situation and spare the watchman the embarrassment of repeatedly being startled by snappy noises from dark corners, Director Stevens asked that the mayor be requested to appoint Watchman William Walling as a special police officer. The board took the necessary action to refer this matter to Mr. Stevens, with power to act. Hereafter some arrests of modern Romeos and Juliets are likely to be made.

BITULITHIC THEIR CHOICE

East Fourth Street Owners Meet and Select Pavement.

The majority of the property owners who appeared at the hearing conducted by the board of public works at the council chambers of the city hall yesterday afternoon decided for a bitulithic paving, with brick between the tracks, for East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues. The width of the street will remain at 40 feet, as previously decided.

Warren Brothers' bid of approximately $51,000 is the lowest on this specification.

The board will probably award the contract without delay and send it to the council Monday night for approval After a resolution had been passed that creosote blocks be not considered the question resolved itself to a cholce of bitulithic and asphalt pavements. Of a total of 2,806 feet represented out of 7,300 feet frontage, the owners of 2,074 feet favored bitulithic pavement with brick between the tracks and a combined concrete curb and gutter, while 732 feet desired asphalt.

WE CURE MEN

NO OTHER PATIENTS ACCEPTED BUT MEN

It takes a builder three or four years to learn his trade thoroughly. How long would it take him to learn all trades?

The doctor who spends four years at a Medical College is incapable of treating with success all the countless diseases of men, women and children. He knows a little of everything, but nothing thoroughly. We cure diseases and weaknesses peculiar to men. This is our sole field. The true specialist never attempts to do more than he can do WELL. His persistent study, diligent research, and scientific investigations are all on the line of a few diseases. A SINGLE CLASS OF THEM, on which all his efforts are concentrated, and to which his entire practice is strictly limited. Hence, he becomes supreme in his chosen field.

We do not pretend to know all about diseases; in fact, our knowledge is very limited and extends to only this one class—DISEASES OF MEN. If you are afflicted with any disease that is peculiar to men, STOMACH TROUBLE, SKIN DISEASE, BLOOD POISON, NERVOUS DEBILITY, RHEUMATISM OR ANY OTHER DISEASE OF A CHRONIC OR NEWLY CONTRACTED NATURE, we invite you to consult us and promise you a cure. Twenty-six years of hard and constant effort here have given us the means, methods and remedies to effect PERMANENT CURES. We assist every afflicted man to clear up and out of his body all poisons; we free him from his bad habits, we cure his maladies and return him to perfect health.

We publish no names though we have the testimony of hundreds of men, many of whom had been given up as hopeless. Our Principles are HONESTY AND INTEGRITY. We have no schemes to offer you, no "Trial treatments," no cheap bargain-cures, but we DO offer you the advantage of our strict professional honesty, our superior ability and our successful experience.

BANDIT IS SHOT DEAD BY POSSE

Had Wounded Iowa Bank Cashier and Escaped With Money.

Mount Pleasant, Iowa, July 6.—A lone bandit, who late yesterday afternoon entered the Rome Savings bank at the town of Rome, shot Cashier F. W. Hileman and escaped with several hundred dollars in cash, was last night shot and killed by a member of the posse which had been scouring the country in automobiles for several hours in search of the robber. Hileman is not seriously wounded.

The bandit was identified as Charles Clark, 20 years old, who had been living here with relatives for several months. He was overtaken by the posse several miles south of here. He was riding a horse, and on seeing the posse approaching, turned in his saddle and fired. A running fight ensued.

The bandit was well supplied with ammunition and for some time succeeded in keeping far enough ahead of the automobiles to avoid being struck with the volley of bullets, and at the same time return the fire. He pumped the bullets from his automatic revolver, several times reloading it as he raced down the country road.

James O'Loughlin, a merchant of Rome, and one of the leaders of the posse, received a bullet in the back, but his injuries are not serious.

When only a short distance ahead of the automobiles, the bandit threw both hands to his breast and tumbled from his horse. He was shot through the heart.

The stolen money was recovered and the body taken to Mount Pleasant, where identification was made.

there are those who do nothing' but talk pessimistically and declare such reported deals and improvements are all buncombe.

"There actually are people in Duluth," observed Mr. Stephenson, "who declare that the Steel corporation is not building a steel plant here, when all they have to do is to go out there and take a look at it. So it is not surprising to hear them scoff at 'proposed' improvements.

"Such people remind me of the farmer who, having heard of a creature called a giraffe, went to a circus to see one. He looked it over carefully, viewed it from every side and then said: 'Ah, shucks, there ain't no sich animal.'

Dock Sites Sold.

"Within the past eight months dock property has been sold at West Duluth, the total consideration amounting to approximately $455,000. This has actually been disposed of—and all of it, with the exception of one triangular piece, to coal companies which will improve their purchases this year. I have sold some of this and other dealers of the city have sold the rest, so I know that the sales are bona fide."

The sales which Mr. Stephenson refers to as having been made within the last eight months, are described below and the accompanying diagram illustrates their location.

Most Recent Sale.

The most recent purchase—less than a month ago—was made by H. J. Lawrence of Pittsburg, who represented, in the matter, a syndicate of Pittsburg interests, which will construct a coal dock and install the necessary equipment on the site. This property comprises thirty-two acres and cost $100,000. Its dimensions are: A bay frontage of 500 feet and a depth of 2,000 feet. The property, as shown in the diagram, lies south of the Canadian Northern Railroad company's slip, the slip being 150 feet wide. This will be improved at once.

Another transfer is that—a short time ago—to the Berwind Fuel company. Its property, which is 3,000 feet deep with a bay frontage of 600 feet, lies south of the Alger, Smith & Co.'s mill property and has an ideal location. A coal dock will immediately be constructed.

The Island Creek Sales company is about to construct a coal dock on the property it recently purchased not far from that of the Berwind Fuel company. This property is 4,000 feet deep with a frontage of 550 feet and has a slip 200 feet wide for the coal-carrying boats.

The Zenith Dredge company bought, a short time ago, a triangular shaped piece of dock property along the east line of the Carnegie Fuel company's property, which is also a recent purchase. The dredge company's property has a bay frontage of 1,200 feet and extends back 1,600 feet to an apex. Just what it is to be used for is not yet announced, but it will be improved this summer.

The Carnegie Purchase.

The piece purchased last September by the Carnegie Fuel company is 3,000 feet deep with a bay frontage of 500 feet, split by a 200-foot slip which runs directly down the middle almost the full length of the property. This property is being improved by the building of docks, etc., but one-third of it will remain unimproved for the present.

In addition to the improvement to be made upon these recent purchases, the M. A. Hanna Coal company will improve, either this fall or next spring, the property which it purchased two years ago, by building a huge dock for additional coal supply for the Northwest. This property lies south of that recently purchased by H. J. Lawrence of Pittsburg, and just north of the Merrill & Ring sawmill property.

As has bees mentioned, the total proposed improvement of this dock property will amount to a huge sum. Mr Stephenson says the improvement will total more than $4,000,000—all to be spent here within the next twelve months at the longest.

The bay front in general is showing great activity, and Mr. Stephenson asd others say that to be appreciated it must be seen.

"This week I spent two days at Gary alone," said Mr. Stephenson. "I had no idea of the magnitude of the improvement under way there. I expected to see all there was in a part of a day's inspection, but found, after spending a long time going around, that I was not half through, so I went back next day and saw the rest. And yet some people doubt the existence of work there. The whole bay front is active.

"People of the city do not realize what is going on. As an example of this ignorance, in West Duluth, in close proximity to the awakening activities of the bay front, property is selling for much less than it was twenty years ago, when prospects were nothing as compared to today. The dock propetrty is going for as high $3,000 an acre where not long ago it was away down—and it will go higher soon.

"I have two more deals for dock property in that vicinity in prospect. One is for a site for a small coal dock and the other is for an elevator location. I have reason to believe that both will go through in a very short time."

STATE COMMISSION MISUNDERSTOOD THE GRAIN CASE DECISION

Lakes that has ever been won. It places Duluth in a position to compete with Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and all other grain shipping points. While the decision in question affects only grain, it is likely, it is firmly believed, that the commission will apply similar rulings to other commodities, thus putting Duluth more firmly on the map in a commercial way. An effort to have other commodities determined upon will immediately be made.

The Chicago people hardly seem to realize that the day of unfair rates in their favor is passing and that Duluth, a dangerous rival even with unfairness of rates against her, is on a parity with the Windy City at last.

Following the telephone conversation of yesterday the following telegram and letter were sent to the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission by the traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club, and it is expected that they will have a decidedly salutary effect. The telegram reads as follows:

Minnesota Gateway at Last.

"Referring to press reports that the Minnesota commission is studying the effect of the decision of the interstate commerce commission, No. 1920, in what is known as the grain rates case, we desire to impress upon the Minnesota commission our views of the importance of that decision particularly to Minnesota and the benefits that it extends to this state. It is the first application by the interstate commerce commission of the principle that equal distances from Duluth should bear equal rates with equal distances from Chicago. For the first time in years, a Minnesota gateway is put on equal terms of competition with the older markets of Chicago and Milwaukee. The dominance in rate-making of the older Chicago lines has been the cause of serious discrimination against Minnesota ports and markets and for the first time an order has been officially issued limiting the rate-making control of these antagonistic Chicago lines.

"The effect of this order is an immediate reduction in grain rates from all of Southern and Southwestern Minnesota, South Dakota and Northern Iowa to Duluth. There is an immediate and direct saving to the farmers of this section, which will be reflected immediately in the crop movement this fall. Duluth has fought for two years for this rate-making principle, which allows Minnesota routes and Minnesota markets and Minnesota ports to control a business heretofore appropriated by Chicago and Milwaukee. We want the earnest and whole-hearted support of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission in influencing the railroads to carry out the order of this decision in full, both in spirit and in letter.

Saving to Farmers.

"It is true that because of their interstate character, Duluth and Superior rates are not under the direct control of the Minnesota commission but the influence of the Minnesota commission would be a great help in immediately applying to the full the new rates order by the interstate commerce commission, and resulting in an immediate and enormous saving to the farmers of our state. Duluth is determined to see that every advantage conferred on it by this decision and every correction of long standing freight abuses against that port, afforded by this decision, are fully carried out. It believes that every benefit conferred on Duluth by this decision is reflected immediately to the farmers of Minnesota, that the principles laid down in this decision, applied in other lnes of traffic as they will be, mean further enormous savings to the rural sections of our state. We think, therefore, ths city is entieled to ask the whole-hearted support of your honorable commission in giving to Duluth all its natural advantages of location which for the first time are now officially recognized by the interstate commerce commission, and by their order must be recognized by the railroads."

Following is the letter, which backed up the statements in the telegram, and which was doubtless received by the state commission this morning:

Letter in Detail.

"Referring to the telephone conversation today between our Mr. Barnes and your Mr. Flynn, we inclose you herewith a copy of the telegram we are sending you regarding opinion No. 1920 of the interstate commerce comsion. As we expressed in this telegram, we believe the effect of this decision is as yet little comprehended by the Northwest and while it confers most directly its benefits on Duluth, it means also an enormous saving to the rural communities particularly of this state. As we read the decision, it for the first time makes Mnesota rates on a Minnesota basis free of influence by the original Chicago lines that have dominated this section for thirty years. We particularly call your attention to the fact that the orders of the commission in this case require equal rates for the same distances from Duluth as from Chicago and that the effect of this must be a reduction of transportation charges between the head of Lake Superior and all communities as far south as Northern Iowa.

"As you realize, in the practical operation in the marketing of farm products, such as grain, every cent of cost in reaching an ultimate market saved in transportation charges is immediately reflected to the grower and as all of the state of Minnesota is nearer to Duluth than to Chicago, this decision means an enormous saving to the growers of this state. If you will refer to page 121 of the decision, the last paragraph, the conclusions thereon show what we mean. If you will apply that paragraph to a distance table of the Northwest, you will see that, as between Duluth and Chicago, with practically no exception, Duluth rates must be radically lower or under the leeway of that conclusion Duluth rates must be partially lowered and Chicago rates partially advanced.

Decision Relieves Disadvantage.

"It is quite true that this decision removes a considerable disadvantage under which Duluth has suffered, as compared with Minneapolis, for many years. The relative rate basis has been complained of by Duluth for a long time and was the occasion largely of the complaint before the interstate commerce commission, resulting in this decision. That Minneapolis should complain at having removed from her those advantages which we have always aintained were unfair, is to be expected; but it is quite conceivable that our Minnesota commission should take a broad view of the interests of this state as a whole, and not complain of the disturbance of the parity of rates between primary markets, if that disturbance leads to a very decided saving to the whole state, as in this case it certainly does. This decision applied gives to every community, as to every individual, the advantages of its or his location and of the proximity to their ultimate market.

"We cannot too strongly urge our commission to see that in every respect the spirit of this decision is carried out by the railroads concerned, knowing that its direct benefits must be distributed over the entire state. As a concrete instance of this saving, apply the order of the commission on the Great Northern line southwest from Wilmar to Yankton. Without disturbing at all the cost of transportation from this section to the Minneapolis market, it orders an immediate reduction of as much as 1½ cents per 100 pounds. In reaching the Duluth market and in all of Southern Minnesota, under the further order of the commission, there is an immediate reduction of 1 cent per hundred pounds in reaching the Duluth market, while still enabling the grower to reach the Minneapolis market on the same terms as before. In fact, under the orders of the commission for comparative rates between Duluth and Chicago, the reduction to Duluth, when fully applied, may be found to be even more than this 1 cent per hundred.

Saving to Growers.

"It is possible that this rate re-adjustment may injure the business of those commission firms located at Minneapolis, but it cannot help but be of immediate benefit and saving to the growers in Southern Minnesota. The interstate commerce commission in this case made a very exhaustive inquiry. It held hearings at Duluth and at Milwaukee which were attended by representatives of the railroad and warehouse commission of North Dakota. Every argument that the railroads could present in favor of the old basis in making rates was presented to that commission and carefully considered. This decision by them was the result of long consideration and careful investigation and the people of this entire country know that the fairness and justice of the interstate commerce commission cannot be questioned. For years the railroads made preferential rates and disguised them under the plea of "market competition" which the interstate commerce commission has already characterized as a euphemism for railroad policy. By this decision, the interstate commerce commission stripped from the railroads this shield for preference and discrimination, and applied a logical rate-making basis to our Northwest. This basis is so simple and clear that every farmer and shipper may himself know just what his rates should be as to railroad rates.

"We should think our own state commission would be glad to have the indorsement of the interstate commerce commission for the rate basis which can be so quickly and logically applied.

gestion or inuendo, when they should complete the plant or start the smelting and manufacturing of ore. Yet they had in mind the public magnanimity, the people's loyalty and devotion, the unstinted patriotism to the cause of the large corporations and the railroads. They had vividly drawn the picture of the battles they had fought and won against unjust methods of taxation. They had not forgotten the thousand friendships they had shown the railroads and the mines. Yet they paused in wonderment at the apparent lack of appreciation for all this splendid patriotism and for the wonderful lack of reciprocity to the people.

Corporation Side.

This is the people's side of the present situation. A side which has within it an element of justice. Let us now for a passing moment glance at the corporation side of the undercurrent controversy and see if there is not a real justification for the prolonged construction of the steel plant. When the appropriation was made some five years ago for the plant's construction there was much to be done in the way of preliminary work before the actual construction work could be started. When all preliminaries were arranged and everything in readiness for active construction work, it is very generally known that the smelting and manufacturing plants of the East were running upon about half time. Not only is this true of the Steel company's plants but also of the independents. Less than 60 per cent of the capacity of any of the steel plants in the country was operated during the past three years. The new plant at Gary, Ind., was not producing more than 50 per cent of its capacity up to October of last year. The government suits against large corporations doubtless had their effect and also put a crimp into the iron business of the country. In November of last year the writer visited Gary, Ind., and found from many reliable sources that the iron and steel city was just recovering from a rather depressed business situation, and that for the first time in four years the business men of that city could see the business sunshine peeping from behind the clouds and that the plant was then running about 70 per cent of its capacity. Since this time the Gary plant has been running at full blast. These are some of the real facts, if not them all, which caused the new steel plant here to be constructed less rapidly than it doubtless would have been under favorable conditions.

The Present Situation.

The latter is trying to place before the people from the several angles the past and present situation, and present justifications from the both sides so that better understandings from this date will follow and our people here be imubed with a greater confidence as to future activities. The plant as I saw it one day last week renewed our faith in Duluth's future. It made me feel that the Greater Duluth club was doubly justified in adopting the slogan of 100,000 people for Duluth in January, 1914. Never on any similiar trip did I see such activity as I saw at the new steel plant. Never before were there as many notable changes in a like period of four months. Never before did the plant and its men employed give evidence of a similar activity. There were men to be seen everywhere working with a zeal and earnestness characteristic of rush orders as I saw on this occasion. In the large machine shop, you had to step outside its activities in order to think, because of the noises inside. There were men in every direction operating many kinds of machinery and engaged in the structural work of the plant. Drills, riveting machines, hammers, and gas furnaces were being operated at many points of the huge building. The mammoth twenty-five ton cranes were chasing each other from end to end of the great large building and carrying with them suspended in space their heavy burdens of structural steel. The foundry building adjacent to the machine shop and employing from 60 to 100 men was a hot spot, for the moulders' lot is not one of balmy breezes. Since my former trip in March I noticed the practical completion of seven buildings, all of which at that time were under construction. These seven buildings now lack but the cement floors and a few panes of leaded glass for their completion. Adjoining these completed buildingsc are several others under way with much of the structudal steel laid in place and bolted together, some being ready for the steel roofs. The large smoke stacks started about a year ago are now completed and ready for the gaseous matter from the operations of the plant. The surface work is also being pushed with great rapidity and the plant in many instances is assuming a somewhat finished appearance. It is true, of course, that there is much yet to be done before the productive stage is reached, but who cares about that when such a notable activity is seen upon every side. We were reliably informed that the Duluth plant is now a real necessity and could be operated at full capacity if completed. The belt lines which will run from the Wisconsin and Minnesota sides will soon be started and the work of construction will be shortly under way. These lines will be completed and connected up with the ore-carrying roads before the plant is complete.

Doubter's Day Passed.

The day of the doubter and the fault finder in Duluth has passed.

The day when the burden of building a city is left on the shoulders of a few big, broad-minded men, is passed.

The day when the cynic can sneer at the efforts of earnest workers for the building of a city and gain an audience in Duluth, is passing.

The day when we stand looking suspiciously at every plan advanced, fearing somebody else is going to make some money from it, and ready to jump on it if we find a chance, is passing.

The day when we refuse to spend a dollar for the city until we see a dollar and ten cents coming back to our pockets, is passed.

The day when we smile gleefully at every failure of a Duluth enterprise, and belittle every success, is passed.

There is a new spirit growing up in Duluth.

The Herald has presented a series of talking points for Duluth that no other city in America can approach. It has failed to mention one, however, which I believe is going to be one of our greatest talking points. It is the new spirit that is springing up in Duluth. It is the spirit of "I am for Duluth," and it is going to do as much for Duluth as its steel plant, or its harbor, or its agricultural development.

The day is coming when we will look upon the man who traduces our city as we would look upon the man who spoke evil of our wife.

The day is coming when the fault finder in Duluth will find himself without an audience.

The day is coming when every man from the one who earns $2 a day digging ditches to our millionaires, is going to take off his coat and work for a bigger and better city.

The City And the Home.

The day is coming when our city will mean as much to us as our home and almost as much as our family. There will be a new meaning to the word patriotism and to the word loyalty.

The day is coming when we will consider it a disgrace to have a poorly paved street in front of our house, or a dirty back yard, or an ash pile in sight, or vile smoke issuing from our chimneys.

The day is coming when we will wear Duluth made clothes, smoke Duluth made cigars, eat Duluth grown produce, live in houses made of Duluth made material, when the brand "made in Duluth" will be the first thing we will look for before making a purchase.

The day is coming when every Duluthian will consider it his own personal duty to see that the city gets value received for every dollar expended for any public enterprise, and when not merely honestly, but efficiency will be required of every public servant.

The day is coming when we can be big enough and generous enough and broad minded enough to rejoice at every fellow citizen who makes a success of it, knowing that his success betters our own chances.

The day is coming. It might be said that it is already here.

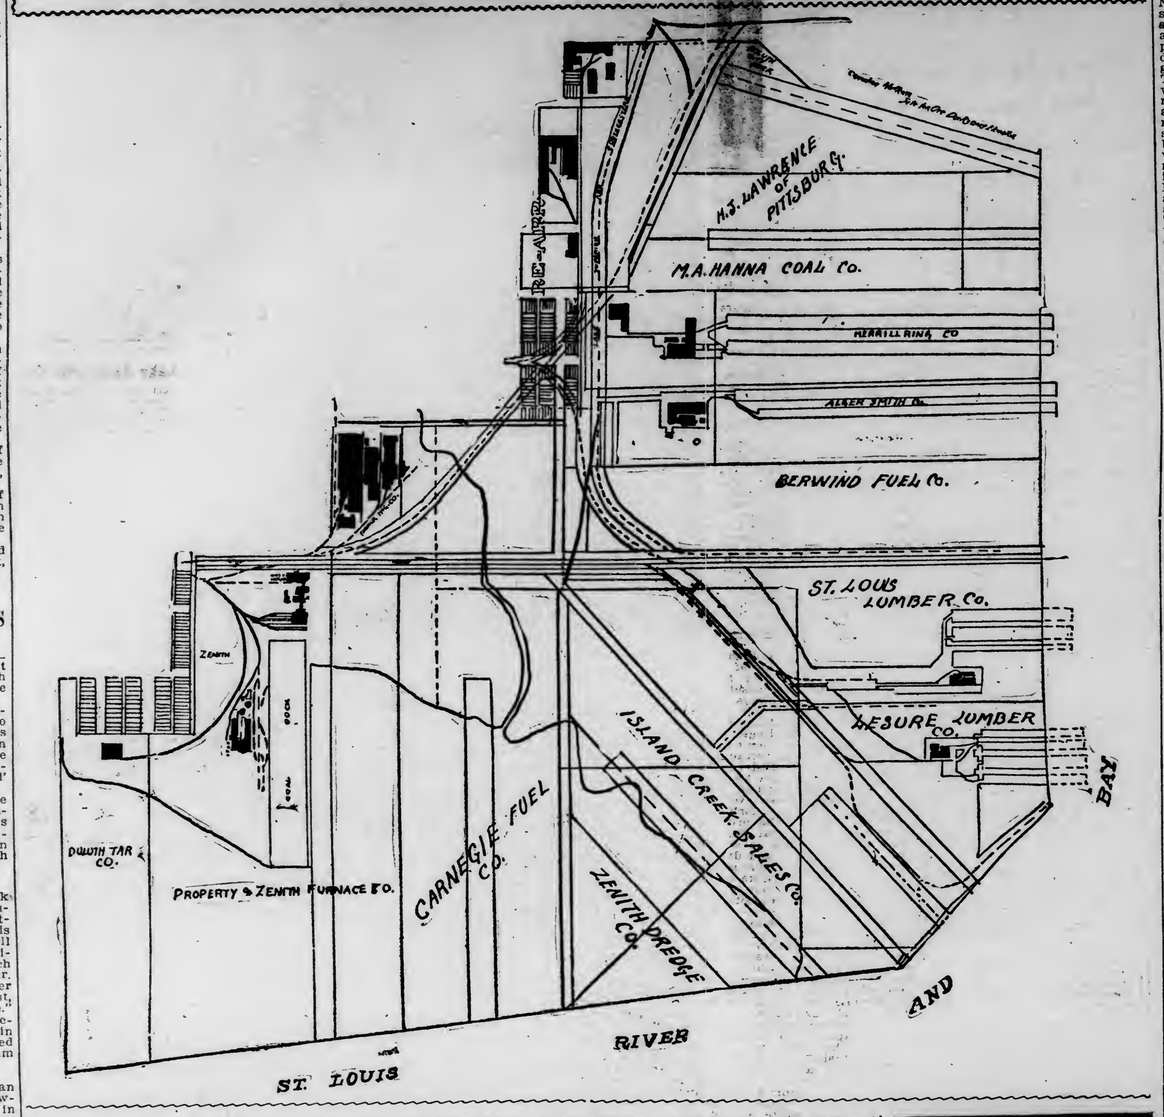

Duluth is on the verge of one of the most remarkable periods of development that any city has ever experienced. It is just beginning. All that any man needs do to be convinced, is to take a trip of inspection to the steel plants For the first time since the work began, five years ago, there is an atmosphere of real activity there.

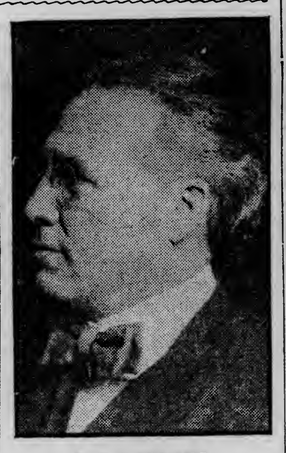

The day that the first steel is manufactured in Duluth, will be the day that Duluth will step into its own as a great manufacturing center. The steel plant will be but the entering wedge. It will be a small thing compared with what will follow. It is no longer a matter of years before that day comes. It is a matter of months, almost of weeks. We have our steel plant. The traffic commission has won its first great victory, and there is every prospect that it will win a second and greater. Our agricultural development is going ahead at a remarkable rate.

We are getting new railroads so fast we can't keep track of them.

We have everything that any city needs or could ask for.

We have ten times the advantages of many larger cities than Duluth. It is time to shed this cold potato attitude toward our home city, to get enthusiastic, to forget politics and take off our coats and work; to proclaim the gospel of Duluth; to get the Western hustle and booster spirit; and to let this country know that we have the greatest city on the map. It is time to quit apologizing for Duluth and explaining why it doesn't progress, and to get out and work for it.

CUMMINS AGAINST ROOSEVELT PARTY

Sees No Good Reason for Organization of New Party.

Washington, July 6.—Senator Cummins of Iowa, Progressive Republican candidate for the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention, has formally declared against the new party movement led by Theodore Roosevelt and announced his allegiance to the old party.

In so doing, Mr. Cummins declared that bosses could not be escaped by the organization of new parties, and that to those Republicans, who, after intelligent inquiry, conclude that President Taft's renomination was the result of fraudulent votes, "the nominee of the convention is not the nominee of the Republican party." He pointed out, however, that disappointment or individual dishonesty cannot be foundation for a new party.

John C. Capers of South Carolina, member of the Republican national committee, who supported Col. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination at Chicago, also formally announced his intention to support President Taft's candidacy.

LODGE DEFENDS ANDREW.

Says MalVeagh's Statement He Was Inefficient Is Absurd.

Washington, July 6.—Senator Lodge has vigirously dissented from Secretary MacVeagh's statement that his former assistant in the treasury department, A. Piatt Andrew was asked to resign because he was inefficient.

"The statement of Mr. MacVeagh that A. Piatt Andrew was inefficient is absurd," was Senator Lodge's comment. "I knew of him as a professor at Harvard and President Eliot recommended him to the national monetary commission as a trained political economist and linguist. When he was director of the mint, I knew he was considered an efficient administrator and I am told that during the year he held the office he saved the government $320,000 through reforms. While he was assistant secretary, I am told, he inaugurated reforms which resulted in large economies."

STORM AT ST. PAUL DOES LARGE AMOUNT OF DAMAGE.

St. Paul, Minn., July 6.—A terrific rain and wind storm late last night followed a day of intense heat. The storm lasted nearly two hours and did a large amount of damage to shade trees and small buildings throughout the city and in the immediate vicinity. During the afternoon the government thermometer registered at 90 degrees, although there were no serious prostrations reported.

PROTEST AGAINST THE ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL.

Chicago, July 6. — Thirteen railroad presidents, twelve of whom have headquarters in Chicago, have sent a memorial to the United States senate, protesting against the passage of the so-called anti-injunction bill, which is intended to curtail the power of judges to issue injunctions.

The proposed legislation is characterized by the railroad executives as vicious and one likely to bring about disorderly strikes and lockouts.

"It is an invitation to riot; it promises immunity for crime," states the memorial.

If the protested bill becomes law, the railroad presidents assert, it will be impossible, in the event of a strike, to operate railroads so as to perform a full measure of duty toward the public.

Lightning Hits Buildings.

Cairo, Ills., July 6.—Lightning last night struck the postoffice, Illinois Central depot and several smaller buildings. The lightning was accompanied by a severe wind and rain storm.

Killed by Lightning.

Sydney, Ohio, July 6.—While playing ball on a commons near here yesterday, Mildred, the 8-year-old daughter of Frank Kaser of East Sydney was killed by lightning and six of her companions were severely shocked and made unconscious.

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

(From Feminine World.)

The use of creams on the face sometimes causes hair to grow. You can avoid the risk of acquiring superfluous hair by avoiding cosmetics and using mercolized wax instead. There is nothing better for any condition of the skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.

The ideal wrinkle eradicator is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Jessie Davis will sojourn a month as the involuntary guest of the sheriff unless she is able to produce a $52 assessment levied against her in police court this morning when she pleaded guilty to a disorderly charge.

Jessie appears to have been leading quite a lively existence for some time past. And if she feels sorry for herself because of her present predicament it would appear that she has nobody but herself to blame. Nor will pitying herself save her from spending the pleasant month of July behind the bars of the county jail if her fine isn't forthcoming.

The police report is that Jessie has been spending her nights across the dead line. From there it is claimed that she has made her way to a large building on Superior street sometimes designated as the "Mormon Temple," because of the reputation which it has attained in the years that it has been standing there. In that place the officers state that she has been consorting with a man known as "Dunc Campbell," who has received quite a bit of notice from the police for some time past. He is classed by them as being anything but a desirable citizen.

This morning Jessie followed the routine which she is said to have observed for weeks past. When she reached the room she and "Dunc" had a quarrel. The allegation is that "Dunc" was drunk, having managed to possess himself of one of those ugly jags which seek satisfaction in kicking up a rumpus.

The upshot of it is declared to have been that he threatened to kill her in the handiest manner available. Jessie screamed. She cried for help at the top of her lungs. Other occupants were aroused and a riot call was sent into headquarters for the police.

Lieut. Fritz, Sergeant Weber and Patrolman Nels Perry responded at top speed. They reached the scene within a very few minutes. But they were just too late to gather Dunc in the drag-net. Warned by intuition or fright he took to his heels just in time. Jessie was still there, however, and instead of expressions of sympathy, she got orders to "come along." The police knew too much about the case to contemplate anything in the mercy line for either of them. Dunc is still at large, while Jessie was committed to the bastile over the hill.

Five veterans of the police force, two in active service and three retired, gathered at the Spalding today to commemorate the anniversary of the bloody battle fought July 6, 1889, between the local blue coats and the strikers.

Thirty-five policemen faced several hundred armed and enraged strikers who had been incited to riots which culminated in the memorable fight of twenty-three years ago. The five are all who remain in the city of the daring squad of thirty-five who exchanged volleys with the strikers. They are: E. B. Force, Samuel J. Thompson and N. P. Nelson, retired, and Sergeant Kenna and Patrolman Smollet, still actively connected with the department.

Old newspaper clippings give vivid accounts of the battle. One of them tells how Mr. Force, who was secretary of the department, waded through a score of strikers and captured the American flag, which they had flying above them.

An editorial in The Herald of that date comments upon the breaking of the strike as follows:

"It was a performance which called for pure heroism—to stand calmly for an hour and face death. Men do terrific acts under the strong impulse of momentary exaltation, but to coolly look into the muzzles of revolvers in the hands of a mob of infuriated strikers is an act which wins the admiration of everybody who believes in bravery."

The five who remain here sat down to a bountiful dinner at 1 o'clock and the reminiscenses and experiences which they recalled over the banquet board would have furnished material for a book teeming with heart interest as well as excitement.

John Nolan believes in action when he has a grievance. This morning he lost no time in grabbing James McDonald when he caught sight of him on the street. Nolan was to see McDonald last night and claims that he relived him of $15. His intention was to take McDonald in charge himself and turn him over to the police. But McDonald was too strong for him and broke his hold, seeking safety in flight. Later in the morning he was pointed out to Sergeant Dave Butchard, who placed him under arrest on a charge of larceny. McDonald will probably be arraigned in police court Monday morning. He is 21 years of age.

Special Detective E. J. Whalen is beginning to act upon his announcement that warrants would be issued for the arrest of those who have not paid their wheelage tax. Three are out now, those named being Thomas Scarlet, Gust Johnson and James Dacey. The first two are alleged to be operating two-horse vehicles in violation of the ordinance, while Mr. Dacey is charged with operating an automobile without the necessary tag.

Hans Knuff got off with a suspended sentence when he was brought into court today to answer a charge of having become voluntarily intoxicated. The court evidently figured that Knuff had had 'nuf after staying in jail over night.

Edward Kilby, arrested last night on a warrant sworn out against him by Lillian Nesby, did not wait for the law's machinery to untangle his difficulty for him. He hustled to the marriage license clerk first thing and he and Lillian had the knot tied to make them one before court was in session. When the judge was informed of his activity he dismissed the case. They left the courtroom arm in arm.

Louis Tulman paid a fine of $5 in police court yesterday afternoon when he admitted that he had an unlicensed female dog. This is the first arrest on that charge this year. Some others, a lot of them, would help more than a little to put an end to the dog nuisance, which is getting worse every year. Also, it would be an excellent idea to pass the new dog ordinance recommended by the chief.

James Brady promised to get out of town without dallying when he was brought up this morning for begging. The court hung a 30-day sentence over his head and gave him until noon to make himself scarce.

MARINE

VIKING FAST ON THE ROCKS

Lumber Steamer Is Ashore Short Distance From Split Rock.

Crew Still on Boat—Wrecking Outfits Are Sent For.

The steamer Viking lies helpless on the beach near Split Rock, where she grounded early yesterday morning.

The bow of the boat is high and dry. A large boulder made a huge hole in her bow.

It is thought that the boat was off her course, for during the fog of early morning the compass was affected seriously by the magnetic attraction at this point.

The tug Edna G. of Two Harbors was on the scene a few hours after the accident, but she could do nothing for the stranded boat.

Messages have been sent from Two Harbors asking for wrecking outfits. The crew is still on the boat and will probably remain until the owners determine what to do with her.

The boat was captained by John Pierce. She is owned by the Merida Steamship Company of Cleveland, Ohio, and is a steel boat about 225 feet long. She was on her way to Duluth from Port Arthur, light for a cargo of lumber.

The Viking has a capacity for about 1,112,000 feet of lumber. She has been engaged in the lumber trade between Duluth and Lake Erie ports for a number of years.

At present she lies with her bow on the land, about one-fourth of a mile from the Split Rock lighthouse.

The shore is extremely dangerous at this point, several boats having been wrecked in the vicinity during the past two or three years.

COL. SHUNK TRANSFERRED

Engineer in Charge of Local District Is Ordered to Pittsburg.

After five years of service in charge of the United States engineer's office in St. Paul, Lieut. Col. Francis R. Shunk will be relieved in St. Paul Aug. 5 next, and transferred to the government engineer's office in Pittsburg, Pa.

Lieut. Col. Charles L. Potter, St. Louis, engineer for the Western division, and secretary of the Mississippi River commission, will be sent to relieve Col. Shunk early next month.

During his term in St. Paul Col. Shunk has been in charge of the government improvements in the Mississippi river. He has taken a keen interest in the construction of the high dam and the proposed improvements in the channel of the river, which are to be of such moment to St. Paul. A little less than a year ago Col. Shunk was promoted from the rank of major to lieutenant colonel.

He graduated from the United States military academy in Pennsylvania in 1887. He has served at New York harbor, Portland, Or.; West Point military academy, as instructor and assistant professor; San Francisco, Manila, Washingcon, D. C.; Porto Rico, Jacksonville, Fla.; St. Augustine, Fla., and Minnesota.

Last year after making a survey of the Minnesota, Col. Shunk recommended to congress the expenditure of $1,250,000 for the improvement of navigation in that river.

In November last while he was in temporary charge of the engineer's office at Duluth the Duluth Commercial club asked for the appointment of Col. Shunk to fill the vacancy left by the transfer of Col. Graham L. Fitch from Duluth to another station.

For the past thirty days, Col. Shunk has been in the East on leave from duty. He will return to St. Paul today.

CHILD DYING FROM BURNS

Four-Year-Old Daughter of Life-Saver Lewis Victim of Bonfire.

Four-year-old Muriel Lewis of 1311 Minnesota avenue, Park Point, will likely die as the result of a fearful burning she suffered yesterday afternoon while playing near her home. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lewis, the father being a member of the life-saving crew.

The accident happened about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A bonfire back of the Lewis home attracted a number of children in the neighborhood and little Muriel was one of the most delighted with the blaze. In her play with the other children, she, with infant heedlessness, got too close to the fire and her dress was ignited.

Mrs. Lewis was upstairs, but was attracted by the chrieks of pain from the child and the frantic screams from her playmates. Mrs. Lewis hurried into the yard to find her baby enveloped in flames. She extinguished the fire as quickly as possible, but not before the child was horribly burned from the knees up.

Not only is the flesh blistered and charred, but the child it is feared has inhaled the flame. Hope for her recovery is very slight and in fact her death is expected almost momentarily. The mother is almost prostrated.

WOODROW WILSON AND HIS FAMILY

NO TIME WASTED ON WEDDINGS IN THESE DAYS OF H. C. OF L.

The high cost of living evidently does not affect the marriage market and some of the prospective breadwinners are meeting the situation nicely by getting married after working hours.

Today when the marriage license desk at the court house opened up for business, Edward Kilby, a young workingman, was found in waiting. He wanted to get a license, he said and get back to work. Time meant money for him, he said.

F. E. Smith, marriage license clerk, quickly ushered the applicant through the necessary preliminaries and gave the young man a permit to take one Lillian Nesby as his wedded wife.

Another instance of this kind also came to the attention of the marriage license clerk yesterday afternoon, when Maude Phelps, a Superior girl, came to the desk to secure a license whereby she and Randolph Simonson, also of Superior, could be married.

Randolph was working, she said, and too busy to come and get the license himself.

FARM HAS NO CHARMS

Rustic Life Carries no Appeal to Mrs. Stella Dunlinska.

Refused to Follow Husband Into Woods and Seeks Divorce.

The rural quiet of a rustic home in the Northern Minnesota weeds holds no charms for Mrs. Stella Ida Dunlinska of 823 East Fifth street and the attempts of her husband to persuade her to leave the giddy whirl of city life may or may not have been the reason why she is today suing him for divorce in district court.

Peter Dunlinska, who has tired of the ways of the great white way and who is defending the divorce action, claims in answer which he filed today with the clerk of court that this was the cause of the domestic trouble out of which the divorce case grew.

On June 21, last, Dunliska tried to persuade his better half to respond to the call of the wild and go with him to a fifty-acre farm which he had purchased near the city. Mrs. Dunlinska refused, he says and in the rumpus which followed, the woman renounced him and went to see an attorney to sue for divorce.

According to the answer, Peter claims that his spouse declared that she would "fix him so that he would never have anything if he went to the farm to live," and intimates that from the present outlook she is succeeding in view of the fact that he is being forced to spend his money in "fruitless and useless litigation."

This morning, the court ordered Dunliska to pay Forbes & Gurnes, attorneys for the woman, $35 attorneys fees and $20 per month temporary allmony during the pendency of the divorce esult. He was also restrained by the court from visiting her at the home.

The grounds upon which the divorce action is brought are given as cruel and inhumane treatment. In his answer Dunlinski denies this and mentions the fact that three years ago when she had him arrested for assault, she failed to sustain her assertions and that the case was thrown out of court.

He also claims that on July 1, last, Stans and Polly Dunlinski, children of a former wife, were driven from the home and that the stepmother refused to give them anything to eat. He also claims that she threatened to sell the family cow when he was not around.

According to Peter, his wife has a meddlesome disposition. He alleges in his answer that at the time he was employed as a foreman for a crew of men in the bottling department of the Sattler Liquor company that she interfered in his affairs and insisted that he follow her suggestions as to whom he would hire and discharge.

Mrs. Dunlinski is 45 and her husband is 43. They were married in this city in 1897. There are four children in the family. The case will be tried at the September term of court.

TEACHING IS BOOKISH

High School Education Throughout United States Is Condemed.

System of Teaching Just Where It Was Thirty Years Ago.

Chicago, July 6.—High school education throughout the United States was branded as "generally bookish, scholastic, abstract and inadequate to meet the practical problems of life," in a report submitted to the national council of education of the National Education association today.

The report, based on investigations conducted in twenty-five states, declared the system of high school teaching is just where it was thirty years ago, and that this backwardness is due to the plan of high schools to prepare pupils "for colleges and universities rather than for life."

"The whole trouble with our high school education," declared David Felmley, president of the state normal school at Normal, Ill., in reading the report, "is that it is regarded too much as merely a preparation for the university. Instead of dealing with the problems of life today the students are taught to deal with the language, politics and customs of fifteen centuries ago. About all the high school teachers are college graduates who have no adequate knowledge of affairs outside of college. Their teaching, therefore, is bookish, scholastic and abstract."

Need Change of Aim.

"We need a change of aim in high school teaching, a look in the direction of the farm, shop and home. While we do not recommend an education entirely vocational, we urge a departure from the college idea.

"We also think more attention should be given to the training of teachers from among high school pupils.

The conclusion of the committee that more progressive methods should prevail in high schools was based on inquiries among 120 normal institutions, all of which reported that high school pupils who wanted to teach usually had not been adequately prepared for their work.

Among those who prepared the report were John H. Phillips, superintendent of schools, Birmingham, Ala.; John R. Kirk, president of state normal school at Kirkville, Mo.; J. A. Shawan, superintendent of schools, Columbus, Ohio; H. H. Seerley, president state normal school, Cedar Falls, Iowa; and W. M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, Washington, D. C.

As a means of "modernizing" high schools, the report recommended that in a 4-year course two years of vocational study should be provided.

Speak in Defense.

In defense of the high school, W. A. Brandeburgh, Oklahoma City, Okla., and C. H. Carey, Madison, Wis., state superintendent of schools, asserted that the criticism resulted from personal opinion as to what should constitute a high school course.

"Some educators want mathematics to predominate; some want arts and some prefer languages," said Mr. Carey. The result is that no one can be satisfied as to what is a correct proportion. The criticism of the high school comes largely from the normal schools as the higher always finds fault downward. But I have seen teachers preparing in normal schools who could not spell, who did not know arithmetic and geography."

ELKS FILL AIR WITH LAMENTS

Efforts to Recover Their Banished "Goat" Have Failed.

Portland, Or., July 6.—Efforts of the Elks to recover their banished "goat" have failed. Representatives of delegates from smaller lodges to the grand lodge session of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, which will assemble here Monday, last night filled the air with laments.

The fight has been on among the cities for the national home, the construction of which was discussed at the grand lodge session. Western cities will attempt to have the site of the present home transferred from Bedford, Va., to some Western state. The Colorado Springs, Colo., and Salt Lake City, Utah, delegations will wage vigorous campaigns for the new home.

AMERICAN WINNERS

Stockholm, July 6.—The American athletes made a creditable showing in the principal track events today at the opening of the Olympic games. In the preliminary heats of the 100-meter flat race no fewer than seven representatives of the United States were winners, while three others qualified for the semi-finals by securing second places. In the preliminaries D. F. Lippincott of the University of Pennsylvania caused a sensation by equalling the world's record for the distance, 10 3-5 seconds, beating the Olympic record by 1-5 of a second. In the semi-finals of the same event five Americans won their heats, thus qualifying for the finals.

H. P. Drew of Springfield, Mass., A. T. Meyer of the Irish-American A. C., R. C. Craig of Detroit, D. F. Lippincott, Pennsylvania university, and A. V. Belote of Chicago, are the men who are to uphold the honor of the United States in the final of the 100 meters sprint.

In the 800 meters race preliminary heats were won by five American athletes and three others also qualified for further competition by winning second places.

No extraordinarily fast times were made in this event, the best being that of P. E. Mann of England. It is noteworthy that the heat won by John Paul Jones of Cornell was the slowest of all, but he was not pressed in any way and is expected to make much faster time in the final.

Melvin W. Sheppard, I. A. A. C., was defeated by J. C. Soutter of England in this event, but was qualified for the final by getting second place, and the slow time in which the heat was run, 2 minutes, 2-5 seconds, indicated that he was reserving himself for his later effort.

JOHNSON WELCOMED BACK TO CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 6.—Broad smiles and fat cigars adorned the faces of several hundred negro admirers of Jack Johnson, who gathered at the Pork Street depot today to welcome home the champion heavyweight pugilist. He arrived at 10 o'clock from Las Vegas, where on July 4 he smothered the hope of Jim Flynn.

"Flynn was easy," Johnson told the crowd that surged around him. "I had planned to knock him out in the tenth round, but the police interfered."

Johnson said he would fight Al Palzer on Labor day and bet $20,000 he would win.

Federal authorities are prepared to press the smuggling charge upon which Johnson recently was indicted. He refused to discuss it.

Englishman Wins.

Paris, July 6.—An Englishman, the Hon. Michael Scott, today won the amateur golf championship of France on the La Boulie links. Mr. Scott defeated the American, J. J. Anderson, yesterday in the semi-finals by 3 up and 2 to play.

Henley Results.

Henley-on-Thames, July 6.—The rowing club, De Paris, won the Thames challenge cup by defeating St. John's college, Oxford. Time, 7 minutes, 35 seconds.

The Sydney Rowing club of New South Wales, won the grand challenge cup, defeating Leander. Time, 7 minutes, 6 seconds.

ISSUE WEATHER INSURANCE.

Boston Globe: It has been said that Lloyds will take a chance on about anything within the range of human possibility, or, to go further, to gamble on what are known in official documents as the "acts of God."

From London to Dewey, Okla., is quite a far cry in these rapid days, but it isn't too far for Lloyds to reach out and gamble on the weather, which, by the way, is one of its favorite gambles.

The little, hustling Western town—or it may be a city, for out there cities grow up in a single night—proposed to let itself loose to the end of its lariat in unbridled enthusiasm in its Fourth of July celebration. And when they run wide open out there it means the expenditure of considerable money. So they called up Lloyds over in London and took out a policy of $20,000. If it rains $20,000 will help pay for the water-soaked enthusiasm, and if it doesn't rain who'll care about the cost of the insurance premium?

ELECTRO MEDICAL DOCTORS SUCCESSFUL

Have Proven to the Satisfaction of the People That Cures Are Genuine and Permanent.

Most of Chronic Diseases Yield Readily to Method of Healing By Natural Agencies.

We live in the beginning of an era where disease is losing its horror, and suffering is cut short by action of natural forces, which are stronger than medicines, and which are doing away with the dangers of surgery. As much more brilliant and superior as a Tungsten electric light is to the candlestick or oil lamp of old, so much superior and better are Electro Medical treatments than those of the old school, with baking, doping and cutting. Though the effects are most wonderful, if compared with the old method of treating disease, the doctors claim that there is nothing wonderful about it; "they are simply natural and the brilliant results of cures are nothing wonderful," the doctors say. "If people live right and follow our directions and give us a chance to get out the poisons of their blood and body, we are satisfied to know that we can cure such patient, provided the organs are not gone too far."

There are cured old cases of paralysis and rheumatism, deafness, blindness, heart, stomach and lung troubles, and all other diseases. They have yet to find a single one that will not yield readily to this treatment.

This confident statement was made to a reporter yesterday. Of their work he has to say: "I know that I have a treatment that will reach disease which medicine will not. Our treatments stand on merits and will bear the closest investigation. Any one who desires can get proof of this natural healing power. We have treated case after case of kidney trouble, neuralgia, removed troublesome growths, cured hundreds of cases of female complaint, treated deformity of all kinds, even after the sufferer had given up all hope."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

DELEGATES WERE LUCKY

North Dakota Paid Expenses to Chicago and Baltimore Conventions.

Flickertail Democrats Feel Certain Wilson Will Carry State.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota delegates to the Baltimore and Chicago national convention were not worried over the financial question, as North Dakota pays the expenses of its delegates to national conventions.

"The cost to the North Dakota delegate attending the Baltimore convention," said Willis A. Joy of Grand Forks, "is about $185, when all incidentals that can be appropriately included in such an account, are taken into consideration. That provides for railroad fare at $70, and hotel at the rate of about $8 a day. Of course, a man can't include in his account cigars, etc., but the outside incidentals need not cost a man very much, and he can make the trip to the convention at a very low cost."

The delegates attending the conventions from North Dakota were relieved of the worry that was experienced by many other delegates, who were temporarily embarassed as a result of the long drawn out contest into which they became involved.

Like Baltimore Nominations.

The delegates who attended the Baltimore convention returned home enthusiastic over the nominations and confident that Wilson will carry North Dakota. They also are extremely well satisfied with the showing made for Governor John Burke as the vice presidential nominee. In the East, Mr. Joy of Grand Forks says, the governor is well liked.

On the whole the Democrats of this state believe that the strongest candidate has been chosen.

NORTH DAKOTA'S CROPS ARE FINE

Rain All Over State Has Made Conditions About Ideal.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota's growing crops have had a splendid week, with generous quantities of rain in almost every section of the state, with the result that today the prospects for large yields are greatly improved over what they were a week ago, when the fields were being baked by a torrid sun with the prospect of great damage resulting.

There is not a section of the state, so far as learned, that has not received rains within the last week, and within the past twenty-four hours particularly heavy falls have been reported.

LOBECK INDORSED FOR GOVERNOR

Prohibitionists in Convention at Minneapolis Nominate State Ticket.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 6.—Prohibitionists of Minnesota in state convention here yesterday indorsed candidates for state offices, adopted a platform, and instructed their delegates to the national convention at Atlantic City, July 10, to present the name of the Rev. Charles Scanlon of Pittsburg as candidate for president. E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria was indorsed as the party's candidate for governor.

Included in the platform are planks favoring conservation of commercial and natural resources; demanding the enforcement of existing laws against the white slave traffic; urging the adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall; just compensation for laborers and sufficient time for recreation; equal taxation of property, and stricter enforcement of the liquor laws.

Others who were indorsed were: Lieutenant governor, George H. Andrews, Winnebago City; secretary of state, C. L. Johsnon, Anoka; congressman-at-large, W. G. Calderwood, Minneapolis; attorney general, J. H. Moore, Robbinsdale, Minn.

IRONWOOD BANK'S AFFAIRS ARE BAD

Withdrawals Never Made By Depositors Charged Against Them.

Ironwood, Mich., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary hearing of M. A. Fitzsimmons, cashier of the suspended Bank of Ironwood, is proving a long drawn out affair. It is developing some very sensational conditions that place the accused in a very unfavorable light and it seems quite probable on the showing made he will be bound over to the circuit court on the charge of embezzling a vast sum, placed by some at over $100,000.

The principal witness so far has been Charles Thompson, bookkeeper for the defunct bank.

After a grilling examination for almost two days Mr. Thompson broke down and was excused for a day or two.

This institution, according to the testimony, has been doing careless business for the past seven years. Depositors, who by their passbooks have large savings deposited there, find now that there are withdrawal of hundreds of dollars charged up to them, which they claim they have never had. It is thought that this bank is in a much worse condition than the First National that failed three years ago.

A year ago, Mr. White was cutting timber, when a tree fell and struck him on the head, and it is thought that this is the reason for his mind becoming unbalanced. For the last two or three months it became noticeable that his mind was becoming deranged, and he has lately been very violent at times, threatening injury to the members of his family.

The discovery was made by Deputy Sheriff Albert Girbux and Stock Inspector Collins, who were put on the case after Ackart's parents, living in Payette, Idaho, advanced the theory of foul play and asked the assistance of the officers in locating their son. A prisoner now lodged in the county jail is suspected of the murder.

The well is twenty-five feet deep and fifty feet from Ackart's lonely cabin, where he had lived the life of a hermit for ten years. The murderer evidently killed Ackart by shooting and then to make certain of his work, battered out his brains.

RED SOX WIN FINAL GAME

Time Called for Contest Before Duluth Has a Chance to Win.

Local Team Makes Eight Runs That Do Not Count in Score.

There might be two versions to the game played yesterday at Hislop park. One version is that Superior won by the score of 4 to 1; the other, that the game went to the local team by the score of 9 to 4. It is said that the eight scores of Duluth were made after the game had been officially called, and therefore do not count. The Red Hose should win once in a while.

Dusty Rhoades was on the mound for the umpire baiters, while Johnson did the flinging for the home crowd. As far as the game is supposed to go officially, Rhoades was the mean and stingy thing, refusing to permit the locals to hit with frequency or dispatch. While Johnson was not hit hard, the hits of the opposers were made to count.

As both teams left for the road last night, it was necessary to call the game early, thus accounting for the fact that Superior is accounted the winner.

Leber doubled in the opening round and swiped third. McGraw was smitten in the short ribs and Menlece struck out. Sours swatted swiftly to Rhoades and he attempted to get Leber at the plate, but threw with abandon.

With one down Taylor was passed and went around to third on Donovan's double, later scoring on a passed ball.

In the third the red-limbed gentry came back with one more run. Donovan flew out, but Ford was passed, stole second and went to third when Johnson threw wildly to first to get Lyle, who had walked. Bluhm threw to third and Leber muffed the ball, permitting Ford to amble home.

In the fifth round the Superior bunch got two more and salted the game, as the bunch over there are carefully saving all of the wins. Donovan went down without serious struggle, but Ford walked and then stole second and went to third when old Bill Dunn went out on an infield hit. He came home when Lyle singled to left. Black doubled and Lyle came home with the second score of the game.

Duluth got eight in the sixth inning, but as the time limit for the game had been called, the runs do not count, and Superior did not take advantage of their last time to bat.

GOAT CONTESTS FOR TENNIS MEN

Goat contests among the tennis players of the Duluth Boat club field department will be featured the remainder of the season. The idea is, as in life, to get the other fellow's goat. There will be a medal, a handsome affair designed by Frank Libbey, and the winner of the largest number of goats will come into possession of the medal.

Each player can purchase from the steward a card. This entitles the holder to engage in a goat contest. The holder of the card reserves a place at the tennis dinner and also has the right to challenge any of the other holders of cards. The loser must deliver his goat card over to an opponent defeating him. The holder of the greatest number of goat cards will be given the grand prize at the end of the season.

Cards may be purchased from the steward or from Albert Ames.

MINNY PLAYERS ARE SIGNED UP

The Failure of League Will Strengthen See-Eye Teams.

With the disintergation of the Minny league, something that was not entirely unlooked for, it is very likely that the best players in the little league will be grabbed off by the teams of the See-Eye organization. Just whether O'Brien will endeavor to get any of the men set free by the blowup, is a question. His team is going pretty good at the present writing.

Superior has signed Russ Bailey, manager of the ill-fated Eau Claire team, and the boy who went up to the Milwaukee team of the American as the result of his hard-hitting, Bennud, the crack catcher of the Eau Claire team, has also been signed by Superior.

Fred Curtis, first baseman and manager of the Winona team, is a player that might find a place with some of the teams of the league. He is a hard hitting player and might prove a tower of strength to the Superior Red Hose.

The breakup of the Minny will give the managers a chance to strengthen, for some classy players have been cast loose. The strengthening of Superior will make the league race more interesting.

Yesterday Kid Taylor and Persh, the man suspended for the season for his attack on Umpire McGloom, held a star session with President Harry Blume. There was nothing doing. A lot of pathetic stuff was sprung in the attempt to get the player back in the game, but to date he is still thinking of the immortal words of the little poem—them words about the might-have-been stuff.

It is rather expected that the swing around the circuit of the Duluth team will draw Winnipeg and Grand Forks up a notch. Superior, unless the team plays different ball, is due to drop out of the running. If Winnipeg had a different manager the aggregation would have been fighting the Sox for the lead all of the season. What one James Brown doesn't know of baseball would mark the leaves of many books.

COMMON NAMES MADE BASEBALL

Famous Players Have Been Disguised Under Smith and Jones Monickers.

Ever stop to consider what the Smiths, Joneses, Sweeneys, Browns, O'Briens, Collinses and a few other players of the same name group have done for baseball? asks the New York Sun. There have been players of these and other familiar names in the game ever since there was any baseball. Memory is no encyclopedia, but recalling names offhand many a famous player comes to mind. Take the Smiths, for instance. There was Charley Smith, the old time Columbus third baseman; Germany Smith, the shortstop, and a cracking good one; George Smith, the second baseman; Charles Smith, the Pirate catcher; C. Smith, the pitcher and Frank Smith, the pitcher; George A. Smith, pitcher, and first baseman for Harrisburg back in '84; Catcher Broadway Alex Smith, Red Smith, the Brooklyn third baseman, and Wally Smith, the Cardinals' infielder.

The Joneses too are numerous. They include Charley, Davy, Jimmy, W. D. and Fielder, all outfielders of bygone or modern times; Tom, the first baseman; Oscar Jones, Jumping Jack Jones and Bumpus Jones, all pitchers. Collinses, more or less illustrious, have been Jimmy, the king of all third basemen; Eddie, the king of all second basemen; Hub, at one time second baseman for the Brooklyns; Ray, the Boston pitcher, and the Collins now playing the outfield for the White Sox.

Browns Are Many.

Among the Browns, with or without the final e, are Bill, the old time catcher; Lew, another old timer; Tom, the fast infielder; George, another speedy outfielder, and three or four pitchers now in the game, among them the noted Mordecal Brown of the Cubs. The Sweeneys go as far back as Charley, who pitched for Providence when Radbourne was in his heyday, and take in Ed, the New York catcher; Bill, the Boston second baseman; John, who caught for Baltimore in 1884; Danny Sweeney, midget outfielder, and a Sweeney, who used to play first base for Kansas City.

Antedating Buck O'Brien, now pitching for the Red Sox, were Darby O'Brien, the Cleveland pitcher; Darby O'Brien, the Broklyn outfielder; Tom and Johnny, second basemen; Billy, first baseman, and an O'Brien who caught for the Athletics twenty-five years ago. And what of the Clarkes? There have been a string of them—Fred of the Pirates, and his brother, Josh; Bill, who caught for the old Orioles; Bill, who played first base for the Glants in the 90's; Dad, the pitcher; Justin, the latter day catcher, and Tom, now catching for the Cincinnatis.

The Davises include George, star shortstop; Harry, managing the Clevelands; Johnny, a pitcher of long ago; Lefty, the outfielder; Big Jim, the third baseman. There were Millers as long ago as '84, and since then at various periods; Foghorn Miller, the catcher; Jack, the Pittsburg first baseman; Doc, the Boston right fielder, and Ward, the Cubs' utility man. Four Mitchells are at present in the game—Mike, captain of the Cleveland Reds; Pitcher Miller of the Clevelands and Pitcher Miller of the Browns; also Mitchell, last year a Highlander catcher, and before that a pitcher for the Phillies.

Two Burnses of Note.

There were two Tom Burnses of note, and more recent players of that name are Bill, the pitcher, and John, now with the Giants. Jimmy Burns in his day was a fine outfielder. The Doyles have produced in recent years three fine players—Larry, Jimmy and Jack. The ball family Robinson has turned out Wilbert, the catcher; Yank, the old time second baseman; Sparrow, the second baseman, and the present Pitcher Robinson.

Joe Wood, the great pitcher, was preceded by Bob Wood and Fred Wood, both catchers, and George Wood a noted outfielder, of the past. The Hugheses, with the two Toms and Jimmy, run to pitchers, as do the Keefes, with Tom and Bobby. Lewises include Ted, pitcher; Fred, outfielder; Duffy, outfielder, and J. second baseman. Of the O'Neils there have been Tip, Mike, Joyce, Norris and the present Cleveland catcher of that name.

Will White, Red White, Doc White were or are, pitchers, while Jim White was a third baseman. Leanings toward the box also have been shown by the Taylors—Billy, Jack and Dummy—while Harry was a first baseman. The Knights, Sullivans, Dolans, Bakers, Wilsons, Kellys, McCarthys, Dalys and Williamses also have contributed their share of material to the furtherance of the national game.

Young Fighter Dies.

Yonkers, N. Y., July 6. — George Newson, 18 years old, of this city, died in a hospital after having been knocked out in a boxing bout at the Getty Athletic club two hours earlier. Death was due to a fractured skull. Newson was knocked out in the second round of what was to have been a four-round bout by Jimmie Dragin, also of Yonkers. Dragin landed a blow that stretched Newson out unconscious, his head striking hard against the floor. Dragin and Thomas Broderick, the referee, were arrested and are held without bail.

Gibbs Knocked Out.

Savannah, Ill., July 6. — Jack Roberts of Chicago knocked out Joe Gibbs of Dubuque, Iowa, in the second round of a fight near here last night.

CHIEF MEYERS SORRY HE ENTERED PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL ARENA

"If I had it to do all over again, knowing what I know now, and offered the same opportunity that I once had, I probably wouldn't be a professional ball player. Not that I don't consider ball playing as clean and honorable and as desirable as any other profession in the world, but because I feel that I 'booted' one of the greatest chances that ever came to a young fellow—and I wouldn't make that same error now," said Chief Meyers in speaking of baseball as a profession.

"Baseball has been mighty good to me. Any man who has had over a year on a championship club, with a world's series thrown in, as I have had, is lucky. I am proud of my profession. I wouldn't hesitate to advise any young man, with the natural ability, to adopt baseball as a career. Still, if I was back in 1906, and know what I know now, I don't believe you would have ever heard of 'Chief' Meyers of the Giants.

"Since I became a ball player I have had both pleasant and unpleasant experiences. Dating from my entry into the big league, I should say that the former outnumber the latter. I had a mighty hard time breaking in, but after becoming settled down with the Giants, I can truthfully say that I have lived some of the most pleasant hours of my life. It is something to have been a friend and a companion to the men who make up the New York National League club.

Real Native Son.

"I was born and raised in Riverside, Cal., and hope to end my days in that state. My people are Mission Indians. There are not many of these Indians left now, but it is one of the oldest tribes on the American continent. A few are still gathered together on a government reservation about ninety miles from Riverside, living under agency control and keeping their old customs; but the younger generation, for the most part, live in the towns, and have long since broken away from the traditions of their people.

"The Mission Indians were found by the earliest Christian fathers when they went into California, and the fathers converted most of them to Catholicism. They speak a language that is a combination of their own tongue and Spanish. The language of the mission Indians themselves was limited to about 250 words, and to signs, in the beginning. The tribe no longer has a chief, but they elect a captain and a few other officers. The government agent is really their law.

Started Playing at School.

"As a boy, I attended a public school in Riverside, and it was there I started playing baseball. Nearly every ball player begins as a pitcher, and I was no exception to the rule. My brother was my catcher, but he could also pitch, and when my pitching was ineffective he would relieve me and I would take his place behind the bat, but for an accident by which he lost an eye, I believe my brother would have been a much better ball player than myself.

"After leaving high school I played independent ball down in Arizona and New Mexico. I had made up my mind that my natural position was catching, so when I signed with the Clifton team of Clifton, Ariz., it was as a catcher. I also played with El Paso for a time.

"This was in 1904. In those days—and I guess it is still the custom—they held a big baseball tournament every fall at Albuquerque, N. M., as a side attraction to the territorial fair. Teams were eligible from New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado, and the first prize was $1,000. The advertising that a town got through its ball club competing in the tournament was the main inducement, however.

"The various teams always 'loaded up' for the occasion with American association, Western league and, sometimes, big league ball players. I imagine they paid their players more than they could hope to win in prize money. I was with the Clifton team in a tournament that was umpired, as I recall it, by Jim Jeffries, then heavyweight champion of the world, although he didn't do much actual umpiring.

Glaze on "Big Six" Team.

"That year the 'Big Six' team of Trinidad, Col., just over the Colorado line from New Mexico, was admitted to the tournament and it came to Albuquerque with a number of good ball players, including Ralph Glaze, the pitcher, who made such a great record at Dartmouth, both in baseball and football, and who afterward was with the Boston American league team and in the Eastern league and American association.

"Ralph had been brought to Albuquerque by the 'Big Six' team—so-called after a Trinidad saloon—under the name of Pearce, but, of course, he was quickly recognized. I got acquainted with him and he told me about Dartmouth. It was his story that fired me with the ambition to attend college.

"In the early days of this country a man named Eleazar Wheelock founded a charity school for Indians, which graduated an Indian named Sampson Occum. This man Occum was sent to England to raise funds for the school. He got some money from one of the Georges—I forgot which one—who was then king of England, and he also got a very large donation from the Earl of Dartmouth, who stipulated that his money should be used for the education of the North American Indian only. That is why they named Dartmouth college after him.

Becomes White Man's School.

"As the years went on, however, the college couldn't get the Indians to carry on the work for which it was intended, and it eventually became a school for white men. The Dartmouth fund was still there, getting larger all the time, but there were no Indian students. While there might be a lot of Indians who would like to have the advantage of a Dartmouth education, the trouble was they couldn't matriculate; couldn't pass the necessary entrance examinations.

"Glaze told me about this fund, and I decided to try for Dartmouth. I studied day and night, and finally I was fortunate enough to pass the examinations and enter the great college. That was in 1905, and then followed one of the most pleasant years of my life.

"Dartmouth is proud of its Indian traditions, and it treated me as an honored guest. Even though I was but a freshman, I could wear my hat on the campus and smoke a pipe, and that was quite a concession from the other students, too.

"I was the first Indian to attend the college under the provisions of the fund since Dr. Charles Eastman, the great Indian author and lecturer, who has become one of the foremost men in this country. I was made to feel not only at ease every moment of my college year, but they gave me consideration I had not received before—or have not received since.

"I played a little baseball at Dartmouth, but naturally was ineligible for the regular team, on account of having played for money. I was taken into the Kappa Kappa Kappa fraternity, and I was out trying for the football squad, but I didn't last at that very long.

Tackled Too Hard to Please.

"The Boston papers used to print stories about how I had reported at college with a feather in my hair, and only a breech clout for wearing apparel, and they made much of the fact that I was out trying for the eleven. Bill Folsom, then the football coach, and now a lawyer at Boulder, Colo., instructed me to tackle a fell one day, and they said afterward they thought I was charging a hostile tribe, the way I went after him.

"I was hitting the ball pretty well around the lot in baseball practice, and Tom McCarthy, the old outfielder, who was coaching the college nine, told me one day that Billy Hamilton, down at Harrisburg, Pa., in the outlaw Tri-State league, wanted some players. It was the same great Billy Hamilton of Boston fame, now a big league scout. Tom mentioned a sum that I could receive for playing professional ball, which was more money than I had ever seen in my life, and I couldn't resist.

"I reported to Hamilton in June, 1906, thereby tossing off one of the great opportunities of my life. They wanted me to stay at college. They offered me the same advantages that Eastman had, and I have many times since regretted not staying.

Frosty Weather.

"It sat on the Harrisburg bench eleven straight days, and during those eleven days I had one of the hardest experiences of my life. Billy Hamilton, meantime, had thrown up the management of the team. The players were all old fellows of the old school, who hated to see a youngster breaking in. They did not speak a friendly word to me in all that time. If I picked up a bat some veteran would yell: 'Drop that, bush.' I was almost completely frozen out, but I made up my mind not to quit, no matter what they said or did.

"Finally, one day, I was sent in to hit for some fellow, and I came through with a safe blow. Then they put me to catching regularly, but finally sent me over to Lancaster, where I finished the season. I believe I led the league in hitting for a time that year.

"I still intended going back to Dartmouth. I had seen my mistake. My mother was ill out in Riverside, however, so I had to go home. I had the money, and I didn't like to tell them so at college. I remained in Riverside that winter.

Bombarded in Butte.

"As the Tri-State was an outlaw organization, the players had no contracts, and there was no such thing as a reserve rule. Lancaster must think of me to ask me to report the next spring, and I got a chance to go to Butte, Mont., in the Northwestern league, where Russ Hall, the old pitcher, was the manager.

"That was organized baseball, and when I made up my mind to sign a contract with Butte in 1907, I burned my bridges and became a professional player, putting all else behind me.

"I didn't get much chance in Butte, because they had a wild fellow named William Roosevelt, a relative of Theodore, and just as strenuous as his relative. He was the wildest pitcher I ever saw. I don't know what became of him. He broke a finger for me in the opening game of the season and had me out for two weeks, and he pounded me up with that baseball all the time I was with Butte.

I was finally sold for $1,500 to St. Paul, of the American association and reported there in the spring of 1908. And then I did have my troubles. The manager was a famous ex-big leaguer. He had it in for me for some reason. There were a number of old heads on the club, and their ideas seemed to be to have a good time.

"I didn't care for that line, because I wanted to get away from the St. Paul club, and I figuerd I would be there a good while if I didn't stick pretty close to my ball playing. The club was so poor we lost over 100 games that year. Despite my unpleasant experiences as a member of the club, St. Paul proved a lucky town for me, because it was there I met my wife and it was from there I came to New York.

"I was sold to the Giants for $6,000. I was hitting close to .300—never over, however—and catching fairly well. Meantime, Mike Kelly had come in as manager. The St. Paul club put one over on me in the sale, because I was to have reported to McGraw in the fall of 1908, when Marquard and Jimmy Durham did, but the management held out a telegram ordering me to report until after the American association season closed. I might have had a chance the play-off year.

"I reported at Marlin to McGraw in the spring of 1909, and I never saw so many ball players before in my life. They just flocked all over the field. There were eight catchers. It was the year after the big trade, when McGraw had sent Bresnahan away, and he was taking no chances with his catching staff.

Against Big Squad.

"I took a look at that bunch and I saw that they were all young and fast, and I said to myself: 'This is the biggest team of them all and if you want to stick with it you'll have to figure to do it on something besides speed. You're not fast enough to compete with those kids.'

"I realize fully that I'm heavy on my feet, and for a time I was somewhat discouraged. Then I took my bat and went at it and made an effort to do some hitting. I had luck. I made some thirty home runs that spring and the newspaper boys with the Giants were boosting me to the skies. They boosted so much that they finally became scared themselves. The people at home didn't believe their stories about my hitting, and it didn't sound reasonable at that. The boys came to me and said: 'You've got to make good for us,' and I determined to do my best, because they were my friends.

"In the first game I appeared in at the Polo grounds I was fortunate enough to get two home runs off Eddie Van Vleek, the Yale pitcher, and that helped some. I didn't get but mighty few more that season, however, and along late in 1909 I had a bad slump and was very discouraged. The fans and newsepapers were panning me and I didnt know what to do. I just couldn't hit my stride.

"Then McGraw took me aside one day and said: 'Chief, you quit paying attention to what they're saying about you. Remember, that you're playing baseball for me and no one else. I know you can catch, so you just get in there and do it, and let me tell you when you're not going right.'

"That cheered me up and I soon struck my stride again. Do you wonder that I think McGraw is the best man in baseball?"

HOME-RUN BAKER SHINES AS A CLEAN-UP HITTER

As a dramatic hitter, there are few in baseball to equal J. Franklin Baker, the miracle man of the Athletics.

Trappe's famous son has always been a dreadnought of a whaler ever since Connie Mack paid the Reading Tri-state club $22,500—no, that's wrong, it was $1,000—for his release; but in the last two or three seasons Baker has outgrown ordinary excellence and developed into a forest-fire incendiary.

Cider has been called the champagne of the apple, so Baker might be called the champagne of baseball. He is always stunning the populace with his batting flashes. He is today the most dangerous clean-up hitter in the game.

He is never in a hole, even if a pitcher has two strikes on him. No pitcher can feel safe until J. Franklin is sent back to the bench. Then he can unleash a sigh of relief and thank the solar system over his good fortune, just like the chap who spies a five-carat diamond on the sidewalk.

Hero of World Series.

It is the unexpected side to Baker's hitting that makes him such a box-score luminary. It takes him only a second to switch an opposition victory to a Mack triumph. Do you remember what this lad did in the world series?

In the second game, Marquard, the French south-sider, who has won sixteen straight this year, was pitching 1912 ball against the Mackmen last October. The score was tied at one run each, and after the first inning only one Mackman had reached base up to the sixth. This man was Barry, who was saved by Devore's muff.

Two out in the sixth, Eddie Collins slashed a double along the third-base foul line. Baker then gave Mack his first victory in the series by slashing the ball over the right-field wall. That stick made victory certain for Baker was the last Mackman to get on base in the game.

In the next game in New York the Mackmen would surely have been beaten had it not been for the master sticksmith. New York had scored a run in the third inning, and it looked good enough to give the Giants the deal in the series.

The ninth inning came and the Athletics were still blanked. A little hope was left, for Collins was the first Mackman at bat, but when Herzog tossed him out at first the Philadelphia delegation was resigned to defeat.

It required something phenomenal to rescue that game, and Baker delivered it. Just like the day before, the Trappe man sent the ball crashing into the stands. The hit tied the score. It acted as poison for New York and tonic for the Athletics. It put new life in Coombs and disheartened Mathewson. In the eleventh round the Athletics batted out enough runs to win.

The first game here Wednesday greatly resembled the Trappe man's last feat in the series. If ever a man looked beaten it was the Athletics in the first game of the double bill with Washington Wednesday.

"It's the eighteenth straight for the Nationals," mourned the sharps when the second Mackman was retired in the ninth. The score then stood 1 to 0 in favor of Washington, and that run looked as big as the rock of Gibraltar with two out and nobody on. One little out meant victory for the aliens.

Reconciled to Defeat.

Baker was the third batsman of the round. The rooters were reconciled to defeat, Baker was quickly in a 3-2 hole. He hadn't made a hit during the game, and it looked as if Tom Hughes, the Washington curver, had his number.

Baker then drove a foul tip into Henry's glove. It shot so swift that it popped out of the catcher's glove. Had Henry been able to hold the ball, Baker would have been retired on strikes, but few maskmen can squeeze such wicked tips.

This gave J. Franklin another chance, and after fouling off the next ball pitched, he stunned Mackland by putting every carat of his weight against a slow ball and whipped it with lightning speed over the right-field fence into Baker's alley.

Because of the hole Baker was in, and the amazing form that Hughes had been showing all through the game, no greater surprise would have been caused had it been announced that the Pennsylvania railroad went into bankruptcy.

It was this one hit that stopped Washington's mad streak. It evened the score and took all the starch out of the visitors. It was easy for the champions of the world to grab the needed break-up run in the tenth.

This dramatic drive had a far-reaching effect on the series. It really was the reason for the Athletics' steamroller tactics. It is the kind of things that takes the heart out of a young team which is up in the race for the first time. The successful youths haven't the powers of recuperation of the practiced player.

Brood Over Defeat.

They brood over this kind of a defeat and have sleepless nights. Anyway, the unexpected Baker home run made Washington easy for the Mackmen in the rest of the games.

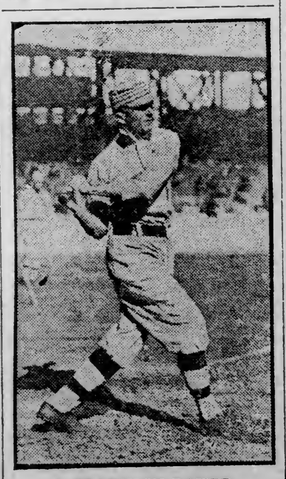

Baker didn't stop with grabbing this game out of the conflagration. His timely wallops in the second game of the double bill alone decided the result. The Mackmen won this combat, 4 to 3, Baker's two singles and a double accounting directly for three of the four runs made by the kings of the diamond.

Again in the second double-header Thursday Baker's bat was the busiest of the lot, and helped greatly in Mack scoring his second straight double triumph.

Baker ranks, with Cobb and Zimmerman, as the most dangerous hitter in the country. None of his hits are flucky, but fly toward the outfield with terrific speed. Neither is he aided by short fences or short bleachers. Every hit made by Baker is generally 100 per cent pure. His average is not boosted by any flukes or abbreviated parks.

On the recent trip west Baker made two record drives. His homer in St. Louis was the longest made in that part of the field, and he also punched out the longest drive ever made at the White Sox's park.

Baker is not a veteran in the point of age. He is still a youth and improving each year. Some of these days he will work himself in the batting championship of the American league.

J. FRANKLIN BAKER.

DE BILITY JOURNEYS TO THE BASEBALL GROUNDS

(By Blundermore P. D. Q. De Bilitty.)
(With scant apologies to a morning contemporary.)

It all started over a discussion as to the playing of the White Sox. My friend and myself are intensely fond of outdoor sports. Resting there by the curb, trim and tidy, the horses riding easily at the anchor of their weight, stood one of those deep, sea-going hacks. Into this stepped Raggy Ruin and myself, blithely and with agility.

Have you ever taken the trip out to the ball grounds? My friend, J. Gongringer, explained to myself and friends. It was a dueedly clever day—the hour 2:45—and the jolly old nags were feeling their oats. We passed the Spalding and turned sharply to the right and chugged along. As we passed the various places my friend explained to me the amount of business they were not doing.

"There is a buffet that has been here since the days of 'Rough House' Clarley," explained my friend, as we sped along. Involuntarily I shuddered. The mere mention of rum thus affects me. Further along we came to a small store. "Do you know," said my friend, "that that store sells three dozen eggs each day, and that its goods are handled by the clerk and the proprietor?" Raggy Ruin and I opened our eyes, Raggy replacing his monocle. "Dried onions are sold at New Duluth and on the Heights," continued my friend. "That's a rather strong statement," cried Raggy Ruin.

Here the remarks of Mr. Gongringer were interrupted by the arrival at the ball park. We alighted and got into the park after a heated discussion with the ticket taker, a rather bore, I take it.

It was popcorn time, the brisk air and the motion of the sea-going hack having sharpened my appetite, and I quite so, by jove, my interest in figures quite waned. Afternoon popcorn, however, is not, as I jolly well know, indulged in to any great extent by the residents of this city, and I had to hope that I would have the opportunity to indulge in my favorite grub.

The warm air, the fragrant atmosphere, the old brewery in the distance, the romantic old lumber yard and the slaughter house to the rear, all combined to lift the flimsy veil of romance. Gradually I gave myself up to these hazy, lazy thoughts. My eyes closed—I forgot my surroundings.

Thump! A decidedly rude jar. I leaped to my brogans.

"Been snoozing?" laughingly queried my friend, Gongringer. "No," I replied, smiling like a man of the world—"only dreaming."

Suddenly an aroma sweeter than that of any fudge pan in the world, smote my quivering nostrils, my trembling olfactory nerves. I was spellbound by this delightful fragrance. Suddenly I looked—there was Old Birchwood with a basket of crisp, white, pure, unadulterated popcorn. Oh joy, sweet ravishing bliss! I eagerly stepped toward the basket. "Aha," I cried. "I knew that I could not be mistaken. I should recognize the odor of popcorn anywhere."

My friend said, "Meet Mister Dinkey Mike, chief of the old Birchwood." I eagerly grasped the fin of this heavensent gent, murmuring my delight while munching two bags of delicious, fragiant popcorn. A glass of red, brilliant, sparkling, gurgling, amber pop completed my rapture.

Choked with rapture and some kernels of corn, I lisped my gratitude. Forgotten were the figures of the little store where the onions and things were sold. Forgotten the fantansies of the old brewery, the lumber mill and the rendering house. Forgotten the homerun of Muggs McGraw—forgotten the vast array of figures—I lay back in the hack fiend reveled in the consumption of another bag of popcorn—I knew nothing more; I wasn't supposed to.

THE TIGER MACHINE IS BADLY SHATTERED

Detroit, Mich., July 6.—Any hopes that Detroit may have of winning a pennant this season may as well be put in the old mothballs until such time as the Tigers are remodeled. If the flag floats over Navin field at the conclusion of the present campaign, it will be for one of two reasons, either the Detroit club will get caught in a shower of real athletes or about four other teams in the league will be involved in a series of railroad wrecks, writes E. A. Batchelor in the Free Press.

It is rather humiliating to the fans of Detroit, after five seasons in which the club either has won the pennant or finished second or third, to admit this state of affairs, but it is true nevertheless. The Tigers of 1912 will not do. Barring about three or four men, aside from the pitchers, there is not a player in the outfit whose recent performances have shown cause why he should be in a major league, and there are a few that might have trouble making good in class AA judging by what he has shown since June 1.

The infield, barring Bush, is hopeless, the outfield contains one star ball player who is trying and another whose work has been distinctly lacking in ginger, while Jones, the third man, although batting well, has shown deficiencies in other departments that would make his value to the club doubtful if he were batting .999.

Three Pitchers Look Good.

Works, Dubuc and Willett look like pitchers who might be depended on to win a fair percentage of their games. Covington should not be judged hastily, for the youngster hasn't been given enough chances to work to show whether he is "there" or not. Stanage, naturally the best catcher in the country, is at present handicapped by bad legs, and even more handicapped by having fallen into the general I-don't-care attitude that seems to be characteristic of the club.

The big backstop if he saw a real chance for the flag or were on a club that was hustling, would be almost perfect, for he has baseball brains and physical ability, but on a "joy" club, he is among the most joyous. The two young catchers haven't worked enough as yet to be criticised honestly.

Mullin and Summers, both of whom have rendered the Tigers splendid service in years gone by, have come to that point where both their own good and that of the club demands that they be sent elsewhere. Donovan needs warm weather, and is so valuable to the club in various ways aside from pitching that it doesn't make much difference whether he works regularly or not. As scout and coach, the smiler is more than earning his salary and nobody should complain that he is slow in getting ready for duty on the ridge.

As ball players cannot be picked up in a minute, it looks as though Detroit would have to be content with the present club for the remainder of this season. But next year there are going to be a lot of strange faces peeking from the collars of our nice white uniforms. Three infielders, one good outfielder, a strong catcher to protect the club in case Stanage is hurt and a couple of pitchers are about what may be expected.

Probably it will be impossible to secure stars for all these positions at once. Not other club ever was so lucky as to pick up a wholesale lot that made good the first year. But the newcomers will be young, they will be working for moderate salaries and they will be trying every minute to play the sort of ball that will permit them to demand more money each succeeding year.

One of the things wrong with the Tigers is that the club is too high priced. This does not mean that any individual receives more than he earns, for several of the tossers get less. It does mean, however, that they are being paid the top prices as baseball salaries go and have no hopes of ever getting more.

The players will say that, considering the big money they have earned for Messrs. Yawkey and Navin, they aren't getting even what's due them, much less an over-reward. Any man on a salary in any business can advance the same argument, but, at the same time, the promoter, investor, proprietor or whatever you please to call him, always has received the lion's share and always will until the millenium arrives, which will not be this week, or next. All of us who work for some other man must expect to keep on consoling ourselves that we are making him barrels of money.

In baseball as elsewhere a man who gets what he knows to be the top price for a particular line of work does not hustle like a fellow who is drawing down about $6 a week and who needs $12 for his three meals and a place to sleep. So long as there is anything to strive for ambitious people will keep doing their best trying to fatten up the pay envelope.

That is the trouble with most of the Tigers who are not playing good ball. They may not be getting any more than they are worth, nor even as much, perhaps, but they are getting the market price for this particular line of talent, the price for which similar services can be purchased elsewhere if they do not care to work.

Not at All Bad.

Not all of the men who are playing bad ball out at Navin field are stagnant because they do not see any more money ahead. Some of the fellows drawing moderate salaries are trying as hard as mortals can; they just haven't the ability. Those of this class are entitled to sympathy and appreciation, but at the same time they will have to succumb to the inexorable rule that the man who doesn't make good, no matter how hard he tries, has to step out of the way for the more fortunate, though sometimes less ambitious, fellow with the gift for doing something better than most other people can do it. It's a Spartan rule, but the one that things seem to be run by in this particular world.

Looking at the table of standings it is easy to figure where the Tigers have a chance. They are but 10 games behind the Boston club, which is in first place, and only five and one-half games astern of the Athletics, who are the people every one is figuring on beating this season. After seeing the last sixteen games at home, however, the most optimistic of fans narrowly can see any hope. A club that is having bad luck, getting the worst of the umpiring or is weakened by the temporary absence of some star player always is liable to "come back," but one that has lost confidence in itself and whose members are playing solely for themselves and not for the club, one that hasn't any confidence in itself, is a bad outfit to put any bets on.

Were the Tigers the same, hustling, fighting, confident outfit that they were in the pennant winning years, their present position in the race would not be the least bit alarming. They aren't the Tigers that made Detroit famous any more, but the remnants of a once great machine. Some of the parts of this machine are as true and strong as ever, but anybody who ever has driven an automobile can tell you that you can't get very good results from a six-cylinder engine when she is hitting on only three. When the carburetor is out of order and the gasoline tank is empty.

AUTOMOBILES

TOURING AT ITS HEIGHT

Duluthians Making Good Use of Their Automobiles at Present Time.

Roads in Better Shape Than at Any Time This Year.

The touring season for automobilists in this section of the country is at its height.

The roads in every direction are hard and dry. Some of them could be a lot smoother, but as a whole they are fairly good for touring.

Much repair work has been going on and a number of roads are being given the gravel treatment. This is not pleasant to run through but when it becomes packed makes a fine, hard, smooth road bed.

Duluthians are making the trip to the ranges, to the Twin Cities, Solon Springs, Lake Nebagamon, Two Harbors, while trips to the surrounding beauty spots located within a few miles of the city such as Knife river, Carlton lake, Island lake and other resorts are taken daily.

Many Duluthians are on the road today. Some are taking the range trip and others the one to Minneapolis. It is said that the Duluth-Minneapolis road is in the best shape for touring that it has been for many years.

A great many improvements have been made especially in Carlton county. The road from Carlton to Cloquet is one of the best highways in the state. It is wide, high, smooth and dry, having been treated with gravel and the grade rolled down hard.

The sand hill at Sturgeon Lake has been fixed so that it is now no trouble whatever to get through. This used to be a sticking point.

Many Minneapolis people are touring to Duluth and others from points in Iowa, Illinois and even as far east as New York, are touring here. Many cars are seen on the streets daily which have come from points located in widely separated parts of the country.

The range roads are said to be as good as ever this year. The Miller Trunk is a little rough, but it is hard and there is no chance of getting stuck.

All the short drives are in better shape than they were last year, making touring more pleasurable than it was a year ago.

MANY WILL MAKE LONG AUTO TOURS

Touring Club of America Is Receiving Many Inquiries Daily.

The present season will surely establish a record for long distance automobile tours if the inquiries for routes and road information received at the Touring Club of America, New York, during the past week are any criterion. These requests are being received from all over the United States, also from Canadian points, illustrating to a marked degree that long distance travel is steadily increasing in popularity.

Among the more extensive itineraries recently compiled is one for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Seaman of Brooklyn, members of the Touring club, who are now on a 4,000-mile journey, which will cover a period of about two months and will take them through nearly all of the eastern and southern states.

There are few metropolitan automobilists who have traveled more extensively by motor car in America than they have. Mrs. Seaman being an enthusiastic automobilist as well as an expert driver and will be at the steering wheel of their car during part of this trip.

From New York the party is proceeding south to Atlanta by the way of Philadelphia, Gettysburg, Staunton and Roanoke, Charlotte, Camden, Columbia, Augusta to Atlanta and Birmingham, Ala., where they turn northward to Chicago by way of Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. Road conditions will be reported at the Touring club's Southern branches at Atlanta, Nashville and Louisville. At Chicago they will call upon J. P. Dods, vice president of the Touring club's Middle West department, securing the latest information as to road condition on their eastward journey through Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany to New York.

Pointers on Motorists.

The first official entry for the Vanderbilt cup this year is Ralph Mulford's six-cylinder Knox. Mulford, while on his way to Tacoma, Wash., to drive the Knox in the Montamara Fiesto, free-for-all, July 6, stopped off to inspect the course at Milwaukee. He was more than pleased with the track and predicted that much faster time would be made this year than in any previous Vanderbilt cup race.

Mulford Is First Entrant.

Oftentimes motorists seem to think that no care is necessary in carrying spare tires, says a Michelin expert. Uncovered envelopes are tossed on roofs of limousines where sun and rain beat upon them. Unprotected inner tubes are thrown carelessly into tool boxes where they come in contact with sharp tools.

Needless to say, such practices are destructive. Strong light is very injurious to rubber. So likewise is heat. For these reasons, if no other, spares should be kept in cases.

Moisture and oil are also injurious to tires. Waterproof wrappers which keep out light, moisture and oil and at the same time protect spares from injury by contact with sharp substances, can be had of any accessory dealer. Every motorist should use them.

Cardboard boxes are never satisfactory for carrying tubes in a car. Every vibration of the car causes chafing between the box and tube and since cardboard is harder than rubber, the tubes will inevitably be injured. Covers for inner tubes should take the form of bags which will fit snugly around the tube.

Pointers for Motorists.

In fitting an inner tube care should be taken that nothing remains in the envelope. Tire men not infrequently suffer criticism for supplying inferior tubes when the fact is that it is the motorist who is at fault. The Michelin tire expert says that frequently owners leave dust caps, washers and other articles inside an envelope and then complain when the inner tube punctures from "no apparent cause" after a few miles of traveling.

Keep dust caps and other parts removed for tire fitting on a bit of waste on the step or on the seat of the car or in some other place where they can be found when wanted and where they cannot get inside the tire by any possible chance.

Use does not injure tires. Like the human family, it is idleness that destroys them. An inner tube hanging in a garage all winter will be ruined by spring. Its companion tube which is working daily remains flexible, elastic and fresh.

It is the same with an envelope or casing. A tire neglected on the roof of a limousine exposed to the sun is baked and ruined, but the envelope on the car has nothing to fear from the same sun rays that destroyed its idle neighbor.

TO RETIRE FROM RING LABOR DAY

Kansas City, Mo., July 6. — "I never want to see another pair of boxing gloves, either in private or in public," emphatically declared Champion Jack Johnson, while here a few minutes en route to his home in Chicago. Johnson was in a happy mood, unmarked by his fight with Jim Flynn at Las Vegas.

"If Al Palzer wants to fight me," declared the champion, "he will have to do it not later than Labor day, for on the day following, I will retire from the ring forever. That's final. I quit then for good."

Johnson said he had cleared $36,000 on his victory over Flynn. He received $31,000 from Jack Curley, the promoter, and won $5,000 in betting on himself.

"And Mrs. Johnson won $6,000 betting on me," laughingly remarked the heavyweight. "She gave odds of 3 to 1 at that."

"Was there any money left for the promoter after he paid you?" Johnson was asked.

"I think so," he replied. "I believe Curley made some money on the fight."

CEMETERY MAY BECOME FACT

Eveleth Is More Hopeful About Securing Needed Burying Place.

Eveleth, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cemetery committee has been negotiating with the Oliver Iron Mining company's Duluth officials the past week, trying to get the title to a certain piece of land in section 33.

The site was selected by the committee some time ago. It is located between here and Gilbert and will be on the car line about 500 feet from the Eveleth-Gilbert road.

The committee has received a great deal of encouragement, and it seems that Eveleth may at last get the much sought after piece of land.

To Drill Land.

The company has made preparations to have the land drilled for ore and if none is found the cost will likely be borne by Gilbert, Eveleth and Missabe Mountain township. If ore is found, no expense will fall on the town.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the sake of other suffering women."—Mrs. W. T. PURNELL, 320-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

Wilson, an old time printer, who is known in practically every newspaper office in Minnesota and the two Dakotas, is paying his annual visit to the towns of the Mesaba range. Although well advanced in years Wilson, who is familiarly known to printer folk as "Tug," persists in traveling after the fashion of the old-time hand compositor. For over a quarter of a century he has been a member of the Typographical union, but efforts of his friends to induce him to go to the printers' home at Colorado Springs have been fruitless.

His winters are spent in Texas, but for well nigh a quarter of a century he has not missed an annual trip to the lakes of Minnesota to enjoy a season of fishing. Eugene Vaglio was infatuated with his niece, Rosa, and had been forbidden by her parents to enter the house. The murderer went to the hotel with two pistols and a dagger. He found Mrs. Vaglio in the kitchen, followed her to her bedroom and shot her there. The husband was killed in bed. Christina rushed to the door and was shot down, and Rosa was slain in bed. The murderer then cut his own throat with the dagger and blew out his brains with a pistol.

Next Monday night at the Irving school and Tuesday night at the Salter school the subject of canning of strawberires and rhubarb will be discussed. These homecrofting lectures will take place every alternate evening at the schools named, different household problems being discussed each time.

STATE CONVENTION AT JACKSON, MICH.

Progressive Republicans Issue Call to Nominate Roosevelt Electors.

Lansing, Mich., July 6.—Progressive Republicans in conference here yesterday issued a call for a state convention to be held "under the oaks," where the Republican party was born, at Jackson, July 20, for the purpose of nominating presidential electors favorable to Col. Roosevelt. Candidates for state offices also may be named at the same time.

An attempt to have the call provide for the organization of a third party was defeated, after Governor Osborn had announced that he proposed to remain in the Republican party and that he would not lead the Progressives at this time.

The question will be taken up again at the Jackson meeting. That the framing of a new party that will include all state officers, will be contested, was evident from a conference in which Governor Osborn and other prominent state politicians took an active part.

VEAL CONSUMPTION AT FAULT.

Reason No. 2,341,126 for the high cost of living has just been offered by Marcus Ballanger, government live stock inspector, who passed through Duluth yesterday on his way to the Canadian border. He says that the killing of calves for an increasing veal demand, is the cause of the soaring price of meat. Argentina, he points out, forbids the killing of cattle until they are 7 years old, and beef there is cheap. He advocates a law somewhat similar in the United States.

FOG SPOILS RIVER TRIP

Steamer Columbia Disembarks Its Passengers at Spirit Lake.

Fearing that they could not get to the city in time for the evening meal yesterday, passengers on the Clow & Nicholson steamer Columbia were disembarked at the Spirit Lake club house shortly before 6 o'clock last night and came in on the Northern Pacific train.

The cause of the uncertainty was the thick fog which mantled the river and bay and made the progress of the steamer slow, if not hazardous. The steamer took on its passengers at Fond du Lac at the usual time of 5 o'clock, but when it made its way toward Duluth ran into fog that increased rapidly in thickness so the expedient mentioned was resorted to for the benefit of the passengers. The steamer was due at the Fifth avenue dock at 6:30, but came down carefully and did not arrive until 8:30 last night.

INDIANA CONSTITUTION IS DECLARED INVALID.

Indianapolis, InId., July 6.—The new Indiana constitution as drafted by Governor Thomas R. Marshall and adopted at the last session of the legislature, was declared unconstitutional late yesterday by the Indiana supreme court. The court held that the right to change the constitution lies with the people, and that the amendments should have been submitted to a constitutional convention instead of to the legislature.

ROOSEVELT PROGRAM IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Greensboro, N. C., July 6.—Seemingly there is no longer any doubt concerning the course supporters of Col. Roosevelt in North Carolina will pursue. The Roosevelt leaders make two positive statements—that they will not vote for Mr. Taft, and that they will not relinquish party machinery and principles. Followers of Col. Roosevelt declare they will be able to control the state convention and county conventions, and that the Roosevelt people will choose electors.

AGREEMENT IS ENDED.

Democratic and Insurgent Republican Senators Have Split.

Washington, July 6.—The working agreement between the Democratic and Insurgent Republican senators is at an end. It has been abrogated as the result of conferences ever since the metal bill was passed in the senate by the Democrats in the absence of the regular Republicans and without the aid of the insurgents.

The probable result will be that the house sugar and wool and excise bills will be presented to the senate and voted down by a strict party vote. All the Republicans are expected to vote against them, and it is probable that some of the Democrats will join them in opposition to the house sugar bill, which would admit sugar free of duty.

NEBRASKA INDORSES BRYAN AND WILSON.

"It does not matter about the Nebraska delegates to Baltimore being instructed for Clark," said W. L. Maupin, deputy state labor commissioner of Nebraska at the Spalding today. "Nebraska Democrats approve of Mr. Bryan's fight at the convention and of his break to Wilson when he did and his reason for it. He will get a big reception when he gets back to his own state."

Mr. Maupin is surprised at the freedom Duluth has from tramps, and believes that the coolness of night here is the cause. Nebraska, he says, is infested with "jungles" at every town.

Stein-Blochs at $19.12.

The Columbia has its first cut-price sale of the season. Choice of their best suits at $19.12.

Beverly, Mass., July 6.—President Taft will receive the formal notification that he is the nominee of the Republican party for president at the White House in Washington about Aug. 1. The president told his visitors at Paramatta yesterday that he had talked with Senator Root of New York, permanent chairman of the Republican national committee, and that they had decided that the notification should take place in Washington.

"MONEY TRUST" INQUIRY IS TO BE POSTPONED.

Washington, July 6.—Pursuit of the "money trust" probably will be virtually abandoned until after the elections in November, as the result of a conference yesterday of the sub-committee of the house banking and currency committee. While it was said no definite decision had been reached, it was discovered that the majority of the members believed that a continuance of the inquiry through the summer would be unwise.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Some Promises Made by the Press Agents for Coming Attractions

AT THE EMPRESS

The excellent vaudeville and picture programs which have been presented at the Empress since the inauguration of its new summer policy have been a source of ever increasing delight to the theatergoing public. Each week's program has seemed better than the preceding one and large crowds are in attendance at each performance in consequence of the excellent shows that are being presented at the popular Sullivan & Considine playhouse. For the week commencing Sunday the management has secured an exceptionally fine array of vaudeville and picture features.

The management announces the special engagement of Wm. Bradley & company's spectacular singing novelty, "In Bohemia." This feature is expected to score one of the biggest hits of the summer season. Mr. Bradley has earned an enviable reputation throughout the vaudeville world because of the excellence of different attractions presented under his name, and his latest attempt, "In Bohemia," is said to far surpass anything yet presented by this able producer. "In Bohemia" is presented by a cast of four talented and finished vocalists, two women and two men. Each of the members of this company is a graduate vocalist and all received their musical education under some of this country's most famous singing masters. "In Bohemia" tells a beautiful story in a simple and unaffected manner and offers the members of the cast an opportunity of displaying their extraordinary vocal talents to the best possible advantage. The following is an extract from a recent notice published by the New York World: "Will Bradley & Co., in the pretty musical actlet, 'In Bohemia,' scored a distinct triumph last evening. This attraction is easily one of the most meritorious of the present season. The members of the cast are all excellent singers and each enters into the spirit of the playlet with a zest that is highly commendable. No one person deserves special mention, as all were so good in their respective roles that it would be wholly unfair to single out any one particular person for special praise."

There has always been a certain fascination about a blackface act, which never failed to appeal both to the layman and the performer alike. In Searcy & Cantor, the patrons of the Empress will see two of vaudeville's most able blackface comedians. These men are pioneers of the minstrel world and since their entrance into vaudeville, they have met with more than ordinary amount of success. Their turn consists of a budget of laugh-producing "gags" which they "put across" in true minstrel style, and a grist of topical songs and parodies. Searcy & Cantor have a style of working which is all their own, and, while they have been imitated by many, no one has been able to do so successfully. They came to the Empress highly recommended as laugh extractors and their act is a guaranteed cure for the "blues."

As a special attraction, Lucia Judd McAuliffe will again be heard at the Empress. This will make Mrs. McAuliffe's second week at the Empress and the theater-goers of this city will no doubt take advantage of the opportunity of hearing her again. It is doubtful if any artist who has ever appeared at the Empress has equalled the success of this talented songstress, and those well acquainted with Mrs. McAuliffe will vouch for the fact that never has she been heard to such excellent advantage. For the first half of the week Mrs. McAuliffe will present a series of beautiful Irish melodies, consisting of "The Kerry Dance," "Irish Love Song," and "My Wild Irish Rose," the song made so popular by Chauncey Olcott. For the last half of the week she will render "Loch Lomond," "Annie Laurie" and "Violets." This program is especially adapted to Mrs. McAuliffe's beautiful soprano voice and next week she will no doubt repeat her success of the past week.

The film offerings for the week will be first-run subjects and will include "The Passer-by," a powerful subject by the Edison company. This film tells a highly interesting story with a forceful moral. "The Lake of Dreams," a beautiful child story by the Selig company, and "A Pseudo Sultan," by the Vitagraph company, will also be shown. This latter picture features John Bunny, the famous photoplay comedian, and is said to give him an exceptionally wide scope in which to display his mirth-provoking ability.

Sir Herbert Tree is also to use the translation of Pierre Loti and Judith Gauthier's play, "The Daughter of Heaven," which George Egerton made for the Century theater production in New York. Mrs. Egerton is the nom-de-plume of Mrs. Golding Bright, the English novelist, who wrote "The Wheel of God" and "Rosa Amorosa," and who won new spurs as a dramatist last winter with the excellent adaption of "The Whirlwind," acted by Mme. Simone.

Haywood Broun, Chinese representative of the Liebler company, who has been scouring the Far East for material to be used in staging "The Daughter of Heaven," has cabled that his task is completed and that he has sailed for home. Mr. Broun was in Pekin at the time of the recent anti-foreign disturbances.

Viola Allen is to witness the Olympic games in Sweden this summer. Later she is to cross to Northern Africa, and visit Biskra, the original scene of action of Robert Hichens' famous book and play, "The Garden of Allah."

The Comyns Carr version of "Oliver Twist," in which Nat Goodwin, Marie Doro and Constance Collier appeared during the centenary celebration production of the play in New York last winter, has been revived at His Majesty's theater in London with great success, Sir Robert Tree playing Goodwin's role of Fagin and Constance Collier appearing as Nancy, as in America. Miss Collier will return to America in August to go on tour in the American production of the play, together with Goodwin, Miss Doro and Wilton Lackaye in addition.

Elsie Janis' new sketch, "Three in One," will receive its premiere on Tuesday at the Majestic theater, Chicago. Sam Burbank, Gene Reeves and Al Stewart will present it. That Miss Janis has the courage of her convictions is attested by the unusual scheme of "opening" the sketch. When the curtain arises a large sign will be carried across the stage, bearing the confession, "Don't blame the boys. It's all my fault. Elsie Janis."

Rita Stanwood, who sailed for Europe last week, is to play the leading role in support of Clifton Crawford in his new musical comedy.

• • •

By arrangement with Lee Shubert "Rutherford & Sons," which is now running in London, will be produced in this country at the Little theater. A tour of the Shubert theaters is contingent upon the success of the play in New York.

The engagement by A. H. Woods of Elizabeth Brice for a term of years signifies the dissolution of one of the most successful musical comedy and vaudeville teams now on the stage. Miss Brice and Charles King have appeared conspicuously in several Broadway productions, but at the end of the summer they will come to the parting of the ways.

King is under contract to Cohan and Harris to act George M. Cohan's role on tour in "The Little Millionaire." His leading woman will be Lella Rhodes, whom he recently married.

Miss Brice will play the title role in Mr. Woods' production of "Tantalizing Tommy." Others engaged for the cast of that play are George Anderson, Dallas Welford, Harry Stone, Robert Pitkin, Donald Hall, Dorothy Webb, Gertrude Millington, Jean Iver, Edna Musey and John Kierney.

• • •

Al Jolson is now on his way to San Francisco. He will be starred in "Whirl of Society," which opens at the Music hall, Chicago, early in September and then plays the leading cities of the East. His trip to Frisco is one of pleasure.

• • •

Charles Ross, Sidney Grant and Charlotte Greenwood were the first engagements announced for the Winter Garden. Mr. Ross will play one of the leading roles.

• • •

Prior to beginning rehearsals in George M. Cohan's new play, "His Other Girl," Winona Winters will be seen in vaudeville, opening at the New Brighton theater on July 8.

• • •

Bernard Granville has been signed by A. H. Woods for five years, to be starred in a new musical piece to be specially written for him. The contract will not go into effect until September, 1913. Up to that date Granville is under contract to F. Ziegfeld.

The first two of the Liebler company attractions to be booked for the entire season are the two old successe, William Hodge in "The Man From Home," and Louis N. Parker's "Pomander Walk," which will again be acted by its original all-English cast. Hodge will begin his sixth season in the successful Tarkington-Wilson comedy in the Plymouth theater, Boston, with a four weeks' engagement. "Pomander Walk" will acquaint the cities of the Pacific coast with its six little Queen Anne houses and the delightful dwellers therein.

A notable cast of players has been assembled by H. H. Frazee for "Fine Feathers," his first production for the new season. The coterie of stars comprises Robert Edeson, Wilton Lackaye, Max Figman and Rose Coghlan, while negotiations are now in progres with a star prominent in both London and New York for the principal feminine role. "Fine Feathers," which will have its premier in Chicago at the Cort theater, Aug. 11, is the latest play from the pen of Eugene Walter.

Louise Gunning and the Shuberts have come to the separating point, so 'tis said. Incidentally, the former has signed a contract with A. H. Woods for next season.

CHICAGO PRODUCER WHO HAS NEVER HAD A FAILURE

MORT H. SINGER.

Mort. H. Singer, the Chicago theatrical manager, has scored his twelfth consecutive success with "A Modern Eve," the musical comedy which is now having a triumphant summer run in the Garrick theater of that city. Other managers, in the wider field of New York, may be able to claim an equal or a greater number of prosperous ventures during the same period of time; but none of them can boast, as Mr. Singer could if he were at all boastful, that they have had a failure. Here is a business record which has never been equalled in "show-business."

Mr. Singer is a Milwaukean by birth and training, and his first experience in the theater was acquired there. He went to work in the Bijou theater of Milwaukee when he was 14 years old; and thus, though now only 33 he has nineteen years of insight into theatrical affairs behind him. Mr. Singer remained at the Bijou of Milwaukee for eight years, finally becoming the business manager of the house. He then went to Minneapolis, where he spent five years as the manager of the Star theater, with the Dewey theater of St. Paul also under his charge. His administration of these two houses was so successful that he became a part owner.

In 1906 Mr. Singer secured a foothold in Chicago, taking over the control of the LaSalle theater. There his career as a producing manager began, and he built up for the little LaSalle a reputation and a clientele which gave it a reputation all over the country. His first production at the LaSalle was "The Umpire," and then came "Time, the Place and the Girl;" "The Girl Question;" "Honeymoon Trail;" "The Girl at the Helm;" "The Golden Girl," and "The Flirting Princess." In 1909 Mr. Singer built the handsome Princess theater in Chicago, and began to produce on a larger scale. The pieces which he has staged there were: "A Stubborn Cinderella;" "The Prince of Tonight;" "Miss Nobody from Starland;" and "The Heartbreakers." With the acquisition of the Princess Mr. Singer relinquished the old LaSalle; but he soon felt the need of another theater, even larger than the Princess; and so began the construction of the Palace theater, which was dedicated April 1 of the present year. The Palace is not only the newest, but also the most beautiful playhouse in Chicago; and for that matter, it has no peer anywhere in the country. After an experiment with vaudeville, in association with Martin Beck, Mr. Singer decided to use the Palace for his own productions; and the coming season there will be brilliant.

In listing Mr. Singer's interests, it may be added that he is now the owner of the house in Milwaukee, where he gained his experience. He and his partners, Herman Fehr of Milwaukee and I. M. Herk of Chicago, recently purchased the Bijou of Milwaukee, with the Bijou of Minneapolis and the Grand of St. Paul.

Mr. Singer will send "A Modern Eve," with its original company, to New York early in the fall. A second company of this delightful entertainment will start on tour in August. George Damerel in "The Heart-breakers" and "Miss Nobody in Starland" will also represent Mr. Singer's talent as a theatrical manager on tour through the season of 1912-1913. What he has in mind for the Palace and Princess theaters of Chicago will not be revealed until he returns from Europe in July.

NOT BULLETS BUT PAINT

Even Dismantled Battleships Take Their Toll of Lives—Twenty Men Poisoned in One United States Navy Yard—Danger From Lead Paint Unheeded.

By EDWARD EWING PRATT.

(Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

A battleship in drydock—stripped of her finery, her engines motionless, her decks deserted—seems singularly futile and harmless as she leans against the props placed along her sides. In spite of the seeming harmlessness of the inert monster, the battleship remains a destroyer of health and life. The danger is an insidious one, deliberately, gradually and slowly preying upon the health and life of its victims. The source of the danger is lead—not as bullets or cannon balls, but as lead paint.

On Sept. 1, 1911, there went into effect in New York a law compelling physicians to report occupational diseases such as lead poisoning. Late in the year a Brooklyn physician reported the case of William O'Connell, who was employed in the Brooklyn navy yard. In order to get the facts of the case it was necessary to see O'Connell. He proved to be a man below medium stature, thin and emaciated, his clothes sagging about him as he stood up. His teeth were decayed and falling out.

About four and one-half years ago O'Connell got a job in the navy yard as a laborer. He was put to work at "scaling" in the double bottoms of the battleships. In two months he was troubled with nausea, constipation and chronic loss of appetite. Within a year he was taken with a severe attack of lead poisoning and almost lost the use of his arms. He was out of work for four months. He then returned to the navy yard and was given outside work and improved rapidly. A month later, however, he was laid off and was unemployed for four months. Then he was called back and sent to work again in the double bottoms. He protested, but took the job and went back to scaling and to an absolute certainty of renewed poisoning. Within two months he was again taken with a severe attack and in September, 1911, he quit his job. He has been idle ever since and will not be able to work in the near future, as he has almost completely lost the use of his right hand.

The morning was already far gone when all the formalities demanded by governmental "red tape" had been complied with and I was started on an inspection of the double bottoms where the men were scaling. My guide led me quickly to the drydocks, where a big monitor was docked. We entered the turret from which a gun projected. All about us there was a most unearthly din which sounded as if a battery of automatic guns were playing on the steel sides of the ship. I was given a candle and followed the foreman down several flights of stairs and through a number of passage ways until we were near the very keel of the ship.

Most battleships nowadays are provided with double bottoms a space of two and a half to three and a half feet between the inner and outer shell. This space is divided into small compartments, usually not more than four or five feet square. Down into the double bottoms we went. We crawled along slowly on hands and knees, working our way through several manholes until we reached a compartment where a man was scaling. An electric light attached to a movable wire lighted the compartment. The workman, crouched forward on his knees, was operating a compressed air chisel called a "hammer," scraping off the paint. This paint, which is sometimes a quarter of an inch thick and is composed of almost pure red oxide of lead, rose from the point of contact till the dangerous dust filled the air. Oftentimes several men work in one small compartment, and it is said that the dust sometimes becomes so thick that it is almost impossible to see an electric light two feet away.

When we emerged from the double bottoms it was already the noon hour and the men were sitting about eating their lunches. Only one had taken the trouble to get a bucket of water in which to wash his hands. The others, their hands red with the poisonous oxide, ate with apparent indifference. No conveniences are furnished them, no washing facilities and no instructions concerning the desperately dangerous character of their work. As we talked man after man told of the attacks of lead poisoning they themselves or their fellow workmen had had. Twenty men had suffered from lead poisoning caused by work in the double bottoms. Most of them had been so seriously affected that they were compelled to cease work for periods varying from a few days to as long as eleven months. Almost half of the men on this job had been leaded and many of them are in a critical state of ill health.

It would not be worth while to discuss this subject if lead poisoning were an absolutely necessary accompaniment to the maintenance and operation of battleships, which, of course, we must have—at least so we are told. The tragedy of the whole situation is that lead poisoning is unnecessary. If the authorities of the Brooklyn navy yard had been on the alert, if the post medical officer had been "on the job" not more than one case of lead poisoning, and that the first one, need ever to have occurred. The one sure, safe and sane method of preventing lead poisoning is to entirely do away with the use of lead paints. France has recognized this need and within two years' time will have entirely done away with the use of lead in its paint compositions.

There are other methods which if honestly carried out will prevent any serious consequences of lead poisoning either in this particular work or in other work where lead is used:

1.—A monthy physical examination of all the men, and the removal from that work of any men who show symptoms of poisoning.

2.—An effective and localized system of dust removal.

3.—The provision of respirators and the enforcement of their use.

4.—The provision of washing facilities including hot water, soap, towels and shower baths, and the enforcement of their use.

5.—Personal instructions and posted instructions concerning the dangers of the work and how to guard against them.

6.—The shifting of the men from the dangerous job to other work of a less dangerous character.

This is not merely the problem of a small group of men in a single navy yard. The same conditions probably exist in all our navy yards. On board ship, men are continuously employed at this work. With the many industrial occupations in which the men come in contact with lead in one or another of its dangerous forms, the United States of America should set an example by eliminating lead poisoning from among the employes of the public.

THE THIRD PARTY'S SLENDER CHANCE.

As The Herald lately pointed out, it is Theodore Roosevelt's misfortune that he has confused the cause of human liberty with his own personality.

He has deluded himself with the belief that he IS the cause.

This makes the third party, if a third party comes, not a progressive party—the Democratic party has made itself that—but a Roosevelt party.

It is not a party that can appeal to the patriot who has risen above party dividing lines; it can only be a personal party, a mere splinter from the party which refused a presidential nomination to Col. Roosevelt.

The third party movement would have been difficult, anyway. The Baltimore result has made it impossible, even absurd.

Its only possible function will be as a means of registering a protest vote from those who are so blindly partisan that they cannot accept any leader who comes bearing the label "Democrat," no matter how completely he meets every requirement of the progressive cause.

A Roosevelt third party can get no Democratic votes. Wilson will lose Democratic votes, no doubt; the daring defiance hurled at Baltimore against the reactionary elements in the party made that likely. But these votes will go away from Wilson because he is a progressive, and they will not go to Roosevelt. If they go anywhere, they will go to Taft—who will need them.

A Roosevelt third party can get few independent progressive votes. Wilson answers their every need.

A Roosevelt third party cannot hold a large proportion of disaffected Republicans, because their disaffection is with the conditions the Republican party has brought about and with the boss rule that has made it the serf of greed. These men will not be satisfied merely to take part in a movement to beat Taft, but they will want to take part in electing a man like Wilson, who can be depended upon to do all in his power to achieve tangible results for the people.

We can thoroughly agree with the News Tribune when it says: "No Republican who is dissatisfied with President Taft to the extent of refusing to vote for him, who differs with him on principle, need go to a third party and waste his vote; he has a landing place now in Democracy, where his vote will count."

Col. Roosevelt should not make the mistake of believing that his strong support for the Republican nomination was a personal following. Many followed him who dislike him personally, who fear the third-term precedent, who feel that he would have made a prettier and a more effective fight had it been made for another and for the principle than he did for himself. They supported him in the contest for the Republican nomination because he seemed to them the best and most effective implement available to bring the Republican party to the cause of social and political progress.

They supported him in that fight for such reasons as these.

They will very largely support Wilson in the fight to come between now and November 5 because now he best embodies the hope of the progressives in both parties.

If Theodore Roosevelt heads a third party he will get some votes, and fifty of these votes will be drawn from Taft where one is drawn from Wilson. He will therefore, make Taft's defeat easier—though it is easy enough as it is.

But he will obscure the issue—the issue between progress and stagnation, the issue between the shame of Chicago and the glory of Baltimore, the issue between Woodrow Wilson, "a conservative with a move on," and William Howard Taft, a "progressive" tied to a post.

A NEW THING IN ROYAL CIRCLES.

The king of Belgium has begun suit for slander against a person accused of spreading a defamatory story about his wife—the queen.

That's rather a startling evidence of the way democracy is reaching out to take in royalty.

In other days, nobody would dare whisper a word against the king or his family. If any mad individual dared so much, all the king needed to do was to order his head removed or his person consigned to a penal colony for the rest of his life.

Now, just like any ordinary citizen, the king takes note of gossip's miserable work, traces the false tale to its source, and sues for damages.

It is easier for the human family to change the spirit than it is to change the form. In form, royalty in Belgium is little changed. But in spirit it is vastly changed: the king, when wronged, must seek redress in exactly the same manner as his humblest subject.

In Britain the form is unchanged, but the king is as impotent as a king's vassal was five hundred years ago. Conservatism clings to the form, but the spirit of democracy overrides the form and takes command of the spirit of institutions.

In this country the form of democracy has been unchanged, but the stealthy growth of special privilege produced an arrogant plutocracy which took tyrannical command of the spirit of our institutions. Without material change in form, an awakening of the people is changing the spirit of these institutions once more, this time to a real democracy far beyond the wildest dreams of the builders of the Republic.

MORE TAFT FAMILY QUARRELS.

A. Piatt Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in resigning says Secretary MacVeagh is a no good cabinet member.

Secretary MacVeagh, in accepting the resignation with thankful vindictiveness, reports that A. Piatt Andrews was a no good employe, and that he quit because he was made to.

The public will not be particularly interested, perhaps, in the merits of this controversy.

It will inevitably reflect, however, that if Mr. Taft's departments had put half the energy into the public service that they have dedicated to quarreling among themselves and with the country, the public business would have prospered far better.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The Herald hopes that the farmers of Southern Minnesota will analyze carefully just what the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission seeks to accomplish in its strange attack upon the recent order of the interstate commerce commission readjusting grain freight differentials between Minneapolis and Duluth.

The difference in freight cost on grain between the Duluth market and the Minneapolis market from points in Southwestern Minnesota was four and one-half cents, and the interstate commerce commission reduced it to three cents.

The differential from points in Southern Minnesota was five cents, and the commission reduced it to four.

Here is a saving to the farmer of a cent and a half per hundred pounds in the case of Southwestern Minnesota, and a saving of a cent in the case of Southern Minnesota. The old rate to Duluth was that much too high, and the farmer paid that much more than he should have paid.

Having figured that, if he realizes that if Messrs. Mills, Elmquist and Staples of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission succeed in getting this order knocked out he will lose this gain, he will realize just how much money the railroad commission whose salary he pays is trying to do him out of.

The rates to Minneapolis are not changed. Only the rate to Duluth is lowered so that the difference between the two markets will correspond with the distance. It is this act of giving the farmer of Southern Minnesota a rate to the Duluth market to which he is entitled that Messrs. Mills, Elmquist and Staples are criticizing.

Another thing these gentlemen apparently wish to prevent is the establishment of a Minnesota gateway where distances are equal instead of a Chicago gateway—a thing the farmers concerned never have had before. The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission seems bent on preventing their getting it now.

An explanation of the commission's voluntary breaking into something that does not concern it at all should be demanded.

The order which it criticizes helps the Duluth market by giving it what its location entitles it to. It helps the Southern Minnesota farmer by giving him rates to which he is entitled, and a competitive market which unfair differentials hitherto have denied him.

The railroad and warehouse commission appears to be opposed to that.

The order harms only the Minneapolis market and the railroads—and it harms them only by compelling them to accept a fair arrangement instead of the unfair one they had enjoyed before.

And the railroad and warehouse commission appears to be opposed to that.

The Herald asks again: Does the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission fancy that its duty lies to Minneapolis and the railroads, or to the state and its people?

THE SELF-MADE MAN.

Why is it that the "self-made man" is so often the butt of ridicule? Because he is so often a braggart and an idolator of his maker.

Of course, every man is a self-made man, and every woman a self-made woman.

Each individual is the builder of his own character and his own career, in the last analysis.

Each character and each career depend upon whether the individual builds well or ill.

Heredity may provide something to help or to hinder. Poverty may furnish discouragement or a stimulus to endeavor, according to the way you take it. Environment may make things easy, or it may make things hard. But in the long run each character and each career is the product of the individual's own creation.

Poverty may seem a handicap, but riches are a greater. More great men have risen out of the coil of poverty than have risen out of the coil of inherited wealth.

Bad heredity furnishes something to overcome; and those who overcome defects are stronger than those who were well born.

It's very like the human stomach. One man is born with a weak one that refuses to stand abuses. Another is born with a strong one that will stand anything. While your man with the weak physique is avoiding things that tax it, your man with the strong physique is boasting that he can digest horse shoes, and coming pretty near to trying it. The weak man knows his limitations, and governs himself accordingly; so he makes out fairly well through a long life, and does great and valuable work. The strong man knows no such thing as limitation, so he gorges himself, drinks strong liquors in prodigious quantities, lives well, indulges himself, and blows up like a pinch of powder in the prime of life and apparently in the pink of health. Meanwhile your weak man has been living simply, as he has to, and living long and usefully.

The term "self-made" man usually conjures up the picture of a thick-necked person with diamonds and gorgeous neckwear and gross habits, grossest of which is his habit of pointing to himself as a "self-made man" and an example to be followed because, by greed, cunning, brute force or lack of moral principle he has accumulated much wealth. He is, indeed, a "self-made man;" but it's a mighty poor job. Dicken's painted him to the life as Bounderby, in "Hard Times."

Every man is a self-made man. The drunkard in the gutter, the business man climbing rapidly the heights of success, the rogue in the dungeon, the scientist lonely on his peak of fame—all are self-made men.

The drunkard may have been born with a golden spoon in his mouth, and his inheritance of wealth may have been the millstone that dragged him to the gutter.

The rogue may have been born in comfortable circumstances, with so little need for useful direction of his ingenuity that its development took perverted form.

The successful business man may have climbed out of the slum, and the scholar may have worked his way with dogged patience from a farmer's cottage to the cloistered halls of learning.

Heredity and environment are oftener handicaps to be overcome than advantages to be made use of; and this regardless of whether they are rich or poor, good or evil. The real success in every department of human endeavor is a man who has made his own success. The real failure is a man who has created his own collapse. Nothing to which a man is born counts favorably in the making of character. No man can fail through the acts of others. Each man is, under God, the builder of his own character and his own career; the master of his own destiny.

IT RAINED MILLIONS.

Two things came down in the Northwest yesterday and the day before—rain and the price of wheat.

And two things went up—the spirits of the people of the Northwest and the prospect for a bountiful crop and widespread prosperity.

Now that the danger is over, it may be said that matters were critical during the hot, dry spell which the recent rains have broken so splendidly. Heat and drouth combined were playing havoc with the grain crops, and the outlook was getting blue.

Now, however, with the ground soaked throughout the spring wheat country and the grain revived by its welcome draft, good cheer abounds and hope commands the situation.

THE "THIRD" PARTY.

By the way, nobody seems to have noticed that the habit of calling the projected Roosevelt party "the third party" is a little impolite to our friends the Socialists, who have had a third party for quite a while now and have lately been getting a very respectable vote. Nor, for that matter, is it quite courteous to the Prohibitionists, who also have had a "third" party in the field for many years. In point of fact the Roosevelt party, if there is one, will be a "fifth" party—and if that by an association of ideas arouses thought of the traditional fifth wheel on a wagon, it will be entirely in harmony with the situation.

THINGS LIKE THIS HELP.

A well written, well printed and well illustrated pamphlet reaches The Herald under the title "'Mid the Hills and Valleys of the Koochiching." It is issued by the commercial clubs of Northome and Mizpah, two thriving neighbors among the settlements in Koochiching county. In a breezy style, whereby we recognize in part at least the handiwork of Claude Atkinson of the Northome Record, it sets forth the fertility of the soil, the beauty of the surroundings and the temptation of the opportunities that characterize this section of Minnesota.

The state is doing something to tempt settlers to Northern Minnesota, and the Northern Minnesota Development association is doing more. These individual efforts by individual communities, several of which have lately come to The Herald's notice, will add tremendously to the force and effectiveness of a campaign which will, in a very few years, turn Northern Minnesota into the richest, most prosperous and most flourishing agricultural center in the United States.

HOW ARE YOUR WITS WORKING?

The Boston Globe springs as an example of frenzied finance on a small scale an old tale which has puzzled many a mind.

You have heard it before, of course, and no doubt worked it out satisfactorily. But probably you have forgotten the solution. Here it is, and it is a good way to find out if your wits are as nimble as they were when the story was new:

"A Kansas banker," so the Globe repeats the story, "wanted a railroad ticket and had only a two-dollar bill. It required three dollars to get the ticket.

"He took the two-dollar bill to a pawnbroker, and pawned it for one dollar and fifty cents. On his way back to the station he met a friend to whom he sold the pawn ticket for a dollar and fifty cents. That gave him his three dollars.

"Now who's out a dollar?"

Just as a hint, it might be stated that if your wits are as sluggish as those of that friend, you will not solve the problem.

AN INTERESTING RELIC.

According to a local item in The Herald last evening, Duluth has an opportunity through the kindness of W. D. Lightall, president of the Antiquarian society of Montreal, to acquire a stone from the recently discovered house occupied by Daniel Greysolon, Sieur Du Lhut, whose name this city made its own. The offer should and doubtless will be accepted, and a suitable place found for the relic. It might be added to the interesting collection in the Central high school building, or a place might be found for it in the public library.

And if it could be made the nucleus of a distinctively Duluth historical collection, it would be pleasant; and the beginning of such a collection should not be long delayed.

WOODROW WILSON.

Incarnate conscience of the nation he!
Exorcist of the fierce and pitiless light
That shall consign to plumbless deeps of night
The hideous front of civic infamy!
How fitting that for his sure hand should be
The tiller of the ship of state! On height
Beyond assault the banner of the right
Be his to plant, to fare eternally!
The late despairing freshly heartened throng
Beneath his standard's glory-dripping crest.
Fearless is he, indomitably strong,
In thought, word, act, the noblest and the best—
This new St. George that battle gives to Wrong,
Setting his spear against the dragon's breast.

—JOHN TALMAN,
St. Paul.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

PLEASES BOTH PARTIES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Allow me, through you, to thank the Minnesota Democrats for the noble stand taken by them at the Baltimore convention in following out their instructions. It was one of the greatest pleasures to me to read in The Herald how Minnesota cast twenty-four votes for Governor Wilson. This convention will long be remembered and Minnesota can always be depended upon to carry out the will of her people.

I assure you that the nomination is highly satisfactory, not only to the Democrats, but to the Republicans as well, of this community.

Truly yours,
J. B. CONNORS.

Hibbing, Minn., July 3.

FLUTTERING THE TORIES.

Chicago Tribune: A well known Chicago minister, given to useful works in several directions, but inclined to try to galvanize error and help it to limp along, says:

"The so-called progressives are accomplishing nothing in separating the people into classes and arraying these classes against each other. Calling people liars and train robbers is not conducive to national prosperity and national peace."

If this were one man's oblique view of national problems it would not be worth comment, but it expresses an opinion more widely than wholesomely held.

In the first place, the only division of American citizens into classes is made by Socialists and tories. They are conscious of class if not of caste. They are conscious of something that does not exist, something that is utterly un-American and wholly-destructive. The tories would have us in castes before they were done with it, and when castes have been established democracy has been ruined.

The tories think in cast, and for that reason, when arguments are directed against special privilege, they think of privilege as aristocracy and condemn the argument on the ground that it seeks to establish class divisions and array one class against the other. This transferring of their own sentiments, whether done consciously or unconsciously, is ludicrous. Luckily it is not seriously, is ludicrous. Luckily it is not much more. It might be dangerous.

In the second place, the brief expression of sentiment quoted above reveals interestingly, so far as it is held by other people, an aversion to the cure rather than the disease.

If men engaged in draining a noisome swamp wear rough clothes and use rough language, we must order them off, shut down the work, and leave the swamp alone. Possibly water lilies will grow in it, and they are beautiful to look at. Disease may come out of it, but it must be let alone. Whatever disease we may have we must not have rough manners.

This is even more ludicrous than the first theory, and, unfortunately, it is more dangerous. Mental sloth is common enough, and it always resents an incentive to action. If aroused it is more apt to attack the influence which is disturbing it and trying to awaken it than the thing that is destructive, pleasantly and politely but surely destructive.

There are just two general classes in American politics today—a class that wants to be on the square and a class that does not. If calling the latter class a lot of thieves succeeds in demonstrating that fact, the persons disturbed thereby would do well to look beyond manners and at truths.

The One Great Need.

Baltimore telegram to the New York Tribune: The following telegram was received by the chairman of the Minnesota delegation from a committee of citizens of Minneapolis, the Flour City:

"Stick to Wilson all summer. If necessary, we'll send flour."

He replied, collect:

"Send dough."

THE WAY OF POVERTY.

Life: The social reformer set out blithely upon his task of abolishing poverty. He came upon a politician and asked his aid.

"Too bad, old man," replied the politician. "I should like to oblige you, but poverty is not an issue just now. I'm afraid you will have to move on."

The social reformer went on a bit farther and met a physician. He asked the physician to help.

"Really, good sir," replied the physician; "you will have to excuse me. Without poverty I should have to go out of business, for it is the cause of many of the diseases I am called upon to treat."

The social reformer went on a bit farther and met a manufacturer, whose aid he solicited.

"Can't do it at all, sir," declared the manufacturer emphatically. "It would be ruinous to my business. Without poverty I could not hire little children or get adults at such low wages. You will have to move on, sir."

The social reformer went on a bit farther and came upon a charity worker, whose help he requested.

"I cannot deny that it would be a good thing in a way," replied the charity worker, "but I cannot assist. You see, there is a vast quanity of capital invested in this and other charity organizations. Also they employ a great many people and give a great many others an opportunity to ease their consciences through contributions. Without poverty, of course, all this effort would be wasted."

The social reformer went on a bit farther and, meeting a pauper, asked him to help abolish poverty.

"A splendid idea," declared the pauper, "and I should be delighted to help, but as I have neither job, money nor influence, there is nothing I can do."

The social reformer moved on and at latest reports was still moving.

Her Gentle Hint.

Judge—Borem—"Some one must have been joking with Miss Suburbs about me and told her I owned the street railway system here."

Porem—"What makes you think so?"

Borem—"Why, I was out to call on her last night, and every time she heard a car she said, 'There comes your car, Mr. Borem.'"

Long Life to It.

Aitkin Age: The Bay Lake Fruit Growers' association has grown to the point of success that has brought the antagonism of the big commission houses. The association will remain an independent organiation and do a legitimate business with the belief that as producers of superior products they will always find a ready market.

WILSON.

Indianapolis News (Ind.): Now we have at the hands of the Baltimore convention the nomination of a man of the cleanest character, of marked ability, of absolute honesty and of unswerving courage. Woodrow Wilson is a representative of the best type of our citizenship, and a progressive who has met fairly every test to which he has been subjected. He was by all odds the strongest candidate before the convention. Governor Wilson was chosen, not only without the help of the interests or their political managers, but over their desperate opposition. Murphy, Tammany, Hearst and Ryan fought him to the last. The candidate, therefore, owes nothing to these influences—nothing to any influences that would swerve him from the path of duty. The convention completed its work by nominating Governor Marshall as its candidate for the vice presidency. In our opinion it chose wisely. Mr. Marshall is a man of sound principles, high ideals, unimpeachable integrity and good ability. The country is to be felicitated, not only on the character of the ticket, but on the way in which the nomination was brought about.

Springfield Republican (Ind.): The nomination of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency by the Democratic party is one of the most encouraging and inspiring events brought about in American politics for many years. The cause of the people with him in the White House would be safe. He embodies the aspirations of twentieth century democracy along lines of stable development, and at the same time he possesses the mental equilibrium, the temperamental coolness and balance, the educated man's knowledge of world history and affairs, and the appreciation of the wonderful complexity and delicate adjustment of the economic and social organism sufficient to check headiness of action and insure the supremacy of reason over fanaticism.

Governor Wilson represents, too, a form of democracy which should be encouraged in America rather than the form which Mr. Roosevelt now represents. There is no trace of Caesarism and Bonapartism in his candidacy. He menaces no wholesome republican tradition like that against the third term. He stands for democratic democracy, and not for a showy, imperialistic democracy. Woodrow Wilson gets the nomination without any "strings" upon it or upon him. To a degree which holds true of no other one among the leading candidates of the two parties, he is without obligation save to the whole people.

Kansas City Star (Roosevelt): The Star believes that the new party is the formal continuation of the progressive cause. For all that, the Star again commends Mr. Wilson for his fine worth and his good fight. The Democratic party made its wisest selection. But the hope of the republic and its welfare do not lie with either of the old parties.

Kansas City Journal (standpat Republican, railroad mouthpiece): The nomination of Woodrow Wilson is another illustration of the fact that the Democracy may generally be counted upon to do the wrong thing. Governor Wilson has not the first requisite for the presidency, and if by any chance he should be elected, he would be one of the most inconsequential and ineffective men who ever occupied the exalted office.

New York Times (Ind. Dem.): In the nomination of Woodrow Wilson the Democratic party regains its ancient estate of worth, of dignity, of power. It escapes the thraldom of little men and ignoble leaders. It takes as its chief a man of that statesman-like quality which benefits the presidential office. • • • No bargain or understanding with Mr. Murphy or with Wall Street, nor with any interest, brought about his nomination. He does not owe his nomination to Mr. Bryan, nor will he be in the slightest degree under Mr. Bryan's control or guidance; he is too firm, too self-reliant, some would say too obstinate. • • • That Wilson column in the roll-call table, advancing by measured but irresistible gains, mostly of a few ballots on each ballot, with only now and then a trifling loss, quickly regained, starting with 324 on the first ballot and rising above 500 on the thirty-ninth, is full of teaching and inspiration for men who are loyal to a principle, a cause and a man. They won, they were bound to win, by their courage, their determination and their disinterested devotion to the best interests of the party. They had no leader, they needed none, save that spirited Democracy that was common to them all.

New York World: Woodrow Wilson will be the next president of the United States. But he will be more than that. He will be the first president of the United States in a generation to go into office owing favors to nobody except the American people, and under obligations to nothing except the general welfare. The American people have set out to regain possession of their government, and Woodrow Wilson was nominated for president because he embodies that issue. The bosses and the plutocrats who tried to prevent his nomination were beaten by the power of the people, and the power that nomisated him is the power that will elect him. The United States is back to the benediction pronounced by Abraham Lincoln on the battlefield of Gettysburg —"that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the peopl shall not prish from the earth."

Buffalo Times (Dem.): In naming a presidential candidate, qualifications and availability are equal fctors. Woodrow Wilson means the highest standard of qualifications, and his availability is pre-eminent. He will poll the maximum voting strength of the Democratic party. He will poll so overwhelming an independent vote that any residue will be a negligible quantity. He will poll so enormous a vote of Republican Progressives, that his candidacy is demonstrably and concededly a death-blow to the ambitions of William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt. Republican Progressives are not going to cling to the tinsel progressiveism of Roosevelt when they have the opportunity to embrace the genuine progressiveism of Wilson. They are not going to be content with a Roosevelt protest against Taft, when the nomination of Wilson gives them the certainty of defeating both Taft and Roosevelt outright.

Buffalo Inquirer (Dem.): Woodrow Wilson can say "no" to supporters who ask him to do wrong. That is among the highest qualifications of a presidential candidate. He proved it when it was proposed to repudiate the voice of the primary and elect James Smith, Jr., to the United States senate. He had to prove it again and again before he could make it understood. That is not ingratitude. It is placing right and the public interests above wrong and selfish interests. He will not be overenthusiastically supported by sympathisers with the boss of New Jersey and tremblers before the possibility of like fate, but that loss will be credit and profit in addition if the people still love strong men for the enemies they have made.

Woodrow Wilson stands foremost among sane Progressives. If Col. Roosevelt is content with sane progressiveism, he will not have to go ahead with his new party.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Ebb Tides of the Soul.

I like to go down by the shore best during the hours of high water. Mud flats and slippery rocks may do for an occasional expedition with the children looking for shells and star fish, but, generally, flood tide has far more attraction. Everything unpleasant is submerged; the sea rises in a clean cut line along the white cliffs. Our little yawl will go anywhere without danger of scraping bottom. Yet, in the economy of nature, the tide is out each day as many hours as it is in.

The tides of life do not always stand at flood any more than do the tides of old ocean. The waters recede from us and leave an expanse of sun-baked sand. There are days when we feel no glad abounding flow of vitality. Nerves are spent and the pulse is lowered. The blood seems to course with sluggish current through our dull veins.

Mental states, moreover, are tinged by physical. Work loses interest for us, friends seem distant and our ordinary pleasures pall upon the taste. We come somewhere near the condition of the ancient sage who lamented that the grasshopper had become a burden and desire had failed.

Discouragement is a very dangerous mood and we should beware of it. Ships are apt to strike all kinds of reefs when the tide is out and so are craft on what poets call the sea of life. In hours of depression we are apt to do and say many foolish things. Judgment is warped and right decisions are practically impossible. Discouraged people cannot, as a rule, see facts clearly or work with full effectiveness. The only safe rule is to fight the mood as one would fight the plague. There are various first-aid-to-the-depressed remedies that anyone may apply in his own case. A brisk walk in God's beautiful out of doors is one of the best. Blue devils hate fresh air and will run at the smell of it. Nature is so immense and calm and unruffled that our little worries seem rather insignificant when we come into her presence.

Then there are always certain rather uninteresting but necessary tasks, that we have put off in happier hours that may be gotten through with when the tide is out. To set resolutely at such practical matters as need attention, to clear off accumulated odds and ends of work is, strangely enough, another way back to a normal and contented mind.

It is well enough to remember, withal, that the tide is coming in again. States of depression are only transient. By and by the returning floods of hope and courage will surge over us. Meanwhile we can make the most possible of uninspired hours and dull days.

A resolute and persistent spirit in hours of disappointment and depression is one mark of genius. Let me cite an example: When you look at the splendid editions of Thoreau's works now available in the book stores, reflect that fifty years ago no one wanted them at any price. Soon after the publication of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers," 700 copies of the book were delivered at the author's home with a note from the publisher saying that they were unsalable. "My works," Thoreau writes in his diary, "are now piled up on one side of my chamber, half as high as my head. This is authorship; these are the works of my brain. Nevertheless, in spite of this result, sitting beside the inert mass of my works, I take up my pen tonight with as much satisfaction as ever."

Even ebb tide may be a heroic and productive season for one with such a spirit. THE PARSON.

How Aviators Became Famous.

Current Literature: Hubert Latham began his career as a consumptive street car conductor, doomed by the doctors. But either the doctors were wrong or flying is conducive to health for Hubert Latham is still alive and well, having flown more miles and won more prize money than any other aviator in the world.

The Wright brothers ran a bicycle shop in a small American city when they first began to realize the possibilities of the developing motor car power plant as a means to the solution of the aerial problem. They made themselves the first men in the world to get off the ground with a man-carrying power-driven machine capable of continued flight. For the last few years the Wright brothers—one of whom recently died, not in the air, but where most men die, in bed—have been regarded among the world's foremost manufacturers of flying machines, and the property of the firm is reputed to be worth close to a million dollars.

Curtiss was a small motor cycle manufacturer until he achieved fame and fortune by the air route. Henry Farman was a bicycle racer until the sirens of the air allured him.

Calling the Roll.

New York World: "We hereby declare ourselves opposed to the nomination of any representative of or any one under obligation to • • • the privilege-seeking or favor-seeking class."

This resolution, sensational, malicious and unnecessary as it may have been, came like a bombshell into the Democratic convention, but it was adopted by an overwhelming vote, as it should have been. While there are Democrats who undoubtedly belong to the class mentioned, not many of them have the hardihood to avow the fact.

To grasp the true significance of the Baltimore episode we must imagine, if we can, how such a declaration would be received in a Republican convention, where every candidate is pledged to the privilege-seeking and favor-seeking protective tariff.

Privilege and favor are the colossal wrongs of our government and our politics. Everybody knows it. Can we call the roll against them too often or too publicly?

For Vice President.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Philligrew has made a decidedly weak official, hasn't he?" said the first man.

"Absolutely weak. He is the weakest man we ever put up."

"No backbone."
"No convictions."
"No sincerity."
"No sense of humor."
"No tact."
"No dignity."
"But the party owes him a debt of gratitude."
"Yes, he's been a cheerful giver."
"What are you going to do for him?"
"Oh, it's all fixed. We are going to suggest him for vice president."

A Different Thing.

"But unconsciously," said Mr. Bennett, "the former chairman of a village caucus condemned the public speech much more effectively than I could ever do when he rose in a somewhat disorderly meeting and remarked:

"'Listen, gentlemen, listen. I am not going to make a speech. I've got something to say.'"

•••A terrible fight is raging at Homestead, Pa., between the iron workers and Pinkerton men. At 4:30 this morning 300 Pinkerton detectives landed from barges at the Homestead steel works of the Carnegie company. Immediately an army of 5,000 strikers who had gathered expecting their landing, broke over the fences and charged upon the invaders. The men were heavily armed and firing began at once. The latest report is that thirty-eight men have been shot dead. A cannon was fired by the strikers from the bank on the Pinkerton men who had been forced to retreat to their boats.

CHICAGO—BALTIMORE

By SAVOYARD.

If, as is so confidently predicted, the Republican party is dead, there is nothing strange about it. The wonder is that a sectional party lived so long. It named, by its sixteen national conventions, as many national tickets made up of candidates of president and vice president of the United States, and it was defeated outright but three times, 1856, 1884 and 1892. Beaten also in 1876, it nullified the people's decision and appropriated the usufruct. And now, this good year of 1912, it again set a squadron in the field and it may be or may not be its last campaign. That depends on Baltimore, this being written before the close of the grand inquest the Democrats instituted on June 25.

It is true that the president and vice president chosen in 1828 hailed from the same section; but of the 178 votes cast in the electoral college for Andrew Jackson, 73 came from the North, and of the 171 votes John C. Calhoun received for vice president, 73 came from the upper side of the Mason and Dixon line. The opposition ticket was also sectional geographically, but Adams for president and Rush for vice president both received electoral votes from the South.

So it will be seen that the first politically sectional ticket that was triumphant was that of 1860, when Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin, one from Illinois and the other from Maine, were chosen president and vice president. As had been predicted a hundred times by wise statesmen, that result was followed by revolution and war, from which the stronger emerged the victor. Lincoln saw the fatal defect of a sectional party in 1864 and forced the nomination for vice president of Andrew Jackson, who, like himself, sprang from the "poor white" class of the South; but since 1864 the Republican party has been sectional geographically, and it was always sectional politically. And in the tickets it has named since 1860 the Democratic party has also been sectional geographically, but from its birth the Democratic party has been national politically.

Thus for more than half a century the North has been running things and if we are to believe Theodore Roosevelt and a majority of the Republican party the North has botched the job, for they say that the country, the government and the people have been handed over to the great combinations —malefactors of predatory wealth—to exploit, to plunder, to deprave. Verily it is time for the party that put the country in that fix to die. There is discontent everywhere and everybody says that the country is going to the dogs.

• • •

That Republican convention out in Chicago was run by a Southern plutocrat who made $100,000,000 or so in Wall Street—a Mr. Ryan, Thomas Fortune Ryan. At this writing he is fishing in the Democratic pool at Baltimore, and got a fine strike when his lawyer Alton B. Parker was named for temporary chairman by the committee on arrangements. All the interest that Mr. Ryan has in Democratic politics this year—or rather the chief interest—is the defeat of Woodrow Wilson for the nomination for president. He was for Wilson for that distinction until Wilson refused to be bought by him. Then it was that the combination against Wilson was formed, which will beat him if he is beaten.

And it amounts to this: If the Democratic party shall name a yaller dog ticket this year it will resurrect and G. O. P. that will sweep the country in 1916 and acquire another lease on power lasting at least twenty years.

• • •

But to return to mtton. It was no vain boast when the Republicans called themselves "the Grand Old Party." Verily it was "a Hoss in its Day." When it attained power in 1861 it was a pronounced, if not a hopeless minority; but it recruited armies the most formidable the world had yet seen, armed, equipped, sustained them, and fought the bravest war in Anglo-Saxon annals. It created a currency out of nothing and paid the expenses of the mighty conflict with it. It overran and overthrew eleven great states, emancipated 4,000,000 slaves, clothed them with citizenship and armed them with the ballot. It spanned the continent with railroads from ocean to ocean. It took a mediaeval and infamous system of taxation, invented by pirates of the Mediterranean, and made it an economic policy, twin sister of "loyalty," wedded spouse of "patriotism." In short it played the devil, and let us hope we are well and forever rid of it.

Out of its system of unconstitutional and rascally taxation millionaires sprang up in many quarters made rich by law—law that forced one citizen to "protect" the business of another citizen, who confessed that his business could not support itself. This is the supreme, paramount, tremendous issue of our politics today, and the misery of it is that the Democratic party itself swarms with protectionists.

• • •

But out of the present situation, whether the Baltimore convention accepts Tom Ryan for master or not, we get the consolation that the day of the corrupt political boss is nearly over. Penrose and Jim Smith, Barnes and Tom Martin, Crane and Tom Taggart, Hemenway and Tammany Murphy, all will have to go. The people intend to do their own thinking and vote as they please.

Never were party lines so slack. To bolt is no longer the mortal sin it was. Indeed it is become not only a duty but a virtue. The convention will give way to the primary, and a way will be found to prevent the lavish or the corrupt use of money in party primaries or regular elections.

• • •

I have never admired Roosevelt. Now, as always, I think him a dangerous man; but give the devil his due. Even if it was with selfish end in view, Roosevelt, perhaps more than any other American, has been instrumental in arousing the public conscience and setting the masses to thinking. And there is a grim resolve on the part of the people to extirpate privilege in laws and policies, and to overturn the garbage cans at which corrupt political bosses feast.

And besides that, the last one-third of that speech Roosevelt delivered at Chicago on the night of June 17 was a wonderful and masterly thing. Get it and read it again. It will set you a-thinking.

TRIP ON THE BEAUTIFUL RHINE

Perfect Weather Gives Mr. Rice an Opportunity to Fully Enjoy the Splendid Scenery—Ravenous Porters and Deck-waiters of the Rhine Steamers—Heidelberg and Its Famous University.

Heidelberg, June 21.—To the Editor of The Herald: We have escaped to Heidelberg! I mean we have actually shaken off the ravenous porters and deck waiters of the Rhine steamers, and made our escape and are now camped peacefully on the quiet beautiful mountainside in this famous old German university town. Talk about the poor little fly that fell into the ointment, or the gravy, or whatever it was his mis-step spoiled, these Rhine porters are worse than all the flies that ever drew near any ointment, had they all fallen in in unison. Were it not for the never ceasing endeavors of these brethren to compel you to accept some sort of service (and pay for it) the Rhine trip would be an ideal trip. I suggest a new company and promise to work for it, and assure any prospective investor it will be a popular move; a company to navigate the Rhine, and a number of other places, where the poor traveler, who has no more sense than to desire to see things he came to see, and gather some attendant information as he goes, can have a fair chance to meditate, and at least make his own suggestions as to the attention he desires. I was well nigh ready to kick the whole crew overboard, and navigate the craft myself, Lorelei or no Lorelei. The very greatest burden in the job of seeing the things in the world you really want to see, is that which is imposed in an artificially polite manner, by a whole troop of men, women and children who have studiously posted themselves along the well known route, and determined to make their living out of the enforced services they can render. Most every traveler starts from home as sweet as honey, and as happy as a bird set free, but he sours like milk in a thunderstorm in a short exposure to these leeches who follow him about to get everything he has. Oh, well, let me stop, I am sweet yet.

Up the Rhine.

We sailed up the Rhine. Note the direction, please. I emphasize the direction, not merely because it takes more time to sail up the stream, but rather because the scenery is in an ascending scale. It is better to journey from the flats into the hills, than from the hills into the flats. The day was sailed was perfect. We were pleased, for Germany has treated us bad on weather. But this day the clouds were swept back, and a pure sky poured out a morning that in itself was worth seeing. As our ship turned away from the dock the great cathedral of Cologne seemed to climb right up out of the clinging houses that had held it in, and now stood shaken, there of and stood absolutely dominating the scene. It is a glorious picture, and from that splendid view till the day's close at the fine old city of Mayence, every minute changed and made again, or rather anew, the wandering view before us. I am not a picture maker with words. If I was I would not try to mix my vocabulary for this job, so you must just expect me here to describe this trip. You can buy that in books. I only carried my note book and jotted down a few things that none but I perhaps cared to note.

The first thing that struck the practical things into my wandering imagination, happened as I was meditating upon the city of Bonn, the birthplace of Beethoven. I was trying to touch up my musical memory a little with some of the facts of this interesting man, when a big raft of logs went floating by in tow of a tug boat. It brought me home. I forgot my music, and thought I was on St. Louis bay. You Duluth lumbermen should have seen it. It was all built together, and upon it were two board shacks for the men to live in, and at the rear of it were six large rudders to steer it withal. How's that for logging? Who ever heard of a rudder on a log before? That was new to me anyhow.

The Rhine Legends.

When I had recovered myself and looked about me again, the Rhine legends had begun to bloom. Of all the ridiculous tales I have ever read the ones they have woven along the Rhine are the worst. My boys can make up better stories when the lights are out and they are afraid in bed. But these stories live. They tell me they are very ancient. I am willing to believe it. Many of them are too old ever to be old again. But I have a book of them in which the author declares it has proven so popular that he will have to rewrite it again. Enough to have to rewrite it again. Enough to have to rewrite this one. Drochenfels, is perhaps the most commanding view on the entire trip. Upon its highflung crest stands the old castle with the flavor of terrified and the dragn and the great fight over the pretty maid. You know the rest. Then they came, St. Martin, Sterrenberg and Liebenstein, The Muse. The Cat. The Rheinfels and Katz. The Lurlei, or Lorelei, the only one of all. Then the fame of the old rock which has gone on wing of song and poem and story to all the world, brought every one's attention. Now I trembled. Who knew but the fair water-maid would get even our boat? We supposed there would be a struggle anyhow. My old German teacher years ago used to frighten me terribly low to justify the enthusiasm she would put into the story of the Lurlei. When we arrived on the scene, the only dangerous maid in sight was one of a dozen who graced the summit of the rock and waved at us, but we got safely by, and a passenger train went plunging right through the rock, in a great tunnel, and lying peacefully achored at its base was an old workboat, upon which workmen were engaged in changing the buoys. Oh Lorelei, you have lost your story now. Anyhow, we made the whole trip safely and saw a hundred other ships of every sort on the very same course. Mayence found night for us, and we landed. I remembered their famous man Gutenberg, and asked for directions to find his house. The "portier" told me I could easily find it. It was now occupied by a brewery and the Gutenberg Brau was famous. I cleared my throat and started for the scene. I did honor to the great man anyhow and felt sorry for his new association.

Heidelberg University.

Heidelberg needs three letters all its own. I see I must get my own newspaper if I don't write less. But so much has already been written about this little city that I am not needed to herald it. Mark Twain and Longfellow and Goethe have written it well, Turner has painted it, and a great company of real folks have decided it is all right. Its university, perhaps as famous as any in the world, yet with its face-butchering fads among the students, the seat of the biggest fool practice doubtless on earth today among even half-civilized people not to say educational; its grand old castle with as fine a history back of it as any of these crowding castles on the proud hills of Germany; yes and a beautiful old ruin it is today. We lingered long about it. Mark Twain saw it well and described it for us all when he saw it "out of a billowy upheaval of vivid green foliage rising in huge ruin, with empty window arches, ivy-mailed battlements, mouldering towers—a Lear of inanimate nature, deserted, discrowned, beaten by the storms, but royal still and beautiful."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CONCENTRATION AND CONTROL. A solution of the trust problem in the United States. By Charles R. Van Hise, president of the Wisconsin state university. New York: The Macmillan company. $2 net.

The title of Dr. Van Hise's book is itself a full and sufficient answer to the trust problem. Let business concentrate all it pleases, short of monopoly except where monopoly is natural, but let public regulation safeguard the public's interests to the end that the people may share in the manifest benefits of centralized industry.

This question and this answer Dr. Van Hise discusses clearly, logically and interestingly. His solution of the trust problem is one to which The Herald long ago committed itself. In an editorial published several years ago this newspaper said: "Competition is dead; long live regulation." This if we may say so, epitomizes the book now before us.

It is shown that in the early days, the average community was self-sufficient. It grew or made what it needed. The demands of the Civil war could not be met by the small factories, so concentration was fostered, and railroad developments following the war gave it a tremendous impetus.

Concentration has manifest economic advantages. It facilitates the handling of material on a large scale; it makes it possible to use machinery much more than can be done in the small factory. It permits an economical subdivision and specialization of labor; it permits a single concern to handle all the stages of manufacture; it permits making this same product in different factories in different places, or assigning one specific function to the various factories, as the management deems most economical and profitable; it permits great saving through the utilization of by-products; it fosters the consolidation of allied industries; the large concerns is creating and to use the most up-to-date methods and machinery; it makes it possible to conduct investigating departments to discover new processes and new methods. It makes it possible to save money and increase profits through buying in large quantities, through better selling organizations, through ability to handle large orders, through better methods of reaching foreign markets, through lessening of losses from bad debts, through regulation of production, and through smaller capital required per unit; it offers greater opportunity for a high order of ability in all lines: it can and often does provide steadier employment for labor, better wages, better protection against accidents, etc.

"Taking the entire problem into account," says Dr. Van Hise, "it is believed future quantitative investigation will show that the concentration must go far in order to give the maximum of efficiency, although it is not held that it should go to the extent that the element of monopoly enters. It must be possible to secure a price based upon investments instead of capitalization, or what the traffic will bear, it is believed the price in most cases will be sufficiently low to justify the existing concentrations."

One might go farther and ask what we have to fear, given adequate public regulation, even of "monopoly." Van Hise, however, stops short of that point.

Competition has been relied upon to protect the public. Dr. Van Hise shows clearly what it has long been evident to many, that competition is a broken reed. Not only does it bring manifest disadvantages, but it no longer does what it was expected to do. Competition was expected to regulate quality, but it produced poor quality and fraudulent foods until the pure food laws began to regulate a competition so infamous. Competition was supposed to regulate prices, but it has failed. It sometimes brought low prices for a time, but only until the weaker were crowded out, and there is scarcely a line of business in which some form of agreement has not been made to protect prices.

"Competition has ceased to control prices. Where prices are controlled it is through a public utilities commission."

Competition involves innumerable wastes, for all of which the consumer pays. These wastes, too, compel combinations which no law has yet been able to stop. Probably no law ever will avail to stop them. Nor is it essential that they should be stopped, if they can be regulated so the public will get its share of the benefits.

A long chapter is devoted to an interesting discussion of many examples of combination in which their histories and methods are intelligently outlined. There is also a comprehensive discussion of attempts, here and abroad, to stop combinations and to regulate them. The Sherman anti-trust law is recognized as the complete and ignominious failure that it is. "The impotency of the Sherman act to accomplish the results for which it was made has been admitted by all, alike by those who would have it amended so as to give greater freedom in combination and by those who would have it amended so as to give a very strict construction, with the vain hope that it might thereby destroy co-operation."

Here are the objects which Dr. Van Hise deems essential: To retain a regulated competition; to prohibit unfair practices toward the public or toward competitors; to permit reasonable, regulated co-operation; to permit corporations to be large enough for the highest economic efficiency; to provide full publicity; to conserve resources which have been wasted under unregulated competition; to provide just rewards to labor; to promote the best possible social conditions; to provide prices fair to capital and consumer alike; to let the public share in the benefits of co-operation; to stop over-capitalization; to prohibit the excessive promoters' charges which have been levied in the past; to guard against speculative management of corporations.

Dr. Van Hise's remedy is simple. The railroads are being regulated by the interstate commerce commission; let there be a commission, or a national commission and state commissions as well, to regulate industry. States like Wisconsin have provided public utility commissions that deal fairly alike with the public utilities and the public; let the nation do the same thing with the trusts.

"It should be emphasized," he says, "that it is not proposed that the commission shall have the power to regulate all prices, but only this power where there is a real monopoly or the market is controlled through co-operation. Also a commission need go no farther in a given case than to fix a maximum price or a minimum price, which both, as may be required by the situation, leaving competition to regulate further within the prescribed limits. As at present, competition would remain the sole regulative of prices in the vast number of instances where the market is not controlled. These qualifications enormously simplify the task of the commission."

The book throws a great flood of light and sanity upon the situation. The discussion it makes is free from partisan confusion and prejudice. It is timely, adequate, clear and informing. Its criticisms are just, its remedy is logical and would be, in our opinion, effective.

WOMAN AND SOCIAL PROGRESS. By Scott Nearing and Nellie M. S. Nearing. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.50 net.

Poor woman! Ellen Key is sure that last century was the century of woman and that the present will be marked as the century of the child. But even so, Miss Key insists that women assume apparently complete responsibility for the progress of the child. And then every other author who mentions the name of woman piles on her a load of duties, responsibilities, privileges, until woman of today might well groan in spirit, and lay her down in despair, longing for the return of the days when the self-appointed lord of creation laid her duties to bed and saw that she did them.

Bernard Shaw has not hesitated to call attention to the present day woman's duty in providing for the race the superman, even showing her the way to seize and make good use of political rights. Then comes along another author with a high ideal of woman's responsibility and asks with rhetorical questions how the abuses of present-day life would still exist if woman did her full duty. If she was a perfect mother, the ideal wife, and fulfilled all of her other relationships as she should; if she had been able at the time the tariff was discussed to present herself before congress and tell just how many sheep had been sheared, into how many stockings that wool had been woven, the number of individuals and the fractions thereof who had worn them, then wouldn't the schedule on wool and other things that directly affect the home have been revised in a different manner? Or at least ask the lady who is death on oil companies. She further wants to know if woman can't do that, why should she want to vote?

And poor, longsuffering, erring, frail, weak but beautiful woman reads all that authors write, and scrambles madly to keep up, in part at least, with the duties and ideals that literary folks provide for her. Among the latest of such offerings comes this volume from the New York City company bearing the names of Scott Nearing, Ph. D., of the Wharton school, University of Pennsylvania, author of "Social Adjustment," and Nellie M. S. Nearing, B. A., Bryn Mawr, and M. A. University of Pennsylvania. The authors have added little in their book of 281 pages to what has been forcefully and eloquently said before. John Stuart Mill in the middle of the last century pronounced in his "The Subjection of Women" the views that are being widely discussed as ultra modern today. Olive Schreiner, with power and dignity presented the modern woman's problem in her widely read book, "Woman and Labor," and there is no periodical so indifferent but it has presented the problem as it appeals to preachers, lawyers, former presidents, women in and out of marriage, and any one else a bit inclined to adjust or attempt to adjust the status, purpose and reason of being of woman.

"To the many girls who have come to us, uncertain, perplexed, asking 'What shall I do?' this answer is dedicated." So reads the dedication of the Nearings' book; but whether it would solve the question for a single individual girl may well be doubted. The thirty-two chapters are devoted to a careful presentation of the innate capacity, environmental influences upon American women, the opportunities before American women, and woman and the future. The work denotes careful and painstaking effort, but lacks in brilliance of style, nor does it hold attention through the originality of thought or expression.

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH AND THE CITY STREETS. By Jane Addams. New York: The Macmillan company, 50 cents.

The girl who goes wrong, the boy who falls to drink and vice, the child who runs away, the little girls who butts her head against a stone wall, are all only the outgrowth of an industrial and social system that takes from youth all that it has and gives nothing in return. Jane Addams would have wholesome recreation for children the concern of the city. She would substitute the municipal dance hall for the saloon dance hall. She would teach the factory child the relation of its particular work to the finished product. She would direct the surplus energy of youth into channels in which it would be put to good effect.

Jane Addams' broad grasp of the social problems of the city is revealed no better in any of her works than in this splendid little book, which has been issued anew as part of the Macmillan Standard library.

BOTH SIDES OF THE SHIELD. By Major Archibald W. Butt. Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott company. $1 net.

Major Butt's tragic death on the steamship Titanic is made occasion for a republication of this work, which first appeared in 1905. In it, Major Butte revealed his love for the South and its people, and his sympathy with the old-time planters who were forced to struggle in poverty through the industrial depression following the Civil war. The story, simple in theme, is rich in description and depth of understanding and is a monument to the author. The present edition is prefaced by an appreciation of his dead military aide, written by President Taft.

A FARMER'S NOTE BOOK. By C. E. D. Phelps. Boston: Richard G. Badger. $1.50 net.

This book is a real find. It is quaint, human—the work of a man who sees and thinks and speculates and arranges his thoughts and speculations in philosophical order. Mingled with the chronicle of the day's work on a New England farm are reflections on life and living, on nature and its wonders, on letters, on people and customs, all full of surprises. A February observation on the state of the winter wheat field is compelled with a reflection on how "a pot of liquor" illumines many of Dickens' "grimy, gloomy, squalid interiors." A consideration of Cinderella's glass slipper and a discussion of glass in history are followed immediately by some thoughts on the effect of soil characteristics on the washing of gullies. A suggestion of how best to split a chunk of wood by bringing gravitation to your aid when you turn the ax and hit the block with it, the piece of wood dividing itself against the blade, leads to a learned discussion of the history of agricultural tools, etc. Much entertainment and infinite variety in this book.

THE BLUE WALL. By Richard Washburn Child. Boston: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.25 net.

Mr. Child has written many uncommonly good short stories, and now he has written an uncommonly good long one—a mystery story that is really mysterious, and which engages the reader's fascinated attention from first page to last. It is written vastly better than most such novels, and its plot is most cleverly woven. Mystery—haunting, captivating mystery—thrills through it from the beginning; or, rather, mysteries, which presently prove to be mysteriously related. There are some extraordinarily vivid characters, also. It is a "thriller," but one of the best type, and it is guaranteed to entertain.

THE BURDEN OF POVERTY: What To Do. (Art of Life Series.) By Charles F. Dole. New York: B. W. Huebsch. 50 cents net.

Because he all but misses the fundamental need of a social and industrial readjustment that shall, working hand in hand with the remedies he proposes, bring about a fairer distribution of the fruits of toil and enterprise, we found Mr. Dole's contribution to this important subject rather vague. However, he has made an interesting study which throws some light. After showing how the single tax, trade unionism and Socialism will fail to solve the problem of poverty, he proposes this program: Elimination of wastes, individual and social, such as intemperance, war and inefficient government; the adoption of a practical system of education, good government and universal arbitration. These are good things to do, but they will not, unaided, solve the problem of poverty. The solution lies deeper than that, and roots in political and industrial injustices which apparently have failed to impress Mr. Dole as they have impressed pretty nearly everybody else.

THE SUPER RACE: An American Problem. (Art of Life Series.) By Scott Nearing. New York: B. W. Huebsch. 50 cents net.

A super race—a race of human beings perfect physically, mentally and socially—is no idle dream. By using common sense and science, man has bred super races of pigs and chickens and cows and horses. By using the same things he can, if he will, breed a human super race.

This is the view Mr. Nearing takes in this practical and interesting essay. The qualities of the super man are thus set forth: physical normality, mental capacity, aggressiveness, concentration, sympathy and vision. The means by which this super man may be produced are these: (1) Eugenics, the science of race culture; (2) social adjustment, the science of molding institutions; (3) education, the science of individual development. There are two fields in eugenics, negative and positive. The negative field—the forbidding of human defectives to flood the world with more defectives—is close at hand and in part has already been entered. The positive field—the continual improvement of the fit—is as yet academic; but it is as sound as the breeding of fine horses.

Mr. Nearing believes that the creation of the super race is America's distinctive opportunity, and he pleads with enthusiastic zeal for a eugenic conscience.

MEMORY CORNER. By Tom Gallon. New York: G. W. Dillingham company. $1.25 net.

Into the peaceful atmosphere of a little home in Little Place, inhabited by two maiden sisters and the daughter of a former sweetheart of one of them, comes Michael Doran, son of their younger sister who ran away in her youth. He is a temperamental youth with a wonderful voice being developed by an old friend, a tempestuous but lovable teacher. Love springs up between the boy and girl, but when he goes into the world to sing, an unworthy woman wins his affections, throws him over, and he returns to Little Place to die. It is a quaint little story, well told. The characters are the characters one likes to meet in books that have a story to tell. One rejoices with them, sorrows with them and sympathizes with them, and leaves them with regret.

MASTERING FLAME. Anonymous. New York: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.35 net.

The old, old triangle problem may have many angles within it. The two men and the woman who are the central figures in "Mastering Flame," are types. Randal Johnston is a man of business with a beautiful wife on whom he showers every material comfort, but from whom he unconsciously withholds sympathy and whom he has not the capacity of understanding. Randal Wayne is a dilettante with a comfortable consular berth at Hongkong and an ambition only to stave off promotion. Lilith Armistead is a woman with a love for the material, willing to accept what her husband gives and to forego what he withholds.

Whether a man and a woman can live as husband and wife for eight years without knowing each other better than John Armistead and his wife are represented, is a question. For the purpose of the story's representation serves. Randal Wayne awakens the dormant passions of Lilith, but flees before them, and when she goes to join him, the ship is burned and she goes down with it.

The plot of the story in itself is not unusual, but the anonymous author shows a deep insight into human nature. He or she—but a good probture. He or she—but a good probably be correct—probes the depths of a woman's heart and a man's ignorance of the other sex. The author writes with assurance and understanding. The story holds the attention and gains appreciation. To a Catholic, the author's conception of the Catholic religion must appear absurd, but that is a mere technical defect. In the fundamentals, the story is good. When the author's veil of mystery is dropped, due homage will be paid. "The Mastering Flame" is said to be a first novel, and one may expect that others will follow as gain appreciation in the literary world.

THE TOWN OF CROOKED WAYS. By J. S. Fletcher. Boston: Dana Estes & Co. $1.25 net.

The town of Normansholt as described by Mr. Fletcher certainly deserves the name the title of the story applies to it. Drinking, gambling, gossiping, cheating people, living in a town that furnished dark alleys and winding lanes for the many who preferred them, are the people of the story. The flight of an unworthy bank president, the stoning of a girl, and the violent death of two men give a tragic climax. The story is sensational enough to suit any devotee of sensationalism in literature. It is an English importation with a characteristic English setting.

COMPANY IS ORGANIZED

Butte-Duluth Mining Company Incorporated With Capital of $250,000.

Will Take Over Property in Southeastern Part of Butte.

Butte, Mont., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new mining company was recently incorporated in this city to be known as the Butte-Duluth Mining company with a capital of $250,000 in shares of $10 each. The incorporators are C. M. Everitt (agent of the Butte & Superior), A. C. Kremer, L. P. Sanders, J. Bruce Kremer and W. M. Tuohy. The articles of incorporation set forth the usual matters in connection with the launching of a mining company, and it is understood that it is intended to take over some property acquired by Capt. A. B. Wolvin but a few days ago at a cost of $200,000 according to the records. This property is in the southeastern part of the city and is but a short distance from the Pittsmont. New York capitalists had the same property under option some years ago, but after it was examined by J. Park Channing it was, for some reason never publicly made known, given up.

Butte Central.

Superintendent McConnell of the Butte Central Copper company says in his report to the county assessor that there was not any attempt during the year to mine ore in the Ophir mine, but development work was prosecuted quite extensively and the ore taken out yielded gross $5,619.10. There was expended for labor $22,631.52, for machinery $2,000, for supplies, $5,276,90 and construction work $3,800.

Davis-Daly.

It was not expected that the Davis-Daly company would show any earnings in its operations of the Colorado mine for the year ending June 1, and therefore the report displaying a deficit of $96,721.53 was not surprising. A large amount of money was expended in improvements and preparing for active mining which is now in progress. A tramway was built from the mine through some of the city streets to the line of railway and ore bins were constructed. The total expenditures during the year were $193,594.32. During the past few months a small amount of ore has been shipped and the earnings have about equaled the expenditures.

Butte-Alex Scott.

The Butte-Alex Scott, which recently declared its initial dividend, filed its annual statement the other day, showing net earnings for the year ending June 1 of $19,584.97. The report states: Tons of ore mined, 25,756; value per ton, $15.14; cost of extraction, per ton, $5.17; total cost of extraction, $131,546.62; actual mining costs, $58,135.67; cost of development, $73,410.95; cost of transportation, per ton, .0159; total cost of transportation, $2,513.89; cost of treatment, per ton, $3.18; total cost of treatment, $81,997.66; total receipts on sale of ore, $151,131.59; expended for mining, development, supplies, construction, etc., $131,546.62.

Clark's Concentrator.

W. A. Clark, who has been in the city for several weeks, has been called to New York on business, but during his stay here he completed many of the details for his zinc concentrator. He expects to return in a few weeks and during his absence his son, W. A. Clark Jr., will look after matters and arrange for the commencement of work at an early date. So far as can be learned Mr. Clark is still undecided as to a process to be used in the treatment of the zinc ore.

SPEND NIGHT ON MILLE LACS LAKE

Wahkon Preacher and Friend Are Buffeted About By Waves.

Wahkon, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. G. Noehrin, a Princeton university student, who has been supplying the Presbyterian church here, and V. R. Middlemas of this place had a thrilling experience on Mille Lacs lake a few nights ago during a storm.

They started to row across the lake, nineteen miles, to Midland, to catch the early morning stage to Brainerd. The night was pleasant when they started, the moon being out, but a bad storm blew up and soon they were in a choppy sea without moon or stars to guide them. The boat rocked dangerously and their situation was very desperate. Mr. Noehrin's muscles, gained as physical instructor at Princeton, came in good stead, as he kept the boat headed to the wind and pulled the oars all night like a true athlete. When daylight came they got their bearings and soon made the shore.

Mr. Noehrin will spend the next four years in the university of West Virginia, where he will fit himself for a medical missionary. He declares he prefers to be eaten by the "heathen Chinee" than to furnish food for the "whales" in Mille Lacs lake.

MARQUETTE'S BIG FIRE.

Two Business Buildings Burn—Loss $125,000.

Marquette, Mich., July 6.—Fire last night destroyed $125,000 worth of property in the business quarter, burning out the Bacon block, and the Virling building, two of the largest structures in Marquette.

Firemen from outside cities assisted the Marquette department in confining the flames to the two buildings, which housed several business concerns.

Louis Grabower, department store; A. S. Westlake, drygoods; A. L. Hutter, drygoods, F. W. Murray, grocery; E. O. Stafford, drugs.

SHORTAGE OF WORKERS

Lake Superior Copper Companies Experiencing Marked Scarcity of Labor.

Naumkeag Company Contracts for Several Thousand Feet of Diamond Drilling.

Houghton, Mich., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lake Superior copper mining companies are experiencing a marked shortage in labor. The recent 10 per cent advance in wages has attracted little labor from the iron districts. The shortage is felt by both producing companies and development companies alike, and more particularly by the latter, which companies, in most instances, are located away from centers of poulation and cannot offer the conveniences obtaied in the populated centers. The general reduction of working forces about two years ago sent many of the men to mining districts west and south ,and not a few appear to have settled in the Canadian Northwest. The Calumet & Hecla Mining company and its subsidiaries can easily use 1,000 additional men, and the total number required by all companies operating in Houghton county will reach 2,000 men. Unskilled underground workers is the class most desired and in which the greatest shortage exists.

Naumkeag.

The Naumkeag Copper company, a Lewissohn subsidiary, operating in the horizon of the Hancock and Quincy lodes, has contracted for several thousand feet of diamond drilling. The work will start within a few days with two machines in service. The company has just completed a geological survey of the property and will now explore the acreage preliminary to locating shafts in one or several of the copper bearing lodes known to traverse this area. The work is being done under the supervision of Sidney Lang.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine, engaged in exploratory work on either side of the Kearsarge formation in which the mine is opened, has thus far failed to find copper ground of commercial value in the several horizons under investigation. The long exploratory cross-cut east on the twenty-eighth level has passed through the Colony lode, and is temporarily breasted about 300 feet beyond where an unidentified amygdaloid is being opened by drifts. Exploratory work in the Osceola lode is giving little encouragement. The shaft is sinking steadily below a depth of 540 feet. A drill boring in advance of this depth has yielded nothing in the way of commercial values.

Copper Range.

The Copper Range is planning exploratory work on section 16, formerly a part of the old Atlantic acreage, and lying in the horizon of the Baltic lode between the Superior mine and the Baltic mine. Plans call for extensive diamond drilling in the area north and west of the Baltic formation, in which the Superior west lode and the Isle Royale amygdaloid are known to traverse. A shaft sunk on this property to a depth of about 2,500 feet by the former management yielded little in the way of commercial ground, and work was abandoned after a persistent search of more than four years. The new work will be in a different horizon from that occupied in the past, and may be expected to show a continuation of the excellent conditions found in the Isle Royale lode on the neighboring property. A crosscut west from the Champion workings is seeking this same formation several miles further south.

Wyandot

The Wyandot has temporarily ceased development work on the so-called No. 8 lode, opened by crosscut on the 700-foot level of the exploratory shaft. This crosscut is driving toward the eastern sandstone without interruption, and in another 150 feet will complete one link in the geological cross section being made of this property. Work elsewhere is centered in the diamond drilling on section 21, where a promising amygdaloid lode was uncovered a year or so ago. This lode is being opened by surface trenches and is making a satisfactory showing. The drill is down over 1,100 feet and recently passed through a copper deposit of some promise. This work is in the presumed horizon of the Lake lode.

Mass.

The Mass reports a production of but 60,000 pounds mineral for June. The unusually small output is explained by the inability of the company to continue shipments, owing to destruction of several sections of the railroad line that connects the mine with the mills on Keweenaw bay. The line has been rebuilt and is again available for rock transportation. Work at the mine is centered in development work on the Evergreen lode, and is rapidly increasing ground reserves. The physical condition of the property is most excellent, and shipments of 700 tons of rock daily are now possible, and will likely be the order within a very few weeks. Shipments at this rate will give the property an indicated production of 300,000 pounds fine copper per month, as compared with 120,000 pounds a year ago.

Effect on Flaxseed Market Is the Same—Receipts Large.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 6.—Continued favorable weather reports in the spring wheat country on both sides of the Canadian line caused wheat to make a further decline today on all the principal markets of North America. This movement took place in both the July and September options. The receipts of wheat on the American markets from the country were away below those of a year ago, yet so powerful was the bearish influence of the fine weather reports, with plenty of rain where it was needed, that the July option was pulled down along with September.

Duluth July wheat today closed 1½c lower at $1.08, and September closed 2½c lower at $1.01½. Both options closed lower at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Duluth cash wheat closed as usual, a cent over the July price. Oats were 1¼c off; rye, 2c off, and durum and barly, unchanged.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼@⅝d lower. In addition to the bearish weather reports from North America, that market was beared by generally bright weather in Europe, the expectation of larger world shipments and more favorable reports from Russia. These influences were to some extent counteracted by unfavorable reports from Italy for cargoes.

Flaxseed Also Lower.

The weather reports affected the flaxseed market in about the same way as the wheat market. Moreover, there were heavy receipts of flaxseed from the country, as farmers are still rushing their seed upon the market in anticipation of the big crops in the American Northwest and the Canadian West. Today there were twenty cars of flaxseed on the Duluth track for inspection. Large receipts were also reported at Minneapolis and Winnipeg. Duluth July and September today both closed 2c lower, July at $2.11¼ and September at $1.92. Duluth October closed 1½c lower at $1.81½. Winnipeg July seed today closed 6c lower at $1.85 bid. Buenos Ayres July last night closed 2⅝c off at $1.77¼, and London July today closed at $2.19½, or ⅞c higher.

MARKET GOSSIP

August L. Riesberg, manager of a flour mill at Ellzabeth, Ottertail county, Minnesota, a visitor on the Duluth grain exchange, remarked today that the farmers of that county had not found wheat a profitable grain to raise during the last few years, and were largely discontinuing its production and raising rye, oats and barley in its place.

"I think the total wheat acreage of the county has diminished 25 per cent since a year ago," said he. "The acreage of flaxseed has also diminished, but there has been a much larger sowing of rye, oats and barley. For many years the farmers raised little else than wheat, year after year. I remember that twenty-two years ago the farms would produce thirty bushels to the acre and that was no regarded as a particularly large crop. But it is different now. I belive the land is wheat-sick. Last year I do not believe the county averaged more than eight to ten bushels to the acre. The year before last the yield was even less, being six or seven bushels to the acre. Moreover the quality was not of the best. In the old days our wheat used to grade for the most part No. 1, but of late it has been grading No. 2 and No. 3.

"It is no wonder that our farmers have become tired of raising wheat. When an acre produces ten bushels of wheat that will sell at $1.05 a bushel, he gets $10.50 from what that acre of land raises, but he can sow that same acre of land in rye, which will produce about twenty bushels, and at 70 cents a bushel the acre will thus bring him $14. If he sows it in oats he will get about forty-five bushels, and that at 47 cents a bushel will bring him more than $21. What it would bring in barley I do not know, but I do know that barley, oats and rye are all looking fine in our county and seem to promise big crops. I never saw rye look so fine as it does this season.

"As to wheat, that looks well, too. But I remember that it looked just as well in June of last year, when it was heading out. Then came the hot, dry winds, which kept the heads from developing as they should. It may be that such winds as these will keep the heads from properly maturing this year also. The crop is two weeks later this year and has reached the same stage at which it stood just before the hot winds caught it last year. Our farmers are earnestly hoping for a continuance of the rainy weather through the heading season. From now on until about July 15 will be the critical period.

"Ottertail county cannot stand much dry weather, for there is a great deal of light sandy soil there, and that does not hold the moisture well.

"While forsaking the cultivation of wheat to a large extent, our farmers are going into dairying and potato raising. The coarser grains that are now being largely cultivated are used to a great extent in the raising of cattle. The cattle are being produced both for meat and for milk and butter. There is now a creamery in almost every town in the county, and the butter output is fast increasing. It has been found, too, that the soil of the county is well adapted to the raising of potatoes and farmers are going more and more largely into potato raising each year.

"I have found it harder and harder to get the wheat that our mill needs. That is what I am here for today. Just before leaving Elizabeth I called up four elevators in our county and none of them would promise to ship me a carload of wheat. Our mills are in a big scramble to get wheat. It is not surprising that wheat is as high as it is. What surprises me is that it is not selling at $1.25 a bushel."

A telegram from Winnipeg says: "Recent rains have assured the crop of the West. Wheat is heading out and is in splendid shape. There is the biggest and best crop in Western Canada we ever had in sight."

A. A. Lee, formerly an elevator manager at Hatton, Traill county, North Dakota, who was in Duluth today making arrangements to act as traveling representative of Randall, Lee & Mitchell, said the crops of that country, and as far as he could learn, all through that region of the country were in excellent condition.

"We have had some fear of hot, dry weather," said he, "but recent rains have given the ground plenty of moisture. There have been two good rains this week in Traill county. If the weather continues favorable from now on I should not be surprised to see the yield of wheat average twenty bushels to the acre in that county or even higher. At present it is a question whether we shall get about ten or twenty bushels or something between. It is all a weather matter.

"Our acreage of wheat is about the same as last year. Flaxseed has fallen off a great deal. Farmers don't like to keep on raising that, year after year, because it is so hard on the soil. We have about 10 per cent greater acreage of oats than we had a year ago. Barley is about the same.

"Farmers of Traill county, like those of other counties through that region, are going more and more into diversified farming. The increase in the acreage of potatoes of late has been very large. Farmers of our county have made a great success with potatoes. They are also going more largely into cattle-raising and dairying."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Covering By Shorts Causes Rally in Wheat Prices.

Chicago, July 6.—Wheat rallied today on account of commission house buying and because of covering on the part of shorts. There was an easy tone at the start, however, as a result of fine weather Northwest and in consequence of forecasts of large world shipments. Bullish advices from Italy had an offset in an improved condition for the winter crop of Russia. Opening prices were unchanged to ½@⅝c lower. September started as $1.00@⅞c, the same as last night to ½c down and then turned upward to $1.01¼@1.01⅜.

Increased offerings on the bulge brought about a setback, September breaking below the dollar mark. The close was weak, with September 1⅛@1⅜c under last night at 99⅝@99¾c.

Lessening of selling pressure allowed corn to ascend with wheat. At the outset, though, fine weather had a bearish effect. September opened ⅜c lower to ¼c advance, at 66⅞c to 67⅛c, and rose to 67⅜c.

The market afterward reacted when wheat turned heavy. Closing prices were weak with September ⅛@⅜c net lower at 66⅞@67c.

Profit-taking by shorts put the oats market on the upgrade. September started ⅛c to ¼c off at 36c to 36⅛c and climbed to 36⅜c.

Provisions sagged owing to retirement of buyers. Initial transactions varied from 5c decline to 2½c gain, with September delivery $18.30 for pork, $10.87½@10.90 to $10.92½ for lard and $10.57½ for ribs.

STEADY VOLUME OF NEW CONSTRUCTION WORK

Not Believed Political Conditions Will Affect Local Activity.

Crop Conditions Promising and Railroads Pushing New Work.

Building men say that midsummer is likely to show a slight relaxation in construction work of all kinds—particularly this season, which has a presidential campaign ahead. Just how much the political unrest will affect local conditions and building conditions generally throughout the Northwest can hardly be predicted at the present time, but it is safe to assume that the depreciation will not be very noticeable.

In the volume of work, as reported from the offices of the various architects and builders, there seems to be little indication that building conditions have a tendency to be unsettled or fluctuate one way or the other to any exent. On the whole, the summer has developed a rather steady volume of new construction, week by week.

From all over the Northwest, reports indicate a healthy condition in all lines of construction and an evident indifference as to who will be elected president this fall. Crop conditions have had, and probably will have, more to do with the building situation during the coming few months than the political outlook. Crop conditions are promising at the present time.

Throughout the Northwest, particularly in the Dakotas and in Montana, the railroads are engaged in a great deal of new construction work. The usual lines of building continue to be fairly well represented, although it is said that seasonable work is thinning out somewhat.

In Duluth the building permits of the past week experienced a slump, owing to the fact that the Fourth of July came this week. A total of seventeen permits were issued, representing an expenditure of $25,200.

It was understood this week that certain Pittsburg interests had purchased a site of thirty-two acres in West Duluth for the purpose of erecting another $1,000,000 coal dock. The purchasers, it is said, will let the contract at once for a dock, 3,000 by 500, with a storage of 1,000,000 tons and a handling capacity of 2,000,000 tons during a season.

The Paine & Nixon company has been awarded the contract for all of the Fenestra steel sash to be used in the various buildings of the Minnesota steel plant at New Duluth.

Officials of Lake county will erect a $15,000 brick poorhouse building on plans which are now being prepared in the office of Architect J. J. Wangenstein of this city. The plans will be out for figures in about two weeks.

Lake county's poor farm is located about two and one-half miles northwest of Two Harbors, where 160 acres was purchased by the county about two years ago for this purpose.

Since the land was purchased, a large amount of clearing has been done and a portion of the tract placed under a fair state of cultivation.

The poorhouse will be constructed of brick, two stories high, and will be modern in every particular for a building of its kind. It will have quarters for the superintendent and rooms and wards for the inmates.

* * *

A new two-story and basement factory building, 50 by 50, fronting on Michigan street between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues west, will be erected at once for Winkler Bros., candy manufacturers.

P. C. Hanson & Sons, a West end real estate firm, are closing a deal whereby the contract for the new factory building will be awarded Monday. The plans have already been prepared and all is in readiness for work to start.

Winkler Bros., for whom the building will be erected, are now located in a smaller building at Twenty-third avenue west and Michigan street.

Kelley & Williams, architects, this week awarded the general contract for the Arnold school to Alex Roberts & Co. of this city. The school will be a four-room affair of brick construction and complete will cost about $15,000. The general contract was awarded on a bid of $10,000 and the heating and plumbing contract was let to the American Heating company for $2,000.

* * *

Architect Anthony Puck will soon have plans out for the heating, plumbing and electrical jobs at the new $100,000 high school building which is being erected at Buhl, Minn. It is expected that figures will be called for in about three weeks.

* * *

The Duluth Street Railway company is building an addition to its street car barns at Twenty-sixth avenue west and Superior street to be used as clubrooms for the street car men. The room will be 40 by 30 and supplied with all conveniences of the ordinary club reading and lounging room. The work is progressing nicely. The building is being erected within the present large car barn.

HERALD'S POPULAR-PRICED HOMES

A city's confidence in its own future is reflected largely in the type of houses erected and their permanency. The call for small brick houses is constant, but their cost is prohibitive to the homebuilder who puts his life's savings into his home. The above sketch shows a simple, natural solution of the small brick house, and could only be built on a corner lot or wide inner lot. The design is inappropriate for a frame house and should not be copied in other materials. The plan is unique for Duluth and would be classed as a bungalow, having a bedroom and bathroom on the first floor. A careful study of these plans will disclose many interesting features. The cost, inclusive of plumbing and heating, would be $4,000.

The real estate market experienced a quiet week, the volume of transfers being considerably smaller than during any previous week for some time past. The Fourth of July broke into the business of the week more or less and probably had something to do with the apparent inactivity in trading.

July prospects, however, are far from being discouraging. The various brokers and dealers anticipate that a number of important deals will be consummated within the next three weeks, and in fact predict a good volume of business for the month. June was a good month in all of the offices, and there is no reason to believe that the same will not be true of July.

That acreage has a good movement at the present time is evidenced by the fact that the increase in the sales reported by the Duluth & Iron Range railroad land department this summer has been 50 per cent better than last year. Hundreds of new arrivals are coming into St. Louis and Aitkin counties. In the vicinity of Meadowlands a number of new settlers have taken up dairying.

E. W. MacPherran, land commissioner for the South Shore road, reports a gratifying number of sales in the Lake Nebagamon district and Northern Michigan farming country. The fruit-raising section on the Bayfield peninsula is also having an active month, a number of sales having been closed up recently.

• • •

Ludwig B. Donner has sold to Emile Peterson a house and 50-ft. lot on the upper side of London road, between Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth avenues east. The consideration was $2,800. Emile Peterson has transfered to Mr. Donnera 50-ft. lot on the upper side of Seventh street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues west. The price paid was $1,000.

• • •

Robert E. Carroll for $2,800 has sold to Gustaf L. Newman a house and 25-ft. frontage on the west side of Fifty-second avenue west, between Gosnold and Bristol streets.

• • •

A. W. Keuhnow, operating in Norton's Steel Plant division and at Gary, this week sold five lots to purchasers at Ironwood, Mich. He advises that inquiry has been better from the outside than from the people who reside in Duluth.

• • •

The Alliance Real Estate corporation this week closed four sales for Exeter farms, small acre tracts in the new addition which has been platted near Lester Park. Inquiry for small acre tracts, according to George Lynott, manager, has been especially brisk during the past few days.

• • •

A. H. Burg & Co. anticipate a heavy movement in acreage in their properties in Wisconsin in the Lake Nebagamon country and in Lake county north of Two Harbors. Several parties have been taken out and have been shown the property during the past few weeks.

• • •

Ebert, Walker & McKnight are experiencing some activity in the sale of 5 and 10-acre tracts in the vicinity of the poor farm. The company has platted out several of these tracts and is finding much inquiry for them.

• • •

Marie K. Richter, through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck, has purchased a 50-ft. lot at the corner of Twentieth avenue east and Second street from Sallie Schenck. The consideration was $2,000. William M. Prindle & Co. represented the seller.

• • •

Gustav Anderson has purchased from P. G. Hanson & Sons of the West end for $2,000 a 50-ft. lot on Twenty-second avenue west and Second street fronting on the street and running seventy feet deep. The new owner will probably build at once.

HONESTY NOT QUESTIONED

I. A. Larson Says $40,000 Leak Is Due to Carelessness Only.

Candidates for the School Board Address West Duluth Club.

"I do no propose to show my hand at this time, as I do not believe it necessary," said L. A. Larson, candidate for the school board, in answer to the request that he explain the charges he made last week regarding a leak of $40,000 per year in the operation of the public schools. Mr. Larson spoke at the open meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, other addresses being made by Anton Ringsred, candidate for the school board, and several members of the West Duluth club.

"My telling at the present time of the exact leaks and by whom they are caused would only start arguments and they are not exactly what I am looking for," continued Mr. Larson. "I must say that all the members of the school board, whom I have met, are honest in every respect, but they have not had time enough to familiarize themselves with the workings of the board and the probable opportunities for improvement.

"The $40,000 leak which has caused such a discussion consists of a number of small items. It is only a matter of poor management and these leaks can be remedied without any injury to anyone or any department. One instance for example, a cheaper grade of lumber could be purchased for the boys in the manual training department, instead of buying the expensive grades as at present. It is these small things that count up and make the $40,000 leak.

"I am also opposed to dancing in any form in the public schools and since the ban has been placed on this form of amusement, I see that the physical instructor has invented the folk dancing. This dance is imported from the old country and is as baneful as the more modern dances."

Following Mr. Larson's address, short talks on the school board election were given by Mr. Ringsred, Rev. Allen Clark, O. T. Strand, J. J. Frey, Emil Zauft, W. B. Getchell and C. H. Martin. The speakers all voiced their sentiments against dancing in the schools, but the members of the club refused to go on record regarding the question. They decided to hold another open meeting next week, when all the candidates for the school board will be asked to speak and the general public invited.

At the suggestion of David Sang, former alderman of the Eighth ward, the members of the club voted to introduce a resolution to the city council amending the present traffic ordinance making it compulsory for automobiles and vehicles to stop behind a standing street car when the gates are open. Mr. Sang gave an interesting talk on the subject in which he urged that the resolution be introduced to the council at once. He claimed that automobile drivers especially do not care for the safety of the public and apparently forget the fact that women and children usually get off a car when the gates are open. H. W. Lanners, A. H. Merriman and C. H. Martin were appointed on a committee to bring the subject before the Eighth ward aldermen. J. J. Frey, chairman of the railroad committee of the club, read the findings of the state railroad and warehouse commission with regard to the recent hearing conducted in behalf of a new passenger and freight station for West Duluth. The club extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Frey and A. H. Merriman and C. G. Futter, the remaining members of the committee.

CAMPAIGN FOR EARLY CLOSING.

Business men in West Duluth are planning to start a campaign for early closing hours during the warm months. "It is a shame," said one of the proprietors of a Central avenue store, "the way some of our business men keep open until 9 and 10 o'clock every night of the week. In this warm weather, the clerks should at least be given some chance for a rest and recreation. There are a number of business men here who have agreed to close early, but I always find one or two who refuse to join with the majority. I would suggest that a meeting of the various business men be called and an agreement reached at once.

"The grocers and meat dealers have all come to an agreement regarding early closing during the warm summer months, and I do not see why the other merchants cannot decide on this matter."

RECEPTACLES FOR WASTE PAPER NEEDED.

"West Duluth should secure receptacles far waste paper and place these on the principal corners in this end of the city," said a Central avenue business man this morning in speaking of the condition of the streets and sidewalks in West Duluth at the present time.

"These receptacles are not at all costly," he went on, "and would be of great service to this end of the city. All this waste paper, rags and other trash could all be thrown in these receptacles or cans. Pedestrians, instead of throwing things on the street or sidewalk, would use these cans."

PRESBTERIANS HEAD THE CHURCH LEAGUE.

The West Duluth Interchurch Baseball league held a special meeting last evening in the parlors of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street. The Merritts decided to remain in the league and finish the season. The plans for the summer were discussed and the schedule announced for the next few weeks.

The standing of the teams to date is as follows:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Presbyterians	5	4	1	.800
Asbury	5	3	2	.600
Merritts	4	2	2	.500
Baptists	4	0	4	.000

Socialists Organize.

West Duluth Socialists organized last evening at a meeting held at the Victor hall, 5528 Grand avenue. The members decided to support James E. Foubister for representative from the Forty-ninth district and to work for Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for president. The organization is confident of carrying the Eighth ward for Debs.

The members decided last evening to hold an annual picnic Sunday, July 28, at Fairmont park. A special program for the day is now being prepared by several committees appointed last evening.

Injuries Slight.

Earl J. McDonough of 1103 Roosevelt street, who was injured at midnight last night, when he was knocked from his buggy by a Duluth street railway working car at Thirty-third avenue west, left the Graham hospital this morning, where he was taken immediately after the accident. McDonough was slightly injured in his side, and the attending physician did not think it necessary to confine the young man in the hospital for any length of time. The wagon was broken, the car having struck it just as it was passing the tracks. The shock threw McDonough out of the buggy.

All-Night Trip.

The West Duluth Boys' club enjoyed an all-night camping party at Fond du Lac last night. The members left the clubrooms at 205 Central avenue at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, supplied with blankets and food to last them until late this evening, when they expect to return. The boys walked from the end of the Grand avenue car line to Fond du Lac. The party is under the direction of Norman McLeod, secretary of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. and head of the classes at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club.

Republicans Will Meet.

The regular monthly meeting of the West Duluth Republican club will be held this evening at the Commercial club. The meeting will consider candidates for county offices and it is probable that an indorsement of a county ticket may be made this evening. The recent Republican convention at Chicago will be discussed, and, although it has been rumored that there will be a split in the organization, many of the members going over on the Roosevelt side, those at the head of the club deny this and say that the membership will remain intact until the national electon this fall.

Opdahl Will Preach.

Rev. B. L. Opdahl of the Bethel Norwegian Lutheran church, Sixtieth avenue west and Bristol street, will conduct the regular services at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. In the evening at 8 o'clock he will preach at the Hazelwood Chapel, Thirty-ninth avenue west and Fourth street.

Mrs. W. Lamson of Roberts, Wis., is a guest this week at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. S. Erickson, 203 North Fifty-fifth avenue west. Mrs. Lamson will visit at Cloquet before returning home.

Rev. A. C. Reinertson of Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, will conduct services tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock and at 7:45 o'clock in the evening.

FIRST TRAIN DUE AUG. 1

Canadian Northern Will Not Be Ready July 15 as Expected.

Nearly 300 Men Now Employed Completing the Work.

The Canadian Northern Railway will be running trains into Duluth by Aug. 1, if present plans do not miscarry.

It was planned to start the trains on July 15, but in spite of the fact that the work was rushed at top speed, this was found to be impossible.

J. L. Pickles, engineer in charge of the construction work, with offices in the Lyceum building, states that the work is now going along as rapidly as can be expected that the line will soon be in operation.

At the present time nearly 300 men are engaged in completing the road. Work at Virginia on the new depot began last week.

The old depot at Virginia will be used for the present or while the new one is being constructed.

In Duluth the trains will be run into the Omaha depot.

Work on the road was interfered with to a great extent this spring on account of the cold, wet weather. Since the weather became more settled the work has been progressing at a satisfactory rate, although the time lost in early spring could not be made up.

POLITICAL ARTICLES.

Attorney General Rules on the Corrupt Practices Act.

St. Paul, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—In answer to requests from newspapers for an interpretation of that section of the new corrupt practices act pertaining to publication of political articles, Attorney General Smith today gave out the following opinion:

"A publisher of a newspaper cannot insert therein any matter, for the insertion and publication of which he receives pay, if that matter be such as would tend, if published, to influence even indirectly any person to vote for or against any candidate or any proposition at an ensuing election, unless such published matter be preceded by the words, 'Paid Advertisement,' and headed by the name and address of the candidate and the name of the author of the article."

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE

New York, July 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of trade says:

Business is satisfactory and in some important lines active, notwithstanding the usual summer slowing up, and the stocktaking incident to the time of the year.

Moreover, prospects for business are even better than actual current conditions, and the characteristic feature of the week's reports from the leading trade and industrial centers in all sections of the country, is the expanding and deepening optimism.

Confidence is in an active degree based on the belief that nothing but a crop failure or other unforeseen calamity can now check the improvements that have set in, and it is noteworthy that nowhere is the optimism more marked than in the agricultural sections.

Results in iron and steel during the first half of the year were eminently satisfactory from a tonnage standpoint and indications point to steady operations throughout the summer. The recent advance in bars, plates and shapes, has checked buying slightly, yet the rate of new business has practically provided for present capacity. Orders booked in June were reduced somewhat by the lessened demand, the railroads, although purchasers of rails, cars and other rolling stock in the first six months, compared favorably with the previous periods of greatest activity. Premiums are now being paid to secure prompt deliveries of crude steel and quotations for the third quarter have strengthened. There is prospect of a rise of 25 cents a ton on basic iron as heavy contracts are pending.

With many houses busy with their inventories and business interrupted by a holiday, the drygoods markets were naturally quiet, but prices were very firm.

Cotton mills are well employed, and goods are not accumulating. Print cloths are very firm.

Trade with the far east is very quiet, but figures show that exports of cotton goods for the eleven months of the fiscal year have exceeded those of 1911 by 85,000,000 yards and of 1910 by 88,000,000 yards.

Woolens and worsteds are selling satisfactorily.

While many of the shoe factories are closed for their stocktaking and repairs, the same confidence is displayed as in the other trades.

Although trading in hides was less active than last week, sales were made in the packer market at former quotations and the firm tone of the market was fully maintained.

CAMP MEETING FOR INDIANS WILL BE HELD AT SAWYER

REV. F. H. PEQUETTE.

REV. E. K. COPPER.

The First Annual Assembly of the Indian and English Camp meeting will be held at Sawyer, Minn., July 30 to Aug. 5, inclusive. Rev. E. K. Copper, district superintendent of the Methodist church, will preside at these meetings and Rev. F. H. Pequette will conduct the services.

Prayer service	8:00 a. m.
Sermon	10:30 a. m.
Sermon	2:00 p. m.

Charleston, W. Va., July 6.—Former Governor William O. Dawson announced today that he has signed the call for the national convention of the Roosevelt party to be held in Chicago, Aug. 10. BAR BANQUET NEXT WEEK

Annual Celebration of Duluth Attorneys Will Be Held Soon.

The annual banquet of the Bar Association of the Eleventh Judicial district, will be held at the Commercial club next Saturday evening.

When the lawyers of Duluth get together, all in one bunch, there's some excitement. What it will be this year is a matter of conjecture and this as much as anything else is what gets them out.

Judge Dibell will be present as usual. He will have his old seat between Judge Bonham and C. O. Baldwin.

It is a merry occasion when the members of the bar association get together and the program for this year will be bigger, brighter and merrier than ever.

The members of the committee in charge have not announced plans as yet, nor do they intend to before the repast is finished and the members tilt back in their chairs ready to be amused.

There isn't a member who would miss the annual banquet. It's a great big joyous time and everybody will be on hand.

POWER COMPANY'S TAX CASE TO BE APPEALED.

International Falls, Minn., July 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Power co...pany tax case, which was to have been heard yesterday by Judge McClenahan, who convened a special term of court here for that purpose, is to be carried to the supreme court. When the hearing was called yesterday attorneys for the state moved for a dismissal on the grounds the appeal was not properly taken. The court overruled the motion after which both sides agreed no evidence should be heard until the supreme court had passed on the district court's ruling.

Explicit Want Ads are the ones that bring the most replies—they are the ones that are read with the greatest degree of satisfaction.

When you write a Want, tell all the important facts. If you are advertising for help, tell just what is to be expected of the applicants. As a matter of fairness, those who seek employment should know all the principal facts regarding a position, so that only those who are capable of filling such a place will be expected to apply.

The Herald

Is a Want Ad in Every Duluth Home.

BOTH PHONES THREE-TWO-FOUR

In locating a position through the Want columns, state your qualifications plainly and concisely, tell of your experience and enumerate enough of the facts, so that those who are seeking workers will have full enough information, if they are interested to communicate with you.

The explicit Wants tell clearly, concisely, in a minimum number of words, just the thought that is to be expressed.
